WINDSOR, May 9.—A woman named Lizzie Cook was arrested at the Vanderbilt House yesterday on the charge of abducting a young girl named Maggie Jordan. The Cook woman, it seems, keeps a disreputable house in Clark-street, Chicago. She coaxed the Jordan girl to live with her and the girl's father had her arrested. She was let out on $4000 bail and skipped to Canada, arriving in Windsor ten days ago. A warrant was sworn out before ex-Magistrate Bartlett by ex-Inspector Bonfield of Chicago. The case will come up before the magistrate soon and will be watched with interest, as it is thought to come under the new extradition treaty.

A Washerwoman Princess.

Pope Sextus V. was, as all the world knows, of the very humblest origin. He had been a goat-herd and one of his sisters was a washerwoman. When, however, he became supreme pontiff he brought his kinswoman, the laundress, to Rome, made her a princess and installed her in a magnificent palace. The next day the status of Pasquin was found to be indued with a shirt, the cleanliness of which left much to be desired. The inimitable Marforio asked, in a placard which was read with a universal grin, the why and the wherefore of the grimy undergarment, and the next morning Pasquin replied that he could not get his linen washed because his washerwoman had become a princess.

Why he Was Disinherited.

"Honesty, my dear nephew," said the dying man, "is the best policy."

"You are speaking from hearsay, I suppose, dear uncle, answered the thoughtless nephew.—Racket.

A Well-Appreciated Compliment.

Mr. Manhattan (visiting in Chicago)—Your mamma is truly remarkable for her poise, Miss Liveways.

Miss Liveways—Yes, indeed. Mamma is no slouch at pastry. Her minces and lemons are always A number 1.—Munsey's Weekly.

Dr. Pills—You've been working like a hero, doctor, to save young Starvely's life. And he as poor as Job's turkey, too!

His Honor's Joke.

"What's the next case?" asked the Judge.

"The prisoner was arrested for ogling a woman."

"Ah! sort of stare-case!" said the Judge, and the prisoner laughed so uproariously that the judge was very lenient.—[illegible]

Mamma (to her little boy). "Now, Bennie, if you'll be good and go to sleep, mamma'll give you one of Dr. Ayer's nice sugar-coated Cathartic Pills, next time you need medicine." Bennie, smiling sweetly, dropped off to sleep at once.

Anniversary Services To-morrow.

Rev. Chaplain Searls, of New York, has arrived in town and will preach the Sunday school anniversary services in Charlotte Street Methodist church at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. As this is the first visit of this eminent preacher and lecturer to Peterborough, doubtless the church will be filled to overflowing. Pewholders are requested to come early. In the afternoon there will be a children's temperance service, at which addresses will be given by Rev. Dr. Searls, Mr. Colville, Secretary Y.M.C.A.; and Rev. S. J. Shorey, pastor of the church. Several beautiful temperance selections and recitations and songs will be rendered by the efficient Sunday school choir and by the children of the school. Time of service 2.45 p.m. There will be special silver collections taken up at all the services in aid of the Sunday school fund. Dr. Searls will lecture on Monday evening and the annual entertainment by the scholars will take place on Tuesday evening.

THE CAMPAIGN.

Meetings Held in the Interests of Both Candidates.

Mr. Stratton held a meeting at Montgomery's school house last night. There was a fair attendance of electors, and the meeting was quiet. Mr. E.B. Stone was present in the interests of Mr. Carnegie, the Equal Rights candidate, and was given a good hearing.

A meeting was held in the Town Hall in Ashburnham last evening which evidenced unmistakeably the interest which is being taken in the approaching election. The excitement waxeth warm, and the Equal Rights candidate seems to be taking a strong hold in the riding. Last night's meeting was called by Mr. Biezard and an invitation was extended to Mr. Kidd, the Equal Rights man, to be present. The invitation was accepted and after Mr. Biezard had addressed the meeting and devoted some time to personalities, Mr. Kidd spoke for about an hour. He answered the personal references and enunciated the platform of the Association whose candidate he was and pledged himself, if elected, to stand by and vote according to the principles contained therein. Mr. Kidd was warmly received and frequently applauded and cheered, and when the REVIEW dropped in one would have thought it was an Equal Rights meeting from the feeling manifested. Mr. Biezard rose to deny some of Mr. Kidd's statements but his denials were met with derisive shouts and laughter. Mr. J. B. McWilliams then followed intending to reply to statements which he said Mr. Stone had made at the Kidd meeting the night before. Some one in the audience shouted out "We don't want to hear your private matters," and a good deal of the remainder of Mr. McWilliams' explanation was drowned amid yells, howls and stamping of feet. Mr. Taylor, a Toronto lawyer, was present to speak in Mr. Biezard's behalf, but his address was also frequently interrupted. The meeting was a lively one and closed with cheers for Mr. Biezard, Mr. Kidd and the Queen.

Mr. Carnegie held a meeting at Selwyn last night, and addressed a full house. No other speakers were present.

A meeting will be held in Mr. Carnegie's Committee rooms in the Opera House block this evening.

Hon. G. W. Ross, Minister of Education, is dated to speak in the Opera House on Monday evening at a meeting which is to be held in the interests of Mr. Stratton's candidature. Mr. Carnegie, the Equal Rights candidate, has received an invitation to be present, and has signified his intention of accepting the invitation. He will therefore appear on the platform and address the meeting.

The Conservatives are in convention this afternoon in the old Music Hall considering the nomination of a candidate.

Hyers' Colored Musical Comedy Co.

supporting May C. Hyers, acknowledged to be the only colored actress in the world, open an engagement of three nights with Saturday matinee, in Opera House here, commencing Thursday, May 15th. The Toronto Empire of April 22nd says:—"In these days when the theatre-goers has become accustomed to the burnt cork and negro imitations of minstrel troupes, a genuine colored company is considerably a novelty. Hyers' Colored Musical Comedy Company that appears at the Academy this week gives an entertainment above the average of the ordinary minstrel show. The company comprises several clever artists whose singing and dancing character impersonations are decidedly clever. The first two parts of the programme comprise the usual songs and dances presented by the mistic companies. Among them such favorites as 'Mary's Gone Wid a Coon,' 'De Court House in de Sky,' 'Old Red Cradel' figure on the programme, and were excellently rendered by melodious powerful voices. Miss May Hyers has a contralto voice of sweetness and power that displayed itself with great effect. In Tom Davis and C. T. Small are found two artists whose realistic acting and excellent singing met with great favor. Steve Cooper's sand jig in the second part was a very clever performance of leg manipulation. A genuine old-fashioned plantation break-down at the end of the second part quite captured the audience. A comedy sketch, entitled 'The President of the Limekiln Club,' gives the members of the company and opportunity to display their particular powers. Tom Davis' songs were a feature of this part of the programme. Altogether the performance is excellent of its kind, and will doubtless command good audiences for the the rest of the week. 1d110

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Customer—Great Scott! Then I don't want it. I'm a shoe-dealer, and I want a case for displaying woman's shoes.—Chatter.

EQUAL RIGHTS MANIFESTO.

An Address From the Council of the Association.

At a meeting of the Council of the Equal Rights Association held in Toronto on May 3rd it was decided to issue an address to the electors. After referring to the organization of the Association and to Manitoba and Northwest matters, the address proceeds:—

The Council desires, however, to address the people of Ontario more especially on local matters.

You are now called upon to elect representatives to the Legislative Assembly, and the legislation of the next four years on the subjects dealt with in this manifesto may be fraught with consequences of great importance to the future well-being of the province. It behooves, therefore, every lover of his country to bear well his part in the maintenance and defence of principles so dear to every British heart.

The questions connected with and growing out of the Separate schools are sure to occupy an important place in your thoughts.

Roman Catholic Separate schools are guaranteed by the British North America Act, and the Province, otherwise fully empowered to legislate with regard to educational matters, as well as matters of local concern, is prevented from dealing with the question of unifying its school system. This limitation of the power of the province is one that the Council of the Association has declared against, and with that view, at a meeting of the Council in December last, it was resolved as follows:—

"Whereas, the chief feature of the history and constitution of Canada is the acquisition of local, popular, and responsible self-government; and whereas, by the education clauses of the British North America Act, the Provincial Legislature of Ontario is restricted by the Imperial Parliament in its power to make laws respecting education; and whereas, in consequence of this restriction the people of Ontario are not free to make such laws respecting education as they may from time to time deem prudent; therefore, it is the opinion of this Council that the full measure of responsible government should be granted to the people of the Province of Ontario by the abolition of all restrictions upon the power to make laws respecting education."

The Council does not pretend to conceal that the object it has in view in obtaining by constitutional means the repeal of the enactment referred to, is that of abolishing Separate schools. It is convinced that there ought to be no separation of the children of the people in the matter of education. As one law for all is sound doctrine, so one Public school for all is demanded by the principles of the Equal Rights Association. Nor can any good reason be assigned why the Province of Ontario should by fetters be compelled to maintain and perpetuate a dual system of schools. The people of Ontario never assented to the Separate school system. It was originally forced upon them by the representatives of Lower Canada in the days priod to Confederation. And for the people of Ontario to submit to this curtailment of the liberty which almost all the other provinces of the Dominion enjoy; for Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, British Columbia, as well as Manitoba, have absolute power in educational matters, would be to submit to an injustice that the people of this province, as this Council believes, cannot be expected to permanently acquiesce in.

The Council does not underrate the difficulties of the task it has set before it. Its belief is that any change which requires an alteration in the British North America Act, and more especially a change involving the annulling of that which by a portion of our fellow-citizens is looked upon as a guarantee of their peculiar privileges, requires for its successful accomplishment a deep-seated conviction that the continuance of the system is fraught with consequences perilous to the welfare of the country.

At this juncture, therefore, those of you who agree with the view taken by the Council it is hoped will see to it that there are members in the next Assembly, where the motion for the repeal of the limitatory clause must by constitutional usage originate, who will ensure that the question is brought up.

So long, however, as Separate schools do exist under the provisions of the clause in the British North America Act already referred to, the question of the management and the necessity of insisting that the special privileges which the constitution gives to the Separate schools shall not be enlarged, must form subjects of much moment to the electorate of Ontario. There is a widespread feeling that since Confederation attempts, not altogether unsuccessful, have been made by the hierarchy to obtain a status for the Separate schools far beyond the privileges with which they were endowed by the Act of Confederation.

There is, however, in the opinion of this Association, a fundamental principle in relation to the Separate schools which should never be lost sight of. It is that every person must be assumed to be a supporter of the Public schools, unless, being a Roman Catholic, he, by written notice given by himself or by his agent duly authorized in that behalf, declared himself a supporter of Separate schools.

That this principle, at least prior to the legislation of last session, had been violated there can be but little doubt. With regard to the amendment of the school law of last session as to this matter, while the Council notes with pleasure that the subject was dealt with by the Assembly, it does not, in view of the difficult problem of statutory construction which it presents, deem it expedient to express any positive opinion as to whether the changes made are or are not sufficient to attain the desired end.

There is, however, one phase of this matter which requires a clear and outspoken statement, and which the Council hopes and trusts the great body of the electorate of the province will view in the same light as that in which it presents itself to the Council. It is the pretension of the Roman Catholic hierarchy to control the Separate schools and to treat them as the succursal of the Church. The supporters of Separate schools under the law are theoretically entitled to manage them in the same way as the Public schools are managed. This right should be made a real and effective control, and against the claims of the ecclesiastical authorities the ratepayers who support Separate schools must be protected in the exercise of their franchise by the ballot, or in some other form.

The course of instruction, too, in the Separate schools, the school books to be used and the inspection of them, should be under the like control and supervision as the Public schools; and a rigid enforcement of the law and regulations on these matters should be insisted on. The Council can see no reason why the inspection of all schools, Separate as well as Public, should not be by the same official.

The problem which presents itself for solution in the eastern part of the province and to some extent also in the extreme south-western district—is one, as the resolution passed at the convention implies, which has engaged the attention and excited the apprehension of the people of this Province.

It was discovered that slowly and imperceptibly the French-Canadians who had immigrated into Ontario had, under the guidance of their Church, taken possession of the schools, and, without legal warrant, had practically introduced the school system and teachings of the Province of Quebec, at the same time supplanting the English language by the French.

The Department of Education has initiated changes, as the result of the recommendations of a special commission who were empowered to investigate and report on the subject. This the Council hails with satisfaction, and now that public attention is directed to the subject, there should be no half-hearted assertion that this must remain, as it is, emphatically an English-speaking province; and that whatever further legislation or departmental regulations may be found necessary to eradicate the evil the next Assembly will be ready to enact and enforce.

Such are the views of the Council on the issues which present themselves at the present election. How are those amongst you whose opinions are reflected in this statement to give them effect? The answer is plain. In constituencies in which candidates have not been nominated by those who owe allegiance to the Association, the candidates in the field should be approached by our friends in the constituencies, and he who—other things being equal—is found to be most in accord with our principles should receive their hearty and undivided support.

Signed on behalf of the council:—

SATURDAY, MAY 10, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

"Oh!" cried Jeanne, shuddering and growing white, "I cannot make it all out. I never heard of such dreadful things as you talk about, Mr. Pond. Are you sure you do not imagine them? The world has always seemed such a pleasant place to me! I can not realize the awful things you tell about."

A vision of that dark form mumbling and feeling over the bed in the night came back to Pond. Could he tell her the truth, or any part of it? He looked at her. She was so happy, so innocent, so fresh. She made him think of a morning flower on which the dew still lingered. No, he could not tell her. Before he could think of anything that would appease her curiosity and yet spare her the terrible revelation, Margaret entered. She looked pale, but she had a smile ready to greet Pond with.

"Do you come from Harry?" she asked.

"Not immediately. Yet I have seen him lately. He is well, Miss Barthwait, and in no worse spirits than any man must be under his circumstances. I wish myself that he would consent to see you. I think you could help him though you only stayed a moment. But he will not hear of having you come there, and I know we would both incur his anger if you were to go."

Margaret sat down and slowly drew off her gloves. Her face seemed to have lengthened the last few months, and to have matured. The girlish look had left it, not to return.

"It is a sad old world," she said abstractedly. She was thinking of Harry.

"Well, you know, it's only sad in streaks," replied Pond cheerily.

"Harry writes that you are like sunshine to him," said she, smiling again. "I wonder if you know how grateful I shall be all my life for your goodness."

"Please do not!" cried Pond, with a real accent of distress.

"Oh! you will have to be thanked occasionally, however painful it may be to you. That is the penalty you must pay for being kind."

"You know it will not be long before the case, now, Miss Barthwait."

"I know it. What will the outcome be? That is what I ask myself a thousand times a day. Yet I can never admit the terrible possibility of conviction. I cannot make it seem possible that this could happen."

"Do not try to make it seem possible. I hope it never will be. Miss Barthwait, if Harry could be saved by throwing the burden of the guilt where it belongs, and if it belonged to a once loved friend, what would you have him do?"

"I could not possibly answer that question at random, Mr. Pond. But I think the guilt should be placed where it belongs. Yet, if you will not think me foolish, I would like to tell you of a strange feeling I have had of late. It seems to me like a presentiment—or—or a warning. I do not know how to describe it. But I shrink from having anything more to do with the matter. Something tells me to leave it all to time; that I will bitterly regret it if I try to aid in the detection of the real criminal. I know it is little enough that I could do anyway. But that little I desire to leave to others. At night when I sleep I fall a' dreaming of it, and a warning voice continually tells me to have nothing to do with the matter. I seem selfish and indifferent. Yet I am not so."

"Do you need to tell us that, Miss Barthwait? Do you know what I would advise? Follow your instincts. Harry will be cleared, I trust, without your aid. Pray for him, and for yourself, but do nothing else. Best follow your instincts, believe me." He arose to go, as if he found the interview difficult. And, indeed, her sadness and beauty so surrounded him, so enrapt him, that he felt as if he were under a spell. He was half angry at his own weakness. Could he never meet her without losing his self control? Must he always have that deep sinking of the heart, the yearning pain, when he met her? He knew himself for a traitor to Harry, and grieved to think how deep her offence would be if she guessed his condition of mind.

"Take Jeanne out with you," suggested Margaret, rising too. "She has been in all day, and she finds me a dull companion. I am sure she often longs for her own pleasant home. Here there is no cordiality, little hope, no gladness."

"Now," broke in Jeanne, "that is not so. I should like to know if we do not laugh as much as any one?"

"Well, yes," admitted Margaret; "we do laugh after a fashion. Put on your things, Jeanne, and walk a few blocks with Mr. Pond to talk to. I am sure he will be good-natured enough."

"I will be selfish enough," returned Pond. "Come, Miss Whitfield, and we will visit a confectionery store."

"Do you really mean it?" cried Jeanne. "And can I pick out my own candy? You know I do not eat ices."

"Really," said Pond, "why didn't you tell me before? We might have gone out often together if I had only known." It was a feeble joke and he blushed as he said it. He had a desire to always be heroic before Margaret. And yet, by a sad perversity, he was apt to be ridiculous. How beautiful she was as she moved about the room in her black draperies! She looked like a queen even in that little room, with its machine and its fashion plates. The candid look she used to wear seemed to be disappearing with the bloom on her cheeks. Yet it all made her more fatally attractive to Pond. Her slow step, her heavy lids, sorrow-weighted, her melancholy eyes touched him like a strain of pathetic music and to stifle the pain at his heart he turned to Jeanne and resumed the banter.

Margaret whispered something to Jeanne as they went out and once on the street Jeanne confided that they were to get a bunch of English violets to send to Harry.

"We will do that first," remarked the little damsel, "and then we need not hurry when we get to the confectioner's shop."

"I can see well enough that I have run my head into a noose," remarked Pond mournfully. "In short, I am lost."

"Well, it's a fact," said Jeanne, twirling her angora muff, "that I have a tremendous appetite for chocolate creams."

But someway they did not talk much after all. The little damsel constantly fell behind and got out of step. She said she wasn't used to walking with gentlemen. Pond smiled disbelieving. But these efforts were spasmodic. They were both full of the sad girl they had left, and try as they would, it was impossible to get her out of their hearts. They got the violets, but at the last Jeanne refused to go to the confectionery store. Pond took a car and she walked back alone.

"What a shame," sighed Pond to himself as he puffed the smoke from his cigar into the gray air, "that I cannot fall in love with the little girl. She is as pretty as a flower and as amusing as a tame squirrel. What a pity that I cannot love her."

CHAPTER XVI.

THE little damsel was out a few mornings after this, buying some embroidery for one of the "infant's wardrobes." Now, there is use in trying to buy embroideries up town. Any one who knows anything knows that. So Jeanne, trim as a field violet, with a gray turban on her brilliant curls, and a pair of bewitching gloves of the same tint, and a dress and jacket that marked her own art and industry, rode to town. She flitted about among the laces and embroideries of the luxurious shop like a butterfly over a field of clover. She would not buy too rashly, and it would never do to miss the chance of getting something prettier than she was looking at. Consequently purchasing was a laborious process, and it was high noon when she emerged, hungry, exhausted but thoroughly gratified, as are all good women when they have finished a successful shopping tour. Suddenly Jeanne was startled out of this happy frame of mind. Before her stood the judge.

Poor Jeanne colored a painful red under the stern scrutiny of his eyes. She trembled so that she could hardly hold the alligator shopping bag in her hands.

"Where is my daughter?" asked the judge. Jeanne gave a shuddering glance at him. Did he know they had not been at the marshes? How much should she tell and how much conceal? What if she should be stupid and say something that would make Margaret—or, worse still, Dennis Pond—angry with her.

DOLLY BEELEY TALKS.

The Clever Swindler Wants a Cablegram Sent to Her Father.

BRANTFORD, May 9.—"Dolly" Beeley, the confidence woman arrested here yesterday, says that her right name is Mary Doherty Shaw Beeley. Her father is Thomas Beeley, manufacturer of boots and shoes, 705 Attercliffe-road, Sheffield, Yorkshire. Her mother died last October. She came out to Canada in August last. Miss Beeley has not only cleverness but nerve; after she swindled Dr. Cochrane she went as far as Syracuse on her ticket to New York which she secured from the doctor. But she soon returned to Canada. She had the temerity to pay Brantford another visit last Monday. She called on Dr. Keane and made herself out to be Mrs. Dr. Kitchen of St. George, and said her husband studied medicine with Dr. Digby. She went to the hospital too. There she was Mrs. Wright, wife of a barrister of Dundas. She wished to secure a nurse, and made arrangements to take one next day. To one of the nurses she gave her name as Miss Lively. After leaving Brantford Monday evening she went to Guelph, where she sold her gold watch to Mr. Pringle, jeweler, for $30. Of this sum she has only $9.59 left.

Dolly showed some emotion while at the police station, but very little. She asked for the chief to cablegram her father to come out and her request may be granted. The prisoner is highly educated, and as a bright, vivacious and artistic swindler has been a great success, but she has rather overdone it in the long run and now languishes in jail.

CHARGED WITH FORGERY

William McMillan of Toronto Committed for Trial at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, May 9.—William McMillan, formerly agent for Ford & McAuley of Toronto, was charged at the Police Court this morning with forging the signature of George Long to an order for an autoharp. He pleaded not guilty and was defended by Mr. T. D. J. Farmer, Mr. J. W. Nesbitt, Q.C., appearing for the private prosecutor, Thomas Ford, George Long and William Grant were the witnesses for the prosecution. According to the evidence the prisoner sent to his employers, among other orders, one purporting to be from Long, but which the latter repudiated on its being presented by the firm's collector. The prisoner was working on commission. Mr. Farmer contended that there was an understanding between the firm and their agent that some of the orders should be made out in that manner and then they must trust to the ability of the collector to get the man to take the instrument. This was denied by Ford. After hearing the evidence the Magistrate committed the prisoner for trial at the next assizes in the fall. On Monday Mr. Nesbitt gave notice that he would bring up about a dozen charges of a similar nature against the prisoner, there being a number of similar orders for contracts in his possession.

Not a Pimple on Baby

Baby one year old. Bad with Eczema. Hair all gone. Scalp covered with eruptions. Cured by Cuticura. Hair splendid and not a pimple on him.

Cured by Cuticura

I cannot say enough in praise of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. My boy, when one year of age, was so bad with eczema that he lost all of his hair. His scalp was covered with eruptions, which the doctors said was scall-head, and that his hair would never grow again. Despairing of a cure from physicians I began the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and, I am happy to say, with the most perfect success. His hair is now splendid and there is not a pimple on him. I recommend the CUTICURA REMEDIES to mothers as the most speedy, economical, and sure cure for all skin diseases of infants and children, and feel that every mother who has an afflicted child will thank me for so doing.

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced COUGH CURE. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.

Boys' Extra Heavy Knickerbocker, wide ribbed, large enough to fit a boy 12 years, 30c.

We are now opening another job line, all sizes at 10c.

We consider ourselves fortunate in securing these goods for our customers, as knitting factories would want more than our price for the Hose to knit them, if you furnished the yarn.

This season we have imported largely of the Stainless Black Hose as we proved them last season to be exactly as represented. Read what the "German Manufacturer says about them:

"Ever Stainless Black Dye is true to its nature to the very last thread. When persons perspire very much, the natural acid from perspiration may sometimes turn the wet parts rather greenish, but washing with soap and water brings back the beautiful color of the "Everfast Stainless Black," whereas the so-called fast black dyes turn into various shades of rusty brown after washing. Every pair stamped or not genuine."

Agent for domestic patterns. By sending 5c. we will send a fashion book containing about 900 styles.

BISMARCK'S BIG HEAD.

THE EX-CHANCELLOR CONFIDENT OF A SPEEDY RECALL.

He Thinks the Emperor Will Plunge the Government into [illegible] Which It Cannot [illegible]—Scandalous [illegible]

BERLIN, May 11.—Prince Bismarck during the week received several friendly communications from the Emperor. They practically suggested that his retirement from office should involve political inactivity. Herren Bucher and Puchaenger stayed two days at Friedrichsruhe and left impressed with the conviction that the ex-chancellor considered himself still the most potent influence in the empire, believing the Emperor ere long will be obliged to recall him to extricate the government from the difficulties into which he will have plunged it. He freely expressed his discontent because the Emperor in the Speech from the Throne omitted reference to his dismissal. The Emperor denies that "dismissal" is the right phrase. If the prince had not several times offered to resign the Emperor would not have taken advantage of the last threat to part with him. The threat was first made verbally and was not accepted, then a request for permission to resign was made in writing and was granted.

The Freisinnige Zeitung is gaining a bad notoriety through its publication of scandals in regard to Bismarck. It declares that a medical specialist knows that the ex-Chancellor is suffering from alcoholism and not the morphine habit. Bismarck's friends do not heed the attacks and even his enemies are disgusted with them.

When the Czar and Emperor William met last year they conversed in French. The Emperor desires that when the two monarchs meet at the coming manoeuvres at [illegible] the Czar shall use the German language, promising that when the Czar again visits Germany the language shall be Russian. The Russian Prime Minister, however, says the Czar does not speak good German and if the Emperor ignores French he must have recourse to Russian.

Another Big Batch of Chicago Breweries Consolidated.

CHICAGO, May 11.—The purchase and consolidation of another big batch of leading Chicago breweries has been consummated. Russell H. Munro of Rochester has been here to this end for several weeks. The stock will shortly be placed upon the English market. The price paid is £1,900,000. One establishment, the Conrad Seipp and Westside breweries were taken possession of April 1 and the Dewest brewery, the [illegible] Malting Company and Bullen & Co. will be transferred Sept. 1. The new company will be incorporated as The City of Chicago Brewing & Malting Company (limited) with a capital stock of £1,250,000. There will also be issued £600,000 of 4 per cent. first mortgage bonds. Of these the American vendors take £[illegible] and of the stock £800,000.

CINCINNATI, May 11.—The Emery candle works at Ivorydale were sold yesterday to an English syndicate for $680,000. The new company's capital is $775,000.

PITTSBURG, May 11.—An English syndicate with $3,000,000 capital has been formed to develop some of the rich mineral regions of North Alabama and to build up numerous heavy enterprises. The syndicate's office is at Sheffield, Ala. Furnaces, mills and factories are to be built and a city is to be sprung suddenly into existence.

THE PRINCE OF BORROWERS.

Cashier Singluff Forced Loans to the Extent of $255,000.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., May 11.—The Norristown Water Company, of which W. F. Singluff was secretary and treasurer, lost over $85,000 through Singluff's irregular financial operations. Cashier Singluff's unsuccessful financiering has proved the worst blow ever dealt to Norristown. Thus far his so-called borrowings are: $100,000 from the Montgomery Trust Company; $80,000 from the Montgomery National Bank; $35,000 from the Pennsylvania Rolled Street Car Wheel Company, and $85,000 or more from the Norristown Water Company. All these concerns except the water company claimed to be amply secured. Besides the sums named above Singluff has loans from three building and loan associations, aggregating about $95,000, which are also said to be secured.

THE COTTON CROP.

Delays in Planting Caused by Various Conditions in the South.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The statistical returns of the Department of Agriculture for May relative to cotton report the progress of planting and conditions affecting seeding and germination. Planting is late except in the Carolinas. In Georgia it is scarcely up to the average at this date, the delay being caused by drouth, difficulty of plowing and slow germination. From Alabama westward serious delays have occurred from excessive rains, overflow of bottom lands and floods from the rise of great rivers. Replanting is necessary where the seed has rotted in the ground. Great scarcity of seed is reported in parts of Tennessee. Usually nearly seven-eighths of the cotton area is seeded before the close of April. This year only three-fourths has been planted. In the Mississippi River bottom lands the fear of floods as well as actual overflows prevents planting, which will be actively pushed as the water subsides and the danger becomes less imminent.

The Winter Grain Report.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The official report of the condition of winter grain May 1 makes a reduction of one point in wheat, the average being 80. The rye average is maintained, being 92.8; barley 84.6. Areas in which the roots were not too severely frozen have improved during the past month, in others the injury is shown to be greater than appearances indicated. Some correspondents state that it is yet too early to know the amount of vitality and ultimate degree of development of the plant. The drained fields suffered least and mellow soils properly prepared escaped severe injury. Heavy clays, undrained and level areas holding moisture were in many places almost totally destroyed. Hence the heaviest decline in condition appears in Indiana and Illinois. A part of the Ohio breadth improved, while a larger part declined, causing a fall of five points for the state. A loss in condition is reported in Texas from the ravages of the plant louse.

The reported progress of spring plowing and planting indicates an average state of forwardness of farmers' work, though there are local inequalities in the record. It is relatively late in the Ohio valley, in the southwest and on the Pacific coast. It is earlier than usual in the northwest and on the Atlantic coast south of Delaware. It is an average in the Middle States and in New England.

A human body was seen flying through the air at an elevation of 100 feet and was observed to fall on the Lake Shore Railroad at least 1000 feet west of where the explosion occurred. The body of the other unfortunate man took a northeasterly course at a high elevation and dropped into the creek 500 feet away.

A TERRIBLE TORNADO.

THE CITY OF AKRON (O.) SWEPT BY A HURRICANE.

Scores of Buildings Wrecked—Many Persons Injured—Some Hairbreadth Escapes—The Loss Falls Heavily on Laborers Whose All Was in Their Homes.

CLEVELAND, May 10.—A Leader special from Akron, O., says: At 5¼ this evening in the midst of a most terrific cloudburst this city was struck by the worst tornado which has ever been known hereabouts, excepting, perhaps, the Sharon cyclone of a month ago. The storm struck the southern part of the city and tore through the fifth, fourth and second wards, doing damage which cannot be estimated at this writing, but fully 100 buildings are completely demolished and hundreds more are badly damaged. The house of Dominick Greader at Cross and Washington-streets was unroofed and Mrs. Greader was slightly injured. John Heller's house, a few doors north, was almost demolished, as were Joseph Sieger's and Louis Shedler's houses. Passing along Brown, Kling and Wheeler-streets a dozen or more houses were more or less damaged, some being moved bodily from their foundations and others completely unroofed. Thomas Gilligan's house in King-street was smashed. Tony [illegible] house in Grant-street was turned topsy-turvy and ruined.

Gebhart Herman's family of nine persons had just sat down to supper in the lean-to kitchen. The tornado struck the house and hurled the dining-room like a flying top, landing it 50 feet away. All the occupants were more or less bruised. Mr. Herman was pinned down in the debris, and only the energy of despair, when he smelt the odor of fire near him, enabled him to extricate himself. He found his little girl pinned down by the overturned stove, and before the flames could be extinguished she was frightfully burned about the back and limbs. The hurricane then struck the Burkhardt brewery squarely, wrecking it utterly. The loss will probably reach $30,000. The house of A. B. Miller was completely obliterated. At the corner of Brown and Exchange-streets O. C. Baker's grocery was torn to pieces. His wife and daughters were in the building, but they escaped to the cellar and were saved. Baker is missing and it is feared that he is dead in the ruins. E. S. Harrington's house was crushed in upon his four children, but luckily all escaped. Thomas Thompson's house was lifted over the family's heads and landed upside down many feet away. Mrs. Nash's house was utterly demolished. Philip Webber's and John Spicer's houses were wrecked. The Gibbs pottery, a brick block 100 by 60 feet in size, was leveled to the earth. Just across the street was the large barn owned by Frank Knapp, which was smashed. His pottery across the street was also badly damaged. James Whittel's barn and orchard, worth $1900, were destroyed and he himself narrowly escaped.

Melvin Irish's family had just seated themselves at supper when Mrs. Irish cried: "Run to the cellar, a cyclone is coming." She and her two children managed to reach the cellar before the crash, but Mr. Irish was caught by a heavy timber and his spine was seriously injured. He is probably fatally hurt. Passing on, the storm demolished the houses of Alvin Alexander and Mrs. Kate O'Connell. Then having leveled a large orchard in its path it expended its force on Robert Watt's house and Mrs. Eliza Baker's home and passed into the open beyond. The extent of the tornado is at this time unexplored and the damage in dollars cannot be stated. It is, however, large, and it falls on the laborers whose all is in their houses. All descriptions of the storm show it was rotary and this is shown by the skewing of the buildings it struck and the twisting of the trees in its path. The track was between 50 and 150 feet wide.

Prof. Egbert of Buchtel College calculated that the tornado travelled at the rate of four miles a minute so that its track of about a mile and a half through this city was traversed in little more than twenty seconds. It moved in almost a straight line through a well settled part of the city and scarcely a foot of the mile and a half but is strewn with splintered house timbers, broken furniture, uprooted trees and levelled barns and outhouses. About 75 persons in all are out of house and home.

A Pennsylvania Cloudburst.

GREENVILLE, Pa., May 11.—A terrible cloudburst passed over this place last evening. In a few minutes East Main-street was flooded two feet deep with water for the first time in its history. Considerable damage was done to the roads. The New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio and the Erie & Pittsburg railways are impassable below town. A mammoth show here was obliged to take down its tents.

Violent Storms in Missouri.

ST. LOUIS, May 11.—Violent storms in the shape of tornadoes have occurred in different parts of North Missouri within the past two days and a large amount of property has been destroyed and several persons killed.

Two Killed and Many Injured.

FRANKLIN, Pa., May 11.—A terrible cyclone passed over the southern part of this county last evening about 5 o'clock. Noah Jackson and wife were killed outright and a large number of persons dangerously injured. The storm was general throughout the county but the cyclone, only about 200 feet wide, extended some 25 miles.

Fatal Cyclone in Kansas.

FREDONIA, Kan., May 10.—A cyclone yesterday afternoon killed four people in this county. The people killed are Mrs. Frank Gleddin, Harvey Wills and two others. The wires are down.

Other persons in the same vicinity who were hurt were Mrs. Sloat, Mrs. Peterson, Philip Star and a Mr. Wood. It is feared the injuries of the women named will prove fatal. Quite a number of other farm houses were destroyed and great damage done.

SAID TO BE FROM TORONTO.

An Alleged Journalist Jailed for Theft in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, May 10.—Frank Morrison, claiming to be a journalist, was arrested by Officer O'Brien of precinct 1 last night, accused by William A. Ross of stealing two sealskin caps, a ring and a handkerchief. Morrison lived in the same house on Ellicott-street with Ross. It appears that Morrison gave one of the caps to William Rourke to sell. Rourke was also arrested. Morrison came to Buffalo from Toronto recently. He says he is a gentleman steeplechaser and at one time managed a pack of hounds in Scotland. Morrison got 30 days this morning. A forged check was found in his possession.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

THE result of the Conservative convention on Saturday, when the two gentlemen whose names were presented as candidates declined the nomination, is that the people of the West Riding will be called upon on June 5th to choose between the two candidates now in the field, Mr. Carnegie, the nominee of the Equal Rights Association, and Mr. Stratton, the Government candidate. The REVIEW, in common with every elector, is now confined to this choice, and, frankly, the choice is soon made. Mr. Stratton has been a slavish supporter of the Premier and his colleagues and if again elected would continue the same course, whether Mr. Mowat should be in opposition or in office, and he therefore cannot receive the support of Conservatives or of any independent elector. We cannot pretend to endorse Mr. Carnegie's views in their entirety, but his platform, as it has been recently promulgated by Rev. Principal Caven and other leaders of the Equal Rights Association whose candidate he is, is in many respects in line with the platform of Mr. Meredith. For this reason, and more especially because it would be vastly better in the interest of the people to have an independent representative than one who would slavishly follow the lead of the members of the present Government, we say without hesitation that Mr. Carnegie should be elected to represent this constituency. We believe that this will be the view taken by the Conservatives generally of the riding and also by a large number of Reformers who place principles before party—in fact, by a large majority of the electors, for all who seriously consider the situation must feel bound in the country's interest to do all they can to place Mr. Carnegie at the head of the poll on election day.

These remarks regarding Mr. Carnegie's position apply also to Mr. Kidd's candidature in the East Riding, and there is every indication that these gentlemen will represent the county at Toronto during the next four years.

L'ORIGNAL, May 10.—The trial of Philip Lamoureaux for the murder of Oliver Monette, and of Christine Monette, widow of the victim, for being an accessory before the fact to the murder, terminated here to-day so far as the present assizes are concerned, in what is believed to be an unprecedented manner.

After dinner one of the jurymen left the party unobserved by the constables and was not missed till the party returned to the court house. The man was hunted up immediately and the crown prosecutor explained that the juryman's absence had been due to a call of nature and that he had spoken to no one, but Mr. Justice Rose said he had no option in the matter and would have to postpone the case till the next Assizes.

BURGLARY AT LAKEFIELD

PATTERSON'S JEWELLERY STORE ENTERED AND THE SAFE FORCED.

About Fifteen Hundred Dollars Worth of Jewellery Stolen—A Daring Burglary and a Heavy Loss.

A gang of burglars, evidently desperadoes accustomed to the dangerous and nefarious business, paid a visit to Lakefield on Sunday morning and went through Mr. H. R. Patterson's jewellery store.

The store is on the main street of the village and stands on a corner. The door is on the corner and is a double one. The safe, in which the best of Mr. Patterson's stock was placed at night, stood at the front of the building close to the door and beside a double or show window that faced the main street. Mr. Patterson had moved into these premises last winter and had a very handsome place.

On Saturday night the store was closed about ten o'clock and the burglars probably began their operations as soon after that as they could. They from the front by prying the double door open, and, having gained access to the store, they opened the rear door and apparently stationed sentinels. The safe at once received attention. Three holes were bored near the top of the door in the safe and one near the lock. Powder was then inserted, in the usual way with burglars, and the magazine fired. The explosion must have been a powerful one. The safe door was split and shattered, half of it being thrown some distance down the store. The sash of the front window was sprung and every light of glass in it was broken, while the frame of the window was charred with the powder. The thieves then stripped the safe of almost everything in it, taking the watches and leaving only some of the smaller articles. The theft was discovered on Sunday morning by a young man, a Mr. Graham, who went out for a walk shortly after six o'clock and Mr. Patterson was notified and discovered his heavy loss. The jewellery had been taken out of the boxes and the boxes and the smaller jewellery were strewn about the floor, and the place was in great confusion. The articles which had been in the safe that were not taken were blackened by the powder and looked as if they had come through a fire. The thieves had also stripped the show case of the best of the stock of pipes. Mr. Patterson estimates that the thieves carried away $1,500 worth of his stock, besides taking watches that belonged to customers that had been left for repairs and were in the safe.

The safe was forced at about two o'clock in the morning. A gentleman who lived nearly opposite about that hour was startled by and looked out, but hearing nothing further he thought it was a street lamp that had fallen. Several persons heard dogs barking and making a great noise about the same hour, and one gentleman went to his door to call his dog in, but as Lakefield had not been bothered by midnight marauders, burglars were not thought of. There is no clue to the thieves, who no doubt were professional cracksmen and very probably got away on the early Canadian Pacific train. Mr. Patterson came to Peterborough in the afternoon and consulted the police here. Much sympathy is felt for him in the heavy loss he has suffered.

The Weldon Extradition Law.

It will be remembered that this act is claimed by many lawyers to be retroactive in its effect and to cover the case of the many Yankee fugitives from justice now in Canada.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

CONSERVATIVE MEETING.

RESOLUTIONS OF CONFIDENCE IN THE PARTY LEADERS.

Mr. Stevenson's Course Approved—Mr. Moore and Mr. Morrow Decline the Nomination for the Legislature.

A meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association was held in the old Music Hall on Saturday afternoon. Mr. W. H. Moore, the President, occupied the chair and there was a large attendance, among those present being Messrs. R. A. Morrow, Geo. Hilliard, Wm. Langford, Thos. Kelly, Dr. Burnham, R. Green, W. J. Minore (Secretary), A. McNeil, R. Thompson, Geo. W. Hatton, Col. Poole, J. H. Burnham, R. M. Dennistoun, A. Sewers, W. E. Sherwood, Geo. W. Rubidge, Geo. Stevenson, T. McGrath, D. Belleghem, Chas. Wynn, P. Henry, T. Mahoney, W. VanEvery, Thos. Bradburn, T. E. Bradburn, W. Collins, E. A. Peck, W. Croft, Geo. W. Fitzgerald, Smith; T. W. Gibbs, H. LeBrun, A. V. R. Young, T. M. Willan, South Monaghan; T. Rutherford, T. Mahoney, J. J. Bennett, R. W. Muncaster. — Maxwell, South Monaghan; G. H. Reid, Smith; R. Lang, John Garbutt, Smith; J. O'Donnell, L. Spry, T. Dunn, Wm. Graham, Smith; Wm. Bennett, North Monaghan; Jas. Gallon, Hugh Davidson, Smith; J. Doris, H. W. Kent, W. H. Budden, W. H. Wrighton, J. McPherson, W. H. Robertson, C. E. Clementi, John Edmison, Smith; John Kelly and many others.

The PRESIDENT said he had called the members of the Association together, after consultation with the officers, in order to consider what should be done in regard to the Ontario elections. He read a letter from Mr. James Stevenson, M.P., expressing regret that he could not be present, as he would be detained in Ottawa by his Parliamentary duties. The President, proceeding, said he extremely regretted that Mr. Carnegie, who had been a Conservative for many years, had thought fit to disassociate himself from the party and come out as an independent candidate. He regretted it, because Mr. Carnegie had been considered by them the best able to represent them. It was now, however, for them to consider what action they should take and that was entirely for the meeting to decide.

THE FIRST RESOLUTION.

Mr. HILLIARD moved, seconded by Mr. MORROW:—

That the members of the Liberal-Conservative Association sincerely regret to learn that Mr. John Carnegie, who for the past twenty years has had their undivided confidence, has deemed it his duty to withdraw from the party and to offer himself to the electors as an independent member; and that while viewing this as a material loss yet we have the firm and undiminished faith that the justice of our principles commends itself to a majority of the electors of the riding and which principles we are assured must eventually be triumphant.

In moving the resolution Mr. Hilliard said they all regretted the course Mr. Carnegie had taken. They had come together to decide what course to take. He was sorry that it was now so late, but it was better to take action late than not at all.

Mr. MORROW said he had always done what he could for Mr. Carnegie and would have done so again if he had stood with the party. However, Mr. Carnegie had left them and it was for the meeting to select a candidate if they thought it best.

The resolution was then put and carried, several voting against it.

THE DOMINION REPRESENTATIVE.

Mr. KELLY moved, seconded by Mr. LANGFORD:—

That this meeting deeply regrets the unavoidable absence of James Stevenson, M.P., for the West Riding of Peterborough, who is now attending upon his legislative duties at Ottawa, who has given to his chief an intelligent and conscientious support in measures having for their object the general good of the country, and has ever been mindful of the particular interests of this county, so that in many practical ways the Riding has had much reason to congratulate itself in having placed so worthy a citizen in the honorable and responsible position he so well fills.

Mr. W. GRAHAM (who was a Reformer and now a member of the Equal Rights Association) said his opinion was that the less said upon the resolution the better.

The resolution was carried, Mr. Graham standing up alone to vote nay.

THE DOMINION ADMINISTRATION.

Mr. R. M. DENNISTOUN moved, seconded by Mr. J. H. BURNHAM:—

Resolved, That the Liberal-Conservative Association of West Peterborough, now assembled, most gladly embrace this occasion for expressing its unbounded confidence in the Government of Canada, under the guidance and leadership of that grand old man, Sir John A. Macdonald, G.C.B., who, aided and supported in a vigorous, far-seeing and statesmanlike line of action by the very best talent in the country, has given to Canada a national growth, and provided a legislation and a policy that has made her people, whether of the agricultural, commercial or industrial classes, happy, contented and prosperous.

Mr. GRAHAM objected to Sir John Macdonald being called a "grand old man."

Mr. HILLIARD endorsed the resolution. This meeting would say that Sir John was a grand old man and the country had said so for fifteen years. Sir John had done much for the country. Mr. Hilliard referred to the Canadian Pacific railway and the pessimistic predictions of the Liberals, which, though they had been groundless, had been used in the Old Country to try to kill the railway scheme. The railway had been built and was a success, and for this work Sir John deserved the title of grand old man. The National Policy had saved Canada's trade from falling into the hands of the United States, and the country with the trade. Commercial Union was out of the question. There was no fear of retaliation, as the Canadian duties were not as high as those of the United States. He dwelt upon tariff matters and referred to the flour importations, and the way the trade was manipulated in the United States, to show that the duty was required in the interests of the farmers and the millers. The country would again say that Sir John was a grand old man.

MR. MEREDITH ENDORSED.

Mr. WILLAN moved, seconded by Mr. LANG:—

That at this meeting of the Liberal Conservative Association of the West Riding of the County of Peterborough, assembled, the members of the association desire to declare their complete confidence in Wm. R. Meredith, Q.C., and cordial approval of his course in the Legislative assembly, as leader of Her Majesty's loyal Opposition during the past four years in resisting the action of a faithless, dishonest and corrupt government and of his efforts to substitute for it a pure administration and one in accord with the sentiments of the people; and the members pledge themselves to use every legitimate exertion in their power to place Mr. Meredith and the Liberal Conservative party in control of our legislative affairs, the accomplishment of which end is so desirable in the interests of the country.

Mr. GRAHAM said that Mr. Mowat and Sir John were now rowing in the same boat. Mr. Meredith had taken a thorough Reform stand and his party was the only true Reform party in Toronto.

The resolution was adopted.

NOMINATIONS MADE.

The PRESIDENT said that the main question for which they had met was now before them. He hoped a candidate would come forward who would carry the riding. The Mowat Government's record was a bad one, and it was depending now on its immense corruption fund to carry the country. The circular sent out to officials by Mr. Preston, the Reform organizer, was plain evidence of the corrupt means adopted. The fact that the circular was issued could not be denied, and the excuse that only four were sent out would not hold, as if that had been the case they would not have been printed. The Government had also retained the numbered ballots to coerce electors. There were thousands of officers under the Government working for them, and they had shaped their legislation to coerce hotel keepers. As he had said, he had hoped a Conservative would be in the field who would carry the riding. There were now two candidates in the field and that might make it difficult. That was something they were to consider. Mr. Stratton he certainly could not support. He regretted that Mr. Carnegie had left the party, otherwise they could have gone to work to place him in the position he was justly entitled to hold.

On motion of Mr. Kelly, seconded by Mr. Morrow, Mr. Moore left the chair and Mr. McNeil took that position.

Mr. W. H. MOORE was then nominated as the Conservative candidate for the Legislature by Mr. Kelly, seconded by Mr. Morrow.

Mr. MOORE said that he must decline to go before the meeting as a candidate.

Mr. J. H. BURNHAM assured Mr. Moore that he would receive the support of the young Conservatives and he believed would be elected.

Mr. GRAHAM said that while Mr. Moore regretted that Mr. Carnegie had left the Conservative party, there were hundreds in the riding who were heartily glad that he had taken an independent stand.

Mr. WILLAN was sorry that Mr. Moore felt like declining the nomination. He had been opposed to Mr. Carnegie coming out as an independent because he (Mr. Willan) was a Conservative. He hoped Mr. Moore would stand and he believed he would be victorious.

Mr. MOORE said he must still stand by what he had said, notwithstanding Mr. Graham's remarks. Mr. Graham, he remarked, had long been a clear Grit. He (Mr. Moore) would nominate a candidate who was popular and would make an excellent representative. He nominated Mr. R. A. Morrow, who, if he would accept, would be placed at the head of the poll.

Mr. R. M. DENNISTOUN seconded the nomination.

Mr. MORROW said he must beg to decline the nomination. He would not be a candidate at the present time, nor at any time, and must decline as he had on two former occasions.

Mr HILLIARD pressed Mr. Morrow not to withdraw.

Mr. GRAHAM said he had travelled considerable and he would tell them he had found that all intelligent Conservatives and all intelligent Reformers were now Equal Righters. This statement was received with laughing and cheering.

Mr. MOORE having declined the nomination resumed the chair. He thanked them for the honor they had done him, but for various reasons he had to decline. He asked if there were any other names to be proposed.

After a pause Mr. Hilliard said he believed they should have a candidate in the field, but if they had no available man each one would have to paddle his own canoe and vote as he thought best.

Mr. GRAHAM rose to move that as there was no Liberal-Conservative candidate in the field they support Mr. Carnegie.

Mr. HILLIARD asked whether Mr. Graham was a Liberal-Conservative and entitled to move a resolution at this meeting.

Mr. GRAHAM—I am an Equal Righter.

The PRESIDENT said if there was no other name to be presented there was nothing to do but to dissolve and each vote for himself.

Mr. MORROW chided Mr. Belleghem, who had factiously voted against one of the resolutions, with coming there and making remarks when he was not a Conservative. Mr. Belleghem said he had been taken by the arm by two Conservatives and taken to the meeting.

After a vote of thanks to the chairman, a motion to adjourn was put and the meeting closed with cheers for the Queen.

THE YEARS ROLLING BY.

TWO ANNIVERSARY SERVICES HELD IN LOCAL CHURCHES.

The Anniversary of St. Paul's Church—Prof. Mowat Delivers two Able Discourses—The Sunday School of the Charlotte-st. Church Successfully Commences its Anniversary Services—Rev. Chaplain Searles—The Children's Temperance Service.

Two anniversary services were held yesterday—one marking the close of another year in the records of St. Paul's church and the other forming another mill-stone in the prosperous and successful career of the Sunday School of the Charlotte-st. Methodist church. The day was an ideal one, the sun shedding its warm rays upon the smiling and promising verdure of spring, and, as a result, the services in both these churches were attended by large congregations.

At St. Paul's Church.

The anniversary services at St. Paul's church attracted immense congregations both morning and evening. It had been announced that Rev. Principal Grant, of Queen's University, Kingston, would preach the sermons, but at the last moment the rev. gentleman was prevented from fulfilling his engagement by the illness of his son. In his stead came Prof. Mowat, of Queen's University, a brother of Ontario's Premier, and the large congregation which he faced on both occasions listened to an able discourse. The singing by the choir, which is always excellent, was unusually well prepared, and the anthems in the morning and evening were rendered with good effect. In the evening Miss Jones and Miss Sophie Cameron sang the solos in good voice. Prof. Mowat took for the basis of his evening discourse the words:—

"Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."—Matt. 11,28.

The preacher said these were grand words. They spoke the majesty and supremacy of Him who uttered them. When they read them they were inclined to ask, what manner of man is this? The explanation was that there was a divine power, a conscious self-sufficiency. It would be nothing but fanaticism and folly for a mere man to say he could give rest to all who came unto him, but God was not a mere man, but God as well as man.

THERE WERE FOUR POINTS

to which he would call their attention. First, to whom was the promise made; secondly, what was the promise; thirdly, who made it; and lastly, what had they to do that the promise would be fulfilled to them. In the first place, to whom was the promise made? To all ye that labor and are heavy laden. The speaker went on to point out that there were no specifications as to what the burden or trouble might be, it mattered not whether it was some besetting sin, business difficulty, household cares, worldly trouble, they all, without exception, were invited to come to Christ and were assured if they came they would find rest. In the second place he pointed to the promise that was given—rest. This was what they were all in search of and had all at different times made ineffectual efforts to obtain. What was meant by this rest? It depended upon the cause of their disquietude, and the speaker proceeded to say that they would be delivered from a troubled spirit, from the hard restrictions of the law of God, from the vexing cares of this world and its false hopes, and would be given rest in Christ. And not only rest but joy unspeakable. This was the rest Christ enjoyed when on earth and which he sought in His Father's love and promises. They had for this promise, for they had Christ's own words to His disciples, "Peace I leave with you, My peace I give unto you." How and where were they to find this rest? The question, he said, was answered in the third place, "Come unto Me and I will give you rest." In Christ all fullness dwelt and all things were delivered unto Him by the Father and no one came unto the Father but by Him. It was by Christ alone that they came by this rest. The preacher impressed this thought upon them, telling them that God's highest angel, or His own institutions or His most sacred ordinance would not avail, unless they came to Him Himself. In the last place he dwelt upon what they had to do to have this promise fulfilled. The text said "Come unto Me," and he told his hearers that coming did not only mean believing but it meant acting, complying with the requirements of the Word, closing with the promises, embracing them as offered in His word. It was the spiritual part, the soul of man that was addressed and they would have to approach God in spirit. In conclusion, he asked them what they would decide in answer to the question, and he closed the discourse by urging the unconverted to accept the promise and pointing out to the converted that the promise could be taken advantage of any day.

A cantata will be rendered in connection with the anniversary on Tuesday evening next in the church.

The Sunday School Services.

At the Charlotte-st. Church the anniversary services of the Sunday school this year are of an especially interesting character and those held yesterday proved to be exceedingly so. Rev. Chaplain Searles, of New York, one of the eminent American divines, occupied the pulpit both morning and evening and also addressed a temperance meeting held in the afternoon. In the morning every seat in the church had an occupant. The rev. gentleman, who in personal appearance greatly resembles Rev. Dr. Parsons, of Toronto, and is decidedly American in his style, delivered a very interesting and telling discourse. His sermon was not what might be termed grandly eloquent, but was intended to be appreciable to the children and was therefore marked by illustrations, which were not only very appropriate, but were applied with such judgment and related with such feeling that their imprint was frequently discernable in the manifestations of his auditors. His text was the words:—

"Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift."—II Cor. xi,-15.

The rev. gentleman prefaced his discourse with the remarks:—"This morning I beg of you as a stranger that you will forget the messenger and remember only the message. That is more important than anything else. We labor often under this disadvantage that when the speaker is a stranger one looks more at the messenger than at the message. I am a Methodist preacher, was converted forty years ago have been thirty years in the ministry and labored in the State prison for sixteen years. That is who I am, so now you know me." With this little piece of personal history he then PROCEEDED TO HIS DISCOURSE.

This expression of the Apostle, he said, was the conclusion of an epistle to the Corinthians in which the apostle had sought to encourage almsgiving and which he concluded with the words "His unspeakable gift," and thanked God for it. In the setting sun of this nineteenth century, the preacher said, they took things as a matter of course and forget that the gift of reason, the gift of sight, the power of locomotion, the power of articulation, and all that went to make life tolerable were the gifts of God. It was when the [illegible] was placed against a dark background [illegible] were brought out in bold relief. The man, the perfection of physical organism, only needed to see some [illegible] ed to measure up God's gifts and give thanks to Him for the beauty and perfection of form He had given them. He wanted the young people to think of home and thank God for it. It was the hardest thing in the world to make children who were coming up to manhood realize the advantages, beauties and happiness that hang around the home. It was only when they pushed out into a strange land that the joys and beauties of the home came up. In an audience like that there would be many of different nationalities and no matter what their devotion to this land, they would all be carried back to the land where the gates of life had been opened to them and notwithstanding all the beauties around them here they would say "There is no place like home"—the land that rocked them in infancy and nursed them when a body had a value in it. Eloquently the speaker dwelt upon the beauties of the home and said it was an unspeakable gift. So they might go on, he said, and thank God for and he then went on to speak of the Bible as another unspeakable gift and related several touching stories illustrating the inexpressible value the Book had been to persons in extremity. He said the Bible was an unread Book, yet there would come a time when one single promise of that Book would be worth all things else. They might go on though the whole social and religious life and speak of unspeakable gifts, but the Apostle had in his mind the one gift—the Lord Jesus Christ. The rev. gentleman then dwelt upon this thought and beautifully illustrated the measure in which the gift was unspeakable—first, from the importance arising from the giver, and the intrinsic value. In conclusion he impressed upon his hearers that everything depended upon their reception of the gift and closed with the words "You receive Him and this sun shall not go down before your heart will overflow with gratitude and you will say with the disciples 'Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift.'"

THE AFTERNOON SERVICE.

In the afternoon a very interesting service in the church took the place of the usual Sunday school service. The modest edifice was filled, the children of the school occupying the centre pews and their parents and friends the side seats. The children were most orderly and attentive and apparently enjoyed the service. Mr. O. C. Rowse, Superintendent of the Sunday school, conducted the meeting, and after the opening hymn and a prayer by Rev. S. J. Shorey, the school choir sang very pleasingly, an anthem. Then little Walter Brooks, with seven young companions, recited their "Resolve," and Master Sidney Shorey, in a manly style, gave a short temperance recitation. Mr. R. J. Colville, Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., gave an earnest and appropriate address. Rev. Mr. Shorey spoke briefly and then Rev. Chaplain Searle was called upon. The pleasant-faced divine spoke in a happy vein, giving an amusing illustration to warn the boys and girls against temptation to do evil and relating several touching instances that had come under his eye in the state's prison of young men who left the Sunday school early, went into temptation and were then doing their term in the state's prison. The chaplain referred to a remarkable fact. He said that of the 1,800 men in the Auburn prison, all of them, speaking generally, had left Sunday school before they were fifteen years of age and those who had at any time regularly attended to religious observances had ceased to do so before they were eighteen. Of the 600,000 prisoners in the United States he said the average age was twenty-five years. He also spoke to the teachers, impressing upon them the importance of their positions. The school choir rendered several anthems in an excellent manner during the services, which closed with the benediction by the pastor.

Chaplain Searle lectures this evening in the church, his subject being "A Voice from the Prison." To-morrow evening the children of the school will hold their anniversary entertainment.

The Daily Review.

MONDAY, MAY 12, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

The judge read her thoughts.

"I know very well that neither of you have been to the marshes," he said. "Where is my daughter?"

"In the city," said poor Jeanne, feeling that her absent friends would expect her to be secret, and yet sympathizing with the man who stood frowning at her.

"Miss Whitfield," said the judge, taking hold of her arm with a firm yet gentle grasp, "I must know where my daughter is at once, and if you do not tell me, you must suffer the consequences."

"What will they be?" asked Jeanne, wanting to cry, and feeling that she was wrong and the judge right, and yet afraid of the verdict of her friends.

"I am sorry to have to say it, but if you do not immediately tell me where Margaret is, I shall call a police waggon and have you taken in it through these open streets to the station."

Jeanne drew herself away from him and looked up with the trembling quite gone, and a quiet dignity in her eyes.

"I dislike telling you very much now," she said, "because you will think that I did it from cowardice. But I will tell you. I believe you are right and ought to know, but I wish before I tell you that you will promise not to blame her. Will you promise, sir?"

"I shall be too glad to get her back, safe and well, to chide her very much, though she has caused me terrible suffering," he said with his voice breaking a little.

"Well," murmured Jeanne softly, "I am sure you must have felt dreadful. I have been sorry for you all the time, and so, I know, has Miss Margaret, and I'm afraid you'll find it hard to understand what made us do the way we have. Yet I assure you we had the most particular reason. But if you have time and will come with me now, we will go to her."

A cab was called and the judge bade Jeanne enter it. The poor girl did so with many secret misgivings. Her poor little heart was fluttering so that she could hardly conceal it. But once inside, the mood of her companion seemed to change. His sternness vanished and he assumed a phase of character that puzzled Jeanne. Had she searched for a word to describe it she would have chosen timidity.

"Can you give me no hint of what made Margaret leave me?" he asked, bending over to look in Jeanne's distressed face. "Is she angry with me because I cannot sympathize with her belief in the innocence of Mr. Leiter?"

"Why, of course she minds that a great deal," truthfully replied the frightened girl. "It is a hard position for her to be placed in. She wants to be true to both of you and under the circumstances that is hard to do. But that was not the reason, no."

Looking up just then Jeanne saw that the face of the judge had grown very white indeed; and in his eyes was a glassy look, such as she had seen in her little brother's face once when a snake twined round his bare leg. He clasped his hands in front of him with a womanish movement.

"Why in God's name did she do it then?" he said so low that Jeanne could barely catch the words above the rattle of the cab. "It was not that she was afraid of something?"

"Why," assented Jeanne, shrinking into the far corner of the seat, "I think she was afraid—a little."

"Of what, child? Of what could she be afraid in her father's house?"

"That is what I do not know," whispered the little damsel, with cold lips. "And I do not think she exactly knew either."

"But why," went on the judge in the same strained voice, and with the same terrible gaze, "did she say that she was going one place and then go another? Why did she conceal her abiding place from me, of all persons in the world?"

"That," said Jeanne, answering with brevity born of the moment, "I cannot tell. We acted under advice."

"No!" cried the judge, sitting upright and gazing at the girl with hot eyes, "do not tell me that! No one told her—she is not listening to"—he stopped suddenly. His face took to itself a look of alarm, different in its quality from that which had distorted it's moment before. When he spoke again his voice had returned to its natural tone, except that it was full of sadness.

"You do not suppose that she had forsaken her father for others, do you?" he asked piteously. "She is all I have in the world. You know that. For years I have only lived for her. You do not think that she has ceased to love me, do you?"

"Oh, no, no!" cried Jeanne, taking one of his hands in hers with a rush of daughterly pity. "You would never think so if you could see how she has mourned for you every night since we have been away, and heard how often she has asked me if I thought she was doing very wrong. She had to make excuses to herself constantly to keep up her courage. She kept consoling herself by saying that it would not have been right to bother you, when you had so much on your mind, and that in a little while she would be able to go home and you would never know the difference."

"But I cannot understand," pleaded the judge, "try hard as I can, I am not able to understand why, if she loves and trusts me still, she should have wished to keep her place of living concealed from me."

"Well," said Jeanne, leaning forward confidently, "it is a mysterious thing, and Miss Margaret and I cannot make it out at all, though we have talked and talked about it."

"What is a mysterious thing?" inquired the judge.

"Why the reason that we ought to leave the house—leave home, you know. We could not understand, ourselves, but we were almost made to go. I really ought not to tell you so much. I fear I have got Miss Margaret in a great deal of trouble. And, O! you will explain to her will you not, so that she will not be offended with me? I could not stand it to have her vexed."

"You are a good little girl," said the judge, pressing the very small hand that lay in his, "and I am sure no one, least of all Margaret, could be vexed with you."

Well might the judge look in astonishment at the dark little home, and the sign of the Misses Browne; well might he wonder at the sight of Margaret pinning a sleeve to the arm of a corpulent lady who had come to the dressmaking parlors with the intelligence that she must be made to look thin; well might he wonder at the figure of an overgrown youth who kept up a jaunty promenade before the house, yet carefully avoided looking at it, as if he were quite ignorant of its existence.

Margaret looked up from her task to meet the troubled eyes of her father. In that gaze was a world of reproach to her heart. With a word of apology to her patron, she bounded into the hall, shut the door, and laid her head against that of her father—a place where it had laid in peace and comfort so many hundred times. There is something about this contact of a familiar face that brings with it the most consummate peace that the world can offer. The recognized perfume of the skin, slight, but discernible and dear, the warm touch and all that it conveys to the mind of love, the permeating suggestions of the contact, quite make up an indescribable whole of exceeding comfort. Margaret's slow tears fell on her father's shoulder, while he trembled with the joy of having her safe in his arms again, with the silken hair in his eyes, the lovely hands pressing his neck, the voice he had listened to with delight for so many years, murmuring again in his ear. No questions were asked then, no excuses made. Both felt that it was enough for the moment that they were together once more. Margaret had to go back to the corpulent lady and finish the sleeve. It took but a moment, and with a parting injunction that she wished her arm to be slender, the visitor took her 220 pounds out of the room. Jeanne sat in a corner where she could face Margaret and made mysterious signs which interpreted meant: should she go or should she stay? Had she done wrong or right? If wrong, would she be forgiven? To these questions she received answers also in the silent language that women understand so well. She was to stay; she had done right and if she had done wrong she would have been forgiven. Margaret wanted the support of her little friend's presence. She hoped that she might catch inspiration for her answers from her quicker wit. Never before had their flight appeared to her in such a bad light. She had been at once absurd and cruel and the meek way in which she had taken the advice of another was preposterous. To think that she should have deceived her father on the word of a man whom she had not seen a dozen times! She grew scarlet with shame as she thought of it.

SUICIDE IN TORONTO.

A Fallen Woman Takes a Fatal Dose of Laudanum.

TORONTO, May 12.—Ida Torrance, who lived in furnished rooms at 89 Yonge-street with Frank Moore, committed suicide early Saturday morning by taking laudanum. The dead woman was about 28 years of age and somewhat handsome. Her real name was Ida Rutherford and she was a native of California. She had been an inmate of various gilded resorts in several cities in the Golden State, in Buffalo, Montreal and Toronto. She had been living with Moore since last January. Moore has been in Toronto for about a year and a half, coming here, it is said, with $100,000 that belonged to parties in Columbus, Ind. He compromised with his "creditors" by giving up half of that sum and has been unmolested. He has bought the schooner St. Louis and Ella Marten, both of which are now in the coal trade for his benefit. An inquest will be held.

THE T., H. & B.

Their Subsidy Expected to Come Next Week With the Supplementary List.

HAMILTON, May 10.—The promoters of the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo Railway do not seem to be much put out because the Dominion Government has not included the road in the list of those to be subsidized. "The despatches state that a supplementary list is to be given next week," said Chief Engineer Wingate this morning to a reporter, "and our road will be among the list, I expect." "What will be the result," was asked, "if the T., H. & B. does not get a subsidy next week?" To this Mr. Wingate said that he was not in a position to say, but he thought it would not seriously affect the operations of the company. Mr. Holm is not in the city, having gone to Brantford on Thursday.

Last night thieves gained access into the tailoring establishment of C. G. Carlson, corner Park and York-streets, and carried off between 30 and 40 pairs of trousers and about 20 coats. Mr. Carlson's loss is about $500.

Canadian Carpenters in Detroit.

DETROIT, May 11.—An advertisement has appeared in the papers for carpenters wanted at Detroit, applicants to call upon the Builders' Association, Buhl block, and in response thereto nine Canadian carpenters with their tools landed yesterday noon near the dock of Baugh's steam forge. The strikers have the opinion of Hon. Don M. Dickinson that this advertisement constitutes a violation of the contract labor law, it only being necessary to establish the fact that the carpenter is a Canadian. Complaint has already been made to the customs authorities, and Deputy Collector Tillotson is after the men, who are now in the city, for smuggling tools.

He Was an Heir to Millions.

CLEVELAND, May 11.—Thomas Edmonds died of consumption at the city infirmary in February and his body went on the dissecting table of a medical college. To-day two attorneys arrived from Holland here. They believe Edmonds' real name was Hubert von Bomber, who by the death of a brother became heir to 6,000,000 marks.

Wrecked by a Misplaced Switch.

AURORA, Ill., May 10.—A misplaced switch threw the engine and several cars of a freight train on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy from the track last night near Wyano. They rolled down an embankment. Engineer S. F. Adams and F. J. Maddock were killed and buried beneath the wreck. It is reported Brakeman Reed was also killed.

We consider ourselves fortunate in securing these goods for our customers, as knitting factories would want more than our price for the Hose to knit them, if you furnished the yarn.

This season we have imported largely of the Stainless Black Hose as we proved them last season to be exactly as represented. Read what the "German Manufacturer says about them:

"Ever Stainless Black Dye is true to its nature to the very last thread. When persons perspire very much, the natural acid from perspiration may sometimes turn the wet parts rather greenish, but washing with soap and water brings back the beautiful color of the "Everfast Stainless Black," whereas the so-called fast black dyes turn into various shades of rusty brown after washing. Every pair stamped or not genuine."

ANOTHER MYSTERY OF THE BAY AT TORONTO.

The Coroner's Jury [illegible] That Ida Torrance Committed [illegible]—A Young Hero's Death in the [illegible]—Berlin Encourages New [illegible].

TORONTO, May 13.—A body, subsequently identified as that of George A. McMaster, who represented the wholesale boot and shoe firm of McCready & Co. of Montreal, was found in the Bay at the foot of York-street yesterday morning. Deceased was about 40 years of age and a nephew of the late Senator McMaster. It is thought he accidentally stumbled into the water, but an inquest will be held to-day.

The coroner's jury in the case of Ida Torrance, who took a fatal dose of laudanum in Frank Moore's rooms on Saturday, brought in a verdict of suicide. No cause for her rash act has transpired.

Marshal and Mrs. Ballington Booth arrived from Detroit at 8.20 last night and were given a rousing reception by the Salvation Army. An immense procession accompanied them to the Temple where both the Marshal and his wife addressed the audience. The visitors, who are staying at the residence of Mrs. John Macdonald, will commence their holiness meetings at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Douglas R. Pelley, the witness for the crown in the Benwell murder case, has evaded the haunts of men and the busy newspaper reporter by hiding himself for the next six months with a survey party in the North-west.

M'MILLAN'S RECORD.

The Hamilton Alleged Forger Known to the Toronto Police.

HAMILTON, May 13.—Chief McKinnon has received further information about William McMillan, the young man who is in jail awaiting trial on a charge of forgery. It appears that about a year ago the prisoner was tried in Toronto on a charge of forgery similar to the one preferred against him here. The jury disagreed. There were other charges, but they were not pressed, and the prisoner was discharged. McMillan was committed for trial on the charge preferred by George Long. There are eight or ten other cases which will be investigated to-morrow morning.

Many of the striking weavers are leaving the city as the prospects are not bright for a settlement of the difficulty. The Ontario cotton mills will not resume work until the strikers return to their looms and accept the cut. The weavers are determined not to return to work except on the old terms.

After a long and painful illness, the young wife of John Y. Osborne, of the firm of James Osborne & Son, died shortly after noon to-day. Mrs. Osborne was the daughter of R. S. Parke of H.M. customs, and was married to Mr. Osborne about 18 months ago.

Berlin Bonus Bylaws Carried.

BERLIN, Ont., May 12.—The ratepayers of Berlin to-day voted on bylaws to aid in the establishment of a machine shop and a piano factory respectively. Both bylaws were carried by good majorities.

Toronto Equal Rights Candidates.

TORONTO, May 13.—The Equal Rights party held a convention in Richmond Hall last night. It was decided to place two men in the field for Toronto seats in the Assembly. R. Douglas Armour and Ald. William Bell were the choice of the convention.

Dr. Ahrens (Ref.) in North Perth.

LISTOWEL, May 12.—The Reform nomination for North Perth was offered by the convention here to-day to Robert Cleland, but he declined. A ballot was then taken which resulted in favor of Dr. A. E. Ahrens of Stratford.

North Oxford Conservatives.

WOODSTOCK, May 12.—The meeting of the Conservative Association for North Oxford has been adjourned till Saturday.

A Tennessee Collision.

CHATTANOOGA, May 12.—This morning before daylight two freight trains on the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railway collided in a fog. Three colored brakemen were killed and Engineers Thomas Gregory and J. McClaran, Baggagemaster S. S. Dobbs and Conductor Knight were injured. The track will be obstructed for 12 hours.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES

MR. GLADSTONE'S ADDRESS AT THE COBDEN CLUB.

Chancellor von Caprivi on Germany's Colonial Policy—Globe-Trotter Train Catches the Etruria at Queenstown—Stanley Talks About [illegible].

LONDON, May 12.—Mr. Gladstone spoke at the Cobden Club to-day. He said free traders must recognize with great disappointment how much ground had been lost by their doctrine within the last 25 years. Militarism, which lay like a vampire over Europe, was responsible for much of the mischief, but not for all, because free trade had receded in countries where militarism did not prevail—in the United States and in the British colonies. Protection was now applied in America not only to goods but to persons, as was instanced by the treatment of the Chinese. The Great Republic had never accepted the doctrines of free trade. At one time there had been a kind of qualified progress toward them; but this was being checked, opinion became actually retrogressive. Still the growing strength, activity and clearness of conviction of the free trade American party gave a favorable promise of ultimate triumph at the polls. On looking over the world the prospects of free trade were certainly not encouraging. This state of opinion had emboldened the champions of protection, long lurking in their holes, to venture out and renew the struggle under the name of fair trade.

Regarding bi-metallism, Mr. Gladstone said he believed its advocates smelt therein a speedy rise of prices. [Hear! hear!] It was a movement in the direction of protection. Since the adoption of free trade the wages of laboring men had improved 50 per cent. England was working out a great social and economic problem for the benefit of the world. He was confident that free trade, though temporarily discredited, was destined to become the universal charter of trade and to obtain the general acceptance of civilized nations.

Germany's Colonial Policy.

BERLIN, May 12.—In the debate on the estimates for the expenses of the colonies General von Caprivi stated to-day that though he had originally warmly approved the colonial policy of the Empire he agreed with Prince Bismarck that such policy could only be maintained with the support of the nation. As matters now stand the Government cannot retreat from its position in regard to colonial affairs without the loss of honor and money. The change of his views on the system was not to be in any way implied from his assumption of office. The government would everywhere respect foreign rights and protect German rights.

A Statesman of the First Rank.

LONDON, May 12.—A Berlin despatch says: By to-day's speech in the Reichstag, General von Caprivi has passed with one bound to the first rank of European statesmen. The opinion is universally expressed in the lobbies that in comparison with his predecessor he has nothing to fear. His speech was an intellectual treat of the first order. He had perfect command of his flexible voice. His whole bearing showed nobility of nature, high integrity and clearness of purpose.

Psyche Catches the Etruria.

LONDON, May 12.—Citizen Train caught the Etruria yesterday afternoon at Queenstown, and by Sunday next he may be expected in New York on his way to Tacoma, where his journey round the world will be completed. Before leaving Ireland he addressed the crowds assembled on the dock, and gave them the promise of eventually completing the circuit of the globe in 40 days. It is not probable, however, that the journey will be made in such a brief time before the completion of Russia's Siberian railroad.

England's Apathy Makes Him Tired.

LONDON, May 12.—Henry M. Stanley in an interview to-day regarding the German movements in Africa said he was wearied by England's apathy and pliancy in regard to the operations being carried on by the Germans. If England continued to remain inactive the Germans would secure paramount influence in Africa. Following advice given by himself the Germans went to Africa in 1885 and his advice had been repeatedly sought and accepted by them since that time. The Emperor and the fatherland, Mr. Stanley said, are backing Major Wissmann and it is impossible for him to fail in his undertakings to advance German interests in Africa.

Economy Reduces Italy's Deficit.

ROME, May 12.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day the Minister of the Treasury announced amendments to the budget effecting a reduction of 15,000,000 lire on army and navy estimates and other retrenchments to the amount of 11,000,000 lire. There still remains a deficit of 9,000,000 lire.

Virginia Cattle Excluded.

LONDON, May 12.—In the House of Commons to-day President Chaplin of the Board of Agriculture stated the Government would not allow importation of store cattle from Virginia, because that state was not always free from pleuro-pneumonia and there were infected districts near it.

A Delicate Subject Avoided.

LISBON, May 12.—The Chamber of Deputies to-day declined to discuss a motion for the immediate recognition of the Brazilian Government.

Proposed Congregational Council.

LONDON, May 12.—At the Congregationalist annual reunion to-day the committee recommended that an international council be held in London in July, 1891. The committee proposes that the council shall consist of 100 delegates from England, 100 from America and 100 from the rest of the world. Rev. Dr. Storrs of Brooklyn is to be asked to preach the inaugural sermon.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 12.—A Vilna midwife recently arrested has confessed that for years she has been in the habit of killing infants and hiding their bodies in wells.

THE LINCOLN JURY ROLLS.

An Investigation Into the Alleged Padding Begun at St. Kitts.

ST. CATHARINES, May 12.—The investigation into the irregularities in the jury pay-rolls commenced this morning before Judge Senkler. J. C. Rykert was present on behalf of the county and E. G. Cox on behalf of the treasurer. Messrs. V. Bradt, [illegible], William Van Every, Joseph Volstard, H. H. Peterson and James L. Cruise swore in effect that they did not get paid the amounts opposite their names on the jury pay-list. Mr. Cruise swore he got paid 80 cents more than the amount opposite his name.

A Toronto Boy Drowned.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 12.—Albert [illegible], a lad of 16 years, who came to this city six weeks ago from Toronto, fell from the log boom north of the city yesterday, and was drowned. The body has not yet been recovered.

THE TRAGEDY AT TOKIO.

Many Arrests for the Murder of Mr. Large—Foreign Residents Uneasy.

TOKIO, Japan, April 28, via San Francisco, May 12.—Mrs. Large, wife of the missionary so brutally murdered and who herself was frightfully slashed by the long swords of the assassins, is now out of danger. Although the native police have arrested 25 men no one has been positively identified as the one who did the deed.

A great state of uneasiness prevails among foreign residents. Orders have been issued by the British, French and American legations that officials need not go out at night if avoidable, and no one is allowed to enter after nightfall. At all the legations and foreign residences extra guards of police have been placed, as it is feared a new outrage may be perpetrated.

A Resolution of Sympathy.

COBOURG, May 12.—At the convocation exercises of Victoria College to-day Mr. Ferguson, '84, moved that the president of the Literary Society and the president of the Glee Club write letters of condolence to the widow and father of Rev. T. A. Large. The motion was seconded by Mr. W. Kerr and adopted by a rising vote.

WHERE IS THE NUN OF KENMARE?

A Number of Persons Anxious to Discover Her Whereabouts.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 12.—There are quite a large number of persons in Pittsburg who are anxious to discover the present whereabouts of Miss Mary Frances, "The Nun of Kenmare." Miss Cusack came to Pittsburg last winter and created one continual sensation from the time she arrived until she departed. Several newspaper men and ministers arranged lectures for her, and she had profitable entertainments. She left rather unexpectedly, and this at the time caused no little comment.

Before going she took subscriptions for her book on "Reasons for Leaving the Catholic Church," and collected quite a handsome sum. The book was to have been delivered in January, but up to date it hasn't come to hand. A number of persons who collected money for her are now in an unpleasant predicament. They know neither where the "Nun of Kenmare" is now nor when her book will be published. One gentleman who was instrumental in bringing her here says that instead of a Christian they found her an infidel, and that she told so many scandalous things about priests, nuns, and convents that her crusade lost caste.

Cyclone Casualties.

CUTLER, Pa., May 12.—A dwelling house in Donegal township was destroyed by the cyclone Saturday night. Jacob Kramer and wife were fatally injured. Some household effects were carried three miles. A great many oil rigs and small farm buildings were destroyed in that section.

CANTON, O., May 12.—The cyclone which wrecked Akron Saturday visited Lisaville. Six houses were unroofed and others badly wrecked. Amos Hart's wife and daughter were perhaps fatally hurt. A baby aged 18 months was killed.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 12.—A horrible hurricane accompanied by an extraordinary fall of rain swept over this city this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The wind blew 65 miles an hour and the rain fell in torrents. A large section of the roof of the state house was blown off and the offices below deluged. The roof of the penitentiary hospital was blown away. A heavy area of stone on the top of the rear wall of St. Patrick's Cathedral was blown down. It crashed through the roof of the basement, wrecked the altar and ruined the sacristy. Small houses all over town were demolished. No loss of life is reported.

The McGreevy-Tarte Libel Case.

QUEBEC, May 12.—To-day was fixed for the examination of witnesses at the preliminary investigation of the charge of criminal libel brought by Hon. T. McGreevy against Messrs. Israel Tarte, R. H. McGreevy and O. E. Murphy. The defendants were willing to waive the preliminary investigation and to give bail to answer the charge at the next term of the criminal court, but by consent of counsel they gave bail for further examination on Oct. 1, so that the enquiry may be completed for the term of the court of Queen's Bench which opens on Oct. 10.

THEY SANG "GOD SAVE THE QUEEN."

A New York Congregation Joined in the National Anthem.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Many people who passed the Church of the Heavenly Rest, at Forty-fifth-street and Fifth-avenue, yesterday afternoon had their curiosity aroused at the strains of "God Save the Queen," which issued from the interior of the edifice. The occasion was the celebration of St. George's Day by the society of that name. In the doorway of the centre aisle hung a large Union Jack, the folds of which almost hid the American flag on the other side of the door. The sexton of the church stood in the vestibule and had to answer many questions concerning the services in progress. He assured all the inquirers that they need fear no crusade against American nationality even in matters of religion.

Among the well-known people who entered the church were Frederick Vanderbilt, Gen. and Mrs. Ferdinand P. Earle, Theodore Cromwell of the Equitable Insurance Company, Lawyer John Glover, David H. Decker, Judge Townsend and Granville Kissam. About 300 members of St. George's Society were in attendance. The pastor of the church, Rev. Dr. D. Parker Morgan, is the society's chaplain. The only variation of the regular services was in the singing of "God Save the Queen" by the choir and congregation. Nine clergymen were in the chancel, among them Dr. Warren of Holy Trinity Church. Dr. Morgan preached the sermon of the day.

The Brazilian Republic.

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 12.—The first Republican Congress will elect the president of the republic and the Brazilian constitution will be promulgated before Aug. 1. It has been resolved that foreigners of over six months' residence in the country shall declare their nationality before their consul or a notary public.

PUTTING UP THE BARS.

Italian Immigrants Detained at New York and to Be Sent Back.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Judge Lacombe, in the United States Court to-day, heard argument on the proceedings brought to review the action of Collector [illegible] in detaining the four recently-arrived Italian immigrants who were prevented from landing because it was reported they had come here under contract and their passage had been paid by Francesco Dimaruvo. Dr. Ulis, representing the immigrants, argued that the law under which the immigrants had been detained was unconstitutional. He did not attempt to deny that the men had come here under contract. Judge Lacombe dismissed the writ and the men will be returned to Europe. Twelve suspected contract laborers were held at the barge office to-day from among the Italian passengers of the steamer [illegible]. These [illegible] will also be returned.

DOMINION LAWMAKERS.

THE RYKERT REPORT UNANIMOUSLY ADOPTED.

A Discussion Over the Bremner Fur Matter—The Report of the Special Committee Adopted—The List of Railway Subsidies Completed.

OTTAWA, May 13.—The first business of the House to-day was to adopt the report of the Privileges and Elections Committee on the Rykert affair. This was done unanimously and without discussion except for a few words.

Mr. Mulock expressed his personal satisfaction that the investigation so completely exonerated the ministers named in Mr. Rykert's correspondence. He also expressed his confidence, based on life-long acquaintance with Hugh J. Macdonald, that that gentleman was absolutely incapable of having acted as those letters would imply.

Mr. Casgrain took occasion to condemn the audacity of the claim made by Mr. Rykert in his constituency that he was being harshly treated by being singled out for condemnation while other members had done the same thing. He thought the Government should pass a law which would remove the temptation for members to act as Mr. Rykert had.

The report of the special committee on the Bremner fur matter was next considered on motion of Chairman McNeill for its adoption.

Mr. Blake made a bitter attack on General Middleton and expressed the hope that as he had received honors and rewards for his services in the rebellion he should pay for his misconduct now by being compelled to make good Bremner's loss and also withdrawing from the Dominion service.

Sir Adolphe Caron, without defending the General, asked the House to consider the extenuating circumstances connected with this most unfortunate misconception on his part. He announced that the General has expressed his willingness to indemnify Bremner for one-eighth of all the furs appropriated by Middleton's order.

Mr. Laurier followed up Mr. Blake's attack and held that the General should pay the total loss, as but for his denials the Government would have investigated the matter years ago.

Mr. McNeill, in answer to the contentions made by Messrs. Blake and Laurier that General Middleton had given instructions to have the matter kept quiet and thereby confessed its impropriety, pointed out that the General most explicitly denied having ordered the matter to be kept quiet, and he held that the fact that General Middleton ordered a memorandum of the furs packed by his order to be kept showed that there was no intention to keep the matter quiet.

Sir John Macdonald thought the House should not too severely condemn the want of judgment shown in the confiscation, as they should remember that there had been a good deal of confiscation in the Crimea and Indian service in which General Middleton had been engaged. But he thought nevertheless that the General had acted quite illegally in confiscating the furs, and in appropriating them had committed an illegal and improper act for which there could be no defence.

In answer to Mr. Mitchell, who called upon the Government to state what they were going to do with the General now, Sir John Macdonald said the Government could take no action until the report was passed upon by the Commons. When that was done it would be the duty of the Government to consider what further action should be taken.

The report was adopted after some further discussion of an unimportant nature.

The House spent all the evening in Committee of Supply until 1 o'clock. The bill amending the Railway Act (from the Senate) was considered in committee and adopted. The House adjourned at 1½ a.m.

Prorogation is expected to take place on Saturday.

RAILWAY SUBSIDIES.

The Remainder of the List—Only Two of Land and Two of Money.

OTTAWA, May 13.—Mr. Dewdney gives notice of resolutions authorizing a grant to the Lake Manitoba Railway and Canal Company of 6400 acres of land per mile for a line from Portage la Prairie to Lake Winnipegosis, a distance of about 125 miles; also of 6400 acres per mile to the Manitoba South-eastern Railway for a line from Winnipeg southerly or southeasterly to a point on the west side of Lake-of-the-Woods, a distance of about 112 miles.

Sir John Macdonald gives notice of two additional money subsidies. These are: To the Temiscouata Railway Company for 16 miles from the west end of the 20 miles of the branch railway from Edmundston towards the St. Francis River, $51,200; also for a railway from the north end of the 14 miles for which a subsidy was granted to the Tobique Valley Railway Company from Perth Centre towards Plaister Rock Island, 11 miles, $35,200. It is announced that no further subsidies will be proposed this session.

The Old Doctors

Drew blood, modern doctors cleanse it; hence the increased demand for Alteratives. It is now well known that most diseases are due, not to over-abundance, but to impurity of the Blood; and it is equally well attested that no blood medicine is so efficacious as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"One of my children had a large sore break out on the leg. We applied simple remedies, for a while, thinking the sore would shortly heal. But it grew worse. We sought medical advice, and were told that an alterative medicine was necessary. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being above all others, we used it with marvelous results. The sore healed and health and strength rapidly returned." — J. J. Armstrong, Weimar, Texas.

"I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be an admirable remedy for the cure of blood diseases. I prescribe it, and it does the work every time." — E. L. Pater, M. D., Manhattan, Kansas.

"We have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla here for over thirty years and always recommend it when asked to name the best blood-purifier." — W. T. McLean, Druggist, Augusta, Ohio.

"Ayer's medicines continue to be the standard remedies in spite of all competition." — T. W. Richmond, Bear Lake, Mich.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS.

It was Sad Intelligence.

The late Mr. Adam Hudspeth, Q.C., M.P., of Lindsay, whose obituary appears in another column, was a brother-in-law of Mrs. Hon. Robt. Hamilton and has also a large number of other relatives in Peterborough to whom the sad intelligence of his demise was indeed unexpected and sorrowful news. In fact the news was received on every side with universal regret.

Preparing for Construction.

The laying of the Cobourg railroad from Harwood to Cobourg is to be pushed along at once with all possible speed. Mr. R. M. Roy, Superintendent of Supplies for the G. T. R., is shipping 5,000 ties from here to Hastings, from whence they will be taken by water to Harwood. Already 7,000 ties have been taken to Cobourg, so that the work of construction will begin simultaneously at both ends.

An Oddfellow's Excursion.

The Oddfellows of Peterborough have decided to hold an excursion early this season. On Thursday evening last at the regular meeting of Peterborough Lodge a committee was appointed to act with a similar committee from Otonabee Lodge in making the necessary arrangements for the trip. Last evening at the regular meeting of Otonabee Lodge the proposition was favorably received and a committee of five was appointed to act on the joint committee.

Take good care of your beard and keep it clear of gray hairs so as to retain your young looks by using Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers.

Was it a Lie?

Mr. Stratton charged the REVIEW with storing a lie in regard to Mr. Leonard's speech at Young's Point. It was noticeable that Mr. Stratton did not deny that the arguments referred to by the REVIEW were used, and his whole denial was based on the fact that a mistake was made in the night in which the speech was made. It was made on the evening previous to the one the REVIEW said. Mr. Stratton might with equal reason be called a falsefier because he said that the water of Gold, Eagle and Katchewanook lakes passed through Gull Lake, while Katchewanook lake is at Lakefield. Of course Mr. Stratton meant Katchcum lake, but what he said was untrue. It is a small hole Mr. Stratton will not try to crawl through. Mr. Ross' speech—brave when the meeting was arranged so he was safe from reply—bristled with misstatements, which will be referred to again.

A Voice From the Prison.

Rev. S. J. Shorey occupied the chair at the Charlotte-st. church last evening at the lecture which was given by Rev. Chaplain Searles, of New York. The subject of the lecture was "A Voice from the Prison." After the chairman had introduced the lecturer with a few appropriate sentences, the prison Chaplain opened his address to an audience which filled completely the seating capacity of the building. He commenced by describing the prison system of the English-speaking people not only on this side but also on the other side of the water and then took up the theme of prison life. He divided the cause of crime under three heads—idleness, licentiousness and intemperance. With the first and last only did he deal in extenso, abstaining from touching on the middle one in a mixed audience. For an hour and a half he waved the triform magic wand of pathos, humor and eloquence over the senses of his audience, now melting them to tears and now relieving the shadows caused by his painful illustrations by those of a more humorous character, but all tending towards the great aim of his lecture—the cause, the effect and the remedy for crime. The lecturer closed his address with an eloquent peroration, showing the terrors of the rum traffic and the blessing of temperance. Mayor Stevenson moved a vote of thanks to the rev. chaplain, which was seconded by Rev. E. H. Leitch and cordially tendered. To-night the children will hold their anniversary entertainment.

Brevities.

—The purse which Chief Roszel had in his custody has been given to the owner, who was informed who had it by last evening's REVIEW.

—The boys who done the hissing in the Opera House last evening should be kept out of such meetings in future. They indulged in the foolish practice when both candidates were speaking.

Personalities in the East.

Personalities which have been introduced into the campaign in the East Riding have brought out the following letters:—

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—J. S. McWilliams, of Peterborough, stated on a public platform at Stewart School House, in the township of Otonabee, on the evening of May 7th, 1890, that I had, while acting as solicitor for Dr. Goldsmith in the purchase of his house on Brock street, accepted a bribe from him (McWilliams) for the purpose of defrauding the Doctor, and that he (McWilliams) could have my gown as a professional man taken from me. I told him at the time that his statement was false and branded him a slanderer. I now enclose you a letter on the matter from Dr. Goldsmith, which speaks for itself, and ask you to kindly publish the same in your daily and weekly papers.

E. B. STONE.

To Mr. E. B. Stone, and to whom it may concern:—

In consequence of statements and contra statements in reference to my purchase of Mr. J. S. McWilliams' property on Brock street, Peterborough, I feel it my duty to make the statements following:

Neither Mr E. B. Stone nor any other man acted as my solicitor or agent in the above purchase.

I made my own bargain with Mr. McWilliams completely and fully, and uninfluenced by any person whatever. The only part Mr. Stone took was to introduce me to Mr. McWilliams and prepare the writings. Later, on the day of introduction, Mr. Stone told me the price asked for the place was too high. I say further, that in finishing the writings everything was done by Mr. Stone in the most satisfactory way and no charge of fraud or dishonesty in any form can possibly exist on his part, and any statements to the contrary are false and without foundation.

Sergeant Loughrain Prefers Charges Against Several Kingston Officials.

KINGSTON, May 12.—There is a large-sized sensation at the Penitentiary and Inspector Moylan is here making an investigation. Sergeant Loughrain, who has been an applicant for the position of chief keeper, two weeks ago made charges in writing against nearly every official in the prison. Keepers were charged with getting articles made in the penitentiary for friends and receiving a percentage, guards of leaving their posts and others with having done all those things they ought not to have done. The sergeant was subsequently suspended by the warden and was summoned to Ottawa, and Inspector Moylan's present trip is the result of Loughrain's interview with the department.

A Train Runs Into a Pile of Fallen Rock in a Tunnel—The Fireman Killed.

CAMPBELLTON, N.B., May 12.—At the Morrissy rock tunnel, six miles from Campbellton, yesterday morning, train number 14, in charge of Conductor Perron, struck about ten tons of rock that had fallen upon the track. The engines were badly smashed up. Fireman Angus Gorham, the only support of a widowed mother, was instantly killed and Driver Jacob McNutt was seriously, though not fatally, injured. The wreck was cleared to-day.

Corrosion from Pure Water.

The purest water (according to the Locomotive) often is the most active in corroding and pitting plates, and this makes it probable that the active substance, in some cases at least, is air. It is well known that water is capable of dissolving a considerable amount of air; in fact, it is this dissolved air that enables fish to breathe. It is not so widely known, however, that the oxygen of the air is more soluble than the nitrogen. If a small quantity of water be shaken up in a bottle, it dissolves some of the inclosed air, and when this is afterward driven off by boiling, and analyzed, it is found to consist of oxygen and nitrogen in the proportion of 1 to 1.87, instead of 1 to 4, as in the natural air. Thus the dissolved air, being more than twice as rich in oxygen as common air is, and being brought into more intimate contact with the metal by means of the water that holds it in solution, exerts a correspondingly more noticeable effect. It is probable, too, that water plays some other important action in connection with the oxidation of metals, for it has been found by recent experiments that pure oxygen will not combine with things that it has the greatest affinity for, provided it is perfectly dry. Even the metal sodium, which has an intense affinity for oxygen, may be heated in it to a very high temperature without combination, provided sufficient precautions are taken to exclude the slightest trace of moisture. It appears, therefore, that water plays a most important part in the oxidation of metals by air—a part, indeed, that we cannot explain, and that we realy know but little about.

Hungry Iowa Rats.

Lewis Johnson, of Falesburg, Ia., had a horrible experience with a rat. He awoke from his sleep with a jump to find a big rat nibbling at his eyebrows. It was a long time before he could go to sleep again, and when he did the rat made use of its opportunity. It crawled again on the top of the bed and began to feed on Mr. Johnson's nose. It only took a good bite or two, sinking the teeth deeply. Lewis was too much hurt and terrified to tell for a while what had happened. The nose was badly swollen from the effects of the biting.

Vocalism Extraordinary.

A lady in Bordenrow, who lived near a church, was sitting by a window listening to the crickets who were loudly chirping, the choir music being quite audible. A gentleman dropped in who had just passed the church.

"How loudly they sing to-night!" said he.

"Yes," said the lady, thinking of the crickets, "and they say they do it with their hind legs."—Saturday Review.

Arrested on Suspicion.

Patrick Reddy, a tall, loosely-built, rather slow-looking individual, was arrested at the G. T. R. station here last night by Chief Roszel on the suspicion of being one of the Lakefield burglars who so successfully operated on the safe in Patterson's jewellery store on Sunday morning. It appears that this stranger had been noticed in Lakefield on Saturday and had been described to the police as a suspicious looking visitor. Last night some Lakefield people noticed him at the G. T. R. station and sent word to the police. Chief Roszel asked the man to give an account of himself but this the fellow would not do satisfactorily, giving the officer to understand that if he had anything against him he would have to prove it. Reddy said he had worked with a farmer near New York and also stated that he left Lakefield on Saturday evening and remained with a farmer near the quarry all night. This is said to be false, as a Lakefield hotel man says he saw the fellow hanging about Lakefield at twelve o'clock on Saturday night. This morning the man was still silent and the magistrate remanded him to gaol for one week. It seems rather suspicious that if he had nothing to hide why he does not give a straight account of himself and secure his liberty.

THE POLITICAL BATTLE.

THE REFORM MASS MEETING IN THE OPERA HOUSE.

Mr. Stratton Gives a Short Address—Mr. Carnegie Allowed to Address the Meeting for One Hour—The Minister of Education Speaks for Nearly Two Long Hours.

The meeting called for last evening in the interests of the candidature of Mr. Stratton attracted an immense audience to the Opera House. The floor of the house was filled to its fullest with electors, while the gallery, which had been reserved, was the bright spot in the house as there were gathered a good representation of Peterborough's fair sex. The audience was composed of Reformers, Conservatives and Equal Righters in somewhat equal proportions as was evidenced by the distribution of the applause. This fact, the mixed audience, was largely due to the fact that both the candidates in the political battle which is now raging were to address the meeting. Hon. G. W. Ross, the Minister of Education, one of the most eloquent speakers of the Reform ranks, was the speaker of the evening.

It was shortly after eight o'clock when Mr. J. R. Stratton followed by the Minister of Education and Mr. T. G. Hazlitt, stepped upon the platform and was received with cheers. Mr. T. G. Hazlitt took the seat of honor and invited Mr. Carnegie, if he was in the audience, to take a seat upon the platform. As the Equal Rights candidate came forward to the platform he was greeted with a regular ovation, which was prolonged as he shook hands with Hon. Mr. Ross before seating himself upon the platform.

Mr. Hazlitt then opened the meeting with a few remarks in which he asked the audience to sustain the good reputation of Peterborough's electors by keeping good order. He then introduced Mr. Stratton who was to speak for half an hour and to be followed by Mr. Carnegie for an hour.

THE REFORM CANDIDATE.

Mr. Stratton as he rose to speak was received with applause. He expressed his gratification at the large audience that was present and flattered the people of Peterborough for the interest they always manifested in the affairs of their country. He briefly recounted his political career and said he believed that there were enough Liberal men in this riding to again return him to represent them in the Legislature. He referred to the meetings he had held throughout his riding since his election, eulogized the Mowat administration and claimed that it had dealt liberally with this constituency, proceeding to travel and retravel the county dilating upon the splendid roads which were to be found. He spoke of the dam at Mississauga. It was stated, he said, that there were no settlers in that locality, but that the dam was being built for the Dickson Co. This he denied and said there was a dam there already which met all the requirements of the Dickson Co. The proposed dam would form a reservoir for the waters of Gold, Eagle and Ketawanock lakes and enable the steamers to navigate the waters of the lake. That money, he said, honestly, candidly, was spent in the interests of the country and that the dam was not built for the Dickson Co., for Mr. Hazlitt had told him he did not care the snap of his finger whether the dam was built or not. He defied any one to point to any mis-spent money granted for colonization roads. In a plausible way Mr. Stratton rang in an excuse to deny that Roman Catholics alone were employed on the government road work and also that he had attended the Roman Catholic picnic at St. Joseph's on Dominion Day, but had he been here he said he would probably have been there. He scouted the idea of pandering to Rome and quoted several newspapers searching for good opinions of the Mowat administration. He then spoke briefly on the Provincial finances, contrasting the standing of Quebec and Ontario, and also referred to the Government's timber policy. He also brought up the new Parliament building jobbery and accused Mr. Creighton, of the Empire, of flunking in not accepting a commission of enquiry into the matter. He gave a few minutes to the REVIEW and denied certain reports which had appeared in its columns. In closing he called himself an equal rights candidate and appealed to the electors to stand by him on the 5th of June.

MR. CARNEGIE SPEAKS.

Mr. Carnegie was received with loud and prolonged cheers. He said that although he and they had listened with care to Mr. Stratton's address, he would best serve the purpose for which they had met by passing over it lightly to reach the more important questions to be decided in this election. The main question was whether they should have British liberty in Canada or the liberty inculcated from the Vatican. Mr. Stratton claimed a great deal of credit for money received for the roads in the county, but he (Mr. Carnegie) had made written application for grants for these very roads and it was refused. By his boast Mr. Stratton proved that the Government acted on the principle of "You scratch my back and I'll scratch yours;" and that people who would not support the Government could not get justice. If the county suffered from a law suit because money was not spent on the roads, as Mr. Stratton said, it was not chargeable to him (Mr. Carnegie), because he had called attention of the Government to this very road, and it was chargeable to the Government. They would remember that when in the House in 1867-1871 he was pretty active in promoting the interests of the constituency. In regard to the boast of money expended in the county, the Government which had so much money that it could expend $6,200 to facilitate the gathering of milk on a lake at which the hunter's horn was heard more frequently than the tinkle of the cow bell, had taken more out of the treasury of the town by appropriating more and more of the license funds, he ventured to say, than it had given back. He hoped the disinterestedness of Mr. Stratton in these matters was not on a par with his disinterestedness on the School Board. He (Mr. Carnegie) had never risen to address an audience on an occasion like this with a deeper sense of responsibility, not because he had any doubt of of the Equal Rights Association, but because of a feeling that if those principles were not endorsed that it might be a serious matter for the country. (A Voice—We'll never endorse them.) He knew, he said, that there were a great many in the audience who were directly opposed to these principles, because, on account of the principles with which they had been inculcated and which they held, they were bound, as honest men, to vote against him. Although he would refer to a particular church he would do only as a political body, and as he understood it it was to a large degree a political body, but he would say nothing unnecessarily offensive to those belonging to that church. He would read the platform of the Equal Rights Association and upon that platform alone he stood. He was not a Conservative, as on former occasions, because he realized the time had come when Reformers and Conservatives should unite to bring back British freedom.

A Voice—How about "Facts for Irish Electors?"

Mr. Carnegie said he had never seen that pamphlet until he saw it in the Globe. He then read the platform of the Equal Rights Association. Was that, he asked, sound policy or not? (Yes and cheers.) Were these principles being invaded or attempts being made to invade them by any class in the community? He would read them evidence to show that they were. First he read from an encyclical letter of the Pope dated in January, 1890. (At this point there was an interruption, cries of "put him out," and confusion.) He also read from Butler's catechism to show that the church referred to taught that the laws of the state should be set aside and disobeyed if they conflicted with the canons of the church. This, he said, was strange advice to be given under the British flag. The people of the Roman Catholic church were also told by these authorities that they should accept the political wisdom of the ecclesiastical authorities. Are these principles such as they would wish to govern Canada? And were attempts not being made to put them in force to a larger extent in the Dominion and to a smaller extent in Ontario? Some would charge him with trying to arouse sectarian feeling. (A Voice—"You are,"—and renewed cries of "Put out, &c. There was confusion for a time, but order was again restored.) He was under the impression that it was better to speak out fairly and above-board one's sentiments than to try to smother them. He was a true friend on either side who spoke out his sentiments above-board. If they put a weight on the lid of a tea kettle and confined the steam

THERE WOULD BE AN EXPLOSION.

The Equal Rights Association was giving vent to the feeling on these matters and had brought about a discussion that would be of benefit to Canada, perhaps also to the continent and to the world. Returning to the quotations he had read, he asked if these principles were not being enforced here. It would be out of place to go over a Dominion matter, but the Jesuit Estates Act showed what they were, and he referred to the action of the Quebec Legislature and of the House of Commons. These principles were also being enforced in Ontario. He was an Equal Righter and stood on the platform of the Equal Rights Association, which desired to give the same privileges and concessions to everyone, but special privileges to none. He would deal, so far as time permitted, with the educational question, as it was upon that that the real battle would be fought. If they gave any church, Presbyterian, Methodist or any other, control of education it would soon be a strong church. There was, however, larger appropriations to assist one church in that was than any contribution to the pastor's salary would be. As he understood the doctrine of that that church, it held that the state should not have control of education. If that was so the basis of their school system was wrong. The law said that every child should have the privilege of attending school, and also that every child within certain ages must attend some school, with one exception, and that exception was in favor of his Roman Catholic fellow-citizens. If the compulsory law was right for some it should be right for all. In order that the Public Schools should be accessible to all, no child was compelled to read from any text book that contained anything to which the parents objected or to take part in any religious exercise to which they objected. That being so he stood firm in the conviction, though he might have been slow in reaching it, that Separate schools should be abolished. Property paid the taxes to the Public schools and all property must do so, except property belonging to a Roman Catholic, who could withdraw his taxes and send them to a Separate school. If they were going to proceed on that line, all should have that right. (A Voice—Certainly.) Then what would become of the Public schools and the whole school system? Were they prepared to say that only those willing to pay taxes to the Public schools should do so? If so the Public schools would be destroyed, and perhaps that was what some would be glad to see. But some would ask regarding the Protestant Separate schools in Quebec. (Hear, hear.) Perhaps the gentleman who said "Hear, hear," did not know the position of the schools in Quebec. They were denominational from top to bottom and there were only Roman Catholic and Protestant schools. He was quite willing to have the Protestant Separate schools abolished if Public schools such as in Ontario were fairly established. They were not asking for anything that they were not willing for others to have. With regard to Separate schools it was claimed they could not do away with them by the Act of Confederation. He would concede this so far as the Separate schools of 1863, which contained rights granted under our Confederation, went. But was divisible into two parts—one as they existed in 1867 and the other, the additions made to them since. The Province, through its Legislature had a perfect right to repeal these additions and place the Separate schools back where they were at confederation. What would be the effect of this? To show what the effect would be, he then quoted from the Catholic Review, an organ of the Church which until recently, he said, had the endorsation of Archbishop Lynch, a paragraph in which it was said Mr. Meredith had pledged himself to abolish the Separate schools system and place them under a system a State supervision which would practically end their utility. One year, the Review's article said, under the management would end the schools' usefulness. Usefulness for what? Mr. Carnegie asked. Mr. Ross would say it was their duty to increase their efficiency. He asked that gentleman to point to one amendment in the direction of increasing their efficiency. They did increase their efficiency as nurseries for that particular church but in no other way. His time, Mr. Carnegie said, would not allow him to run over all the amendments, but he would refer to a few which were found in Mr. Crook's review of legislation in 1879. Mr. Carnegie then quoted these different amendments, the first of which was in reference to the election of trustees. In the House, he said, when the Government were asked for the ballot they said it was beyond their power to give, as the school supporters were given the right to elect under the Act of Confederation of 1867. Yet here they had. Mr. Crooks pointing out certain amendments made in the mode of election of school trustees, so that it was evident that when it was in the interests of the Catholic church they could amend. The second amendment he referred to was that giving the owner of non-resident lands the right to require the rates to go to the support of the Separate schools no matter how far they were distant from that school. This, he said, was an extension of the Separate school taxation. It had been that the owner of non-resident land which was within three miles of a Separate school house could withdraw the rates from the public school and have them go to the Separate school, but now an owner, no matter how distant his land might be, had the power of sending the rates to the Separate school. Mr. Carnegie went on and took up the several other amendments one by one to show that they had been made in the interests of the Catholic church. It was

A SINGULAR COINCIDENCE

he said, that these amendments were made in the session of 1879. It would be remembered that these were remarkable times. Mr. Alexander Mackenzie had been swept out of power and Sir John Macdonald came in. The Conservatives felt certain of being elected in Ontario and thought they were going to walk into Toronto. Mr. Mowat had one session before him and he made these amendments and had swept the country by almost the same majority as Sir John had just before. The census returns showed that the chief changes were where the Catholic vote was polled. What had the church been taught in these two occasions. It was "we hold the balance of power and will put in any party we like." And in its wisdom, said the speaker, that church voted with one party in the Dominion and the other in the Provincial elections and the result was that she kept both parties at her feet and they dare not say boo. (Cheers.) He was not a Conservative nor a Reformer or anything else. (Loud and prolonged laughter.) He was an Equal Righter and the Examiner had stated he had smashed the Conservative party. If he had smashed the Conservative party inasmuch as the bowing down to a certain vote was concerned, he thought he had done a good thing. (Cheers.) He had other evidence as to how this political church was endeavoring and he quoted letters which Archbishop Lynch had sent to Mr. Higgins and into Middlesex, stating that he was anxious to have the Mowat Government sustained as it had done all in its power for the Church. He then quoted from the report of the Minister of Education in reference to the amendments to the School Act. In reference to the amendments giving Separate schools representation on High School Boards and that allowing trustees of Separate schools and municipal authorities to enter into an agreement whereby a certain sum should be paid for the support of Separate schools in lieu of the ordinary rate levied by taxation, Mr. Carnegie said he had been in the House when they were passed. Mr. Meredith had objected to the first, but Mr. Fraser had taken the ground that the municipalities were so ill-liberal that they would not appoint a Roman Catholic on the High School Board. In regard to the second Mr. Carnegie said he did protest and the clause had been amended so that the agreement could not be entered into unless the Council was partly Protestant and could be broken by giving six months notice. The speaker further dealt with these amendments and was proceeding to take up the text books question when time was called. He therefore had to close his address, which he did with an eloquent appeal to the electors to solemnly consider and inform themselves of these issues and to give no uncertain sound on the 5th of June next. He asked no man to vote for him but for the principles he was pledged to support. He closed with a quotation from Robert Burns and sat down amid loud applause.

TO CONTROL THE GOVERNMENT

THE MINISTER OF EDUCATION.

Hon. G. W. Ross was received with cheers. He opened by expressing his pleasure at addressing a Peterborough audience and indulged in a glowing eulogy on Mr. Stratton. He next passed on to deal with Mr. Carnegie's speech, joking over the insinuation of the Government's subserviency to Rome. The important question was whether the interests of the Province had suffered and he claimed they had not. He blamed Mr. Carnegie with making this a religious campaign and then proceeded to take up the Separate school question. At the outset he said the Government were not responsible for the existence of Separate school nor could they abolish them. The ultimate object in having them repealed was to have the Catholics and Protestants in the same schools side by side. If this was not so there was no use discussing the question. But he claimed that if they were abolished this object would not be attained as the Roman Catholics would not attend the public schools and he pointed to the parochial schools of the United States. Now as it was two-thirds of the Catholics went to the public schools. To attain the object, they would have to reconstruct the laws of the Roman Catholic church, which was impossible for Protestants to do. He explained the school system of Quebec as he said it existed and said it was the polity of the Roman Catholic church to have Separate schools. If they closed the Separate schools in Peterborough to-morrow the Roman Catholic children would not go to the Public school but would still remain in Separate school. This was the case in Manitoba, United States and in England. Referring to the denominational grants he pointed to England where grants were made to denominational schools. These Separate schools being established he could not set out under his oath of office to do anything else but to try and give the Separate school children an equally good education as the Protestant children in the Public schools. He denied that any of the amendments made to the Separate Schools Act had injured the Public schools, High schools or Universities of our Province, but on the other hand put out the challenge that they were made to promote the efficiency of the Separate schools. The Roman Catholic had a right to their conscientious scruples and they were bound to respect them. He admitted that here and there a newly formed Separate school might injure the public schools, but, outside of these scattered instances, the system had not been injured but was greatly improved. He denied that any of the amendments had given the Roman hierarchy any more power over the Separate schools. He wanted to show that the compulsory sections of the School Act did apply to the Catholic children as much as it did to the Protestants. In regard to the Quebec Separate schools he said the Catholics had been very considerate, the Protestants there having five classes of schools, while in Ontario the Catholics had only one and the Protestant schools being governed entirely independent of the Catholic portion of the Council of Public Instruction. The speaker then took up several of the amendments to the Separate School Act and discussed them briefly, combatting the statements in this regard which Mr. Carnegie had made. Mr. Carnegie, he also alleged, had voted for some of the amendments he now complained of and there was not an enactment of the School Act he had not consented to. Mr. Ross referred to Mr. Carnegie's stand in the campaign of 1883 and introduced and quoted from "Facts for Catholic Electors" which he alleged had been sent out from the REVIEW office. Another campaign sheet addressed to the French electors which he alleged was sent out by Mr. Carnegie at the last election, was produced together with a letter from Father Lynch which stated that Mr. Carnegie had asked him for support in 1871. He asserted that according to the law a Roman Catholic had to give notice to the clerk before he would be rated as a Separate school supporter. Their provisions made every clerk keep a register on which was placed the name of every Roman Catholic who gave notice and any Roman Catholic whose name did not appear on that register was rated as a public school supporter. The speaker then took up the text book question and went on to show that the Separate schools were using almost exclusively public school text books. The idea of introducing anti-British doctrine into the text books of the Separate schools he called unfair and insulting to the loyalty of Roman Catholics. In regard to the objection to having a Separate school representative on the High School Board he pointed to the increased number of Catholics which were now attending our High Schools. He called false the statement that these amendments had been made to save Mr. Mowat in 1879. He claimed that everything that had been done to push English into the French schools had been done during his term of office. He dwelt on what he called the insignificance of the cries raised in reference to these schools holding up the numerical weakness of the French schools and people in proportion to the English schools and people. The Government, he claimed, had made English and undenominational text books compulsory in all the schools, and no altars, crucifixes, etc., were allowed in the Public schools although they had been in a few schools. In closing he said he did not oppose Mr. Carnegie because he was an Equal Righter, but because he was the opponent of a supporter of the Mowat Government and because he would get the support of the Conservatives.

The meeting closed with cheers for the Queen and Mr. Stratton.

HATS!

"Where did you get that hat?" is a query that thousands of years ago came as "trippingly on the tongue" of the enfant terrible of Nineveh and Thebes as it does to-day on that of the Peterborough gamin.

Love of extravagance in costume is as inherent in mankind as love of eating and drinking, and jibes at the extravagant or uncouth are older than literature. When King Asshur-bani-pal came home from a campaign, bringing with him a long line of chained prisoners, their uncouth garb doubtless excited the derision of the Assyrian boys, who did not fail to shout "Where did you get that Hat?" The heavy swells of Rome as they rolled along the Via Appia in chariots of ivory and gold, and the newest things in headgear were saluted with the same cry; and from that day to this it has never ceased.

In our corner of the globe the question is easily answered. All Peterborough's well dressed people get their

The Daily Review.

TUESDAY, MAY 13, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

But the very thing happened that she least expected—an incredible thing! The judge asked only that they would return to his home.

Not any inquiry did he make, nor a reproach. It was unbelievable, and yet not so unbelievable as what followed. For the judge put his face in his hands and thought awhile, while the two girls exchanged mystified glances. Then he said that perhaps, under the circumstances, it would be as well for them to remain where they were for a time. The trial would soon be on, and Margaret might find it pleasanter to be where no one would know of her identity.

Margaret and Jeanne could do nothing but stare. Suddenly a terrible suspicion seized Margaret.

"Of course, papa," she whispered, going up to him and laying one hand softly on his cheek, "you are not displeased with me? This is not a way of saying that you do not want me to come home any more?"

"Bless you, no!" cried the judge, with one of his old time accents of candor. "Come back to-morrow, to-day, whenever you will, and never leave it or me! Do you think I would let my little daughter go out of my life because she took it into her head to be a bit adventuresome and eccentric! I was up to all sorts of tricks when I was young, and I suppose girls are not materially different from boys. No, I mean what I say. Stay here till the trial is over. Here you have plenty of work and new scenes to keep you occupied. I like your pluck. Stay if you like, daughter."

And still no questions, no expression of astonishment, of distress! He seemed to feel no astonishment that she, a lady by birth and habit, should play at dressmaking in a shabby genteel neighborhood. He actually passed over what must have seemed to him the most unaccountable freak, without comment! Margaret by a strange perversity was almost hurt. She would rather have been censured.

In a little while he even arose to go. But first he held Margaret in his arms for a little while, and stroked her hair, and talked to her softly, as he had been in the habit of doing for nineteen years. Then he kissed her, told the little damsel to keep a careful eye on his girl and let no harm come to her, and putting a roll of bills on the table, departed. The girls never moved from the positions he left them in, till they heard the front door close, and then the gate.

"Well!" said Margaret.

"I should say so," assented Jeanne, "but at least we can get out the sewing we have in now. I was afraid for a time that our professional reputations would suffer." And she sat down to work on the infant's wardrobe.

That afternoon Pond came in, looking especially elegant in a new spring overcoat, which Jeanne insisted that he had paid too much for, to his hardly-concealed annoyance. Was he always to be made ridiculous before Margaret?

When he heard of the morning's incident he sprang to his feet with a startled face.

"Then you must find a new place to-morrow," he cried.

"No we must not," said Margaret quietly. "I have had enough of running away from my father. There is to be no more of it, Mr. Pond, even to please so valuable a friend as yourself—no," anticipating his next remark, "not even to please Harry."

"How did your father find out that you were not at the marshes?" inquired Pond.

"Oddly enough," exclaimed Margaret, "I did not think to ask him."

"Where has he been conducting his searches for you? I wonder if he informed the police of your disappearance?"

"I don't suppose he did, or he would have spoken of it."

"How long do you think he has known it?"

"I did not ask. You must think I was stupid, and I was. I sat numb with astonishment that he did not reproach me."

"Why do you think he refrained? Did he have no curiosity concerning your motive?"

"Well, to tell the truth, I thought he might have some idea of the reason I left—which is more than I have—and so he avoided the subject. He always has spared me as much as he could."

"You positively refuse to move, Miss Barthwait?"

"Positively, Mr. Pond."

"Very well. I have much business to-day, Miss Barthwait, and must hasten."

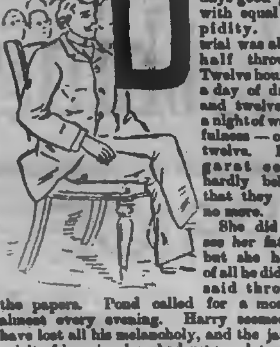
He made his adieus, and Jeanne accompanied him to the door.

"It really cost you more than it ought," she said, by way of good bye, giving a hasty pat to the coat.

"What a torment she is," Pond remarked to the next lamp post. "No man could love her more than an hour at a time."

That night he who made his way along Walnut street might have noticed two men pacing round and round the block where the Misses Browne had hung out their sign. These men wore the clothes of citizens, but concealed under coats were dark lanterns, and on the lapels of their inner coats were detectives' stars.

CHAPTER XVII.



DAYS evil and days good pass with equal rapidity. The trial was about half through. Twelve hours to a day of dread and twelve to a night of wakefulness—only twelve. Margaret could hardly believe that they held no more.

She did not see her father, but she heard of all he did and said through the papers. Pond called for a moment almost every evening. Harry seemed to have lost all his melancholy, and the jaunty spirit of happier days had returned to him.

"It is all over," he said to Pond. "I have fought the fight with myself. I will die. It will be easier for her that way than the other in a little while—women's wounds must heal, Pond. But I know she loves me now. Balzac says somewhere: 'To a wounded heart, silence and shadow.' Well, I talk and I rejoice in you and all other pleasant things because I have not a wounded heart."

"You are acting like a fool," Pond would cry angrily. "Worse you are committing a crime."

"I am only sinning against myself," Harry would protest.

"That is not true, sir. You are going to kill her, I tell you. Worse, you are going to leave a ravening monster free to work his hellish—"

"Now don't, Pond," Harry would interrupt with a little affectation of weariness. "Whatever you do, Dennis, don't be melodramatic."

"Could I have better excuse?" Pond would cry.

"There is no excuse, my dear boy. To be a perfect gentleman, it is necessary to yawn and look bored even on your own scaffold." He used this tone of persiflage always now. Nothing could make him serious. In the odd moments he wrote verses to Margaret. For the most part, they were merely love ballads, and they were never apropos to the situation of Harry and his poor little sweetheart. They were evidently written simply for love of writing and of Margaret. The morning of the day that the closing speech of the prosecution came, Margaret received the following unrhymed verses, written on odd bits of envelope and paper:

ROSE OR THORN!

Is love a rose, or is it but a thorn!
A thorn a day ago, a rose to-day;
Last week the sweetest rose that ever bloomed,
Last night the sharpest thorn that ever pricked—
Is love a rose or is it but a thorn!

Is love a rose! Roses are ever sweet.
Yet stinging bitterness love oft doth bring.
The rose's crimson cheek is soft and fair,
Love's cheeks so often haggard, wan and worn.
Is love a rose! Roses are ever sweet.

Is love a thorn! Thorns give us naught but pain.
Whilst love brings pleasures and a glad delight.
Thorns wound—their only purpose is to wound;
Love's wounds are given oft for love's sweet sake.
Is love a thorn! Thorns give us naught but pain.

Or rose or thorn, what matters it, my sweet!
He knows not pleasure who hath not known pain.
If love's a rose, I'll drink its fragrant breath;
If love's a thorn, I'll sheath it in my heart.
Or rose or thorn, what matters it, my sweet!

True love hath still the rose's virgin hue,
True love hath still the pricking pangs of pain;
We weary of the sky that's ever blue,
We weary of the river always smooth—
True love hath still the rose's virgin hue.

Is love a rose, or is it but a thorn!
When you are with me, dear, it is a rose
Whose beauty is a perfumed dream of bliss;
When you are gone, heart's joy, I feel the thorn.
Is love a rose, or is it but a thorn!

Love unreturned must ever be a thorn;
Love that is only words—a scentless rose.
Pluck out the thorn and cast it in the dust,
Or wear the rose and make believe 'tis sweet!
Love unreturned must ever be a thorn.

DEATH OF MR. ADAM HUDSPETH.

The Member for South Victoria Succumbs to an Attack of Apoplexy.

LINDSAY, May 12.—Mr. Adam Hudspeth, M.P. for South Victoria, died at his home here at 5.30 this afternoon.

Mr. Hudspeth returned to Lindsay from Ottawa on Saturday evening in apparent good health. This morning it was noticed he was sleeping longer than usual, and after one or two ineffectual efforts to awaken him his physician was called in and pronounced him suffering from an attack of apoplexy. He never rallied but passed without pain into the sleep of death.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday at 2½ p.m.

[Adam Hudspeth, Q.C., M.P., was born in Cobourg, Ont., Dec. 8, 1836. He was educated in the grammar school of his native town, of which his father was head master. He studied law and was called to the bar in 1867. He was a keen politician and did yeoman service for the Conservative party from early manhood. In 1875 he was a candidate for the Ontario Assembly, but was defeated. Mr. Hudspeth was deputy judge for Victoria County for many years and was revising officer to prepare the lists for North Victoria under the Franchise Act of 1885. When the election came on he ran as the Conservative candidate for the Commons and was returned by a handsome majority, but it being supposed that he was disqualified under the Independence of Parliament Act, he resigned his office as revising officer and again entered the contest, in which he was again successful. In 1866 Mr. Hudspeth married Harriette Miles, a daughter of R. S. Miles of Brockville.]

TRADE AND TRAFFIC.

Leading Features of the Grain and Produce Markets at Home and Abroad.

TORONTO, May 12.—The produce and provision trade is active and quite a good volume of business is being done.

Butter and eggs—There is plenty of good butter offering and prices are easy at 13c to 14c for large rolls, the latter figure being for very choice. Eggs are scarce. The general figure is 11c, but some dealers report having sold small lots at 11½ and 12c.

Baled hay and straw—There is not much hay offering and prices rule from $8 to 10.50 for car lots on track. Very choice timothy might bring $11. Trade in straw is quiet at $6 to $6.50 for oat straw on track.

Provisions—Long clear bacon 8½c, bellies and backs 11c to 11½c, rolls 9½c, hams 11½c to 12c, Canadian lard 9½c, tubs, and 10c, pails; mess pork $16, dressed hogs $7.

BREADSTUFFS.

Flour—Firm. Straight rollers are quoted by sellers on a basis of $4.70, but buyers offer less; spring patents, $5.25; fall patents, $5.70; bakers', $5.50; pastry, $5.25; family, $5.

Bran—Easy. Cars offer on track at $12.50 and outside at $10 to $10.25.

Wheat—There seems little disposition on the part of millers to pay the prices asked. On call $1.08 was bid for No. 1 red, but met with no response. Spring is held at $1.08 to $1.05 outside.

Oats—For one car on track 36c was bid, with 37c asked. On Call one car of white oats offered on track was 36c; 33c was bid for white oats outside, with sellers at 35c west; 35c was bid for white on the Midland.

Peas—Quiet and steady, with a moderate demand. Quoted at 57c on the Midland and 56c on the Northern.

"The Old Oaken Bucket,
The Iron-bound Bucket,
The Moss-covered Bucket," is very likely the one that has conveyed poisons to your system from some old well, whose waters have become contaminated from sewers, vaults, or percolations from the soil. To eradicate these poisons from the system and save yourself a spell of malarial, typhoid or bilious fever, and to keep the liver, kidneys and lungs in a healthy and vigorous condition, use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It arouses all the excretory organs into activity, thereby cleansing and purifying the system, freeing it from all manner of blood-poisons, no matter from what cause they have arisen. All diseases originating from a torpid or deranged liver, or from impure blood, yield to its wonderful curative properties. It regulates the stomach and bowels, promotes the appetite and digestion, and cures Dyspepsia, "Liver Complaint," and Chronic Diarrhea. "Ever Stainless Black Dye is true to its nature to the very last thread. When persons perspire very much, the natural acid from perspiration may sometimes turn the wet parts rather greenish, but washing with soap and water brings back the beautiful color of the "Everfast Stainless Black," whereas the so-called fast black dyes turn into various shades of rusty brown after washing. Every pair stamped or not genuine."

DOMINION LAWMAKERS.

PROPOSED EXTENSION OF TIME FOR THE H. B. RAILWAY.

Sir Hector Langevin Institutes a Departmental Inquiry in the McGreevy Matter—Tributes to Mr. Hudspeth—The Railway Subsidies.

OTTAWA, May 13.—On motion of Mr. [illegible] a bill extending the time for completion of the Hudson Bay Railway for five years from June 30, 1891, was read in the House this afternoon and referred to the Railway Committee.

Mr. Barron questioned the Minister of Public Works concerning Le Canadien's allegations that Mr. McGreevy, M.P., had improperly obtained in advance information relative to certain tenders sent to the Public Works Department.

Sir Hector Langevin said he knew nothing of the matter beyond what had appeared in the papers. He had ordered a departmental inquiry to ascertain whether any official had been guilty of improper conduct.

Mr. Laurier took the opportunity to deny the statement which had been put in circulation that the Liberals did not bring up this matter in the House on account of certain influence which Mr. McGreevy exercised over them. He said he had been requested some weeks ago to take the matter up, but refused to do so when he found that the persons bringing the accusation would not put in writing the statements they made verbally.

Sir John Macdonald then made a feeling reference to the death of the late Mr. Adam Hudspeth, M.P. for South Victoria. He said those intimately acquainted with the deceased felt a sincere affection for him. He possessed the kindest heart that ever beat in a human bosom, and in his long experience Sir John said he never met a man more worthy of respect and esteem than Adam Hudspeth.

Mr. Blake followed, speaking of the deceased as one whom he had known and respected from boyhood. He thought the presence of such men in Parliament did much to soften the asperities of political life and for this reason his loss was all the more to be deplored.

The member for North Victoria, Mr. Barron, expressed his deep personal regret at the death of his colleague, a warm personal friend, though a political opponent. His loss would be severely felt in all parts of Victoria County, where he was well known and generally respected.

The Northwest Land subsidy resolutions were adopted after an amendment by Mr. Watson asking that a maximum selling price be fixed had been lost on division of 48 to 83.

The bill for collection and publication of labor statistics was read a third time and passed.

After recess resolutions respecting cash subsidies to railways were considered in committee.

The railway subsidy resolutions were discussed and adopted and Mr. Foster then moved that the House go into committee of supply.

General Laurie again called the attention of the Government to the tax placed by the Newfoundland Government on Canadian fishing vessels calling at the Island for bait. He said the tax would amount to about $500,000 in the season and would be practically prohibitory, compelling the vessels to return to Canada for bait.

Sir John Thompson said the Government had lost no time in protesting to the Imperial authorities against the enforcement of the act. It had been passed about a year ago despite the earnest protest of the Dominion Government, and was allowed by the Imperial authorities to go into effect only upon the distinct assurance that it would not be enforced against Canada. He had a letter from a gentleman who was a member of the Newfoundland Government on that occasion stating that the promise was made in good faith and that it was a matter of surprise that the act was being enforced against Canada.

A Big Blow Across the Border.

SENECA FALLS, May 13.—The most severe wind storm known in this section in years passed just north of here this afternoon, traveling with a whirling motion and doing some damage. In the town of Tyre a carriage in a funeral procession was hurled against a fence by the roadside, but none of the occupants were seriously injured.

AROUND THE DOMINION.

A FOUR YEARS' SENTENCE FOR A MONTREAL BIGAMIST.

Serious Charges Against a Nova Scotia Justice of the Peace—Another Seduction Case to be Tried at Toronto—A Verdict of Found Drowned.

MONTREAL, May 13.—A young St. Catharine-street bookkeeper, William Harrison Bothwell, alias William Russell, was arrested and pleaded guilty this afternoon on a charge of bigamy. He married a young woman named Arch at Philadelphia four years ago, and in November last married Elsie J. Beauf at St. Johns, Que., his first wife being still living. He has one child by his second wife. He was employed at the School of Infantry, St. Johns, but recently came to Montreal. He was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary by Judge Dugas this morning.

Isaie T. Quintal, the notary who left suddenly and mysteriously about a month ago, has come back to town, having arranged with the banks and other creditors not to prosecute, on the promise that he will settle the claims against him.

Arrangements were made this afternoon for the exhibition of Millet's "Angelus." The great painting will be on view on Saturday as the present exhibition of the Royal Canadian Academy closes to-morrow and the galleries will be re-arranged for the reception of the "Angelus," which is still in the bank vault.

A combine in rice, which goes into operation on May 15, has been formed, and after that date these prices will rule: One to five bags $3.65, five to twenty-five $3.60. Over twenty-five bags the price will be at the discretion of the seller. J. A. Mathewson & Co. have refused to join.

Rev. Mr. Martin's Disappearance.

MONTREAL, May 13.—In the case of Mr. Martin, the absentee clergyman, it is now stated that Martin is not the gentleman's real name, and that it was only taken as a blind when he entered the priesthood. Mrs. Martin was seen regarding this matter yesterday, and stated that her husband was in the habit of receiving lots of letters from France, but that these letters were never received at his own private residence, and that she never knew him than by the name of Martin. It is further stated that his people are well-off in France, and all efforts will be made by Mrs. Martin's friends to communicate with his relatives and succeed, if possible, in having the children recognized by law, so that they may inherit their father's property. The ecclesiastical authorities are very reticent on the matter and even refuse to be interviewed in connection with it.

TORONTO TOPICS.

An Action for Seduction—A Verdict of Found Drowned.

TORONTO, May 14.—James Leddell, a farmer of Whitchurch, yesterday entered an action at Osgoode Hall against Albert Hannon of the same place for $500 damages for the seduction, under promise of marriage, of Leddell's daughter Ella.

A verdict of "found drowned" was returned at the inquest on the body of George McMaster, whose body was found in the bay Monday morning.

The Newfoundland delegates presented their grievances at a meeting of the Board of Trade yesterday. Resolutions of sympathy and support were adopted.

"Phip" Spohn, a well-known "sport," was arrested yesterday on a charge of vagrancy. This is the first step in a movement to drive the gamblers out of town before the carnival.

Mr. James McGinn, commonly known as "Jimmie," probably the best known hotelkeeper in Toronto, died suddenly at 8½ last night from heart failure. He was just returning from a meeting of I.C.B.U., where he paid his dues which will entitle his family to $2000.

AN UNJUST JUDGE.

Serious Charges Against a Nova Scotia Justice of the Peace.

HALIFAX, May 13.—A commissioner has been investigating the conduct of John Bartlett, Justice of the Peace, [illegible] Bay, Halifax County. The [illegible] allege that Bartlett [illegible] another magistrate's name to a document, that he endeavored to induce a boy to sign away his interest in a valuable [illegible] without consideration, and that he was guilty of immoral conduct with a young girl. One of the witnesses swore that Bartlett wanted him to swear on one occasion that he saw a woman sign a deed, although she had not done so. Also that in his presence Bartlett tried to get his own wife to sign the name Cecelia Stone to a deed. It was also shown by two witnesses that the fishing bounty lists forwarded by Bartlett and prepared by him contained a large number of names of men who had been dead for years and of children who were not entitled to receive any bounty money and also of men who had been residents of the United States for the past ten years.

TO ENFORCE THE MODUS VIVENDI.

Three British Warships Sail from Halifax for Newfoundland Waters.

HALIFAX, May 13.—The British warships Emerald, Pelican and Forward have sailed for Newfoundland waters on fishery protection service under the command of Capt. Sir Baldwin Walker. These ships will co-operate with the French fleet in carrying out the provisions of the modus vivendi recently negotiated between France and England and which is so obnoxious to Newfoundland.

Advices from Newfoundland say that Commissioner McGrath is doing excellent work in Fortune Bay on the bait protection service. He has already seized and confiscated two American vessels, had their crews in jail, collected $7000 in license fees and fines and terrorized bait poachers and smugglers generally.

The alarming exodus from Newfoundland is still going on; 250 young men recently left Harbor Grace in a body for Canada. There were 150 applications for passage on the steamer Adelene from St. John's for Montreal. The captain could only take 50, but the men were so anxious to go to Canada that they agreed to sleep on the bare decks if the captain would take them. They were transported from St. John's to Montreal at $5 per head.

SUPPOSED TO BE A SUICIDE.

The Body of a Former Methodist Minister Found in Cataraqui Bay.

KINGSTON, May 13.—The body of Henry Hyde was found in Cataraqui Bay this evening. It is believed to be a case of suicide. He was seen on Cataraqui bridge early this morning. He was formerly a Methodist minister.

Tea Lottery Patrons Summoned.

OTTAWA, May 13.—A gift enterprise tea store has been "giving away diamonds and watches" liberally of late in prize tea packages. The police have summoned a number of leading patrons to appear before the magistrate.

THE FIGHT IN LINCOLN.

The Liberals Put Up W. K. Pattison to Oppose Charles Rykert.

ST. CATHARINES, May 13.—The Lincoln County Reform Association met in convention at the Opera House this afternoon to determine what action should be taken by the association in reference to the vacancy in the Commons caused by the resignation of J. C. Rykert. There were about 300 present. Mayor McIntyre occupied the chair and in opening the meeting gave a concise resume of the situation. Mr. Rykert, who had represented the county almost continuously in the Dominion Parliament for the past quarter of a century, had recently resigned his seat to save expulsion from the House for his connection with the now historical Adams' timber limit case and had now announced himself as a candidate for re-election. The more respectable element among the Conservatives had induced Mr. Pettit, a friendly farmer and a staunch Conservative, to offer himself in opposition to Mr. Rykert and overtures had been made to the executive of the Reform Association by these gentlemen to endeavor to induce them to refrain from putting a candidate in the field, as they maintained that the sole question at issue was one of political morality.

Addresses were also delivered by James Morris, ex-M.L.A., O. J. Phelps, ex-M.L.A. for Simcoe, Dr. Yeomans, William Garson, the Reform nominee for the Assembly, and others.

The names of William K. Pattison, J. B. McIntyre and Robert McLaren were submitted to the meeting, but the two latter retiring, the nomination was made unanimous in favor of Mr. Pattison, who, being called for, made a splendid half-hour speech and was vociferously cheered.

A resolution scathingly condemning Mr. Rykert was unanimously adopted.

Mr. Pattison is a local barrister of wide popularity, a bachelor, and will be remembered as having been defeated by Mr. Rykert four years ago. With three candidates in the field for the bye-election, added to the election for the Assembly, and with Lincoln as a generally conceded "close" constituency, politics are at a fever heat in the county. All the candidates are holding meetings almost nightly throughout the riding.

Mr. John Shields, the Toronto contractor, is in town. He is here on the forlorn mission of trying to draw Rykert "off" and get him out of the way. But Rykert says he can't be drawn and that he will stick—even if Sir John went down on his knees and requested him as a special favor not to do so.

A. Bishop (Ref.) in South Huron.

HENSALL, May 13.—The Liberal convention for the south riding of Huron was held here to-day. After reorganizing the association here Archibald Bishop was unanimously chosen as the Reform candidate for the Ontario Assembly.

Dr. Emmett (E.R.) in Monck.

WELLANDPORT, May 13.—The district council of the Equal Rights Association for the County of Monck met in Johnston Hall this afternoon. The answers sent by Mr. Harcourt in reply to the questions submitted to him regarding the platform of the association were considered evasive and unsatisfactory, he having failed to give a direct answer to any of them. Dr. Emmett, J. W. Strong, S. A. Miller, W. W. Montague and J. W. Johnston were named as Assembly candidates and all withdrew in favor of Dr. Emmett, who was made the unanimous choice of the convention.

J. D. Moore (Ref.) in South Waterloo.

GALT, May 13.—The Reformers of South Waterloo met here in convention to-day. Half-a-dozen names were presented for the Assembly nomination, but all withdrew except John D. Moore of North Dumfries, Hugh Cant and Theron Buchanan of Galt. The balloting resulted in favor of Mr. Moore.

Dr. Darling (Ref.) in South Renfrew.

RENFREW, May 13.—The Liberal convention for South Renfrew was held here to-day. The candidates before the convention were James Craig and David Barr of Renfrew and Dr. Dowling, ex-M.L.A., of Eganville. Each of the candidates and several others addressed the meeting, after which a ballot was taken, resulting in favor of Dr. Dowling.

G. H. Macdonell (Con.) in Algoma West.

PORT ARTHUR, May 13.—Richard Hall of Rat Portage, who was chosen as the Conservative candidate for the Assembly in Algoma West, says his business affairs will not permit him to contest the riding and has withdrawn. George H. Macdonell will be the Conservative candidate.

SEALING IN BEHRING SEA.

A Commission of Experts to Gather Facts About the Fisheries.

OTTAWA, May 13.—The Behring Sea negotiation, it is stated on undoubted authority, has reached the final stage of mere technicality and practical detail. While it will not be possible to formulate and publish the intended international convention for the regulation of the fur seal fishery in the North Pacific Ocean and the waters adjacent thereto during the present season, the American and British negotiators have agreed upon the mode by which the necessary and proper regulations shall be framed, so that a full and satisfactory adjustment of the controversy is assured.

The Russian Government, which has an identity of interest with that of the United States, though one of less magnitude, has from the beginning virtually agreed to join in whatsoever arrangement should prove satisfactory to the American government. If, hereafter, the citizens or subjects of any other power than Great Britain, Russia or the United States should engage in the North Pacific seal fishery, such power will be jointly invited by the three powers named to adhere to the convention.

It is expected that the government of Japan will tender its adhesion to the convention as soon as promulgated, that country being the owner of seal rookeries in the North Pacific of constantly growing value.

Mr. Tupper Coming Home.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—It is highly probable that Mr. C. H. Tupper, Canadian Minister of Marine and Fisheries, will return to Ottawa within a few days. Mr. Tupper's departure at this time does not indicate by any means that a conclusion has been reached in the negotiations that have been in progress concerning the Behring Sea controversy. On the contrary, it is understood that a settlement of this vexed question has not yet been attained. Sir Julian Pauncefote is authority for this statement as well as Mr. Tupper. While the latter expects to start in a day or so it is barely possible that he may be able to prolong his stay a little.

Losses Caused By Flames.

AUBURN, Neb., May 13.—A fire here last night destroyed nearly the entire business portion of the town. Loss $100,000, with very little insurance. A block of 10 stores was burned. A defective flue caused the fire.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

EXPLORER STANLEY AIRS HIS ELOQUENCE AGAIN.

Labor Riots at Hamburg—Emin's Expedition Delayed—The Persian Sultana's Costly Trip—Intrigues for the Gladstonian Succession.

LONDON, May 13.—An enthusiastic reception was given to Stanley at Guildhall to-day by 2000 people. He was presented with a gold casket containing an address from the corporation of London. Stanley made a speech in which he said that if [illegible] listened to him England to-day would have had the Congo Free State and East Africa. He said Quakerism, peace societies, and namby-pamby journalism were clogs to every hearty endeavor made by England.

Mr. Gladstone's Successor.

LONDON, May 13.—Intrigues for the succession to Mr. Gladstone are at the present moment very active. Mr. Gladstone is taking very little part in the business of the House, and therefore it is necessary that the claimants for his place should put themselves much in evidence. All that is settled is that Lord Granville will be shelved with Mr. Gladstone and that Earl Spencer will become titular leader of the party. The rivalry between Sir William Vernon Harcourt and Mr. Morley has been temporarily arranged by assigning to the member for Derby charge of the opposition to the Tithes Bill and by giving to the member for Newcastle the same function with regard to the Land Purchase Bill.

A New Torture for Members.

LONDON, May 13.—The newly invented telegram torture adds one more terror to life in the House of Commons. Teetotalers and licensed victuallers despatched 600 messages among them last week, conjuring members to vote in diametrically opposite directions, and chemical and pharmaceutical societies followed suit on a still more extensive scale over a single clause in the Budget. As these unpleasant reminders arrive clandestinely, Mr. Goschen's allusion to the House being involved in a fog of pink paper was peculiarly appropriate.

The Persian Sultana's Costly Trip.

LONDON, May 13.—The visit of the Shah's [illegible] wife to Europe will cost at least £20,000. Her journey from Teheran to Vienna occupied four weeks and expenses were £6000. The fees of the two surgeons who attended her in Vienna and operated on her left eye amounted to £1600, and £1000 has been paid for the hire of the villa at Franzensbad, where the Sultana is to go for a month before returning to Persia. The Sultana, who is just forty-two, but who looks a very aged woman, has immense influence over the Shah, who is devoted to her, and if she had died during the operation which she recently underwent the astrologers who advised the journey to Vienna would assuredly have been beheaded.

Trouble Feared at Prague.

PRAGUE, May 13.—The strikers here are holding a parade to-day. Fears are entertained that they may attempt to destroy the machinery in the factories and the buildings are guarded by policemen with fixed bayonets. A detachment of dragoons is encamped in front of the castle at Liben, near here. Three thousand workmen have struck at Koeniginhof, Bohemia, and trouble is feared there.

Riotous Strikers at Hamburg.

HAMBURG, May 13.—Great excitement prevails here on account of the strike of the [illegible] workers. Crowds of the strikers and other persons bent on creating disorder paraded the streets to-day and acted in a riotous manner. They threw stones at the tram cars and several passengers were injured. The police finally charged and dispersed the mob.

Attacked a Provision Train.

CETTINJE, May 13.—A party of Albanians has attacked and plundered a provision train on its way from Irek to this town. A woman, a passenger on the train, was killed and several other persons were wounded. The Montenegrins are greatly excited and conflicts are impending, although the Porte has promised to bring the perpetrators of the outrage to justice and to indemnify the sufferers.

Emin's Expedition Delayed.

ZANZIBAR, May 13.—The Emin Pasha expedition to the interior of Africa has met with unforeseen difficulties. The expedition left Bagamoyo April 26, and has only reached a point distant five days' march from the coast. It has been greatly delayed by the death of a number of porters and the desertion of many others.

France and Dahomey.

PARIS, May 13.—A despatch from Kotonou, Dahomey, says during an exchange of prisoners nine Dahomians committed suicide by throwing themselves into the waters of the harbor.

The Germans have abandoned their factory at Whydah. The King continues hostile. At the last moment the King was inclined to resist and only restored the French prisoners on the intervention of the Portuguese.

A BIG REWARD OFFERED.

For the Capture of Mr. Large's Murderers—His Widow's Fortitude.

WINNIPEG, May 13.—Mrs. C. F. Cocking, servant and two children, Tokyo, Japan, arrived at Winnipeg Saturday. Mrs. Cocking has been compelled to leave Japan in consequence of ill-health, and will reside for a time in Ontario. Rev. Mr. Cocking was engaged in evangelical work in the interior of the domain of the Mikado. The family were spending some days in Tokyo prior to sailing for Canada and were in that city when the murder of Rev. T. A. Large and the severe wounding of Mrs. Large occurred. The two fingers of Mrs. Large, which were nearly severed, have since been amputated at the third joints. Mrs. Cocking thinks the effect of the murder will be to strengthen the hands of the missionaries, as the behavior of Mrs. Large has impressed the Japanese very much. They can scarcely realize how a woman, under such circumstances, could act with such fortitude and even pray for the murderers. Just a few days before sailing bloody clothes were found in a house in the vicinity of the murder and it was thought that the authorities were on the track of the owners of these garments. The arrests chronicled yesterday are probably the outcome. The Government has offered the largest reward ever made for the capture of the murderers.

The Situation at Longue Pointe.

MONTREAL, May 13.—At Longue Pointe yesterday a gang of men started to work on the ruins of the asylum and to pull down the various walls which were standing. The walls still standing will have to be taken down before a search of the ruins can be made, as they are considered in a dangerous state. The search in the ruins for the bodies has not begun yet and it is expected that it will not be performed for some days, and it has been found very difficult to [illegible] who are willing to undertake [illegible]. The inquiry was resumed [illegible].

"Try Ayer's Pills"

For Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout. Stephen Lansing, of Yonkers, N. Y., says: "Recommended as a cure for chronic Costiveness, Ayer's Pills have relieved me from that trouble and also from Gout. If every victim of this disease would heed only three words of mine, I could banish Gout from the land. Those words would be—'Try Ayer's Pills.'"

"By the use of Ayer's Pills alone, I cured myself permanently of rheumatism which had troubled me several months. These Pills are at once harmless and effectual, and, I believe, would prove a specific in all cases of incipient

Rheumatism.

No medicine could have served me in better stead."—C. C. Rock, Corner, Avoyelles Parish, La.

C. F. Hopkins, Nevada City, writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills for sixteen years, and I think they are the best Pills in the world. We keep a box of them in the house all the time. They have cured me of sick headache and neuralgia. Since taking Ayer's Pills, I have been free from these complaints."

"I have derived great benefit from Ayer's Pills. Five years ago I was taken so ill with rheumatism that I was unable to do any work. I took three boxes of Ayer's Pills and was entirely cured. Since that time I am never without a box of these pills."—Peter Christensen, Sherwood, Wis.

The Daily Review.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 14, 1890.

THE MINISTER OF EDUCATION.

Being safe from immediate exposure, Mr. G. W. Ross took advantage of that fact on Monday night to uphold his reputation as a "great prevaricator." As a member of the Cabinet he might have been expected to devote more attention to a defence of the acts of the Government instead of dealing so liberally in personal attacks, but, the meeting having been arranged so that there would be no reply to him, he ventured statements that were wholly wrong.

Mr. Ross told his hearers that his bill of last session ordered the assessor to be guided by the written notices as to who were assessable as Separate school supporters. This bill was published in the Examiner, and was quoted in these columns, and all who read it know that it does not contain such a provision. It does say that the assessor shall be guided by the clerk's list in ascertaining who have given the notices, but as sub-section 2 of the 40th section of the Separate School Act, which instead of being repealed is re-affirmed in Mr. Ross' bill, orders the assessor to accept the fact that a ratepayer is a Roman Catholic as prima facie evidence that he is a Separate school supporter, the provision as to the index book simply amounts to nothing. Mr. Ross must have known what his own bill contained and must therefore have known that it did not contain the orders to the assessors that he said it did. He must also have known that the judges of the Chancery Court decided that when a ratepayer was thus assessed on the prima facie evidence he might be entitled to exemption from Public school rates "though he may not by himself or his agent give notice in writing" that he desired to be so assessed. He must also have known that municipal officers generally did not require the notices—that that was the practice from 1879, when the changes was made in the law. Mr. Meredith's bill provided that only those who gave the notice should be assessed as Separate school supporters, but the Government voted this down and refused to insert such a provision in the law. The result of the change is that while formerly all ratepayers were presumed to be Public school supporters, and the Public schools were thus the foundation of the school system, now a large number are presumed to be Separate school supporters and the Public schools no longer occupy their former position. Mr. Hardy, when speaking here, said that the change was made so that "the collector might conveniently know" who were Separate school supporters, and thus yielded the whole case for which Mr. Ross contended last night. The "wicked partners" in the Ministry should consult as to the stories they would tell before they commence dealing them out, for they do not fit well together.

Mr. Ross also, in answer to an objection to the law as it now stood, quoted section 200 of the Public Schools Act to show that "every child" must attend some school where elementary instruction is given, but he—and as Minister of Education he must have know it was there—did not turn over the page and read section 215, where the exception is made. That section provides that nothing in the Act "shall be held to require any Roman Catholic to attend a Public school," or any Protestant a Roman Catholic school, so that even where Separate schools do not exists the exception holds.

The Minister of Education could not deny that objections were made in the House to the changes referred to in the school law, and he adopted the childish subterfuge of saying that Mr. Stratton was not then in the House. But Mr. Ross was and the Mowat Government, for which he was speaking, was in office, and no longer ago than last session Mr. Stratton voted against the bills which would have provided a remedy for many of the things complained of. He cannot shirk his responsibility for his votes, and the Government is accountable for the alterations they made in the law and for voting against the bills introduced by Messrs. Meredith, Creighton and French last session. The amendments complained of were objected to, and Mr. Carnegie by his objections forced the Government to alter one of them before they pushed it through the Legislature. But if they had not been objected to, it would not absolve the Government for having voted against the bills and motions introduced from the Opposition last session.

Mr. Ross went back to the time of the "Family Compact" to try to make a point. He would have the electors not hold the Government responsible for their own acts, he would have Mr. Stratton held blameless for acts of the Government a few years ago because he was not then a member, and he would overlook entirely the record of last session—but would hold Mr. Carnegie responsible for the acts of men who have long since gone to their great rest and for things that took place over half a century ago. The Reform leaders have abandoned their principles, as staunch Reformers all over the country have publicly stated, and appeals based on the record of generations passed away will not blot out the record of the past few years.

No attempt was made by Mr. Ross to show that Mr. Carnegie had not been a consistent member of the Equal Rights Association. He went back nineteen years, and also referred to a pamphlet said to have been issued in 1886, but regarding which Mr. Meredith stated in the House he had no knowledge whatever, and the audience in the Opera House heard Mr. Carnegie's statement regarding it. A small fly-sheet of the last campaign was also produced. And what was it? A quotation from the Examiner given in French and English. The Examiner had stated that the half-breeds did not rise against the Queen's authority, but against unjustly usurped authority, and it had published a poem, headed Riel, in which it was stated that "a hero was hung in the windy dawn" and much to the same effect. In answer to such things as these the quotation from the Examiner was printed to show that it did not always look upon the half-breeds as "not rising against the Queen's authority" and that Riel was not always regarded by it as "a hero"—in short, to expose the hypocrisy of the appeals made on behalf of the Liberal candidates. There was nothing mysterious about the quotation from the Examiner, for it was read at Mr. Stratton's meeting in the Opera House at the last election and in Mr. Ross' hearing. By producing it now Mr. Ross called renewed attention to hypocrisy practised on behalf of the Liberals at that time.

Ambitious City Notes.

HAMILTON, May 12.—The failure of the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo Railway Company to obtain a subsidy from the Dominion Government is creating more than ordinary comment in this city. The Herald charges that the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific combined and induced the city members of Parliament to oppose a grant.

The Grand Trunk has commenced grading on the proposed new spur to Stoney Creek. The roadbed on the new track to Toronto is finished for several miles east of Burlington. A switch will be laid almost immediately at that place.

William McMillan, the canvasser for Ford & McCauley's zither-harp, was committed for trial this morning on another charge of forgery and on five charges of obtaining money by false pretences.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., May 12.—By the explosion of the boiler of a locomotive on the Reading Railway this morning, Engineer Heglegan and Fireman Charles Kaufman were instantly killed and Conductor George C. Yeager was probably fatally injured. The engine was nearing Shamokin, drawing a heavy train when Kaufman noticed water from the boiler leaking into the fire box. He apprised the engineer of the danger, but the boiler exploded before means could be taken to prevent it. Yeager was riding in the engine cab.

Albanians Arrested for Conspiracy.

ALBANY, May 12.—George P. Whitney, the defaulting book-keeper of the City National Bank, was arrested this afternoon on a complaint based on the finding of an item in his books dated before the time alleged in the other complaints and the case is thus brought before the United States authorities. Bail on this arrest was fixed at $5000.

William Gould, jr., of the firm of William Gould, jr., & Co., law publishers, was also arrested on a complaint which is believed to involve conspiracy.

ALL AROUND THE HOUSE.

The New Bread and Butter Plates Adopted as Regular Table Furnishings.

Bread and butter dishes have come to stay, says Decorator and Furnisher. It was predicted when they first appeared that they would never become popular. These dishes are the latest product of the modern idea of making eating as little trouble as possible, even at the expense of increasing the already large number of table utensils. The little crescent shaped dishes for the reception of bones and other waste scraps appeared in obedience of the same idea. Their fate was problematical for awhile, but they can now be said to have entered upon a career as regular table furnishings.

The bread and butter plates have been accepted by housekeepers also. What to do with bread when your plate is full, and especially how to dispose of hot buttered tea biscuit, corn bread or muffins, are questions which have bothered us all a great many times. The new bread and butter plate answers the question. These dishes are modeled after tea plates in every respect, only much smaller. They are made from four to six inches in diameter, and are plenty big enough to hold your pat of butter and your bread or biscuit besides. They are made, of course, in all sorts of designs and all sorts of ware. Some are made to match handsome tea or breakfast sets. Other sets are made of which no two pieces are alike. These seem to be the favorite with purchasers.

Food for an Irritable Stomach.

In severe cases of bowel and stomach trouble it is often difficult to find food that can be retained in the stomach long enough to nourish the patient, or that does not act as an irritant. Now Miss Parloa tells in The Housewife that there is something called mutton custard which is both healing and nourishing. It has been used in critical cases with the most gratifying results. The materials of which it is made are one quart of milk, two ounces of mutton suet, a stick of cinnamon about five inches long and one tablespoonful of flour. The suet must be from the kidneys; sweet and free from all tough membrane. Shred it very fine and put in the double boiler, with the cinnamon and milk, reserving, however, a gill of the cold milk. Cook for one hour, and then strain. Return to the double boiler and place on the fire. Now mix the cold milk with the flour and stir into the hot mixture. Cook for ten minutes. Give the patient as much of this as he will willingly take, say half a pint every four or five hours. Keep the patient warm and quiet.

How to Clean Books.

American Analyst give the following directions for cleaning books: Grease spots, if old, may be removed from books by applying a solution of varying strength of caustic potash upon the back of the leaf. The printing, which looks somewhat faded after the removal of the spot, may be freshened up by the application of a mixture of one part of muriatic acid and twenty-five parts of water. In a case of fresh grease spots, carbonate of potash (one part to thirty parts of water), chloroform, ether or benzine renders good service. Wax disappears if, after saturating with benzine or turpentine, it is covered with folded blotting paper and a hot flat iron put upon it. Paraffine is removed by boiling water or hot spirits. Ink spots or rust yields to oxalic acid, in combination with hot water; chloride of gold or silver spots to a weak solution of corrosive sublimate or cyanide of potassium.

Tennessee Hoe Cake.

Miss Viola Roseboro, a lady of literary reputation, declares that the best bread she ever ate is hoe cake as they make it down in Tennessee. She says: All that is necessary for it is good corn meal, water, salt and a hot griddle. Mix your water and meal into a compound too thin to be called a dough and to thick to be called a batter, grease your griddle and spread your hoe cake upon it, spreading it thicker than a batter cake, but not much. Let it brown on one side and then turn it over. Eat it hot, with butter, and break off your pieces; don't cut it off.

Jelly Cake.

Beat one egg very thoroughly, add four ounces of sifted sugar, half an ounce of butter five ounces of flour, and a little milk; to this put quarter of an ounce of carbonate of soda disolved in milk, and last of all half an ounce of cream of tartar, also disolved in a little milk: Pour the mixture into shallow round tins, well buttered, and bake in a quick oven. When cold, pile the cakes one one on top of the other, with any sort of preserve or chocolate icing between each.

A good, varied, musical and literary programme will be given and refreshments served. Admission 25 cents. Proceeds in aid of the choir fund. 4d112

Sons of England.

The members of Peterborough and Lansdowne Lodges, Sons of England, will attend divine service at St. John's church next Sunday at 3.30 o'clock. The following Sunday would be the regular day, but owing to local arrangements they will attend next Sunday instead. It is intended that the services will be taken by members of the Order, Rev. J. C. Davidson, Chaplain of Peterborough Lodge, preaching the sermon, Mr. F. Saunders reading the lessons and musical members of the Order forming the choir.

Assessment Appeals.

To-day was the last upon which appeals could be entered against the assessment this year, the time expiring at 12 o'clock to-night. There are now some fifty appeals, so that the Court of Revision will have its work cut out for it.

One Phase of Equal Rights.

While many people are disputing as to what Equal Rights really mean for both sides, there can be no misunderstanding as to Equal Rights on the tea question. Some like black, some green tea, some with [illegible] in it. Put into the teapot half-and-half and you have an Equal Rights beverage. Get these teas at Hawley Bros., George-st. d113

A Cricket Match.

A cricket match will be played on Saturday next if the weather does not interfere. The game will be between the eleven which were to have played last Saturday, viz., the first eleven against all comers, including Attwell, the pro. As the match with the Toronto eleven is now an event of the near future, all cricketers should turn out for this game and give the eleven a good practice.

Two of a Kind.

Two vagrants were gathered in by the police last night and slept the sleep of the weary in the cells. "Bobby" Bates, the inebriate tailor, who has served several short terms lately for drunkenness, was remanded for one week this morning on a charge of vagrancy. The gentleman without visible means of support was a stranger, John Gorman by name. He promised to shake the dust of Peterborough from his feet at once and was given his liberty.

The St. Andrew's Church Appeal.

The Presbyterian Synod opened at Orillia last evening and will probably be in session until Friday. The appeal of Rev. Alex. Bell from the decision of the Presbytery in the St. Andrew's church appeal case, will come up some time during the week. Rev. Mr. Bell is unable to attend the Synod during its entire session, but the hour at which the appeal will come up will be telegraphed to him and he will attend in person.

A Fine Programme To-night.

Lovers of music will remember the organ recital at St. John's church this (Wednesday) evening. Dr. Davies, St. Alban's, Ottawa, the celebrated organist, will perform. His high reputation as probably the finest performer on the pipe organ in the province should ensure a large audience coming together to enjoy the entertainment. The programme will be taken up at 8.30 o'clock. No admission fee. Silver collection at the door. 1-d113

Honoring a Departed Sister.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Webb, wife of Mr. Ed. Webb, sr., took place yesterday afternoon from the family residence on Simcoe-st. The deceased lady had been an auxiliary soldier in the local corps of the Salvation Army and was buried under Army auspices. A good number of Salvationists, headed by their band, followed the remains to their last resting place. The pall bearers were Bros. Metcalfe, Wiggle, W. J. Sloan, John Sowers, Geo. Green and M. Spenceley. Services were conducted at the house and the cemetery by Capt. Jones, assisted by the Lieutenant.

Singing for the Yankees.

From the musical column of the Chicago Herald of May 11th, we take the following.—"Emil Liebling and J. H. Kowalski, assisted by Misses Susie Barr and Tena Farren and Messrs. R. M. Jaffray, F. B. Lawson, Charles S. Shaw and George De Moulin, have tendered a complimentary musical soiree to the members of the United States Council No. 34. National Union. It takes place Monday evening at Franklin Hall, 70 Adams-st. The Mr. Chas. S. Shaw referred to will be remembered as a Peterborough vocalist. The programme states that he will sing a solo and a duet with Miss Farren.

The Campaign.

Mr. Carnegie holds a meeting at Bensfort, South Monaghan, to-night.

A meeting was held at Bridgenorth last evening in the interests of Mr. Stratton. The Reform candidate and Mr. G. M. Roger addressed a fair audience in the Reform interests and Mr. E. B. Stone gave a stirring and telling speech in support of Mr. Carnegie and Equal Rights.

A meeting was held last night at Lakefield and was largely attended. Mr. A. R. Kidd gave an address, and was followed by Mr. J. J. Crowe, who appeared for Mr. Blezard. Mr. E. Duff gave a brief address, and Mr. Carnegie was the last speaker. The meeting was very favorable to the two candidates present.

Stanley's Great Book.

The Book entitled In Darkest Africa will be published in two volumes of five hundred pages each, 16 maps, 150 full pages and other illustrations. This work will reveal for the first time the full extent of Mr. Stanley's discoveries and adventures, it will be of equal interest to the soldier, to the teacher, sportsman, political economist, missionary and the reading people generally. The following from Mr. Stanley's own pen will bear out its authenticity:—

"There is no other manuscript, printed book or pamphlet this spring of the year of our Lord 1890 that contains any account of this region of horrors other than this book of mine. HENRY M. STANLEY."

Went to Belleville and Left Her Husband.

One of Peterborough's lady residents has severed her rather strained domestic ties and gone where she will secure quietness if not rest—to Belleville. The lady's departure will not be a severe loss socially, but the town is rather to be congratulated upon the fact of losing her presence. Mrs. Skimmerhorn was the woman's name and she will be remembered in connection with Police Court news a few weeks ago. Her husband, George Skimmerhorn, was arrested not long ago for beating his wife but the evidence at the Police Court caused the Magistrate to allow the man to go free with the advice to separate from his better half if peace could not maintained. All went on without a public eruption until yesterday when the Skimmerhorn's had a quarrel and the head of the household is said to have severely chastised her whom he was to cherish and love. The woman was wrathy and said she would live with Mr. Skimmerhorn no longer, and she sought Councillor A. Hall, whom she had often interviewed with long, sorrowful tales before, and wanted to get a pass to Belleville, where she said she had friends who would vindicate her character, which her husband had blackened with hard insinuations. Knowing the true inwardness of the case the Chairman of the Charity Committee thought the town would be well rid of such a woman and she was given a pass to the City of the Bay. At the station yesterday noon the husband was on hand and tried in every way to keep his wife here, but she was bound to go and go she did.

CHOIR AND ORGANIST.

The St. Paul's Choir Renders a Successful and Pleasing Cantata—A Farewell Presentation to Mr. Parker.

A good audience assembled in St. Paul's church last evening to listen to the sacred cantata, "The Christian Pilgrim," and song service which the choir, under the directorship of the organist, Mr. J. S. Parker, had prepared. St. Paul's congregation have always felt a pride in the proficiency of their choir and the organ recitals and song services which have been given in the past have always been successfully rendered and have added to the musical fame of the choir and its indefatigable organist and director. Last evening's cantata was another flattering success and will give renewed lustre to the ability of the organization which rendered it. This will be the last entertainment of the kind which will be prepared under Mr. Parker's leadership, as he leaves next week for his new home in St. Louis, Mo. The members of the choir can feel individual pride at the pleasing and marked success with which their several parts were performed, for in such a programme each member of the organization is an important factor in the success of the whole. To the lovers of music the evening must have been a most enjoyable one, as careful training and faithful practice was stamped upon the rendition of every solo, duet, quartette and chorus. The choruses were rendered with magnificent effect, being in themselves beautiful, and the thirty voices uniting with a harmony, precision and volume which delighted the audience and brought out their full beauty most powerfully. The soloists, Miss Hall, Miss Montgomery, Miss Mary Paterson, Miss Dawson, Miss Sophy Cameron, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Sanderson, all acquitted themselves remarkably well and individual comment would be invidious. Mr. Parker, as organist and musical director, had a master's task to perform and he performed it in his usually masterly and talented manner. The most concise report, for demands on our space forbide a detailed comment, can be given by publishing the programme, which was as follows:—

A FAREWELL TOKEN.

"God Save the Queen" having been sung, the members of the choir and a few friends adjourned to the Sunday school room and partook of refreshments which had been provided. After the singers had regaled themselves a very pleasing event had been arranged to follow. The choir, wishing to express in a tangible form their appreciation of the untiring efforts of Mr. Parker during his residence here as organist and choir master of St. Paul's church, and feeling that, for his uniform kindness, geniality and careful directorship, they were indebted to him much more than words could express, took advantage of the opportunity to present him with a kindly-worded farewell address, accompanied by a handsome cabinet of cutlery and an elegant silver cake basket for Mrs. Parker. Miss Sime read the address and Miss Dixon and Miss Sophie Cameron made the presentation. The address, which speaks for itself, reads as follows:—

To Mr. J. S. Parker;

DEAR SIR,—The members of St. Paul's church choir having heard of your intending departure from Peterborough for St. Louis, Mo., desire to take this opportunity of expressing their deep regret that you have decided to take this step, but, though loath to bid you farewell, feeling that your decision has been influenced by a desire to seek a larger field of labor than you have enjoyed here, we wish you every success and a fervent God-speed in your undertaking.

Since your stay in our midst your geniality as well as your high professional ability have won the love and admiration of every member of the choir, ever ready to assist in anything pertaining to the welfare of either the choir or church, the vacancy by your removal will be hard to fill.

Our earnest prayers for your welfare will follow you into your new sphere of work and we trust that both Mrs. Parker and yourself may find as many warm friends there as you leave in Peterborough.

We ask your acceptance of this case of cutlery, and the accompanying fruit dish for Mrs. Parker, as a slight token of the high esteem in which you are both held by the choir.

Signed on behalf of the choir.

JOHN CRANE,
Secretary.

Peterborough, May 12th, 1890.

Mr. Parker, to whom the event was a surprise, made a feeling reply, in which he referred to the pleasant relations which had always existed between himself and the choir and returned thanks on behalf of himself and Mrs. Parker for the handsome token of esteem.

Mr. Parker leaves for St. Louis, Mo., a week from to-day.

Brevities.

—The Council of the Board of Trade meets to-night at 8 o'clock sharp.

—The 57th battalion did not march out last evening, owing to the bad condition of the streets.

—The 15th of May, to-morrow, is the last day of probation for citizens in clearing their premises. The police will prosecute under the health by-law all parties who do not comply with its requirements.

A Grumble from a Grumbler.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—As a general rule the owners of property in or near the centre of the town have lately shown sufficient public spirit and taste to keep their grounds in good order. This, unfortunately, is not true of everyone, and one littered and untidy place will spoil the whole neighborhood. The Court House Park is well kept, much used and visited by nearly every stranger that comes to town in the summer months. It is a credit to the town, but its beauty is much marred by some of the surroundings. For instance the old McNeil corner, with dilapidated fences and half covered by debris, is a disgrace. $5 would level off the ground, remove the fences and the rubbish. Why should not that be done? But much worse, because of longer standing, is the opposite corner, owned by the Church of England. For some years this has been a public eye-sore. One would think that the congregation or the vestry or the church wardens or the rector or whoever, if any one, has the oversight of these matters, would long ago have had the rubbish removed and this corner cleaned up. The church authorities seem to have exhausted their energies over the ground in front of the church, which are beautifully kept, and to have neglected the rest.

GRUMBLER.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.

The Children's Successful Entertainment in the Charlotte Street Church.

That the Charlotte-st. Methodist Sunday school is one of the growing institutions of our town was evidenced last night by the annual gathering of the children of the school. A large inclined platform was erected in the church for the children and a screen placed in front of the platform. Punctually at 8 o'clock about three hundred bright-eyed and prettily dressed children ascended the platform, and as the curtain was drawn the sight was good to behold.

Mr. C. G. Rowe, the superintendent of the school, presided, and after the opening hymn, "Praise Him," by the children of the school, under the able leadership of Mr. A. L. Davis, prayer was offered by the pastor of the church, Rev. Mr. Shorey. Then commenced the entertainment of the evening. Little George Babcock recited "What a Little Boy am I," which pleased the audience very much. The dialogue, "A Christian Child's Resolve," was given by Master Walter Brooks and company. Lucy Woods recited "Two Little Girls I Know," in very good style. Then came a rousing dialogue entitled "That Ne'er do Well," by Miss Ida Holmes, Miss Emma Robinson, Mr. Frank Turner and Mr. Walter Squires. This was well received. Little Edna Shields followed with a well delivered recitation, "If I Were You." Little Myrtle and Lily Emmerson sang in a charming manner, "Jesus Loves Me." One of the best rendered dialogues was "The King's Supper," by Misses Maud Allen, Lily Bacon, Evelyn Giles and Lucy Edmondson. The children of the school then sang their second hymn, "True Hearted, Whole Hearted," in a hearty manner. Master Sidney Shorey then gave his temperance piece, "The Law I'd Make," in a good, clear voice. An instrumental duet was rendered by Misses Ada McBain and Laura Morris, which would have done credit to older players. "Truant George" was effectively rendered by Master George Carton and his sister Pearly. May Redman then appeared on the platform with a lovely doll in her hand and recited "What I Love." Maggie Pritchard, with a pretty little basket of oranges and apples, sang "The Beggar Girl" and was heartily encored. She responded by singing "Jack Frost." A dialogue by Walter Alexander and Nelson Babcock called "Two kinds of Fun" was well given, and little Pearly Main, a tiny tot of four years old, gave a missionary piece, which received a rapturous encore.

An intermission of three minutes was then announced by the chairman, but as the programme had proven so interesting the audience were impatient to hear the rest. The second part of the programme was a very pretty piece given by a number of pretty young girls in Miss M. Neill's class, "The Crowning of the May Queen." Miss Olive McGuire took her part well as the Queen and the ladies as waiting fairies, attendants, &c., all bore their parts well. The school then sang "Speed Away" in a lively, interesting manner. Little Wallie Kennedy gave in good strong voice, "A fellow's Mother," and the audience signified their hearty approval by loud applause. Miss Barrie's class gave an appropriate dialogue, "The May Day," which was led by Master Walter Brooks. This piece was very much enjoyed. "God is Love," was a recitation given by Miss Edith Lyle. It was given in a clear and distinct voice and was well received, as also was Miss Rosa Taylor's "Tea Party." A kindergarten song followed in which Maggie Pritchard carried off honors. Miss Stella Sargent gave an amusing piece which contained a good moral, "The Lucky Call." Annie Woods recited "People Will Talk," and Alice Curtis "My Letter," which pieces were quite entertaining. Alice Stenton recited "My Refuge," in good style. Then came a dialogue by Lily Armstrong, Julia Eastlett and Maggie McClure, entitled "Blue Eyes and Brown Eyes. This was very well given. "The Red White and Blue" was sung by Jessie Stein, dressed in red; Stella Sargent in white, and Olive Maguire in blue, Madeline Davis holding in her hands the glorious old flag, the emblem of England's greatness, and the school joining in the chorus. Miss Evelyn Giles recited "The Decorative Mania" with good effect, as did also Miss Florence Madden "The Wounded Soldier." Little Gussie Shorey gave a pretty little recitation which brought down the house. The closing piece on the programme was a dialogue by a number of the larger scholars of the school, members of Mrs. Taylor's class. This dialogue was rapturously encored, but as the entertainment had lasted for two hours and a half, the superintendent stepped to the front and thanked the large audience for the interest they had taken in the anniversary services. He referred briefly to the progress that the school had made and remarked that they were thankful for the past and hopeful for the future.

The doxology was then sung and Rev. Mr. Shorey dismissed the audience by pronouncing the benediction.

In many respects the anniversary services this year were the most successful in the history of the school. Mr. A. L. Davis deserves much credit as musical director, and Mr. George Schnieder as pianist. Mr. Rowe, the Superintendent, was also indefatigable in his efforts on behalf of the success of the services.

The South Ward School.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—The Board of Education should take some immediate action regarding the South Ward school. I have a child, approaching eight years of age, who has been able to attend school only half a day for some weeks, and now goes at 9 and comes home at 11, and only has about two hours schooling a day. Many other children are treated in the same. If there is not room in the school—and that seems to be the trouble—a room should be secured. The children should not be allowed to suffer in this way, and we hope to hear of something being done at once.

Yours, &c.,
A PARENT.

Cut off Once More.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—I don't think the merchants of Peterborough will wake up till they see the whole of the back country cut off by a railroad running east and west somewhere between here and Lakefield. A very large portion of the back country trade was cut off some years ago by the Victoria railway and diverted to Lindsay without an effort being made to prevent it except by a few individuals, whose only thanks were sneers from those who now see their mistake. Now, we see the trade of about the only little piece of back country remaining is to be cut off by another railroad (C.P.R.), which has secured a substantial bonus from the Dominion Government, to be run from Pontypool through Lindsay and Bobcaygeon into the back country. The town has a good name, but it has not to thank the present Council or the Councils for a number of years back, nor the merchants either, for their intelligence in its management. There is nothing more certain than that the town will go back unless there is more life and intelligence show very soon in its management.

We see what should be here and is in other towns the life of the place, viz., the Board of Trade, languishing for want of interest from those who are dependent upon the success of the town. When are we to do something to save the town?

Yours truly,

POLITICAL MEETINGS.—The excitement of the political campaign has reached here. On Saturday night Mr. Blezard held a meeting here and was accompanied by Mr. J. B. McWilliams and Mr. Taylor, a Toronto lawyer. Mr. Kidd also attended, and Mr. Stone was with him. There was a large attendance and Mr. Blezard, who was received with some cheers, was quietly listened to. Mr. Kidd spoke next and was warmly received. He carried the meeting along with him, and Mr. McWilliams, who interrupted Mr. Kidd to introduce a personal matter, did not receive a hearing, the audience refusing to listen. Mr. Stone followed with a rattling speech and was frequently and loudly applauded. Mr. Taylor then began a defence of the Government and its candidate. He was attentively listened to at first, but the restless audience became more uneasy after the speaker had twice put out the light by waving a paper over the lamp and he was interrupted. The meeting closed with cheers for the Queen, Mr. Kidd and Mr. Stone. On Monday night Mr. Kidd held a meeting that was largely attended and passed off well.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething, for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Never had a preparation a more appropriate name than Ayer's Hair Vigor. When the capillary glands become enfeebled by disease, age, or neglect, this dressing imparts renewed life to the scalp so that the hair assumes much of its youthful richness and beauty.

RICE LAKE.

Correspondence of the Review.

WHERE IS THE FISHERY INSPECTOR?—Can the Fish and Game Protection Society tell where the Fishery Inspector is? Or do they confine their attention to fighting the mill owners for throwing sawdust into the river? Numerous fish-lights have been seen on Rice Lake every calm evening since the ice went out, and never a chance for the weary sentinel, who, perched on a stump, sits and shivers, not through fear, ready to fire the alarm gun as a signal for the poachers to douse the glim if the Inspector should happen to turn up. HATS!

"Where did you get that hat?" is a query that thousands of years ago came as "trippingly on the tongue" of the enfant terrible of Nineveh and Thebes as it does to-day on that of the Peterborough gamin.

Love of extravagance in costume is as inherent in mankind as love of eating and drinking, and jibes at the extravagant or uncouth are older than literature. When King Assbur-bani-pal came home from a campaign, bringing with him a long line of chained prisoners, their uncouth garb doubtless excited the derision of the Assyrian boys, who did not fail to shout "Where did you get that Hat?" The heavy swells of Rome as they rolled along the Via Appia in chariots of ivory and gold, and the newest things in headgear were saluted with the same cry; and from that day to this it has never ceased.

In our corner of the globe the question is easily answered. All Peterborough's well dressed people get their

The Daily Review.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 14, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

And the man who wrote this was on trial for his life! The deep windows of the court room admitted but little light, and the flaring gas jets seemed to accent rather than lighten the gloom. The court room was crowded. The aisles between the seats and the margin of space about the wall was filled with a swaying mass of humanity. There were as many—or almost as many—women as men present, and the interest they took in the prisoner was evidently deep. Harry had entered court with what looked to be an almost eager air. It was but his natural manner, but the lookers-on did not know, and they jumped at the conclusion that his acquittal must be near and certain. His cheeks were carefully shaven, his brown moustache correctly trimmed. His abundant brown hair combed up from his brow after the fashion of the day. A suit of dark gray diagonal with a coat of rather severe cut, gave him an air of freshness that most men sacrifice to the doleful black which convention dictates. The shining linen, the hat carried with a certain grace, the keen eyes, in which a glint of humor lay, the pose of the head that was so characteristic, all combined to give him the appearance of a man who was about to pass a pleasant day.

Yet as he entered the room he met with many dark looks. The jury had no glances of sympathy to cast his way. McCook sat with his brow furrowed with an all-embracing frown. He looked cast down and disgruntled as well as vindictive. There are men that make hearty villains. They work their revenges with a wholesome enjoyment. They are simply savages, who follow their instincts regardless of the fact that they live in the midst of a complex system of laws. But McCook took no pleasure from his acts of viciousness. To be sure, no one could have the right to call him vicious on this particular day. He was about to perform a duty for the State in a manner as thorough as possible. This, to the common observer, was but his duty.

But had any of those observers been able to look into his heart, they would have seen that it was the task of all others that he desired to perform. Thus, by a mere state of the mind, was a performance which might have been a duty suddenly transformed into a crime. He was not displeased with the brave front that Harry carried. He believed that it would be taken for hardihood by the jury. And it was.

Roger Brisbane, Harry's counsel, thought exactly the same thing. But he had not the courage to face the indignant gleam that he knew would flash from Harry's eyes if he told him to play the part with more regard for its requirements. How could he go to that professional scoffer who had sharpened his pen against the most powerful men in the nation, who was trained to opposition, and say: "My dear fellow, you look in too good condition. Your case will stand a better chance, if you do not carry your head so high. Is it necessary to have such a nonchalant carriage, or imperative that your eyes should shine in the manner they do? Try to look subdued and anxious, my boy, for your own sake. There is something abnormal about your present condition."

To all this Harry might have replied, if he had taken the matter seriously, which he probably would not:

"My condition may be normal or not, but it is a common one in men placed as I am. If you will take the trouble, my dear Mr. Brisbane, to read Executioner Sanson's accounts of the French Revolution, you will perceive that among the condemned of high birth and hereditary bravery, there was a common feeling of something amounting to exaltation. When they knew that life was practically at an end, they took it as they had all other matters in life—graciously. They had theatricals in the dark prison rooms, they set up a rivalry of merry speeches, they invented new compliments for each other, some of which have become immortal; they made an epigram of everything, and they presented themselves at the reception room of Madame la Guillotin with the same grace that they had formerly shown in the salon of the great Austrian. I am sure that I must die. Under certain circumstances it is the easiest thing a man can do. These circumstances are now mine. And since I must die I wish to be as charming as possible in the meantime. I am not a thoughtless man, nor a flippant man, but I am not going to worry about the future when my worrying will do no good. I pray no less heartily for carrying a brave front. God cannot think any more of a man for whining. He knows a gentleman when he sees one, as well as the rest of us, and He prefers a gentleman to a coward. What ever comes I must be myself, and I refuse to put on the expression and the habiliments of woe to please those twelve unfortunate fellows who will shortly be obliged to condemn an innocent man."

Judge Barthwait felt his terrible position, that was painfully evident from his face. He was about to try for murder the nephew of his dearest friend. If that dead friend had had warning of his death, he would have placed his beloved lad in the hands of the man who might now be obliged to pronounce the death penalty upon him. Was it any wonder that he turned a slow and fearful gaze upon him as he entered the court room, or that he shuddered to see him so free of glance, so self-assured, so intrepid? Was it any wonder that as the evidence drew near its end, and all the damning facts stood arrayed before the judge, and before those twelve solemn men, that once something like a sob shook the form of the poor old man? Who could be surprised to see him drop his head in his hands, as if the throbbing was more than he could stand? Who could demur at the lack of judicial dignity that made him groan aloud, and look at Harry with infinite pity?

That Harry saw and felt it was evident from the glances he returned. He seemed to be sending messages of courage from his splendid eyes. Two or three times it seemed as if his lips were making the motion of words intended for the judge.

"Do not fear," they appeared to say. "All will be well. Do not fear. Remember Margaret."

At noon of that long, long day two young women pushed their way in at the door leading from the ante-room. The Sheriff was with them and found them seats where they would be screened from the crowd. Both of them were veiled, but from under the hat of one appeared a knot of brown hair with glints of gold in it; from beneath the hat of the other protruded a mop of brilliant curls. On the breast of the taller one was a bunch of English violets. Their tender perfume sent its sweet message all over the room. They said:

"Far away from this dark-some room there are the quickening fields of spring, where the robins are building. The ground is giving out its [illegible] scents; the air is musical with [illegible] sounds. The rivers are swelling into a golden majesty, and everywhere there is order, and sanity, and beauty and joy. Think of it all and throw off this horror. Leave this room with its terrible story of disease. For crime is disease, and it is contagious. There is nothing here that it will not hurt you to know, nothing that will not bring pain and degradation. If you would be entertained, go out to those fragrant fields; if you would find something worth your contemplation, go watch the sail of the April clouds."

The scent crept to Harry's nostrils. His eyes sought the source of that perfume, and found the violets. Then his heart gave a leap of mingled pain and love. The message the violets brought to him was: "They signify thoughts. She is thinking of me with love and tenderness. Can I do less than die for her peace?"

"There may be as much courage displayed in enduring with resignation the sufferings of the soul as in remaining firm under the showers of shot from a battery," said Napoleon the first.

Harry stood now under blazing fire, but he did not flinch. And yet there was his love—his love!

THE SAINTS' SENSATION.

More Evidence with Reference to the Alleged Boodling.

ST. CATHARINES, May 13.—The investigation into the alleged irregularities in connection with the County Treasurer's office was continued to-day. A number of witnesses were examined, their evidence being generally of the same character as that given yesterday. Judge Senkler ordered an expert sent for to examine the books and a telegram was sent to Toronto for an accountant, who is expected here in the morning.

It is the general impression here that the county has suffered a more serious loss than was supposed at first and startling developments are expected within the next few days.

ON TRIAL FOR WIFE MURDER.

The Story of the Smith Tragedy at London (Ont.) Rehearsed.

LONDON, Ont., May 13.—The trial of Henry Smith for the murder of his wife, Lucy Smith, last February, was begun to-day, but not concluded. Several witnesses testified to having, on the discovery of the crime, accused the prisoner of having murdered his wife and to his having admitted that he did. Domestic infelicity was the cause of the murder, which was a most brutal one, the woman's death having been caused by blows with a poker and kicks.

FATALITY AT STRATFORD.

Thomas Pell Suffocated in a Grain Chute at a Flouring Mill.

STRATFORD, May 13.—Thomas Pell, employed at Hodd & Cullen's flour mill here, while shoveling bran in the upper story this afternoon, fell into the chute and was suffocated. His feet appearing at the lower end of the chute was the first intimation his fellow-employes had of the accident and he was released as quickly as possible but life was extinct. Deceased was 65 years of age.

THE M'KINLEY TARIFF.

Mr. Butterworth's Speech—The Creation of New Industries.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—In his speech in the House to-day on the McKinley Tariff Bill Mr. Butterworth (Rep., O.) said:

The country in the election of Harrison and the Republican Congress has declared unequivocally in favor of sustaining and upholding the protective system. The conflict in 1888 was not between schedule rates but between economic policies. The Democratic policy was that the tariff should be levied for revenue only. The Republican policy was that the tariff, whether high or low, should be so adjusted as to establish, cherish and protect American interests and industries in competition with the rest of the world. Did that policy mean to remove the inequalities which existed between industries on this side of the water and industries on the other, or did it mean to shut out all importation?

He insisted that we should not create any inequalities here. He insisted that the protective system dealt with conditions and not with natural boundary lines, except when the presence of those natural boundary lines indicated the presence of those conditions against the influence of which it was necessary to interpose the barrier of a protective tariff. If the tariff did not deal with conditions then a tariff was good in the abstract, and if it was the fathers of the Republic had paid themselves a poor compliment when they provided that as between the States there should be no restriction of commerce.

Competition never created a new industry. They were created by the work of the brain by inventors. The committee had tried to do the best it could in framing the bill, but it was not always safe to rely altogether on the testimony of the beneficiaries under a law.

Mr. Butterworth then proceeded to expound his views touching reciprocity with Canada. He said: "We were endeavoring to cultivate relations with 50,000,000 people to the southward and yet we were afraid of Canada. Abraham Lincoln and Ulysses Grant were not suspected of lack of patriotism, yet they favored reciprocity."

Not a Pimple on Baby

Baby one year old. Bad with Eczema. Hair all gone. Scalp covered with eruptions. Cured by Cuticura. Hair splendid and not a pimple on him.

Cured by Cuticura

I cannot say enough in praise of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. My boy, when one year of age, was so bad with eczema that he lost all of his hair. His scalp was covered with eruptions, which the doctors said was scall-head, and that his hair would never grow again. Despairing of a cure from physicians I began the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and, I am happy to say, with the most perfect success. His hair is now splendid and there is not a pimple on him. I recommend the CUTICURA REMEDIES to mothers as the most speedy, economical, and sure cure for all skin diseases of infants and children, and feel that every mother who has an afflicted child will thank me for so doing.

MRS. M. E. WOODSUM, Norway, Me.

Fever Sore Eight Years

I must extend to you the thanks of one of my customers who has been cured by using the CUTICURA REMEDIES, of an old sore, caused by a long spell of sickness or fever eight years ago. He was so bad he was fearful he would have to have his leg amputated, but is happy to say he is now entirely well,—sound as a dollar. He requests me to use his name, which is H. H. CASON, merchant. JOHN V. MINOR, Druggist, Gainesboro, Tenn.

We have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES for years, and have the first complaint yet to receive from a purchaser. One of the worst cases of scrofula I ever saw was cured by them.

WOMEN AND MICE.

The reason why a woman is afraid of a mouse is a profound mystery—indeed, it has never been very clearly proven that she is. But some women are constantly in such a nervous, irritable condition that the slightest thing annoys and startles them. The cause of this unfortunate state of affairs is usually some functional derangement; some distressing or painful irregularity, some derangement or peculiar weakness incident to her sex; or, it may be due to inflammation, ulceration or displacement, of some of the pelvic viscera, or to other organic lesions peculiar to her sex. From whichever cause it may arise, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive remedy, so certain in its curative results that its manufacturers sell it, through druggists, under a guarantee of its giving satisfaction in every case, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded. As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

of thought, a defective memory, a disinclination to labor, and a distaste for business, are the symptomatic indications of NERVOUS DEBILITY, and these symptoms are usually accompanied by SEMINAL WEAKNESS and LOSS OF POWER. Coughs, Colds, Croup.

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced COUGH CURE. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.

MAMIE MURPHY'S SLAYER

RUN TO EARTH IN A MICHIGAN LUMBER TOWN.

Charles E. Buchanan, Formerly of Toronto, in the Hands of the Muskegon Police—He Confesses His Crime—How He was Traced.

MUSKEGON, Mich., May 14.—Early this morning the police of this city received a telegram from Inspector Byrnes of New York City asking them to arrest a man here calling himself Richard A. Arthur for murder. The order was soon carried out and "Arthur" locked up. Later he confessed the crime.

According to his story he had been living in New York two years with a woman about 20 years old named Mamie Murphy. Three weeks ago last Monday night he met her out promenading with a policeman and the three went into a saloon. A quarrel soon followed and "Arthur" jerked out a pocket knife and stabbed the woman in the neck. She died almost immediately.

In the excitement "Arthur" escaped and managed to spend two days in the city without being arrested. Then he left there, traveling through various places on his way to Michigan. He is a printer by trade and was at Grand Rapids last week hunting work. He failed to get a job, but from information derived from him by the Typographical Union their knowledge of his whereabouts was obtained by the New York police.

Last Saturday "Arthur" came to Muskegon and got a job as compositor on a morning paper, where he was working when arrested. He is about 28 years old, medium size and quiet looking. He says he will go back to New York, plead guilty and take his punishment.

Jealousy drove him to the crime. He claims to have been deeply in love with the girl and carries with him one of her handkerchiefs which he prizes very highly. He gave his name here as Arthur but is known under the alias of Charles E. Buchanan, while his real name is John Jackson. He will be held in jail until the New York officers arrive to take him home.

[Buchanan, it will be remembered, formerly lived in Toronto and left here a few years ago to avoid arrest for stabbing his wife on Yonge-street, opposite Albert Hall. All trace of him was lost until the story of the murder of Mamie Murphy in New York three weeks ago appeared in the papers.]

TRIPLE MURDER.

A Wealthy Farmer, His Wife and Son Found with Gashed Throats.

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 14.—John Crouch, a wealthy farmer aged 75, his wife, aged 70, and his son Andrew, aged 35, were found by neighbors early this morning in their beds at Bentleysville with their throats cut. Andrew's head had been mashed with a club. The bodies were cold and the victims had evidently been murdered some hours. The evident purpose was robbery. No clue.

Morin Gets a Respite.

QUEBEC, May 14.—On application of Mr. Choquette, M.P., counsel for Morin sentenced to be hanged on May 16, a stay of proceedings was granted yesterday until June 6. Argument on a writ of error will be made before the full bench of the Court of Queen's Bench to bring up the questions of admission of improper evidence and the empanelling of a juror to whom a proper objection had been taken.

Smith to be Hanged June 14.

LONDON, Ont., May 14.—Henry Smith, who murdered his wife on Feb. 18 last, has been found guilty and sentenced to be hanged on June 14.

The Anglo-Canadian Cotton Syndicate.

MONTREAL, May 14.—It was rumored in cotton circles to-day that the mission of A. F. Gault to England has so far been successful, and that the negotiations with the English syndicate for the absorption of the cotton trade of Canada at the price of $10,000,000 is likely to become an accomplished fact.

Victoria's Convocation.

COBOURG, May 14.—The convocation exercises at Victoria College closed to-day. E. Jackson Sanford delivered the valedictory. After the ceremony of conferring the degrees Chancellor Burwash delivered his address. In the evening there was a conversazione at the Arlington.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE SHAREHOLDERS AT MONTREAL.

A Gratifying Report—Net Earnings of Over $6,000,000—A Surplus of More than $1,000,000 for the Year—President Van Horne Re-Elected.

MONTREAL, May 14.—At the annual meeting of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company to-day 343,000 shares were represented. The old Board of Directors were re-elected with the exception of E. V. Martineau, in whose place Gen. Samuel Thomas of New York was elected. The report for the past year was highly satisfactory, showing:

Gross earnings	$15,030,[illegible]
Working expenses	9,024,[illegible]
Net earnings	6,0[illegible]
Fixed charges	3,770,129
Surplus	2,[illegible]
Surplus for year after payment of supplementary dividend	1,370,[illegible]
Surplus from previous year	[illegible]
Total surplus carried forward	1,[illegible]
Increase in gross earnings over previous year	1,[illegible],115
Decrease in working expenses	[illegible]
Increase in profits	2,[illegible]

The report attributes the decrease in working expenses to the large expenditures made for improvements during the past few years and indicates the intention of the directors to continue improvements with a view to the further cheapening of the cost of operation and expresses the belief that the proportion of working expenses to gross earnings will soon be brought below 55 per cent.

The directors in the report express their intention to continue dividends at the rate of 5 per cent. and their belief that there will be no difficulty in maintaining this rate. The bad harvest in the Northwest materially affected traffic for the last half of the year and earnings had to be made good from traffic of a lesser description than is usually sought by the company. The entire property of the company has been well maintained and the railway has enjoyed remarkable immunity from serious accident and is the only one of the transcontinental lines that has been entirely free from snow blockades in the mountains. The land sales for the year were 185,169 acres for $731,[illegible] as against 162,210 acres for $[illegible] in 1888.

The report expresses the belief that there is no good ground for anticipating hostile legislation at Washington and that a body like the Congress of the United States is not likely to be moved to such a course by false or exaggerated statements concerning the actions or policy of the company emanating from parties whose sole object is to check legitimate competition.

The report refers to the fact that it will be 10 years on Oct. 21 next since the contract for the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway was signed, and goes on to say that neither the Government nor any one of those who signed the contract on behalf of the company had at that time the remotest idea that through trains would be regularly running between Montreal and the Pacific coast by the month of June, 1886, five years before the date stipulated in the contract, and up to a much later time, but very few of even the best informed and most steadfast friends of the enterprise foresaw or believed that the year 1889 would see the company with over 5000 miles of railway earning under anything but favorable circumstances more than $15,000,000 with profits exceeding $6,000,000, having at the same time the highest possible reputation based on the prompt discharge of all its obligations from the beginning and having attained a financial standing hardly second to that of any railway company on this continent, and occupying, furthermore, the unique position of having made a reasonable return to its shareholders from the outset and in having repaid with interest and long before it became due every dollar borrowed from the Government.

The shareholders authorized the directors to proceed gradually and as circumstances might require with the construction or acquisition of several short local lines. The meeting was unanimous throughout.

At a subsequent meeting of the board William C. Van Horne was re-elected president and Sir George Stephen, Sir Donald A. Smith and Richard B. Angus were re-elected as members of the Executive Committee.

The Niagara River Bridge Scheme.

LOCKPORT, N.Y., May 14.—Ever since the New York Central cut out the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western from its contemplated entrance into Niagara Falls along the river bank by purchasing the land for quite a distance along the banks, in conjunction with the Niagara Construction Company, the Lackawanna has been looking for an opening either to Suspension Bridge or the Falls. The Lackawanna has pushed along, and now holds a right of way from Lasalle to Suspension Bridge. A gentleman who registered as C. W. Haskell came to the Falls last week, stayed a few days and then departed. He represented the Lackawanna and secured the right of way from the points named. The road will branch off on an air line to the bridge from the Niagara Construction Company's lands. If the Lackawanna desires to reach Niagara Falls it will have to secure the right of way from Suspension Bridge up. It will be like traversing two sides of a triangle to reach the desired point. The Lackawanna has achieved quite a victory in this matter. It is now rumored that the new bridge project, for which charters have been issued by the Ontario Government and the State of New York, will go through, as both the Canadian Pacific and the Lackawanna will desire to use it.

CONDEMNED THOUGH INNOCENT.

A Man Serves Sixteen Years in Prison For a Murder He Did Not Commit.

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 14.—Mr. William Starnicher was discharged yesterday from the penitentiary at [illegible], Ga., where he [illegible] years of a life sentence for a murder of which he was innocent.

Seventeen years ago Henry Chance was murdered in Burke County, and, suspicion resting on Starnicher—he having had a difficulty with him a few weeks before—he was arrested, tried and convicted. He always protested his innocence. He worked for 16 years in the coal mines and quarries. Last week a man named Crane of Burke County had a number of witnesses called in and he confessed on his death bed that he had sworn falsely against Starnicher. It was upon his testimony Starnicher was convicted. When these facts were properly presented to Governor Gordon he pardoned Starnicher.

The poor man says no one can describe his feelings when he was sent to and while in the penitentiary, while he knew that he was innocent of the crime for which he has served 16 years. He says he is very grateful that the matter has at last been cleared up.

NEW YORK, May 14.—W. H. M. Sistare, the broker, is still in Ludlow-street jail, being unable to obtain $75,000 bail.

COMING CANDIDATES.

North Lanark Conservatives Nominate Dr. Preston of Carleton Place.

ALMONTE, May 14.—A convention of the Liberal-Conservative Association for North Lanark was held to-day at Clayton for the purpose of selecting a candidate to contest the riding in the coming Provincial election. Andrew Wilson of Appleton, vice-president of the North Lanark Conservative Association, occupied the chair. These names were presented: Dr. R. F. Preston, Carleton Place; James Rosamond, jr., Almonte; William Thoburn, Mayor of Almonte; R. [illegible], Almonte; James Donald, [illegible]; D. Sheppard, Carleton Place. Short speeches were made by the nominees, all retiring in favor of Dr. Preston, who received the unanimous vote of the convention.

J. Hood (Ref.) in West Simcoe.

COLLINGWOOD, May 14.—The Reformers of West Simcoe held their convention here to-day to select a candidate to contest the riding for the Assembly. Several prominent Reformers were nominated, but all withdrew in favor of J. Hood of Creemore, who received the unanimous nomination of the convention.

Mr. Macdonell Accepts.

PORT ARTHUR, May 14.—George H. Macdonell, [illegible] of Port Arthur, was this [illegible] chosen as the Conservative candidate to oppose James Conmee in this riding. Mr. Macdonell has accepted.

Two More Toronto Candidates.

TORONTO, May 15.—The Conservative convention last night renominated the two [illegible] for the Assembly. This makes seven candidates in the field.

A Third Candidate in Hamilton.

HAMILTON, May 14.—The special committee from the Equal Rights Association, appointed to interview the two candidates for the Provincial Assembly, reported to the association last evening. The committee expressed regret at the unsatisfactory replies received from both Mr. Gibson and Mr. Stinson and recommended that the association bring out a candidate. A long discussion followed, but the report of the committee was adopted. E. A. Colquhoun is spoken of as likely to get the nomination.

NOVA SCOTIA NOMINATIONS.

A Full Field Entered in the Race for the Provincial Assembly.

HALIFAX, May 14.—This was the provincial nomination day. There will be a contest in every riding. The Liberals claim that Capt. A. K. Smith, one of the Conservative candidates in Shelburne, is not a British subject and therefore disqualified. It is alleged that he declared under oath in Boston 19 years ago that he was a naturalized American citizen, and that he has not since become a naturalized subject of Her Majesty.

PREACHER WHITMAN TO ANSWER

His Opponents Thrown Out of a Church, But They Organize a Court.

JOLIET, Ill., May 14.—Trouble has broken out afresh in the First Baptist Church. A disturbance occurred at a meeting of the society last night which was little better than a riot. Twelve of the most prominent members were suspended because they petitioned for a council of ministers to settle the dispute between Rev. Edward Whitman, the pastor, and those who are opposed to him because of his record. Mr. Whitman is himself opposed to submitting his case to a council and his following refuse to receive the official findings of the Charlottetown (P.E.I.) church which expelled him.

To make Mr. Whitman eligible to fill the pulpit his followers formally received him as a member and resolved to blot out his past record, right or wrong.

The opposition, which comprises the leading members of the church, those who have lived here for years and built up the church, have themselves called the council, which is to be composed of the pastor and one lay delegate from 30 sister churches.

The council is to consider whether the action of the church here in taking the pastor is legal, whether the action of the Charlottetown Church in expelling him was well grounded, whether the expulsion and suspension of members without trial is legal, and whether the church society, as now constituted, is the rightful possessor of the church property. The council will convene in Joliet May 19.

A BULL CRAZE IN BOSTON.

The Bean-Eaters on the Stock Exchange Lose Their Wits.

BOSTON, May 14.—Rarely in the history of stock speculation in Boston has a bull craze quite like that of to-day occurred. The opening was a boom attended with wild excitement which both the bears and bulls ineffectually endeavored to check. Thousands of shares were thrown out, but the market only hesitated momentarily and the movement grew until it became a mad scramble in which everybody participated. The sales at 12½ p.m. aggregated over 66,000 shares, nearly 12,000 more than any business ever done here in the same time. Bond transactions were $64,000, also a larger record. The report that Atchison had secured an entrance into St. Louis through a valuable traffic alliance contributed greatly to the excitement.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Martha McLean Committed for Trial—Two Sudden Deaths.

TORONTO, May 15.—Martha McLean was charged in the Police Court yesterday with attempting to kill N. J. Hutchinson, her recreant lover, at his machine shop in Richmond-street on April 28 last. Hutchinson told the story of the attempt on his life and of his relations with the girl during the past year. He said he had had intimate relations with her, but never promised to marry her. He had finally discarded her. The girl had often threatened to take poison since he became acquainted with her. Magistrate Baxter committed Martha for trial without bail. The charge of attempting suicide against her was not pressed.

Dr. John P. Russell, one of Toronto's oldest practitioners, died suddenly yesterday of apoplexy.

Williams Curtis, one of the proprietors of the Black Bull Hotel, died suddenly yesterday afternoon from the bursting of a blood vessel.

Phip Spohn, the gambler, arrested by Detective Davis on the charge of vagrancy, has through the efforts of his counsel, Mr. W. G. Murdoch, succeeded in obtaining bail, himself in $100 and John Fleming in $100. The case came up at the Police Court yesterday, but a remand was granted until Tuesday next.

THE HOUSE CLEARS OFF ITS ORDER PAPER.

Members to Receive no Extra Indemnity on Account of the Length of the Session — [illegible] Has Not Yet Resigned.

OTTAWA, May 14.—In the House to-day in answer to Col. O'Brien Sir John Macdonald said no action had been taken on the petition received from Manitoba asking the disallowance of the Acts respecting the schools and the dual language.

In answer to Hon. Peter Mitchell Sir John Macdonald said the fishery negotiations at Washington were going on very pleasantly and he might be able to give some positive information respecting them on Friday.

Mr. Laberge asked if the members were to get any extra indemnity on account of the length of the session and was answered in the negative by Sir John Macdonald.

Mr. Landerkin read the letter already published from John W. Campbell of Toronto to Hon. Thomas White, written in 188[illegible], and complaining of misrepresentation on the part of the Temperance Colonization Company and harsh treatment of the scrip-holders. Mr. Landerkin asked whether the Government had taken action to compel Rev. Dr. Hunter to disgorge the proceeds of his misrepresentation and fraud.

Mr. Dewdney said without notice he could not say what action had been taken in this matter, but he would obtain the information. He believed lately that a number of [illegible] had been [illegible].

Mr. Wallace said he knew of many cases of hardship arising out of the actions of this company and he hoped the Government would see justice done before making a settlement with it.

The House then went into concurrence on the supplementary estimates. The Supply bill was introduced and read a first time.

After recess the routine business standing on the order paper was cleared off. The Northwest Bill yet stands, but is not to be proceeded with.

Sir John Macdonald announced, in answer to Hon. David Mills, that no action had been taken with respect to the Middleton case, and the General had not been heard from, being out of town.

The House adjourned at 9½ until Friday morning, to-morrow being a statutory holiday. Business from the Senate will then be taken up and prorogation will take place in the afternoon.

NOTES AND GOSSIP.

Hon. John Carling's Annual Outing with the Press Gallery.

OTTAWA, May 14.—Hon. John Carling invited the members of the press gallery this forenoon to visit the experimental farm. This is the annual trip which the Minister of Agriculture gives the press and which is always a highly enjoyable one. At 10½ o'clock the party met in front of the Parliament buildings and were driven to the farm. After viewing the different experiments now in progress, the stock, ensilage and other matters of interest, the Minister entertained the party to a luncheon. Mr. Carling presided, as is usual on such occasions. The toast list was exhaustive.

At a meeting of the Railway Committee this morning a bill to extend the time for the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway for five years from June, 1891, was passed. Another bill to extend the time for the completion of the Wood Mountain & Qu'Appelle Railway was also reported.

THE KENTUCKY DERBY.

Riley Wins, With the Favorite Robespierre Third.

LOUISVILLE, May 14.—A rainy day and a muddy track interfered to some extent with the racing to-day. The results:

First race, ⅝ mile, 2-year-old maidens—Grandpa 1, Liberty Belle 2, Gen. Caldwell 3. Time 1.07¼.

Second race, one mile, sweepstakes—Uncle Bob 1, Glockner 2, Warpeak 3. Time 1.46¼.

Third race, the Kentucky Derby, 1½ miles, for 3-year-olds.

Riley (118), I. Murphy	1
Bill Letcher (118), Allen	2
Robespierre (118), Francis	3

Time 2.45. Prince Fonso, Palisade and Outlook unplaced.

Betting—Even on Robespierre; 4 to 1 against Riley and Bill Letcher; 5 to 1 against Prince Fonso; others 10.

As the horses came out of the paddock and paraded before going to the post the excitement among the 10,000 persons was intense and each horse in turn was cheered. Robespierre, an even money favorite, received the most applause; Bill Letcher, Riley and Prince Fonso receiving about equal shares of the ovation. The start was fair with Letcher in the lead, Palisade second and Riley last. Passing the stand Riley, Robespierre, Palisade and Outlook were in a string, with the first named on the inside at the first quarter. Robespierre took the lead, but was passed by Riley in the back stretch. Riley was never afterwards headed, but was pulled up and won easily by six lengths; Bill Letcher second, half a length before Robespierre third.

Fourth race, ¾ mile, selling, heats—First heat—White Nose 1, Loveland 2, Friendless 3. Time 1.19¼. Second heat—White Nose 1, Loveland 2, Banner Bearer 3. Time 1.20.

"Try Ayer's Pills"

For Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout. Stephen Lansing, of Yonkers, N. Y., says: "Recommended as a cure for chronic Costiveness, Ayer's Pills have relieved me from that trouble and also from Gout. If every victim of this disease would heed only three words of mine, I could banish Gout from the land. These words would be—'Try Ayer's Pills.'"

"By the use of Ayer's Pills alone, I cured myself permanently of rheumatism which had troubled me several months. These Pills are at once harmless and effectual, and, I believe, would prove a specific in all cases of incipient

Rheumatism.

No medicine could have served me in better stead."—C. C. Rock, Corner, Avoyelles Parish, La.

C. F. Hopkins, Nevada City, writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills for sixteen years, and I think they are the best Pills in the world. We keep a box of them in the house all the time. They have cured me of sick headache and neuralgia. Since taking Ayer's Pills, I have been free from these complaints."

"I have derived great benefit from Ayer's Pills. Five years ago I was taken so ill with rheumatism that I was unable to do any work. I took three boxes of Ayer's Pills and was entirely cured. Since that time I am never without a box of these pills."—Peter Christensen, Sherwood, Wis.

LABOR LEGISLATION.

Friends of the Mowat Government endeavor at election times try to pose as special friends of the workingmen, but to do so they have to masquerade in stolen garments. Special appeals are now being made to workingmen to vote for the Government candidates, but it is doubtful that anyone will be deceived by them.

One basis of the appeal is that the Government has given manhood franchise. Is that any reason why they should be supported by those who have been benefitted by the extension? Let us see. As far back as in 1874 a motion was made in the Legislature in favor of manhood franchise. Three members voted for it, and one of the three was Mr. Meredith, now leader of the Opposition. In 1877 the Government introduced a bill to give votes to farmers' sons. The Conservatives did not oppose that, but their then leader, the late Sir M. Cameron, moved to give the same privilege to mechanics—to give equal rights to all—and Mr. Mowat and the Government voted it down. In 1883 a similar motion was voted for by the Opposition, but voted down by the Government supporters. In 1885 the Government again voted down a resolution for manhood franchise, the vote being 20 for and 48 against, and Mr. C. F. Fraser made a bitter speech against the proposal. The Government clearly deserves no special credit for the extension of the franchise.

Credit is also claimed for the Government because the wages of workingmen to the extent of $25 are exempt from seizure. That is certainly cheeky. This bill was introduced by Mr. Meredith and owing to his efforts became law and remains on the statute books.

Another claim is based on the Workingmen's Compensation Act, and it is another baseless claim. In 1885 Mr. Meredith introduced the original bill—the Employers' Liability Act—into the Legislature, but on motion of Mr. Fraser, seconded by Mr. Pardee, it was given the six months hoist and thus thrown out. The Government, however, seem to have seen they had made a mistake, and adopting another name introduced a similar bill themselves. The Government, however, exempted from its operation railways that had an insurance fund. When Mr. Meredith moved that that section be struck out the Government and its obedient supporters opposed him and for two years the exemption remained. Mr. Meredith also tried to have a clause making illegal any agreement waiving any of the rights of the workman under the Act, but again the Government forces voted down his amendment.

The Act for the adjustment of disputes between masters and workmen is also cited, but it is an impracticable measure that since 1873 has remained almost a dead letter and of no use or benefit.

The mechanics' lien law is not a product of the Government. The original bill was introduced by Mr. Crooks, the bill of last session was prepared by Mr. Holmstead, an officer of the court, and every other bill on the subject was introduced by private members. In regard to the original legislation, a committee was appointed to which a bill introduced by Mr. O'Donoghue to amend Mr. Crooks' Act was referred. Mr. Meredith was a member of that committee and the greatest share of the work of framing the measure was performed by him.

These are facts from the record regarding legislation in the interests of workingmen and it shows the Conservatives of the Legislature and their leader to be true friends of workingmen, as they are of all classes of the community. The Government supporters are so hard pushed for something to appeal to the workingmen upon, when an election comes around, that they appropriate to themselves measures introduced and originated by the Opposition. This is in keeping with their policy of deception of the people, exemplified in other matters as well.

THEIR ANNUAL MEETING.

The Peterborough Cheese Board Organize for the Season—A Few Suggestions.

The Peterborough Cheese Board met in the old Music Hall on Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of holding their annual meeting for the election of officers and organization for the season. Among those present were: Messrs. J. M. Drummond, Keene; Warren Taylor, Warsaw, Wm. Clarton and W. H. Wrighton, town; Sidney Payne, Dummer; Edward Abbott and G. J. Galvin, Douro; M. R. Sanderson, Smith; Thos. Johnston, Otonabee; Geo. Sengleton, Douro; Jas. Tindle, Smith; Samuel Edwards, Dummer; Geo. Armstrong, Smith; James Middleton, Smith; Bickle & Son, Ashburnham; John Miller, Otonabee.

THE ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Routine business was the opening order of the meeting, after which the election of officers was proceeded with and resulted as follows:—

President—J. M. Drummond.
Vice-President—M. R. Sanderson.
Secretary—Warren Taylor.
Treasurer—Samuel Edwards.
District Inspector.—W. H. Wrighton.

The revision of the rules governing the Board was next considered. The rules of last year were re-adopted with the exception of an amendment that a bid for first selections should not be for a less number than 500 boxes.

The date of the first meeting of the Board was fixed for Tuesday, May 27th, at [illegible] o'clock.

Mr. G. J. Galvin, who attended the Board last season as the salesman of the Lakefield factory, explained that his patrons had given him no instructions to attend the Board. He might or might not remain with the Board this season.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Mr. W. H. Clarton, one of Peterborough's most respected and oldest buyers, was called upon and made quite an interesting speech. He said it had given him pleasure in the past to deal with the Board, whose conduct had always been straightforward and honest. The cheese of this and Victoria county had, since his connection with the Board, improved vastly in quality owing, undoubtedly, to greater carefulness in manufacture, and with the same care in the future, he said, there would be continued improvement in quality. He spoke of the importance of having good cheese boxes, and suggested that the Board allow no buyer to adjourn a sale. That should be left to the Board and then the selfish aims of one buyer could not operate to the prejudice of other buyers. The use of this Board was a great advantage to Victoria, but he suggested that that county's buyers should be bound by the same rules as the Peterborough Board and not be allowed to sell off the Board. Mr. Clarton said it was unadvisable to sell September and October cheese by contract; sell each month as it was ready. He urged care to prevent the Board being broken up, as he believed it was a great advantage to the cheese industry. By the organization of the Board, the factories of this country had received the highest price in the province for their cheese. He said that butter from this country cannot be shipped to the old country with profit; therefore less butter would be made and more milk would be sent to cheese factories; this and the supply of grass were factors in determining the production and price of cheese. He thought the price of cheese would probably rule moderate. However, he advised the factories to go on producing and take their chances. He also added that though prices might be low improvement in quality would lead to increase of consumption. The profits would come from increased sales. He also referred to the danger of damage to the reputation of Canadian cheese, caused by unprincipled Canadian dealers, buying low grade American cheese, importing in bond and re-shipping as Canadian cheese to England. He was afraid that Parliament would not have time to pass the law compelling the branding of such cheese as American, now under consideration.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Clarton for his kind and valuable advice.

Considerable discussion arose regarding the suggestion that Victoria factory be allowed to sell off the board and the meeting adjourned.

THE DUNDAS LAND SLIDE.

Grand Trunk Trains Now Running Over the Old Line—A Terrible Death.

HAMILTON, May 14.—The Grand Trunk Railway trains are to-day running over the old line of road near Dundas, through what has now come to be called the land slide. Four years ago the great land slide occurred. Thousands of tons of land came down the mountain side and covered the track to a height of 70 feet at one place, while at other places it carried the track with it. For six months past a gang of men have been at work removing portions of the land and rocks which slid, so as to get the track straight again, a curve having been built around the slide. Chief Engineer Hobson considers that there is no fear whatever of a slide occurring again. A solid retaining wall has been built at the cutting.

About a week ago a small boy named Joseph Ripley, an inmate of the Boys' Home, ran a splinter under his nail. The splinter was removed and the finger attended to, and nothing much was thought of the matter for two or three days, when he commenced to complain of pain in the muscles of the neck and a stiffness of the jaws was apparent. Dr. Shaw was summoned on Friday evening and found that the lad was suffering from lockjaw. Everything possible was done for him, but he got worse and died on Sunday night in terrible agony. At times the most excruciating spasms convulsed the unfortunate boy until he rested only on the back of his head and his heels.

The striking cotton weavers by a unanimous vote this morning rejected a proposition to resume work at a 5 per cent. reduction and resolved not to go back unless at the old price-list.

One of a Newspaper's Rights.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 14.—The libel suit for $10,000 brought by Attorney Albert Kretti of Minneapolis against The Pioneer Press was thrown out of court by Judge Hicks in Minneapolis this morning. The point in question was whether a newspaper has the right to publish a statement when that statement is libellous in itself, even though the publication of it be actuated by no malice. Judge Hicks decided that it has such right and that the fact of the matter being privileged exempts the newspaper from suit, or that the paper cannot be compelled to rest its case on the truth of the privileged publication.

BELMONT.

SAW MILL BURNED.—The saw mill owned by Mr. Wm. Coon, near Rush Point post office, was destroyed by fire about midnight on Wednesday of last week, says the Herald, together with a quantity of logs and maple lumber. There was no insurance, and the loss to Mr. Coon is considerable. He has suffered likewise on two former occasions, besides having his building scorched two or three times.

At the Opera House To-night.

The London Advertiser says:—"One of the most enjoyable entertainments presented this season was that given last night by the Hyers' Colored Musical Comedy Company. The troupe gives a capital programme of songs and dances, with bright bits of Comedy thrown in. May C. Hyers' is the gem of the troupe, and has a rich contralto voice, with that peculiar sweet timbre so characteristic to the South. All the members of the company are of a high order, and the entire combination is above the average. The performance is a fine mixture of music and merriment and every point in the programme was loudly applauded." Remember that this is the only Colored Comedy Co'y in the world. New and original plays. Prices 15c., 25c. and 35c. 1d114

THE HAND OF DEATH.

The Death of Geo. W. Strickland, George Warde and Mrs. Smith.

The sad intelligence that reached here last evening of the death of Mr. George W. Strickland, of Lakefield, was unexpected and universally-regretted news. Last week the deceased gentleman had been in town attending to business and his illness was not known to many of his friends until they heard of his demise. The cause of death was kidney trouble. Yesterday his friends entertained little hope of his recovery and last evening their worst fears were realized when he passed through the portal of death into the great hereafter.

George W. Strickland was one of the best known residents in the county, being Vice-President of the Lakefield Lumbering and Manufacturing Company. The deceased was a son of the late Col. Strickland, so celebrated in the annals of the history of this country, and first saw the light in Lakefield in 1833. He was therefore fifty-seven years of age when he died. His father was one of the first settlers in this district, having settled in Otonabee in 1825, where he remained until 1831, when he located near the site of what is now the village of Lakefield. This village owes much of its present prosperity to Col. Strickland's energy and talent, which has been inherited to a great extent by his sons, of whom George W. was the eldest. For the past twenty years the deceased has been a member of the lumbering firm, and prior to that time was engaged in farming. He was councillor in the village of Lakefield for several years, and his death will be a loss to the village and will cause a universal sorrow among its residents. He was married in 1859 to Fanny Rothwell, who lived near London, Ont., and five children, three sons and two daughters, were the result of this union. Mrs. Strickland died in 1876. A few years later Mr. Strickland married Clementi M. Smith, of London, Eng., who also died in 1881, leaving two sons and one daughter. Later the deceased gentleman married Mrs. Houston, sister of Mrs. S. Sheldrake, of Lakefield, and his wife survives him to mourn his loss. The deceased was President and the moving spirit in the Lakefield Steamboat and Navigation Company recently organized and was actively engaged in the business of this company when he was so suddenly called away.

THE LATE GEORGE WARDE.

After an illness of only a few days Mr. George Warde, of Ashburnham, an old and well known resident of Peterborough, passed over to the great and silent majority. The deceased gentleman was the eldest son of the late Col. Warde, of Bath, Eng., where he was borne in 1824. He came out to this country with the late Capt. Rubridge about forty years ago. He studied law for a few years and when the American war broke out enlisted and served during the campaign. He returned to England after this and remained in the old land for five years, when he again returned to Canada, when he settled in Peterborough, living a quiet retired life. He had also in his early days seen service in the British Army and was highly connected in England. He leaves a wife and one son, George F. Warde, of Hamilton. The funeral will take place from his late residence, Dickson-st., Ashburnham, on Friday afternoon.

THE LATE MRS. ALEX. SMITH.

The announcement yesterday of the demise of Mrs. Smith, relict of the late Alexander Smith, was received with regret and sorrow by a large circle of friends by whom the deceased lady was highly esteemed in town. The deceased was the third daughter of the late Sheriff Hall and was widely known throughout Peterborough. The funeral takes place to-morrow afternoon from the family residence, 460 Aylmer-st.

Royal Black Knights.

We have been requested to publish the following resolution, which was passed by the Royal Black Knights of Ireland, encamped at Peterborough, on Wednesday, May 15th:—

"That we the members of Preceptory No. 251, of the Royal Black Knights of Ireland, send greeting to our Orange brethren of L. O. L. Nos. [illegible], 127 and [illegible], and desire to express our hearty approval of their respective resolutions so unanimously passed favoring the platform and principles of the candidates for this county of the Equal Rights Association—and further to express our pleasure that the Loyal Orangemen of the County of Peterborough have not forgotten the insult when the Queen was made subservient to the Pope in the Jesuit Act. That while we have no obligation to liberty of conscience in the Roman Catholics, we will not submit to the Romish hierarchy, with the aid of party politicians, governing or interfering with the education of this Protestant country of ours. And we ask all Sir Knights and brother Orangemen to remember this obligation and the oath of supremacy, an oath by which the King of England's supremacy in religious affairs is acknowledged and the supremacy of the Pope denied."

The St. John's Organ Recital.

It was evident that an extended public interest was manifested in Dr. Davies visit to Peterborough from a large audience present in St. John's church last night to listen to his organ recital. About four hundred people embracing the recognized leaders of music in town attended. The recital was begun promptly at half past eight and lasted for just one hour. The programme was restricted to organ numbers, which were arranged with tasteful skill, although a slight improvement might have been made by the interspersing of a few vocal numbers for the benefit of those whom might not be absorbed by a high class of instrumental music. Dr. Davies playing has all the merits which distinguish a master, the striking features being his delicacy of expression, the gentle evenness of many passages, the brilliant execution and the general finish. To cultivated ears no finer musical treat could have been afforded. Of the programme perhaps the most generally pleasing features was "The Hymn of the Nuns," with a delightful obligato accompaniment, and the brilliant "Festival March" with which the programme ended. Off the organ bench Dr. Davis impresses one as in every sense a master mind, with a master's dignity and grace of demeanor. His musical powers are not restricted to the organ, but extended generally over the musical field. He expressed himself as pleased with the St. John's organ, which he considers the finest for its size that he has ever played on. The programme as rendered was as follows:—

1. Grand Concerto No. 2.........} Handel
   - (a) Tempo Moderato.
   - (b) Allegro.
   - (c) Allegretto.
2. Romanza, for violin and orchestra....Beethoven
3. Grand Fugue, "Giant and Dwarf"......Bach
4. The Hymn of Nuns..........................Wely
5. Fantasia in A minor.....................Lemmens
6. Pastorale, Op. 65............................Kullak
7. May Song.....................................Schumann
8. Allegro Vivace, 5th Symphony, Mendelssohn
9. Schiller Festival March..............Mayerbier

A MILLER'S AWFUL FATE.

THOMAS FEE MEETS A TERRIBLE DEATH.

Torn and Mangled in the Gearing of Hilliard & Peplow's Mill—Killed Instantly—The Way it Happened is Unknown.

Thomas Fee, head miller in Hilliard & Peplow's flour mill, met a terrible death in the machinery of the mill about half past eleven o'clock this morning. The way the sad accident happened is not known with the least degree of certainty.

The unfortunate fellow was on the lower floor of the mill all alone when he was hurried into eternity in such an awful manner. Robert Smith, the second miller, was on the second floor of the mill when he noticed the machinery slow up for a moment. Thinking there had been a "choke" somewhere or that something was wrong he hurried down stairs, and upon walking through the machinery met his gaze. There on the floor were the mangled and bleeding remains of his fellow miller who a moment or two before had been conversing with him the picture of hopeful, hearty manhood. The machinery was stopped and the mill hands gathered around the ghastly scene, but nothing could be done as life had fled before Smith had reached the fatal spot. How the poor fellow was caught in the gearing is a mystery. It was bevelled-gearing, two cog wheels which drive the rolling shaft where the man met his death. The most likely theory is that he had climbed up above the gearing to examine a spout when he slipped and fell upon the revolving wheels and was drawn in and was fearfully mangled. His body was almost torn asunder at the thigh, while his limbs were also badly mutilated. The remains were picked up and Dr. Fife, coroner, was summoned but no inquest was considered necessary.

The man came here from Port Hope with Mr. Peplow and was a first-class workman, being head miller. He was about 25 years of age and leaves a wife and two children to mourn the loss of a kind husband and a good father. The poor fellow should have gone to dinner at eleven o'clock, but was delayed, it would seem, to met his terrible fate. Old millers say they never heard of a similar accident. His wife was awaiting his coming to his midday meal, wondering what was causing the delay, when the doctor walked in and broke the awful news. Needless to say she was half crazed with the sudden stroke and is seriously prostrated. The poor fellows friends in Port Hope have been communicated with.

Married at Collingwood.

A happy matrimonial event of local interest was consummated at Collingwood yesterday afternoon when Mr. Albert Dawson son of Mr. Alex. Dawson, was united in holy wedlock to Miss Annie Swaim, of Collingwood. Rev. Mr. Locke performed the ceremony, while Miss Edie Swaim, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Ab. Switzer, of Collingwood, assisted the groom. The wedding was a quiet one, about thirty friends witnessing the ceremony. The happy couple left Collingwood amid showers of rice and the congratulations of a large crowd of friends who had gathered at the depot. They will come east for a few days prior to leaving for Winnipeg, where they will reside. There are a host of friends in Peterborough who will welcome the happy couple and extend their warmest congratulations.

LECTURE ON LOYALTY

Delivered by the Rev. R. W. Leitch at Temple at Masons.

The Temple at Masons was well filled last Tuesday night with an appreciative audience to listen to the able and eloquent lecture delivered by the Rev. R. H. Leitch, Grand Chaplain of the L. O. L. Mr. A. Hamilton, County Master, occupied the chair and introduced the lecturer, who opened the meeting with prayer, and after a few introductory remarks on his responsibility to the Order as their Grand Chaplain, he began his lecture by defining the true meaning of loyalty as that fidelity which one owes to lawful or loyally constituted government; whether of parental, civil, or divine. Defining parental loyalty, he said it was a birthright or instinct shared by all to a greater or less extent. After dwelling for some time on parental loyalty, the lecturer drew beautiful illustrations from the life of Moses, David and Christ whose loyalty sheds over the sacred laws, a divine ray which always adds fresh lustre to our loyalty when we seek inspiration and divine guidance from our Heavenly Father. The lecturer said that loyalty to civil government or authority is, very commonly termed politics, better still, patriotism, viz., love of country, love of birthplace, love of particular form of government, ruler or sovereign. The man is not the most loyal who shouts the loudest "God Save the Queen," as sometimes an overdose of impure spirits may cause a man to shout loudly when in his sober moments he would show more naturally his true loyalty by a truer spirit. The lecturer said that he thanked God that man could be loyal (yes, loyal patriotism) without fear of persecution or punishment, for the sacred rights and liberties of the individual has crept into our constitution and government, and we cherish the thought most justly, "Britons Never Can be Slaves," and this sentiment has found its way into every corner of the civilized world. Love of country or birthplace is familiar and often observed loyalty. This is not possessed by the restless, who have been taken up with the fabulous fallacy that "far away the fields look green." The wanderer frequently returns home and says "Had I spent the same energy making fields look green, fruitful and fragrant as I have in fruitlessly hunting for them, I would have been much more of a patriot, and my life a blessing." The true patriot is the glory and strength of his native or adopted land; he is married to industry, economy and frugality, which with grit and grace makes something more in the direction of a burden horse and made a pleasure for good and for God. In handling the question of loyalty to politics the lecturer displayed considerable tact and brought out truths which constantly confront us. He said that loyalty to political views, or our politics if you please, too often a mere accident of birth, was not true loyalty. We send representatives to Parliament; are they always loyal representatives? Yes. For the most part loyal to their own party. They dare not act, vote, speak, scarcely think, as they like, or conscientiously should like. Are they patriots. Do they not admit all this? Then who are responsible for enslaving these Britons? Can Britons be slaves or can loyal Britions enslave others? Is mental or conscience slavery less menial than physical slavery? We must have broad views to become political patriots, or loyal politicians, ever unwilling to sell principles (heaven born), for political graft (earth born). We must not allow the state to be used for the advantage of the individual, party or sect, or it will revert upon us, as the judgment, and the crushing of our hopes, or homes will be but music urging us on to death and destruction; yes, back to paganism. The individual, the party, the sect, must be subservient and obedient to the interest and development of the state, hence the loyal the patriotic man must call for and demand "equal rights" for all "exclusive privileges for none." And lastly we must be loyal to that One, who is the source of all true light, and that light shines clear in this nineteenth century, falling upon the now open book of Revelation, upon which we build our Protestant privileges of individual research, and personal profit. In conclusion the lecturer said that he protested against encroachments upon, or retrenchment from, these clearly revealed personal rights and privileges. As loyal Protestants and sons of Britain, they should lay aside political feuds and like their illustrious ancestors, who signed and sealed the great Covenant of freedom, to sacrifice every private consideration, and establish a centralization of power to conserve the great blessings and privileges which we enjoy under British connection upon such a basis as will enable every limb and fiber to receive vitality and nourishment from the parent stem. A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. J. Campbell, and seconded by Mr Higgins, thanking the lecturer for his able and instructive address. The lecture was closed by Rev. F. A. Leitch pronouncing the benediction.

An Explanation.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—I think it my duty to make the following statement in reference to my application for the position of Police Magistrate under the Scott Act, seeing the matter has been thrown up to me on the public platform.

I never on any occasion denied having applied for said position, but on the contrary have admitted it on every occasion when appearing on the platform in this political contest.

I was induced to apply for the position by Mr. Stratton, M.P.P., and would never have thought of making application had it not been for Mr. Stratton inducing me to do so. He even sent a messenger to his house to get the draft bill to assure me that it would not prevent me from practising my profession.

I told him that I would not make application if there were any chance of opposition, as I knew others were more entitled to it, I being a stranger comparatively in the place. He assured me there would be no opposition. This took place in his office, and my application was written in his office and dictated and revised by him. He also then and there wrote a letter recommending me and said he would mail it. After all this Mr. Edmison's appointment was made through this same Mr. Stratton's recommendation.

I wish to state this to show that this is not the cause of my supporting the platform of the Equal Rights Association, as will be seen from the fact that after this, and during the summer of 1889, I attended several political meetings in this county with Mr. Stratton and spoke in his behalf. I supported Mr. Stratton up to the fall of 1889, when my attention was drawn to the platform of the Equal Rights Association, which I thereupon adopted, believing it to be a platform upon which every man should stand, who has the best interests of his country at heart.

Presentation of an Address.

Last night at the congregational prayer meeting of the Baptist church an address was presented to Mr. Samuel Curtis, late Treasurer of the church, who has faithfully served the church for over twelve years in that capacity. The address, which was the work of Messrs. R. Duff and H. Grundy, was beautifully illuminated by Mr. Grundy, and referred in eulogistic terms to his services and the regret with which his resignation was received. It was signed by the pastor, Rev. P. Clifton Parker, the four deacons, Messrs. John Walton, J. C. Turnbull, Alex. Gillespie and B. R. Matthews, and by Mr. V. Eastwood, church clerk. Rev. Mr. Parker made a brief speech, endorsing the sentiments of the address and Mr. Curtis replied in suitable and feeling terms.

HATS!

"Where did you get that hat?" is a query that thousands of years ago came as "trippingly on the tongue" of the enfant terrible of Nineveh and Thebes as it does to-day on that of the Peterborough gamin.

Love of extravagance in costume is as inherent in mankind as love of eating and drinking, and jibes at the extravagant or uncouth are older than literature. When King Asshur-bani-pal came home from a campaign, bringing with him a long line of chained prisoners, their uncouth garb doubtless excited the derision of the Assyrian boys, who did not fail to shout "Where did you get that Hat?" The heavy swells of Rome as they rolled along the Via Appia in chariots of ivory and gold, and the newest things in headgear were saluted with the same cry; and from that day to this it has never ceased.

In our corner of the globe the question is easily answered. All Peterborough's well dressed people get their

The Daily Review.

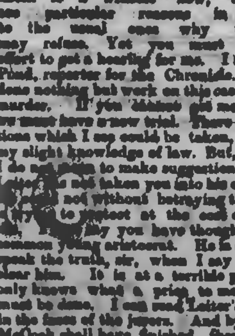
THURSDAY, MAY 15, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

Roger Brisbane thought best to make his defence brief. He dwelt upon the love known to exist between the dead man and the prisoner. He made a point of the perfect amity that all agreed belonged to Harry Leiter. He spoke of his known disregard for money, and added to this the statement that he could at any time have had all he desired. Mercenary motives had never been attributed to him even in the slightest extent. Would such a man murder his benefactor and kinsman for money which he could have at any time, and for which he did not care? He emphasized the manner in which Harry had returned to the house after the murder. A guilty man would not have done this. The very fact that Mr. Leiter refused to account for the time between the hour of separation between the murdered man and himself and the hour of his return was an additional proof of his innocence. A guilty man would have a specious story prepared. As Mr. Leiter [illegible] he to prepare a convincing tale. It was his trade to deal in plots. Would he neglect to create a story in a matter that concerned his life. No one would pay a man of his wit so poor a compliment as to insinuate that he could be so stupid. The prisoner had every reason for wishing to live and a man of his happy temperament would certainly not imperil his life and cast a horror over it by an unnecessary crime. He was betrothed to a beautiful young woman, he was popular in society, a leader in Bohemia, a man whose name was rapidly becoming well known, his income was large, his health perfect, his habits good and his nature gay. Was this a man to commit the most revolting crime in the history of the city? He might be said to be a jester by profession. What had such a man to do with tragedies? All his life he had been distinguished by a peculiarly affectionate nature. Was it likely that he would suddenly become a monster? Without motive, could he be transformed into a demon? Last of all, he wished to call the attention of the jury to his face, and to ask if that was the face of a man who has committed a crime? A criminal shrank from the gaze of others. This man was a man who had a habitually candid gaze, and whose glance was keen and unflinching. If the jury wished to fix a black crime upon a young man of such an open nature, who had never had even a peccadillo laid at his door, he was sorry for them. They knew that hundreds of innocent men had perished because of circumstantial evidence, and that too late those who convicted them had lived to suffer the torments of remorse. Let not this jury be guilty of such a crime. He asked it for their own sakes.

But even as he closed, Roger Brisbane knew he had failed.

CHAPTER XVIII.



A FEW minutes after he had taken his seat, Brisbane received a note subscribed on the outside: "Important—Immediate." Tearing it open, he read:

"I have evidence that will clear the prisoner. I have long been possessed of it, but have been kept silent by Leiter. He made me swear that I would keep still, and I shall incur his lasting enmity and contempt by speaking. But I cannot see him murdered for a strained sense of duty. I know that it is out of order to listen to a witness now, and there are particular reasons in addition to the usual ones why the court may refuse. Yet you must make the effort to get a hearing for me. I am Dennis Pond, reporter for the Chronicle. I have done nothing but work on this case since the murder. If you cannot get me a hearing we must have a new trial. There are exceptions which I see could be taken, even with my slight knowledge of law. But, of course, I do not [illegible] to make suggestions. I know Leiter has not taken you into his confidence. [illegible] not without betraying the man he is trying to protect at the cost of his own life. [illegible] you have thought him the common young aristocrat. He is a hero. I speak the truth, sir, when I say that I can clear him. It is at a terrible price—God only knows what a price to me. But it must be done. I can read Leiter's fate now in the faces of the jurors. And by the time McCook shall have finished, there will not be a ghost of a chance left. I am culpable, I know, for withholding my information, but Leiter overruled me. Say nothing to him now. Only try to get me a hearing before the speech for the prosecution begins.

"DENNIS POND."

Roger Brisbane acted upon the advice. There was no time to lose, no opportunity for enquiring into the nature of the proposed evidence. He knew that his client was lost as matters now stood. There was, therefore, nothing to lose and everything to gain.

He begged to address the court for one moment. A witness had presented himself who claimed that he was able to bring evidence that should establish the innocence of the prisoner beyond all doubt. Therefore, against the order of procedure in criminal practice, he prayed the court to listen. The chain of circumstantial evidence now existing against the prisoner had little value, and he believed that twelve men could not be found who would be so unjust as to condemn a fellow creature on such grounds. Yet, that his innocence might be established beyond all doubt, he begged the court to waive the usual plan of procedure and give ear. It would economize time, it might save the State the commission of a crime, and twelve honest men the pangs of future remorse. This was a court of justice, and when justice came knocking the door could not be shut in her face.

Without taking time for consideration, the court replied to the lawyer. And the reply was a refusal. "It is the judgment of the court," said Judge Barthwait, rising and leaning heavily against the desk, "that the case should not be interrupted at this point for further evidence. Were valid and valuable evidence to be had, it should have been produced in its proper place. It was true that the functions of the prosecution were not to convict but to see that justice was done. In the present case the State did not intend to fasten guilt where it did not belong. But, in the judgment of the court, no evidence could be admitted now. The defence had means for obtaining a future trial, should the evidence not be considered just, and the exceptions taken sustained.

Another note was brought to Brisbane.

"The exceptions will never be sustained. Can you send word to Judge Barthwait that this case will be tried in the newspapers to-morrow morning. That will bring him to terms.

"DENNIS POND."

To this Pond received a reply by his messenger:

"I do not understand what you mean by bringing Judge Barthwait to terms. I certainly shall not insult him by sending such a message as you suggest.

"R. BRISBANE."

"Very well," wrote back Pond. "I will send him the message myself."

Meanwhile McCook had arisen for his speech. He did not once glance at Harry, or at Margaret, whose presence he was aware of, or at the judge, who also avoided looking at the popular attorney. Upon the jury alone did McCook fix his peculiar and powerful eyes. He had a head that suggested that of an eagle. The nose was slightly hooked, the lips thin, flexible and bloodless, the hair inky black, and much longer than fashion dictated. A great wave of it drooped over the forehead, and swayed back and forward as he talked. The lids hung slightly over the eyes, and from under them the black orbs burned with a fierce lustre. Though a man of a cold manner ordinarily, McCook could thrill himself and his listeners with his magnetism. He could handle a jury in a manner peculiar to himself, and he was guilty of the vanity of desiring to do this merely because of the exultant pleasure that the consciousness of this power gave him. He used compliment adroitly, and his manner was the perfection of courtesy when he addressed himself to the jury. His speech was carefully prepared. Some of its methods were cheap, but they were disguised by his warm eloquence.

NEWS OF THE OLD WORLD.

A Home Ruler Returned for East Galway Without Opposition.

LONDON, May 14.—Mr. Roche has been elected member of Parliament for East Galway without opposition. Roche is a Home Ruler and succeeds the late Matthew Harris.

A new cotton corner is being created in Lancashire. A quantity of American cotton is already cornered. Prices are advancing.

The Porte has dismissed to their homes the reserves in Crete. The island is now peaceful.

President Chaplin of the Board of Agriculture at the dinner of the Bankers' Association to-night said he earnestly desired the passage of the Silver Bill now before the United States Congress. Unless the action which would be taken by Congress should be ultimately followed by free coinage in Europe a further fall in the value of silver would ensue with accompanying evils.

Diss de Bar in a Roman Jail.

ROME, May 14.—Madame Diss de Bar of New York, who became notorious through her spirit pictures, has been arrested here for robbing a householder. She is also charged with trying to procure money by false pretences.

The Whips Blundered.

LONDON, May 14.—In the House of Commons to-day the Irish Agricultural Labor Bill was ordered to a second reading despite the Government's opposition and amid prolonged cheering from Irish benches. The defeat of the Government was due to a blunder of the Tory whips in not getting their men to the House in time.

The European Powder Barrel.

BERLIN, May 14.—During the debate in the Reichstag to-day on the Military Bill the Minister of War explained the measure.

Count von Moltke spoke in support of the bill. The European situation, he declared, was always growing more difficult and it was imperative Germany should have a strong military system. A strong government would alone be able to maintain peace. Most of the powers, he said, honestly desire peace and there is no one who does not hesitate to throw a match into the powder barrel. Germany's security depended upon herself alone.

Soldiers Patrol Prague's Streets.

PRAGUE, May 14.—The strike here is extending. The strikers are riotous and soldiers are patrolling the streets.

TO FREE THE ANARCHISTS.

Gen. Butler Says they are Held Without Due Process of Law.

CHICAGO, May 14.—Preparations have been made to attempt to secure the release from the penitentiary of the convicted Anarchists, Fielden, Schwab and Neebe, by a method heretofore not hinted at in the case. In a short time an application will be made to Judge Gresham for a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that the prisoners are detained without due process of law.

The ground of the application is that after the sentence of death was passed upon the condemned Anarchists and Neebe was doomed to spend 15 years in the penitentiary the case was appealed to the Supreme Court, where the finding of the lower court with the sentence of death for Spies, Parsons, Lingg, Fischer, Engel, Schwab and Fielden was affirmed. The prisoners were not taken before the Supreme Court to hear this affirmation of their sentences and their lawyers were not even notified to be present. The claim was made that this is a breach of their constitutional rights and that the constitution even goes so far as to say that a sentence of death rendered in the absence of the prisoners was not due process of law. This action will be taken under the advice of Gen. Benjamin F. Butler, a regular associate counsel for the Anarchists.

"I have come fully to the conclusion," says the General in a letter dated May 12, "that such action is erroneous in that it was an attempt to take the life without due process of law. I therefore advise very strongly [illegible] writ of error to have such procedure corrected by the judgment of the Supreme Court of the United States if any technical objections are made to the Circuit Court for a writ of habeas corpus for Fielden, because under that writ the facts as well as the law can be discussed, and forms are of no consequence when they stand in the way of due course of justice. Of course the decisions of these questions relieve any of his fellows who are suffering from the same errors, and if decided as I believe they must be, save the men whose lives have been taken without due process of law.'

Cutting Western Rates.

ST. LOUIS, May 14.—The Missouri Pacific has met the Burlington & Quincy cut to Kansas City and other western points and has made a rate of $7.10 to Wichita, Kan. Other roads will follow.

CHICAGO, May 12.—Passenger rates to western points are now lower than they have been for years. The Burlington to-day give notice of a further reduction in the rate from Chicago to St. Paul to $8, which is $3 lower than the present second class fare. No sooner did the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul hear of the reduction than they made a $9 rate to Council Bluffs, Omaha and Kansas City and a rate of $6.30 to Sioux City.

KANSAS CITY, May 14.—The Alton, Wabash & Missouri Pacific have met the $1 rate to St. Louis made by the "Q." yesterday.

Leprosy in Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 14.—Two pronounced cases of leprosy are reported in the Chinese colony here.

Some People are Easily Pleased.

NECHE, N.D., May 14.—Eight inches of snow fell last night and it is still snowing. The farmers are jubilant.

HE MARCHED WITH SHERMAN TO THE SEA;

Trudged all the way on foot, over mountains and through morass, carrying knapsack and gun, slept on brush heaps to keep out of the mud, caught cold, from the effects of which his friends thought he would never recover. Lingering with slow consumption for many years, he saw Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery advertised in a country newspaper, and he determined to try it. A few bottles worked a change; six months' continued use cured him. Always too independent to ask his country for a pension, he now says he needs none. He helped save his country, he saved himself! Consumption is Lung-scrofula. For scrofula, in all its myriad forms, the "Discovery" is an unequaled remedy. It cleanses the system of all blood-taints from whatever cause arising, and cures all Skin and Scalp Diseases, Salt-rheum, Tetter, Eczema, and kindred ailments. It is guaranteed to benefit or cure in all diseases for which it is recommended, or money paid for it will be refunded. Sold by druggists.

We consider ourselves fortunate in securing these goods for our customers, as knitting factories would want more than our price for the Hose to knit them, if you furnished the yarn.

This season we have imported largely of the Stainless Black Hose as we proved them last season to be exactly as represented. Read what the "German Manufacturer says about them :

"Ever Stainless Black Dye is true to its nature to the very last thread. When persons perspire very much, the natural acid from perspiration may sometimes turn the wet parts rather greenish, but washing with soap and water brings back the beautiful color of the "Everfast Stainless Black," whereas the so-called fast black dyes turn into various shades of rusty brown after washing. Every pair stamped or not genuine."

A GREAT CHURCH COUNCIL.

Opening of the Presbyterian General Assembly at Saratoga.

SARATOGA, May 15.—The Presbyterian General Assembly was opened with prayer this morning at 11 o'clock by Rev. Dr. Herrick Johnson of Chicago, the session being a praise and worship meeting. The regular business session began at 3 p.m. Nearly 2000 persons were in attendance at the opening.

This is probably the most important church court held since the Confession of Faith was adopted, for the tenets of Presbyterianism itself are on trial. The question of a revision of the Westminster Confession will be debated and voted upon. To guide the General Assembly the various Presbyteries have been asked to express their views on revision. Of the 208 Presbyteries reporting 133 have voted for revision, 60 voted against revision and 5 have declined to vote. Five Presbyteries failed to make any return to the questions, but these represent regions too remote, geographically or otherwise, to exert any particular influence on the result. The New York Presbytery, with the largest total vote, gives 64 for revision and 15 against, or a majority of 49, and the Brooklyn Presbytery's majority on that side is the same. The Presbytery of Huntingdon, Pa., gives 71 out of 73 votes against revision, which is the largest majority on either side. Grouped generally 334 votes have been cast for and 283 votes against revision. The Presbyteries favoring revision represent over 6000 ministers and more than 800,000 communicants.

AROUND THE DOMINION.

AN AGED HAMILTON WOMAN FATALLY BURNT.

The Explosion of a Kerosene Lamp Sets Her Clothing on Fire—A Disgraceful Riot in a Freelton Court Room—North Grimsby's Naked Pauper.

HAMILTON, May 15.—A terrible accident occurred last evening in Kelly-street, resulting in the fatal burning of an aged woman named Mrs. Morton. She was living alone at 28 Kelly-street, and how the accident occurred is difficult to say, as she was alone in the house at the time. It appears, however, that Sydney Brenton, who lives in the adjacent house, heard Mrs. Morton screaming and rushed into the house to her assistance. He found her wrapt in flames, and the shattered fragments of a kerosene lamp lying about told too well the cause of the horrible accident. Mr. Brenton immediately realised the situation and by wrapping his coat and other clothes about her succeeded in smothering the flames, but the unfortunate woman was terribly burned. Dr. Wallace was summoned and on examining her found that her hands, arm, shoulder, back and head had been burned. Her hair was singed off and her right hand was so charred that the skin and nails came off like a glove. Edward Morton of the Crompton Corset Company, Toronto, is a son of the unfortunate woman and came here this morning on learning of the accident.

John Beicker of Guelph was seeing the elephant yesterday. While in one of the saloons, he made the acquaintance of a sociable individual, who invited him to the mountain-top "to view the landscape o'er." Beicker accompanied his new-found friend to the neighborhood of the asylum, and the twain seated themselves upon the steps to rest awhile. All of a sudden Beicker's companion dealt him a blow on the side of the head, and demanded that he yield up what treasure he possessed. The ruffian no doubt would have proceeded to extremes had not some persons come up the steps at that moment, which caused him to take to his heels.

Charles A. Dickson of Thessalon, publisher of The Algoma Advocate, and Miss Elizabeth Morton were married at the residence of the bride's mother in this city last night, Rev. Mungo Fraser officiating.

A quiet wedding occurred to-day at the residence of the Misses Cook, mountain brow. Miss Alice Cook was married to Rev. James Milne, B.A., of Massewood, Halton County.

Miss Coleman of Toronto, whom the Hospital Committee engaged as lady superintendent for the Hamilton Hospital, will leave this city next week for Saginaw, Mich., where she has accepted the position of lady superintendent in the hospital there.

A RIOT AT FREELTON.

Disgraceful Row at the Trial of an Assault Case.

FREELTON, May 15.—There is considerable feeling in Freelton over the trial of the assault case of Brady v. Brady. The usually quiet village was the scene of a disgraceful row on Tuesday night and a repetition of the disturbance occurred last night. The first trouble took place when a number of the residents were returning from Hamilton, where they had a case before Police Magistrate Cahill. Bad language was used and the excitement ran so high that it was feared there would be a free fight. But nothing so serious as that occurred. The result of this disturbance was that summonses have been issued against Robert Stiflins, Dr. Metherell, J. Williams, Charles Lane, George Cook, James Hourigan, George Ross and Alexander Robinson, for acting in a disorderly manner. The case will come up at the Police Court here to-morrow afternoon.

While the residents were shocked at the row on Tuesday night it could not be compared with the disgraceful scene which took place last night in a room over Hourigan's driving shed, where Justices of the Peace Ross and Robinson held court to try an assault case brought by James Brady against John Brady. A motley crowd filled the little room. Some of the attendants had no respect for the dignity of the court and kept their hats on, while others smoked and hissed and groaned when anything occurred which did not meet with their approval. A. D. Cameron appeared for the defendant and he had to appeal to the court to prohibit outsiders from interfering in the case. The noise was so great that after hearing the evidence for the prosecution and a few witnesses for the defence the case was adjourned for a week. Lawyer Cameron and Constable Littlehales were afraid that they would be roughly handled by the excited farmers.

NAKED THIRTY-SIX YEARS.

The Queer Pauper of the Township of North Grimsby.

GRIMSBY, May 15.—T. A. Kemp, reeve of North Grimsby, and chairman of the committee on houses of refuge in the county council, notified the committee to meet at the residence of Samuel Simmerman, in the township of Clinton, on Monday last to investigate the case of Walter Simmerman, who receives $1.50 per week from the county council as charity. The members of the committee are Reeves Allan, Davis and McMurchie and Deputy Reeve Bush. None of them turned up at the appointed time and place but Dr. McMurchie and the chairman. They spent nearly two hours at the desolate home and gleaned more information than had ever been previously obtained about this most peculiar case.

The two reeves found two men living in a most wretched state. S. Simmerman is an old man of 80 years of age, with no means of livelihood but the $1.50 per week he receives for the maintenance of his son. The old man carries all his firewood on his back from a bush about a quarter of a mile distant from the house. The son Walter is about 56 years of age, and is a physical and mental wreck. He has not had a stitch of clothes on him since he was 20 years of age, or in other words, he has run naked for 36 years. He does not walk upright, but hops along on his hands and feet in a stooped position. He is very shy and quite harmless. He appears to have some intelligence, and told Dr. McMurchie that he would wear a new suit of clothes if he had them.

The house is an old log one and is not fit for human beings to live in. The rain pours through the roof; the wind whistles through the holes in the walls and in the winter the poor inmates—the one poorly clad, the other naked—cower over the stove, cold, often hungry, and always miserable. So very little was known about these people that the County Council advised the committee to visit them and investigate with a view to having them removed to the Industrial Home.

The Megantic Outlaw Dying.

THE ELEPHANT MAN DEAD

PITIFUL STORY OF UNFORTUNATE JOSEPH MERRICK.

A Being So Frightful in Appearance that None Could Look at Him—The Veiled Prophet of Khorassan Outmatched in Hideousness.

LONDON, May 15.—No invented tale ever spoke so to the heart at once of the cruelty of life and the beauty of human compassion, as the true story disclosed by a sentence in the newspapers announcing that Joseph Merrick, the "elephant man," was dead.

Imagine a human soul clothed in a body so unspeakably frightful that seeing it men turned sick with loathing and women fainted; a being who had to be conveyed from place to place in secret; who had hardly dared to venture abroad even by night; who, finding his fellow-creatures ran from him, grew terrified by the terror he created, and shuddered in dark corners like a hunted beast. Imagine him driven by starvation to accept a showman's offer and to be exhibited to the most brutal of audiences, that commonly enough shrieked and ran pell-mell from the tent as soon as the curtain was drawn.

Early in 1886 Frederick Treves, one of the surgeons of the London Hospital, found Merrick in a penny show in a room off the Whitechapel-road, crouching behind an old curtain and trying to warm himself over a brick that was heated by a gas-jet. Mr. Treves went up to him not only without fear and loathing, but with sympathy. For the first time in his life of 24 years Merrick heard a kind word and was spoken to like a man. The effect was curious. It made him afraid at first. He shrank as an ordinary man would from something uncanny. Then, as he began to realise the truth, he broke into sobs of gratitude. Days and even weeks passed, however, before he recovered from the shock of hearing a compassionate word.

The police prohibited his show on the ground of public decency. So he went to Belgium, where again the police interfered, and where an agent decamped with his money. Merrick was left destitute and starving in the streets of a foreign town, where the ignorant mob thought him a fiend.

He came back to London—how no one quite knows. At every station and landing-place crowds dogged him. Steamers refused to have him on board. But he came back to London, because in London lived the only man who had ever given him a kind word. He made his way to the London hospital, found Mr. Treves, who had him lodged for a time in an attic in the hospital, and determined to find a permanent shelter for him.

But now it was found that no institution would receive him. The Royal Hospital for Incurables and the British Home for Incurables alike declined to take him in unless sufficient funds were forthcoming to pay for his maintenance for life. He himself begged that he might be placed in a blind hospital. It is hard to match the pathos of this plea.

Then in November, 1886, Carr Gomm, the chairman of the London hospital, wrote to The Times asking help for this case, and the British public responded. A room was built for Merrick on the ground floor in a remote wing of the hospital, and there, surrounded with books, flowers and a hundred tokens of the kindness that is really quick in the public heart, he has lived until this last week.

He had found many friends—the Prince and Princess of Wales, Mr. Gladstone, Mrs. Kendal and others. To Mrs. Kendal is due the happy suggestion that Merrick should be taken to see the Christmas pantomime at Drury Lane. She engaged the royal box; she had him brought to the theatre and took every precaution that no strange eye should see him. Hidden from the house behind the curtains of the box, the "elephant man" tasted an hour or two of intoxicating happiness. It was all real to him—the fairies, the splendor and the jewels.

Merrick, in spite of his hideous exterior and terrible experiences, was in his way a gentle sentimentalist and gushed forth at times, under the happy conditions of his life at the hospital, in verse modeled on the hymns of Dr. Watts, in which he gave utterance to feelings of gratitude, the sincerity of which none ever questioned. It was a tender heart that was beating beneath a mask more hideous than that of Oreen. Above all it was a heart that was filled with love for the man who was literally his saviour, who first spoke kindly to him, who rescued him from a fate a thousand times worse than death, and to the end was both his doctor and his friend. Recently it was only Mr. Treves who could thoroughly understand the poor creature's maimed utterances, and to Mr. Treves he clung to the last with the wistful trust and affection of a dumb animal.

The supply bill was passed amidst applause and the Senate adjourned after Mr. Abbott had announced that prorogation would take place at 4 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

MINERS ENTOMBED ALIVE

A TERRIBLE CAVE-IN NEAR WILKESBARRE, PA.

Three of the Victims Brought Out Fatally Burned and Charred—The Rest [illegible] with Deadly Damps—A Score of Houses Demolished.

WILKESBARRE, May 15.—A cave in occurred to-day near Ashley, in No. [illegible] slope, by which 28 men were entombed in the mine. A great crowd gathered upon the scene almost immediately, and the company took prompt action toward liberating the imprisoned men, but matters are in such a chaotic condition that results are by no means certain. The cave is in the workings of No. 3 slope of the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal Company, immediately adjoining the mine in which the extensive cave occurred 13 years ago, imprisoning 19 men for over a week, but who were finally rescued alive. The present cave extends over a half mile square and includes a portion of the thickly-settled village called Moffatt's Patch. A large number of houses have gone down with the surface, but only a few of them have been badly damaged. The official list of those imprisoned is as follows:

E. D. Williams, aged 40, married, seven children.
Harry Parry, aged [illegible], married, 5 children.
Owen Parry, son of above, aged 17.
M. Henry, aged 40, married, 3 sons.
T. C. Davis, aged 60, married, 8 children.
John Scalley, aged 20, sole support of widowed mother.
M. Scalley, brother of John, aged 27.
D. Sullivan, aged 45, married, 7 children, one an invalid.
John Hanson, aged 25, single.
John Allen, aged 25, married, 3 children, was taken out seriously burned at 6½ p.m.
R. W. Roberts, aged 57, married, brought to surface at 9 p.m., fatally burned.
H. J. Jones, aged 25, married, 3 children.
R. X. Pritchard, aged 30, married, 1 child.
Charles James, aged 32, married, 5 children.
Anthony Froyne, married, 1 child, rescued at 7 p.m., badly burned.
John James, aged [illegible], married, 2 children.
John Williams, aged [illegible], married, 3 children.
Jonathan Williams, aged 30, married, 2 children.
R. Jones, aged 30, married, 2 children.
William Edwards, aged 28, married, 3 children.
T. J. Williams, aged 30, married, 1 child.
Thomas Calnon, aged 35, married.
Owen Williams, aged 19, married.
John Hempsey, aged 42, single.
Frank Gallagher, aged 29, single.
Two Hungarians named Bulk.

It was 6½ p.m. before the first rescue party reached the first of the victims. He was lying at the bottom of a 30-foot plane and in order to rescue him it became necessary to lower a miner down with a rope. This was done and the charred and blackened form of Anthony Froyne was hoisted to the surface. He was still alive but his injuries are considered fatal. When the news spread that Froyne was burned a feeling of gloom came over those present.

The latest report is to the effect that the rescuing party has penetrated to within sight of two dead bodies, but the gas is so thick that they were driven back to the surface. The place is full of black damp and further approach in the direction of the victims is impossible even with safety lamps. Little hope is entertained that any of the men will be rescued alive. Wives and mothers crowd close up to the dark opening and peer in as if their love would dispel the darkness of the fatal depths while the cries of the little ones calling for their fathers make the hearers sick with pity.

Wreck and ruin was wrought as well on the surface as in the fatal pit. Nearly a score of houses are shattered and destroyed and the families were compelled to flee for their lives. The surface almost as far as the eye could reach was seamed and cracked with long circular fissures, some of which were over two feet wide. Twenty-eight men in all were entombed.

Only three men had been brought out at midnight. It is now stated Allen's lamp set fire to the gas that caused an explosion. The rescuing parties have been driven out of the gangways by the gas. They were obliged to leave their safety lamps outside and grope their way back in darkness, where nothing could be done but listen to the groans of the wounded. An effort is now being made to change the air current so as to drive the gas back from where the victims are supposed to be.

SAM SMALL IN POLITICS.

The Revivalist a Candidate For Election to the Georgia Legislature.

ATLANTA, May 15.—Rev. Sam Small will be a candidate for the next Georgia House to represent Fulton County. He reached Atlanta to-day and at once announced his candidacy on a straight out prohibition platform. When last April the prohibitionists agreed that there should be no prohibition contest under the Local Option law, they announced that they made the agreement with the proviso that they would put Small into the field for the Legislature. There was a good deal of doubt of Small acceding to their demand that he be the candidate, for it had been announced that he would be ordained to the Episcopal ministry in June, but to-day he sets all doubts at rest by his announcement and says nothing about his ordination.

INSURRECTION IN BRAZIL.

A Revolt Against the Government in Rio Grande do Sul.

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 15.—A rising of the people against the Government took place Tuesday at Porto Alegre in the Province of Rio Grande do Sul. A portion of the troops fraternized with the people. The outbreak was suppressed by the police and the troops who remained loyal. During the fighting a number of persons were wounded. The governor of the province has resigned. The primary cause of the disorders is alleged to have been popular discontent over the new banking laws, instituted by Dr. Barbosa, Minister of Finance.

The Charities and Corrections Conference.

BALTIMORE, May 15.—At the conference of charities and corrections to-day the consideration of a suggestion that the conference enlarge its scope by forming an international association and hold a session in Chicago in connection with the world's fair took up some time. While no decision was reached the sentiment makes it clear that the conference will yet take favorable action on the subject. Reports of states were submitted and the work of the conference was [illegible] out.

"Try Ayer's Pills"

For Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout. Stephen Lansing, of Yonkers, N. Y., says: "Recommended as a cure for chronic Costiveness, Ayer's Pills have relieved me from that trouble and also from Gout. If every victim of this disease would heed only three words of mine, I could banish Gout from the land. These words would be—'Try Ayer's Pills.'"

"By the use of Ayer's Pills alone, I cured myself permanently of rheumatism which had troubled me several months. These Pills are at once harmless and effectual, and, I believe, would prove a specific in all cases of incipient

Rheumatism.

No medicine could have served me in better stead."—C. C. Rock, Corner, Avoyelles Parish, La.

C. F. Hopkins, Nevada City, writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills for sixteen years, and I think they are the best Pills in the world. We keep a box of them in the house all the time. They have cured me of sick headache and neuralgia. Since taking Ayer's Pills, I have been free from these complaints."

"I have derived great benefit from Ayer's Pills. Five years ago I was taken so ill with rheumatism that I was unable to do any work. I took three boxes of Ayer's Pills and was entirely cured. Since that time I am never without a box of these pills."—Peter Christensen, Sherwood, Wis.

LIQUOR LAW ADMINISTRATION.

THE Mowat Government's administration of the liquor laws has been such as to merit condemnation, although appeals are made on its behalf to temperance people. The license laws are used to secure votes for its candidates, and this has been proven on oath. In giving evidence in court in Hamilton, Mr. Lottridge, a brewer, said:—

Q. Did you ever tell any person that you were a Conservative, but that your interests in the outcome compelled you to take sides with the Liberal party?

Mr. Teetzel objects to the question and the witness refuses to answer.

Q. Do you object to answer it?
A. I say I did not say what you said.
Q. Did you say anything of the kind?
A. I said something like it.
Q. What was it?
A. I was going where my interests were.
Q. And it was your interest to side with that side?
A. I didn't say that. I said I was going where my interest was.

If the laws were administered properly why would it have been to Mr. Lottridge's interest to support the Liberal party? Mr. Lottridge canvassed the license holders and Mr. Mackenzie, the license inspector, aided him. Here is some more of his evidence:—

Q. Did you make a canvass before the last election of license-holders? A. Yes, a partial canvass.
Q. Who was with you? A. Mr. McKenzie.
Q. The license inspector? A. Yes.
Q. How many did you canvass? A. I don't know.
Q. Fifty? A. Perhaps so.
Q. Did you go to 75? A. No.
Q. That was beyond your limit? A. We may have gone to 50 or 60.
Q. How did you come to go together in the matter? A. I asked Mr. McKenzie to go with me, that was all.
Q. You asked him to canvass for Burns and Walker? A. I told him I was going to canvass the hotel and saloon men and asked him to go with me.
Q. Did you and Mr. McKenzie canvass anybody else but license holders? A. No.
Q. That was your object? A. Yes.
Q. Did you canvass alone, I mean with those particular people? A. Not this election.
Q. Every time you went on a canvass you looked up McKenzie? A. I did.
Q. You didn't happen to run against him? A. No. I used to call for him.

The canvass was made more effective by the presence of the license inspector, who had so much power, as a Government officer, in granting or withholding licenses. Another extract:—

Q. Were you asked by anybody which side it was the interest of the trade to support? A. I don't remember.
Q. Would you deny it? A. If you tell me any person I would remember. I may have said I thought it was their interest to vote for the Reform party.
Q. And their interest in their business as license holders? A. No. I said I thought it was the liquor interest to support the Reform party.
Q. You will say you didn't go any further? A. No.
Q. You say you didn't say it was the interest of the license holders to support the Reform party? A. I may have said so.

Of what interest would it be to the license holders to support the Reform party if the Government did not abuse its power, and neglect the proper administration of the law, to make it to their interest to give that support? But Mr. Lottridge in another way added further evidence. In a "strictly private" note to his customers he wrote:—

"Dear Sir,—You are hereby notified that there will be a general inspection made next week by the provincial license inspector. Please govern yourself accordingly. Yours truly. Strictly private. (Sgd.) James M. Lottridge."

What a farce such an inspecton would be! This gives a little insight into one way in which it was the interest of the license holders to vote as the inspector suggested.

In 1887 Rev. F. H. Wallace, B. D., then a Methodist pastor in Peterborough, said, referring to the law then inforce, that "the Act as it was enforced at present was a howling farce." But that act, you know, had to be administered in a way that would not be "injurious to the Mowat Government." In a letter in answer to a complaint from another quarter the officer who was sent down here by the Government in 1887 wrote:—

PROVINCIAL SECRETARY'S DEPARTMENT.
CANADA TEMPERANCE ACT DIVISION.
TORONTO, February 14, 1889.
[Unofficial.]

DEAR SIR,—I am in receipt of your favor of the 8th inst., and in reply thereto, without intention to enter into a controversy upon the points of your letter, I beg to call your attention to the fact that the Ontario Government is the only provincial government that has made any effort to enforce the Scott Act; that I am not concerned to defend their bona fides in the matter and as the matter has been mooted by you I would simply say that a gentleman of considerable influence and position called on me the other day to say that a more rigid enforcement of the Act would be highly injurious to the Mowat Government, and thus we have again the difficulty of pleasing all parties.

I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant.

(Signed.) F. W. MANNING,
Chief Officer.

To S.E. McCully, Esq., M.D.

The public interest was not the consideration that governed the officers; it was the party interest.

Bancroft is a village in North Hastings. It contained two temperance hotels, and a by-law was passed ten years ago in the municipality forbidding the issuing of licenses. In March of last year it was renewed by a large majority. But in the face of this, and in the face of a petition signed by three-fourths of the residents of the village, a license was granted to Mr. P. Kavanagh. These facts were stated in a letter to the papers signed by seven residents of the place.

In a letter to a friend dated May 8th, 1890, Rev. H. Farrar, of Bancroft, says the statements in the papers were "strictly true, nor was there any attempt to color them." He further says, and his letter is before us as we write:—

"It is quite clear that the party in power has an object in view. What that object is will be best seen by observing those who rally to its standard at the coming election. To set aside the freely given votes of a large majority of respectable Canadian citizens and freeholders and plant in their midst a traffic physically and morally injurious to them—if this be constitutional government, then constitutional government must mean, not governing, not ruling according to the well understood wishes of the people, but to please a faction and to gain their votes. If the local option has not been taken away, there is but one conclusion, viz., that the vote of those people stands good and that the action of the Commissioners in granting the Bancroft license is illegal and will have to be reversed and the license cancelled. If this is not done there is only one inference to be drawn. Every one of those who signed the letter as printed in the Empire is ready to stand by his act. We are no cowards and we know what we are saying. Any question you may ask further regarding this topic, or any explanations asked for, will be most cheerfully given.

"Yours very faithfully,
"H. FARRAR,
"Church of England Missionary."

The reverend gentleman has estimated correctly the aim of the Government—"to gain their votes." The public interest is lost in that. And the numbered ballot is retained to make the coercion more effective.

In the County of Peterborough, for instance, the Separate schools receive all of $61 from the Government.—Hon. G. W. Ross.

The Separate schools of the town alone received $254.50 cents last year (Public Accounts, page 89) and outside of the town $53, a total of $307.50. In small matters, as in greater, Mr. Ross tries to mislead. It is second nature with him to do so.

THE Examiner denies that Mr. Ross said that his bill of last session ordered the assessors to be guided by the written notices as to what ratepayers were assessable as Separate school supporters. We certainly so understood him, and still believe he said so. But if this denial amounts to anything it means that Mr. Ross' bill does not so order the assessors—which is the fact. They are ordered by the law, as amended by the Mowat Government, to accept the fact that a ratepayer is a Roman Catholic as prima facie evidence that he is a Separate school supporter and assess him accordingly. Mr. Ross' bill leaves—aye, re-affirms—that change.

THE same Mr. Carnegie, in 1886, a few days before the election, published in both French and English an appeal to the French Canadian electors of Peterborough, in which they were asked to vote against Mr. Stratton because in his paper he justified the execution of Riel, on the ground of his fomenting the rebellion in the Northwest.—Toronto Globe.

No. Neither Mr. Carnegie nor anybody on his behalf published such an appeal as that. Before he was executed Mr. Stratton's paper said that Riel deserved "condign punishment," but afterwards it discovered that Riel "did not rise against the Queen's authority" and that "a hero was hung in the windy dawn," etc. Then attention was called to the fact that his paper had not always considered Riel "a hero" and the fact was pointed out in the Opera House in the hearing of Hon. G. W. Ross. The Globe has got things turned around.

BOBCAYGEON BUDGET.

Young and Old Taken Away—The Bobcaygeon Railway—Canoe Club—Real Estate Exchange.

Correspondence of the Review.

OBIT.—The grim messenger, death, visited our village twice last week. The first to be called away was Mrs. Jane Murray, who had lived to the ripe age of 85 years, and the second was a child, about a year old, of Mr. Edwin Brooks. The surviving members of both families have the sympathy of the village in their sad bereavement.

CANOE CLUB.—The canoe club has held their annual meeting and elected officers for the present year. They intend to have a good season at their canoe races.

RAILWAY.—It is almost a settled fact that the Pontypool, Lindsay and Bobcaygeon railway is to be built before long. This will help Bobcaygeon a great deal, as it will tend to form a good grain market here.

A CHANGE OF PROPERTY.—Mr. Thomas Bick, of this place, has exchanged his farm which is located about two and a half miles north of this, for the village property here known as the Taylor block. Mr. Taylor moved to the farm and Mr. Bick has moved into the block, of which he has become the owner.

DEATH OF MRS. NICHOLLS.

A Public Benefactor Quietly Passes Away at Midnight.

Just as the clocks were chiming the midnight hour last night Mrs. Charlotte Jane Nicholls, relict of the late Robert Nicholls, and a lady whose charitable deeds and many acts of benevolence have made her name familiar to every man, woman and child almost in Peterborough, passed quietly through the gates of darkness from time into eternity. The sad messenger of death was not an unexpected visitor, as for some time past the deceased lady has just been lingering between life and death, with little hope of rallying. In fact since the opening of the new hospital a few months ago Mrs. Nicholls has only been outside of her residence once, but has been gradually growing more feeble each day. She had received the best medical attention and everything possible was done to alleviate, as far as professional skill could, her latter illness. Dr. Wildeman, of New York, her nephew, has resided with her during the last five months, and with Dr. Halliday, has been her medical adviser. When she passed away Dr. and Mrs. Wildeman, her niece, Mr. B. A. Jackson, a nephew, of Madrid, N.Y., and Miss Dugan, a cousin, were at the deceased lady's bedside. This morning as the sad news of her death became known, many were the expressions of regret that were heard on every hand.

Miss Charlotte Jane Jackson was born in the County Cavan, Ireland, in the year 1817, so that she had reached the ripe old age of 73 years at the time of her death, the same age at which her late husband was gathered to his fathers a little over six years ago. When only a child the deceased lady came to New York with her brother, the father of Mr. B. A. Jackson, who was with her when she died. She resided in the American metropolis, living for a few years, with the mother of her late husband until she was married, which event took place in 1847. Since that time she has lived in Peterborough. On November 9th, 1883, she was left a widow by the death of her husband.

Mrs. Nicholls was a wealthy lady, the estimates of the value of her estate going into the millions. She was a lady though who did not take selfish enjoyment out of her vast riches, but with a hand of benevolence and charity scattered her kindnesses here and there, and many a poor family will miss the loss of a kindly sympathetic heart and liberal hand, and will ever cherish the memory of their benefactor. All these little acts of kindness did not see the light of day or come to the public gaze, but they were prompted by the same spirit that inspired her to more munificent deeds. These are familiar to all our citizens, and will serve to keep green the memory of the departed. The handsome Nicholl's hospital with its endowment of $60,000 will be ever a monument to her charity, while the congregation of St. Andrew's church, of which she was a member, will never forget the noble lady who on New Year's morning 1889 laid a cheque for twelve thousand dollars on the collection plate and wiped the debt off the church by so doing. St. Paul's also came under the hand of the benefactor to the extent of a three thousand dollar grant towards the church debt fund. These noble deeds have only to be mentioned as they are known to every one. It can indeed be said that in the person of Mrs. Nicholls Peterborough loses a public benefactor who had ever the sufferings and ills of others in her mind.

The funeral will take place from her late residence, Rubidge-st., to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

The appeal case in the matter of Dr. Bell and others of St. Andrew's church came before the Synod yesterday at Orillia. A commission was, on motion, appointed to come to Peterborough and take the whole case into consideration and having full synodical powers to issue the whole case finally, consisting of Rev. Dr. Torrance, convener; Dr. McLaren, J. B. Fraser, M.D., W. W. McLean, M. A., D. J. Macdonnell, B.D. John Somerville, M.A., George Duff and Robert Gibson, with instructions to meet in St. Andrew's church, Peterborough, on Tuesday, 27th of May, and that parties be duly notified.

The Campaign.

Mr. Carnegie's committees meet to-night in the old Council Chamber, Opera House block. All friends and all favorable to his candidature are cordially invited to be present. Cheering reports come from all quarters and the perfecting of the organization is the work required.

Mr. Carnegie held a meeting at Bensfort, South Monaghan, on Wednesday evening, which was well attended and very favorable.

Last evening he addressed the electors of Smith at Bridgenorth at a largely attended meeting. Mr. G. Westlake presided, and short speeches were also given by Mr. H.B. Merrick and Mr. Wylie, a resident of the village. Upon an invitation being given for questions to be asked, several were asked and answered satisfactorily and from the audience opinions in sympathy with those of the candidate were expressed. After the cheers for the Queen and Mr. Carnegie, a few of the Government candidate's friends tried to raise a cheer for him, but it was a weak one.

At North Dummer on Wednesday evening, Messrs Kidd and Stone addressed a meeting of East Riding electors. Mr. Crowe appeared for Mr. Blezard, but the meeting was obviously favorable to Mr. Kidd.

Piano Tuning.

Mr. G. Gemprecht is in town. Orders may be left at Messrs. Taylor & McDonald's or Mr. A. L. Davis' store. 1yd89

St. John's Organ.

The engagement of Dr. Davies to take charge of the organ in St. John's church has been practically settled and a final answer is expected from Dr. Davies tomorrow. Others besides members of the congregation will hope it will be a favorable answer.

Why is Dust and Ashes Proud?

—is not so important a question as where can the best boots be bought at the lowest prices. Give Kidd the booter a call and you will soon be convinced that he keeps the best boots and at the lowest prices. [illegible]

Dyspepsia causes depraved blood, which, in time, affects every organ and function of the body. As a remedy for these troubles, nothing can approach Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It vitalizes the blood, strengthens the stomach, and corrects all disorders of the liver and kidneys.

One Phase of Equal Rights.

While many people are disputing as to what Equal Rights really mean for both sides, there can be no misunderstanding as to Equal Rights on the tea question. Some like black, some green tea, some with cats in it. Put into the teapot half-and-half and you have an Equal Rights beverage. Get these teas at Hawley Bros., George-st. d112

At the Opera House.

Ayers' Colored Minstrels Comedy Company opened a three night engagement at the Opera House last night, when there was only a fair audience present. The company gives a good entertainment and comprises among its members several clever artists. A programme of songs, dances and specialties followed by a short comedy makes up an excellent programme. The company appear again this evening.

Baldness is catching says a scientist. It's catching flies in summer time. Use Hall's Hair Renewer and cover the bald place with healthy hair and flies won't trouble.

Could Not Afford to Lose Time.

The two farmers, Messrs. Jas. Hoar and Wm. Phelan, who were witnesses in the dismissed forestalling case at the Police Court this morning, put in a claim for witness fees after the case was over. They claimed that they had been subpœned and compelled to leave their work and were losing valuable time. The magistrate looked upon the claim with a favorable eye and allowed them each $1.70 for fees and mileage. The farmers were satisfied, but will have to wait until the money passes the council.

The Boys in Red.

There was a good turnout of men at the first march of the season last night. Major Edwards was in command and there were about one hundred and fifty men in the ranks. The men marched exceedingly well for the first time of the season and their appearance was very favorably commented upon.

A church parade was ordered for Sunday morning next. The Battalion will muster at the armory and march to the George-st. church, where Rev. M. L. Pearson will preach the sermon.

Another march out will be held on Tuesday night.

A Great Demand for Fruit.

Two forestalling cases came before the Police Magistrate at the Police Court this morning. There is a demand for potatoes among the shippers now, and as one man remarked "You can hardly get a bag of potatoes on the market now at all." Both this morning's cases were for buying potatoes before eleven o'clock. The first charge was against Mr. J. J. McBain. Two farmers, Jos. Bernard and James Jewison were known to have sold a load of potatoes each to Mr. McBain on Wednesday last. Bernard says he had an understanding with Mr. McBain to sell his potatoes to that gentleman for current prices, and on the day in question his son drove on the market before he saw him to send him to the warehouse with the load. The boy went on the market, but Mr. Bernard came along and told him to take them to McBain's. Mr. Jewison who was standing near by inquired where Mr. Bernard had sold his load and being told he went down and left his. It did not appear that Mr. McBain had bargained for the potatoes that morning. The Magistrate reserved judgment on the case. The second charge was against Mr. F. Robinson. Two farmers, Thos. Jos. Hoar and Wm. Phelan, of Ennismore, acknowledged that they each took a load of potatoes and delivered them on a car at the G.T.R., but they said Mr. Robinson was not the man whom they sold to. The case was therefore discharged.

Two Cumberland (N.S.) Lads Drowned.

HALIFAX, May 15.—At Wallace Grant three boys were playing on a raft of logs in A. G. Mackintosh's mill-pond. The raft parted and Clinton Colter, aged 16, and Reid Mackintosh, aged 14, were drowned.

The Perils of Plowing.

NEW GLASGOW, N.S., May 15.—While plowing to-day William Love was killed, one of the horses turning suddenly and putting his foot on Love's breast, injuring him so that he died in half an hour.

The McKinley Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The House has adopted a resolution, 130 to 98, to wind up the tariff debate within the next few days. The bill will probably be sent to the Senate next week.

The Canopus Ashore.

QUEBEC, May 15.—The steamship Canopus, from Liverpool to Montreal, with a general cargo, went ashore off Ferell Rock, River du Loup, at 11 o'clock last night. Schooners are leaving Quebec to relieve the stranded vessel of some of her cargo. She is in danger, as with northeast or northwest gales she may be broken on the rocks. The Canopus went ashore twice last year in the St. Lawrence River.

Printers v. Typesetting Machine.

OTTAWA, May 15.—The Typographical Union delegates met the Secretary of State last evening to receive his reply to their resolution regarding the possible purchase of some typesetting machines for the Printing Bureau. Mr. Chapleau, while assuring the deputation that he was not disposed to inaugurate a state of affairs detrimental to the printers' interests, said he was inclined to consider their proposal in this matter as untimely one.

A Brutal Commander Punished.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Commander McCalla of the United States steamship Enterprise was sentenced by the court-martial which tried him at Brooklyn to suspension from rank and duty for three years and to retain his present number on the list of commanders while suspended. The sentence has been approved by the Secretary of the navy. McCalla "cut down" a seaman with his sword and committed other brutalities on his last cruise.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

FOR THE FOREIGN MATKET

PROF. SHAW GIVES POINTERS TO THE CANADIAN FARMER.

On the Preparation of Lambs For the United States and English Markets—How to Raise Grape Vines—Other Topics that Will Interest the Wide-awake Farmer.

Prof. Shaw of the Ontario Agricultural College offers some good advice on the raising of lambs for the foreign market. He says—This country is doing but little compared with what she might do in raising mutton for the foreign markets to which we are as yet accessible. I refer to the markets of Great Britain and the United States. It is true we are met with a 20 per cent. tariff on sheep and lambs going into the United States, but it is also true that owing to the excellence of our product we can overcome this difficulty and successfully compete with the Americans at their own doors.

The principal market for autumn lambs at the present time in Western Ontario is Buffalo. These lambs are many of them prepared for this market by pasturing them on rape, to the growth of which our Province is singularly well adapted. It is not the purpose of this letter to show how rape may be successfully grown. I merely mention here that wherever turnips will grow so will rape, and that it will also grow well in soils too rich in humus for the successful growth of turnips.

The dealers in lambs are, however, met with a difficulty which it will be to the interests of the farmers to remove, and which it is in their power to remove. Lambs that are intended for this market are oftentimes not docked, nor are the males castrated, which means a discount of from 25 to 50 cents per head on the price of each lamb when sold.

But this does not represent the total loss from neglect in these two particulars, especially the latter. Wether lambs will fatten more readily than ram lambs and at a less cost. The comparative gains of the former over the latter are certainly considerable, as every extensive sheep-raiser must know from experience, but the exact amount of these gains relatively have never so far as I am aware been accurately determined, and I may add here, that it is our intention to experiment in this direction at this institution the coming winter.

This is the season of the year when the matters referred to require the attention of the farmers, and in the hope of persuading them to move in the direction indicated I write this letter.

If the lambs are to be fed all winter and shipped to Great Britain it is even more important that they be sent as wethers rather than rams; indeed they cannot be profitably prepared for shipment beyond the sea, nor profitably exported when so prepared as rams, which my friend Ald. Frankland and every other shipper who has dealt in them very well know. While it is true that the exporters sell these lambs for from 25 to 50 cents less per head, it should be kept in mind that this loss is borne by the farmer, and justly so. Most of the lambs fattened on rape are purchased from farmers wherever they can be picked up, and there is nothing surer than that the full amount of the ultimate loss when the lambs arrive in the market will be taken off the first cost price. Leaving the lambs unchanged which were intended for market is a relic of a former age which must be abandoned.

We are not raising more than half the number of sheep in Ontario that our farms will maintain as scavengers. We have not more than seven head to every one hundred acres of land. We might just as well keep twelve head without missing their food at all in the summer season, which would be largely picked up in fence corners and stubble fields, where otherwise most of it would go to waste. I may mention here that our experiment in feeding lambs on rape at this institution last autumn and the subsequent feeding until March, when they were sold, was successful in a marked degree. The lambs were bought for a little less than four dollars per head toward the close of September, and were sold for nearly twice that sum in March. If our farmers can raise lambs which net them between seven and eight dollars per head when they are less than a year old, they will not have much reason to complain of hard times.

It may be objected, first that our lambs were in prime condition, which I will not attempt to deny; and second, that we sold more favorably than the average farmer can, which I do deny. It is possible, however, that the price paid this year was abnormally high, and this should be considered, but cut it down twenty per cent., and we still have a good price left for our lambs.

Raising Grape-Vines.

Raising the plants from seed is employed only by skilled cultivators for originating new varieties. Some varieties are easily raised from cuttings, but the easiest and most certain way for novices is by layers, represented by Fig. 1. A branch of the preceding year's growth is bent down as represented, and covered with soil three inches deep, or a strong shoot of the present season's early growth is used in the same way. Roots are thrown out as represented, and before it is detached and taken up, forming the two plants in Fig. 2. This is the simplest and easiest way to increase the plants on a small scale. Cuttings for outdoor work are made seven or eight inches long, each with two or more buds (Fig. 3.) They are placed in a sloping position in the soil, which is compactly pressed, the upper bud just above the soil. Cover the surface with a layer of manure.—C. Gentleman.

Destructive distillation of the coal tar gives 69.9 pounds of pitch, 17 pounds of creosote, 14 pounds of heavy oil, 9.5 pounds of naphtha yellow, 6.3 pounds of naphthaline, 4.75 pounds of naphthole, 2.25 pounds of alizarin, 2.4 pounds solvent naphtha, 1.5 pounds of phenol, 1.2 aurine, 1.1 pounds of aniline, 0.75 pound of toludine, 0.46 pound of anthracine and 0.9 pound of toluene. From the last-named substance is obtained the lately discovered product saccharine, which is said to be 230 times sweeter than sugar.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The oak planted at Mount Vernon in 1860 by the Prince of Wales having died, Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British Minister, to-day planted an oak grown from a British acorn near Washington's tomb. A number of prominent people witnessed the affair. Sir Julian made an address eulogizing Washington.

The Queen's Birthday.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—The Queen's Birthday will soon be upon us and an effort seems to have been made to assure the ordinary clerk that he is sure of a holiday on the 24th inst. A few of the small-souled merchants have signed a round robin to the effect that they will keep open on that date and the clerks in their respective establishments have been notified to that effect, one exception being [illegible] clerks who are volunteers, that if they turn out with the 57th battalion on that date they can bear the consequences. Citizens of Peterborough, look down deep into your hearts and tell me if there does not exist a feeling of loyalty to the British crown? Do you not find a deep seated love for our grand old mother, Queen Victoria? While some may consider it mere sentiment, I have yet to learn that true sentiment is hurtful in this respect. It was indeed pleasant news for me to learn that the [illegible] for their country in 1885 have decided to eat and drink within our hospitable gates on the 24th May. Let [illegible] the sound raises. Let the merchants come out like men and say "God Save the Queen" on the 24th of May. Let them send away all their help with the same greeting and thanks shall be the praise.

SMITH SIFTINGS.

A Disease Among Horses—A Pastor's Resignation—New Church—Notes.

Correspondence of the Review.

SEEDING.—The farmers in the locality are having a hard time to get their grain sowed on account of the wet state of the land. It is a long time since we had such a cold, backward spring. Old farmers say that wheat not sowed before the 9th of May will not be much use. If that is so there will be a lot this year no use.

DEATH AMONG HORSES.—There is quite a number of horses on the sick list in this district. Mr. John Little, who lives on Mrs. E. P. Maltura's farm, lost a very valuable horse the other day. It dropped dead in the field while at work. Mr. Alex. Scott's horses are all laid up with the distemper and unable to work. He also lost a fine "John Anderson" foal, and several others have lost good horses by the distemper.

RESIGNATION.—The Rev. Mr. J. B. Huff, pastor of the line Baptist Church, has made up his mind to leave and has sent in his resignation. While we are sorry he is going to leave us, we hope that he will be doing all for the best and that where ever he makes his new home, he will have prosperity and plenty, and that his labors will be abundantly blessed.

BUILDING.—Mr. W. W. Milburn is erecting a fine brick residence on his farm near town. It is a large building. The brick work is done and the carpenters are busy at the roof, and when it is finished will look well.

THE NEW CHURCH.—The stone masons are to start in a few days at the foundation of the new line Baptist church. It is the intention of the members to lay the corner stone on the 20th of May.

BUILDING IN BRIDGENORTH.—There are several fine houses and a business block going up in Bridgenorth. The city council will have to extend the sidewalk along Queen st., west to the residence of the Pope.

BIRTH.—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Telford's family circle was increased the other day by the addition of a fine baby boy. All well, congratulations, Bob.

HATS!

"Where did you get that hat?" is a query that thousands of years ago came as "trippingly on the tongue" of the enfant terrible of Nineveh and Thebes as it does to-day on that of the Peterborough gamin.

Love of extravagance in costume is as inherent in mankind as love of eating and drinking, and jibes at the extravagant or uncouth are older than literature. When King Assur-bani-pal came home from a campaign, bringing with him a long line of chained prisoners, their uncouth garb doubtless excited the derision of the Assyrian boys, who did not fail to shout "Where did you get that Hat?" The heavy swells of Rome as they rolled along the Via Appia in chariots of ivory and gold, and the newest things in headgear were saluted with the same cry; and from that day to this it has never ceased.

In our corner of the globe the question is easily answered. All Peterborough's well dressed people get their

The Daily Review.

FRIDAY, MAY 16, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

He began by picturing the love the murdered man had lavished upon the prisoner, and pictured the life the prisoner had led. His friends were actresses, wandering musicians, men who made their living by their wits, and he met them principally at the restaurant, the fashionable saloon and the green-room. What unsuspected habits of vice was it not possible for a young man to get into so surrounded? Who could tell what pernicious influence, what overwhelming temptation might be brought to bear upon a character amiable and yielding? It was not necessary to tell an experienced body of men like that before him that actresses were expensive friends, and that they were at the bottom of many crimes. As for the evidence, the jury had heard of the quarrel between the murdered man and the prisoner the night of the crime. The reluctance with which the trusty old servant had given that evidence stamped it as true. He had told them also—and he was corroborated by the detective who examined the house early in the morning—how the windows had all been found secure. The murderer had not entered a window. The locks on the doors had not been tampered with, as they would have been if the murderer had entered a door. The prisoner had remained from home all night. Why? That was a question to which he could not give a satisfactory answer. Being a man not used to vicious deeds, what more natural than that he should have rushed horrified from the scene of his crime, and only found courage to return in the afternoon of the next day. He refused absolutely to tell where he had been in the meantime. It was very probable, was it not, that he had been with the person who prompted the crime? He admitted that the young man did not have the face of a criminal, and he firmly believed that this had been his first crime. But he had a face of excessive amiability. Those who had studied human nature knew that such a face marked a dangerous person; for while a man of that character might not originate crimes, he proved a facile tool in the hands of others.

But the attorney progressed slowly. He went into details that the ordinary man would have seen no bearing in. He dilated upon the character of the prisoner until it stood out in perfect legibility before the listeners. He begged the jury to mark that no professional criminal would have mutilated his victim as the murdered man was mutilated. That marked the frenzy, the madness of the novice in crime, who felt the taste of blood for the first time and became suddenly crazed from the exaltation of it. As he dilated upon this possible mood, its effects and its causes, the cold spring twilight closed in, the court adjourned and the speech for the prosecution was to be concluded in the morning.

Margaret's heart had hardened toward her father when she heard him refuse to accept the evidence of the witness who had come at the last moment. She felt that he was against Harry. She knew that the jury was prejudiced against him, and she read McCook's relentless determination in his face. It grew more and more difficult for her to preserve her calm, and though she would have liked to have raised her veil and sent Harry one cheering glance, she could not sufficiently command her features to do it. There was nothing but misery and despair in that face, and that was no sight for Harry to see. Two or three times her head swam so giddily that she feared she would fall. The arm of the little damsel was around her lovingly, and the voice of the little damsel was whispering hopeful words, but they did not bring much comfort. A great yearning for help came over the poor girl. She suddenly felt bereft of all friendship. Her father was soon to pronounce the death sentence upon her lover. Her old companion stood earnestly pleading for the downfall of his friend. Mrs. McCook had come to listen to the triumph of her son. All the friends that had sought her and flattered her were far away now. Not one of them had even thought to write her a comforting note. The deep despair of youth settled upon her. Wild thoughts foreign to her healthy nature began to rush through her distracted mind. Try as she could, it was not possible for her to banish the thought of the waters where they rush around the great north pier. The sound swelled in her ears, the beauty of those waters, blue, fleecy and white, dazzled her eyes. So deep, so swift, so certain, so beautiful were they! What better servant could eternal rest find? Shutting her eyes, she dropped her head on the shoulder of her little friend and let the stern music bellow in her ears, while all else slipped far away and life seemed a panorama of shifting shadows. On the verge of unconsciousness she was aroused by a touch on the shoulder. A messenger stood by her with a note.

"My dear Miss Barthwait (it ran), I am about to do a terrible thing. Harry must die unless I do. I will save his life, but, strange as it may seem to you now, by doing so I shall forever sacrifice your friendship, which is dearer to me than you can ever know. I will tell you something which I should have always concealed but for the present emergency, and I only tell it to you now, that you may know what it costs me to do the work I must to-morrow. I have loved you, Margaret Barthwaite since the first time that I looked into your true eyes. This love has not been impertinent, because it has not been ambitious. I have never had one thought that was false to Harry. All that your love has revealed to me, all that I have suffered and enjoyed—for even a hopeless love has its pleasures—will make life significant to me as long as I live. When I voluntarily give up your friendship, then, you may know that I do so at the utmost cost to myself. More, I break my word, given honorably and on my truth as a man and a friend. But I take the cost of this, too. Harry must be cleared. Everything else falls into nothingness. Forgive me if you can. Say nothing to-night to any one, as you value Harry's life, though Harry may be less to you in the future. Poor girl, poor girl! My heart bleeds as I think of you. I wish it were possible for me to save you all this misery. Yet I have never met a woman so calculated to endure the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune. God bless and keep you through all dark ways! May His spirit shadow you with palpable love and tenderness! "DENNIS POND."

The people were leaving the court room. As the excited crowd moved heavily out, Margaret saw Pond in the midst, lifting his hat to her with a mournful gesture. She bowed low in return. Harry had been taken quickly away. The judge was already in his ante-room. She followed him, and touched him on the arm. He looked down on her with a startled glance, but pressed her hand warmly.

"I am going home with you to-night, papa," she said.

"Best not, Margaret. Go back to your own nest, daughter. I shall not be good company to-night."

"Papa, do not send me away! I want you terribly. My heart is breaking, papa. Let me come with you?" Yet, even as she spoke, she shrank from him. She did not want to go with him. But she meant to use her influence. She had confidence that her tears might yet soften the judge toward Harry. No moral qualms withheld her. She was not afraid of interfering with justice. To begin with, she believed Harry innocent, and in the second place, she loved him. Women have no compunctions about interfering with the course of justice where one whom they love is concerned. Justice always seems like more or less of a superstition to them.

She got the judge to yield at last and sending the little damsel back to Walnut street, she rode home in the carriage with her father. The judge had never been more fascinating, and yet at all times he was a man who compelled attention. There was a combination of suavity and authority in his manner and a beauty of diction and intonation in his conversation that made it impossible not to listen to him when he was present.

As the two rode home together the judge drew the curtains of the carriage and, wrapping his arms around his daughter, gave himself up to communion with her.

"The house has been very, very lonely without its daughter Margaret," he whispered, fixing his brilliant eyes upon her.

"The house ought not to be longer without her," replied Margaret. He did not look cruel, she said to herself.

"You are getting very beautiful, dear," he said. "Men are sure to love you—plenty of them."

POLITICAL CONVENTIONS.

E. McGillicuddy the Choice of West Lambton Conservatives.

WATFORD, May 15.—The Liberal-Conservative convention for East Lambton was held here to-day. There was a large attendance of delegates from the different parts of the riding. Fifteen candidates were nominated for the Assembly, but all retired in favor of E. McGillicuddy of Warwick. The candidate has filled the offices of reeve of Warwick and warden of Lambton.

W. J. Webster (Ref.) in Leeds.

NEWBORO, May 15.—The Liberal convention of Leeds at Delta to-day nominated W. J. Webster, a Westport merchant, for the Assembly.

The Fight in Lincoln.

ST. CATHARINES, May 15.—The political situation in Lincoln has assumed a new shape by the resignation of Mr. Pettit, who says that when he decided to run it was with the understanding that the Reformers would not place a candidate in the field.

Mr. Pettit's resignation has caused great excitement among the local politicians. The contest now remains between J. C. Rykert and his opponent of three years ago, W. K. Pattison.

A NEW YORK LAWYER SHOT.

He Had Given Advice Against the Young Man Who Killed Him.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Ex-Judge Reynolds of the law firm of Reynolds & Harrison was shot and fatally wounded in his office in Wall-street to-day by a young man named A. J. Stephanie. Mr. Reynolds was counsel for Stephanie's mother and had advised her to attach certain moneys belonging to the estate of her late husband which the young man had placed in a safe deposit vault and proposed to use for his own benefit. Stephanie arrived from Europe a few days ago and as soon as he heard of the proceedings he went to Reynolds' office and in a quarrel shot him. Stephanie is under arrest.

WON BY A RANK OUTSIDER.

The Great Brooklyn Handicap Goes to Castaway II—The Ball Record.

GRAVESEND, L.I., May 15.—The Brooklyn Jockey Club's spring meeting opened here to-day. The attendance was probably the largest since the opening day of the track. There were at least 20,000 people present. The rain came down in a drizzle during the afternoon and the track was very muddy although not exactly "holding."

The event of the day—the Brooklyn handicap—resulted in a somewhat unpleasant surprise for the bulk of the backers, as a horse that had been running poorly at the winter tracks won in a convenient kind of a canter. Castaway II. had the race soon after the first hundred yards, none of the others seemingly being able to get up to him. Los Angeles, the favorite, was never in the race at all and the only animal that made any pretension to covering the ground was Badge. Castaway held the front apparently without much effort. But it was a good race. The time was surprisingly fast, the first half being run in 51 seconds and the mile in 1.43. Very little interest was taken in the other events although they resulted in capital finishes.

Just before the star event the betting paddock was a sight to behold. Men fought like tigers to reach the bookmakers. Old racegoers say they never saw such intense excitement around the track. To add to the turmoil it was announced that Raceland, one of the heaviest backed horses entered, had been scratched and the hundreds that had their money on that horse made frantic efforts to place it somewhere else. The time was 2.10. Mutuals paid $[illegible]; place $[illegible].

Summary—The Brooklyn Jockey Club Handicap, for 3-year-olds and upwards, $100 each, the club to add an amount sufficiently to make the gross value of the stakes $25,000, of which the second horse shall receive $3000 and the third horse $1000; 1¼ miles.

A Halifax Elopement.

HALIFAX, May 15.—Three months ago James McConnell and his wife came to Halifax from Tracadie, N.B., and appeared to live happily together. A young woman from Boston named Mrs. Reynolds subsequently boarded with them. Yesterday McConnell sold off his furniture and eloped with Mrs. Reynolds.

HE MARCHED WITH SHERMAN TO THE SEA;

Trudged all the way on foot, over mountain and through swamp, carrying knapsack and gun, slept on brush heaps to keep out of the mud, caught cold, from the effects of which his friends thought he would never recover. Lingering with slow consumption for many years, he saw Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery advertised in a country newspaper, and he determined to try it. A few bottles worked a change: six months' continued use cured him. Always too independent to ask his country for a pension, he now says he needs none. He helped save his country, he saved himself! Consumption is Lung-scrofula. For scrofula, in all its myriad forms, the "Discovery" is an unequaled remedy. It cleanses the system of all blood-taints from whatever cause arising, and cures all Skin and Scalp Diseases, Salt-rheum, Tetter, Eczema, and kindred ailments. It is guaranteed to benefit or cure in all diseases for which it is recommended, or money paid for it will be refunded. Sold by druggists.

THE KAISER SAYS HE IS A MAN OF ROCK AND IRON.

Miss Ward's Approaching Nuptials—The Family History of Her Fiance—Henry M. Stanley to Wed Miss Tennant—German Notables Visit Bismarck.

BERLIN, May 16.—A banquet was tendered to the Emperor at Koenigsberg to-day by the provincial deputies. The Emperor afterwards made a speech in which he said whoever attempted to attack the security of the country would find him a man of rock and iron who had an army at his back and could enforce peace.

German Editors Visit Bismarck.

BERLIN, May 16.—The Tageblatt calls attention to the frequent visits to Friedrichsruhe made by foreign writers who are haters of Germany.

Stanley Meets His Fate.

LONDON, May 16.—It is said a marriage has been arranged between Henry M. Stanley and Miss Dorothy Tennant, who is young, artistic and much admired. Miss Tennant lives in Richmond-terrace, Whitehall. She is a daughter of the late Charles Tennant and has become well known through her clever pictures in the Academy and other galleries. The marriage will probably take place early in June.

The Telegraph Conference.

PARIS, May 16.—The international telegraph conference opened here to-day. One hundred and seventeen delegates are present. M. Roche, Minister of Commerce, made the address of welcome. He reviewed the developments in telegraphy and telephony, and predicted that the deliberations of the conference would result in further improvements and would serve to draw closer and tighten the bonds of peace between nations.

Miss Ward and Her Prince.

PARIS, May 16.—Miss Clara Ward will be married to Prince Chimay on Tuesday at the Nunciature. The witnesses for the bride will be Minister Reid and the British Ambassador. The Belgian Minister and the Duc Pasquier will have the same office for the bridegroom. Miss Ward was born in Detroit, but now resides in Toronto, with her mother, who is married to a barrister named Cameron.

Mrs. Crawford writes in London Truth about the bridegroom's family as follows: The De Chimays' family name is Riquet (a contraction of Riquetti). They are of Belgian new nobility, being of the same stock as the Mirabeaus, who could not obtain admission to the Court of Versailles in the last century because their titles of Marquis and Comte were of recent date. Mme. Tallien, the daughter of Cabarrus, a Bordeaux banker, was a Princess de Chimay at the beginning of this century, she having divorced her revolutionary first husband. The actual head of the family was married to a daughter of Pellapont, who had a tobacco monopoly under the First Empire, and of Francois Leroy, his wife. No daughter of a Prince de Chimay could enter as canoness any of those old German orders for women such as that of Remiremont or the Bohemian, one of which Queen Christina was superior, a condition of entrance being "pure" blood on both sides for sixteen generations.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The St. George Accident Case Advanced Another Stage.

TORONTO, May 17.—Before Mr. Justice Rose yesterday afternoon at Osgoode Hall the now famous St. George case was advanced another stage, when the G.T.R. renewed their motion for a non-suit. D'Alton McCarthy, Q.C., John Bell, Q.C., A. B. Aylesworth and Wallace Nesbitt appeared for the G.T. and G. T. Blackstock, Walter Read and Dugal McMurchy for the plaintiffs. Mr. McCarthy opened the argument in favor of a non-suit and Mr. Blackstock replied, after which judgment was reserved. Mr. Blackstock then moved a verdict for the plaintiffs on the findings of the jury. Among other things he contended that the one answer given by the jury as to culpable negligence was alone sufficient to require a verdict against the G.T. He had not finished when the court adjourned until 11 o'clock this morning.

PROROGUED.

CLOSE OF THE FOURTH SESSION OF THE SIXTH PARLIAMENT.

The List of Bills Which Received the Royal Assent—Text of the Governor-General's Speech—Hon. C. H. Tupper Seriously Ill.

OTTAWA, May 16.—The Commons met at 11½ this morning and passed the bills reported from the Senate, thus completing the business of the session. One Senate amendment to the Banking Act, providing that bills defaced or torn need not be accepted in payment of a debt, was protested against by Messrs. Foster, Laurier and others as mischievous and dangerous, but was concurred in because there was not time for the Senate to reconsider the matter this session. As the bill does not go into effect until July 1, 1891, Parliament will have opportunity next session of removing the objectionable provision.

In answer to an inquiry by Hon. Peter Mitchell relative to the fishery negotiations at Washington Sir John Macdonald said he could not make the expected communication, as the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who was to have been home last night or this morning, had not yet arrived. The minister had been dangerously ill and therefore travelled slowly. Generally speaking, it might be said that the negotiations were proceeding quite satisfactorily.

Mr. Trow made an enquiry about the Bremner fur case as to whether the Government would undertake to see that Bremner was indemnified. Mr. Kirkpatrick spoke in defence of the General, pointing out that he had acted quite properly in ordering the furs into the charge of the Mounted Police, when Bremner, their owner, was arrested and imprisoned. The impropriety of which he had been guilty consisted in afterwards declaring them confiscated and ordering a portion put up for himself and staff, and he claimed that the General should not pay for any except the portion thus put up.

At 12¾ Mr. Speaker left the chair.

At 4 o'clock, the Commons being in attendance at the Senate Chamber, the Governor-General signified the Royal assent to these bills:

Respecting the Ontario Pacific Railway Company.

To confer on the Commissioner of Patents certain powers for the relief of George T. Smith.

Respecting the Hereford Railway Company and the Maine Central Railway Company.

Relating to bills of exchange, checks and promissory notes.

Further to amend the revised statutes, chapter five, respecting the electoral franchise.

Respecting a certain agreement therein mentioned with the Calgary and Edmonton Railway Company.

To amend the acts respecting the harbor of Pictou.

To amend the acts respecting the duties of customs.

Respecting the Wood Mountain & Qu'Appelle Railway Company.

To amend the act of the present session entitled an act to amend the acts respecting the duties of customs.

Further to amend the Indian Act.

To incorporate the York County Bank.

To provide for the collection and publishing of labor statistics.

To make further provision respecting the bounty on pig iron manufactured in Canada from Canadian ore.

To amend chapter 127 of the revised statutes of Canada entitled, "An Act respecting Interest."

To authorize the granting of subsidies in aid of the construction of the lines of railway therein mentioned

To authorize the granting of subsidies in land to certain railway companies.

Respecting banks and banking.

Respecting the Winnipeg & Hudson Bay Railway Company.

For granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money required for defraying certain expenses of the public service for the financial years ending respectively June 30, 1890, and June 30, 1891, and for other purposes relating to the public service.

His Excellency then delivered the following Speech from the Throne:

His Excellency's Speech.

Honorable gentlemen of the Senate, gentlemen of the House of Commons:

In bringing to a close this somewhat protracted session of Parliament, I desire to convey to you my best thanks for the diligence with which you have applied yourselves to your important duties.

The negotiations respecting the Behring Sea question are still in progress at Washington with good prospects of an equitable settlement. Meanwhile the continuance for another year of what is known as the "modus vivendi" will serve to show our earnest desire to cultivate the most friendly relations with the United States Government and people.

The readjustment of the customs tariff, intended to promote the development of our agricultural, manufacturing and other industries, will, I have reason to hope, operate for the general benefit of all classes.

I am glad to believe that the act relating to banking has been most carefully considered, and will be found to guard the interests of the public and to be sufficiently liberal to those who are more immediately affected by its provisions. The measure relating to bills of exchange, checks and promissory notes will doubtless render more certain and plain the law relating to those instruments, and make the law in that regard uniform in almost all respects throughout Canada.

The amendments to the criminal law include a great number and variety of provisions, all of which will probably be found useful, and several of which were urgently demanded for the public welfare.

The creation of a bureau of labor statistics will promote the investigation and study of the questions which affect the relations of capital and labor, and which are now engaging the attention of all great nations. It will likewise aid the diffusion of information on all that concerns the occupations and well-being of the working classes. In some other measures of the present session your desire to improve the laws which apply particularly to those engaged in industrial pursuits will likewise be recognized.

The various provisions to amend the laws relating to railways, to patents, copyrights and trade marks, and to the department of Inland Revenue, and likewise the enactment to improve the statutes for the management of our Indian population, are well adapted to promote the efficient administration of the departments to which they relate, while a large amount of private railway legislation indicates a spirit of enterprise throughout the country which, it is to be hoped, will lead to a substantial development of the railway works of the country.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

I thank you for the liberal provision which you have made for the requirements of the public service.

Honorable gentlemen of the Senate, gentlemen of the House of Commons:

I take leave of you for the present with the earnest hope that in the coming season our people in every part of Canada may be blessed with an abundant reward for their labors and may witness a marked advance in the prosperity of the Dominion.

ONTARIO'S CROPS.

Summary of the Bureau of Statistics' May Bulletin.

TORONTO, May 17.—A bulletin issued yesterday from the Bureau of Statistics contains the usual interesting facts with respect to the crops, progress of spring work, live stock, etc. The information is gathered by 971 correspondents under date of May 1. Fall wheat, it would appear, presents a very uneven condition throughout the province. Owing to the alternate thawing and freezing of the mild winter, following late seeding, the crop suffered more or less from winter-killing in the west. The dry northerly winds and rains, commencing in February and continuing late in the spring, greatly retarded the growth in other portions of the province, where the crop is said to have wintered better than was expected. In Essex, Lambton, Kent and Lincoln, which send the worst reports, considerable portions of the wheat land will be plowed up and seeded over. Little or no damage is reported from worms or insects. Recent rains have improved the outlook, and with a favorable season there is reason to anticipate a fair, although not a large, harvest.

The condition of the winter rye crop is generally satisfactory, the winter-killing not having been sufficiently extensive to impair the prospects of an average crop. The acreage is greatly decreasing.

The condition of clover is not satisfactory, especially in the south-western counties, much damage having been caused by the alternate freezing and thawing. On high and sandy soils the prospects are better, and a good crop is promised under favorable conditions.

The reports concerning orchards are on the whole favorable. The damage to the peach trees was slight, apples promise well, and grapes and small fruits generally are considered as promising. Plums and cherries are suffering from black knot.

Seeding is far advanced in the western portion of the province, owing to the favorable season, but wet land in some of the eastern counties has delayed plowing operations. Oats and peas continue in favor and there will be a considerably enlarged area of spring wheat sown, including goose. Barley will be grown to a smaller extent, probably one-half to two-thirds that of last year. Low prices of late and a fear that the U.S. tariff will discriminate against Canadian barley supply the reasons.

A bulletin issued yesterday from the Bureau of Statistics contains the usual interesting facts with respect to the crops, progress of spring work, live stock, etc. The

There is a slow movement in the erection of silos, and the ensilage is yet in the first experimental stage in Ontario.

The winter was favorable to the apiary and the losses will not average over eight per cent, resulting chiefly from those wintered inside finding the quarters too warm. Two cases of swarming in April are recorded—an unusual occurrence.

Owing to the plentifulness of fodder and the mildness of the winter, the present condition of live stock is with few exceptions all that could be desired. Cattle are generally thrifty and strong; horses are in an exceptionally good condition for spring work; sheep and pigs are also thrifty. Sheep are scarce, but the lambing season has been a favorable one and there seems also to be an increase in the number of young pigs. There has been unusual mortality among the porkers, and distemper and influenza has been strongly marked among horses, but there is a marked immunity from all malignant types.

There is little wheat in farmers' hands; in but few instances is any considerable quantity said to be held over, while in some counties farmers will have to buy their flour. The supply of oats is generally above the requirements in the West Midland counties, but in the Lake Erie counties a great deal of this grain was fed during the winter, leaving small stores at present writing. It is a long time since so much hay was reported in the spring. Every district chronicles an abundant supply. Fat cattle have nearly all been taken away by buyers and most of the stock remaining are being grazed for June shipments. There appears to be less store cattle than usual.

BUCHANAN'S BREAK.

The ex-Toronto Printer Swallows a Dose of Laudanum.

MUSKEGON, May 16.—John Jackson, the New York murderer captured here the other day, did exactly what the officers wired to watch out for and tried to commit suicide. When left alone about half a minute he swallowed a big dose of laudanum. He was in a stupor all yesterday afternoon and refused to eat anything in the evening. He was terribly disappointed when he learned he was not to die. He says he will plead guilty to the charge of manslaughter as soon as arraigned.

A True Bill against Powderly.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., May 16.—A true bill was found by the Grand Jury in the case of Edward Callaghan against General Master Workman Powderly and others for alleged conspiracy.

A Shamokin Breaker Burned.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., May 16.—The breaker at the Nelson shaft owned by C. J. Langdon & Co. was burned to-night. Loss $[illegible]. Seven hundred and fifty men were employed in the mine.

THE COLLIERY DISASTER.

A CHAMBER OF HORRORS IN THE WILKESBARRE MINE.

Mine Inspector Williams' Daring Exploration—Stifling Atmosphere, [illegible]—Mangled Bodies Found Side by Side—A Five Hour Terrible Ordeal.

WILKESBARRE, May 16.—It was through the plucky efforts of Mine Inspector Williams that the fate of the entombed miners was learned this morning. After several attempts to enter the mine through the newly made opening the officials concluded the air-currents must be changed and left with their workmen for this purpose. Inspector Williams became impatient of delay and with Alexander Bond made another attempt to penetrate the workings. Gas abounded despite the [illegible] danger. They persisted, however, and followed the gangway 250 feet. Waiting but a moment for the air to clear they advanced down a steep slope of nearly 60 degrees 250 feet further, when gas became so plentiful that they again paused. Finally advancing 200 feet through the main gangway they came to a large chamber, which proved a chamber of horrors.

By the faint glow of their lamps the two men discovered on every side corpses blackened, burned and mangled. The mine inspector counted the bodies—19 in all. Here lay a man with his head missing, there a boy stripped of every shred of clothing and covered with wounds. Another lay near by with one arm and one foot blown off. Dead bodies of mules lay crushed to a jelly by mine cars, which were scattered about in splinters. The two men then hurried back to open air and notified Supt. Steinbach and others. [illegible] provided and a rude sled built to drag the corpses up a steep incline. Soon the work of removing the dead bodies was under way and terrible scenes were witnessed as they were brought to the surface.

The first body was that of a Hungarian. It was taken to a boarding-house, but the fellow-countrymen refused to receive it, [illegible] object. The company directed that the bodies be taken to an undertaking establishment and made as presentable as possible. They were removed later to their homes and the company will see to their proper burial. This afternoon thousands of persons flocked to the scene of the disaster.

No pen can describe the blood curdling scenes of the mines, the morgue, and at the undertakers'. Many of the bodies had no heads, others were entirely nude, and most were mangled and disfigured. Those in charge of removing bodies from the mine found difficulty in identifying many of the victims. Every working is filled with explosive gases and deadly black damp. At 6 o'clock this evening another party attempted to enter the slope and proceeded 250 feet, when they were driven back.

The three men rescued last night separated from the others and advised them to follow but they refused. They then walked along the gangway on their way out by the abandoned opening through which the rescuing party entered. When about 250 feet from the surface Allen's naked lamp set fire to the gas and the explosion occurred. The others were waiting too deep still further in the mine for the rescuing party to enter by the slope and dig away the debris of the wall. It is presumed they were overcome by the after-damp of the explosion and rendered unconscious. They did not know of the opening by which the three men were walking and waited in vain for the rescuers from the other side.

The number of men still in the mine is uncertain, as Thursday was a church holiday and most of the miners were idle, no record being kept of those who were at work. The families of the dead miners are in extreme poverty. The company will look after their wants. The cave is believed to be due to the excessive amount of coal removed, not sufficient being left to carry the superincumbent rock. The roof was specially dangerous.

Frequent comment is made on the fact that the explosion which followed the cave-in, like many others of recent occurrence, was due to the carelessness of a fire-boss. Only a week ago two fire-bosses were convicted of criminal carelessness and fined $80 each and another is now awaiting trial, while several others have lost their lives along with several fellow-workmen.

Among the thrilling experiences of the disaster was that of James Sullivan. Sullivan was standing on the gangway beside his little door-tender, a Polish boy named Joe Bezecki. A short distance behind was Michael Henry, a miner. When the shock came it almost lifted Sullivan off his feet. With rare presence of mind, however, he grabbed the door-tender in his arms and ran for his life. After he had gone a short distance he heard a crash, and looking back saw Henry. It is supposed Henry was caught by the falling roof and buried alive.

At 6 o'clock this evening all operations at the mines were abandoned. There are yet six men in the fatal chamber. They are Michael and John Scalley, brothers; Robert Richardson, Michael Henry, Richard Jones and Joshua Williams. To-morrow morning operations will be resumed and the work of rescue pushed until the remaining bodies are recovered. Six mules were taken out alive this afternoon. The bodies of five Polanders were buried this afternoon.

Three Men Killed by this Cave-in.

SCRANTON, Pa., May 16.—At Olyphant to-day five Italian laborers while shovelling culm were buried by a falling bank of culm. Two of the men were taken out alive but badly hurt. The other three were killed. Names unknown.

The Doren & Wright Bucket Shop.

ALBANY, May 16.—A certificate has been filed with the Secretary of State extending the original five years' existence of the "Doren & Wright Company" for five years from May 25 next. The certificate is signed by S. Gregor Doren, Arthur H. Doren, Edgerton R. Williams, Albert J. Stoddard and Edward D. Weldon, who own over two-thirds of the capital stock.

Eavesdropper Choate's Costly Escapade.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Dilworth Choate, the reporter who achieved notoriety in connection with the Flack divorce case, pleaded guilty to-day to contempt of court. Judge [illegible] fined him $25 which he paid. Choate's escapade cost him 41 days in jail and $250 cash.

Kentucky's New Senator.

FRANKFORT, Ky., May 16.—J. G. Carlisle has been nominated by acclamation by the Democratic caucus for United States Senator.

"Try Ayer's Pills"

For Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout. Stephen Lansing, of Yonkers, N. Y., says: "Recommended as a cure for chronic Costiveness, Ayer's Pills have relieved me from that trouble and also from Gout. If every victim of this disease would heed only three words of mine, I could banish Gout from the land. These words would be—'Try Ayer's Pills.'"

"By the use of Ayer's Pills alone, I cured myself permanently of rheumatism which had troubled me several months. These Pills are at once harmless and effectual, and, I believe, would prove a specific in all cases of incipient

Rheumatism.

No medicine could have served me in better stead."—C. C. Rock, Corner, Avoyelles Parish, La.

"I have derived great benefit from Ayer's Pills. Five years ago I was taken so ill with rheumatism that I was unable to do any work. I took three boxes of Ayer's Pills and was entirely cured. Since that time I am never without a box of these pills."—Peter Christensen, Sherwood, Wis.

SATURDAY, MAY 17, 1890.

A DAISY BOOMERANG.

In last night's Examiner there is an excellent specimen of the campaign "roorback" that should be preserved in oil. It is given in the guise of a letter and in an editorial more absurd if possible than the letter. The story is this: It is alleged that "secret meetings" are being held in different parts of the country as Equal Rights committee meetings; that as many Liberals as can be reached are invited; that they are induced to sign their names to a list on the pretence that their names are wanted so that literature may be sent to them—and they find they have pledged themselves to Mr. Carnegie's support!

Isn't that a delicious flight of imagination? It has been equalled only by the story of the steamer to gather factory milk on Gull lake, and it is scarcely probable that there are two intellects in the ranks of Mr. Stratton's supporters equal to such performances. They are surely the work of the same master hand in fiction. The gross improbability of the yarn makes it delightfully ridiculous, for who would try to obtain the votes of electors by such deception, when it would immediately be found out, and thus leave himself open to the resentment sure to follow? It is too ridiculous to be argued and too absurd for denial, for it bears falsehood on the face of it.

The publication of such a yarn shows to what straits the Government candidate and his supporters are driven, and men who would be guilty of publishing such a story would not be beneath trying to hold such secret meetings in the name of the Equal Rights Association in order to create ill-feeling against it and against Mr. Carnegie. That would be a foolish and knavish thing for them to do, but would it be any more foolish than gravely publishing such an absurd yarn?

This is probably only a specimen of what is to follow from the same quarter, and when a yarn like this one is spun openly, to what flights of imagination will they not soar when they can do so in a private way? The electors should be thoroughly on their guard and not be deceived by the cock-and-bull stories that will be circulated on Mr. Stratton's behalf.

WHAT DO THEY MEAN?

MR. ROSS said at the Opera House that this was being made a "religious contest," and other Government supporters make the same assertion.

The questions discussed relate to the Public and Separate schools of the Province—relate to education. Is education, then, not a matter for the state to deal with? If it is entirely a religious matter it is, of course, for the churches to deal with and the Legislature should not interfere. But is education a religious matter and must not the Legislature deal with the educational laws? If that is not the position that Mr. Ross and the Government supporters take, they must admit that education is a state matter, under the control of the Legislature, and a proper subject for political discussion, otherwise Mr. Ross should resign the position of Minister of Education, for the Government should not administer religious affairs.

The Equal Right Association believes—and in that it agrees with the Conservative Opposition—that the schools are subject to legislative control, and therefore the questions discussed are political. If they are right, and no sane man will doubt it, Mr. Ross is wrong.

THE appropriation for Public and Separate schools is over $8,000 less in 1889 than it was in 1878. But the total expenditure has increased rapidly.

AN aggregate deficit of nearly $2,000,000 in eight years in the financial record of the Mowat Government, although it received $6,500,000 from timber in that time. And it still increases the taxes.

MR. MOWAT told the Legislature in 1889 that the Quebec Conference resolutions—the famous resolutions adopted by Mr. Mowat and Mr. Mercier and their friends—would be heard of in the next election campaign. But the Government and its supporters are not making much noise about them now.

TORONTO is entitled to three members, but each elector can only vote for two of them. That is the means adopted by the Mowat Government to muzzle the majority, and only for that Mr. Tait's cake would be dough. But even with this advantage it is said that the Government candidates may both be left at home.

THE Examiner quotes more taffy for Mr. Stratton from its dear friend, the Bobcaygeon Independent, the editor of which holds an office under the Mowat Government. This is the same paper that referred to Smith electors as "antideluvian fossils," etc., and the Examiner is also the paper that so far endorsed the insults as to reproduce almost the entire article.

THERE is, however, in the opinion of this (Equal Rights) association, a fundamental principle in relation to the separate schools which should never be lost sight of. It is that every person must be assumed to be a supporter of the public schools, unless, being a Roman Catholic, he, by written notice given by himself or by his agent duly authorized in that behalf, declares himself a supporter of separate schools.—The Rev. Dr. Caven and others for the council of the Equal Rights Association.

To the Front.

The Lindsay Post says:—"Mr. Ed. Brown, of Peterborough, was in town this week visiting friends. 'Ed.' is fast coming to the front as a trainer and driver of equine stock at the popular trotting gait and is also a leading shareholder in the track at that 'burg.' He owns the well-known chestnut pacing mare Maud B. and a promising 3-year-old colt, and has also under his charge the speedy Mayflower. We believe he has had his 'string' supplemented by Mr. Joe Daly's fine two-year-old Phil Ryedyk colt and will no doubt give the bay fellow a thorough lesson in his preliminary alphabet, so to speak."

A Pleasant Occasion.

The members of the "Y" may well be gratified at the success of last evening's effort. The cosy parlor of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mason's residence was filled with a gay company of friends, youthful and elderly, who spent delightful hours of fun and frolic, varied with music and social intercourse. Miss L. Henderson gave a recitation appropriate to the times, entitled "The Candidate," a fancy picture of aspirants to political honors and being recalled gave a brief bit of medical advice on the treatment of mental "proud flesh." The weather was just chilly enough to make delicious hot coffee and toothsome viands thoroughly appreciated. There was no formal programme for the evening's entertainment, and none was needed. At a late hour the party broke up, every one present perfectly satisfied. The members of the "Y" wish to express their sincere gratitude to Mr. and Mrs. Mason for placing their home at the service of the cause.

A Rejoinder.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—After a week's labor Mr. Stone has succeeded in getting his brother-in-law, *Dr. Goldsmith, to give him a coat of white*wash and a very thin coat at that.

The Dr. says that Mr. Stone was not his solicitor; my reply to that is that the Dr. told me Mr. Stone was his solicitor and asked if I had any objection to him drawing the agreement between us. Besides I can prove by documentary evidence that Mr. Stone was his solicitor, but he may have had good reason for discarding him. The Dr.'s letter is like a witness giving evidence in court to prove a man innocent when all he could say was that he was not there at the time.

I charge Mr. Stone and Mr. Kidd with telling deliberate falsehoods on the public platform. With regard to Mr. Kidd, I offered to pay the expenses for himself and the other four members of the Dummer Council to Toronto to examine the original documents and if they did not prove the statements made by him to be false, I would give $100 to any charitable institution in the county that he named. With regard to Mr. Stone, I offered to submit all the evidence to Mr. John Burnham for his decision and in doing so no man can accuse me of wanting any advantage, for I have always been a strong opponent of Mr. Burnham's and could not expect any favor from him. The statements made by me, if not true, are libellous, and Mr. Stone being a lawyer, can have law at first cost. Let him bring an action.

The Consumer's Opportunity.

The public is requested in their own interests to peruse the advertisement of Messrs. Meldrum & Davidson, which appears in another column. As millers and manufacturers of all grades of flour, they are making an unusual offer to the consumers of flour and feed and one which will undoubtedly be taken advantage of by a large number. They offer flour or feed at their mill to retail buyers at manufacturers' wholesale prices. which is a boon that is not available every day. The farmer also receives a privilege, in that they will buy wheat for the highest current prices and sell the farmer flour of any grade at the lowest wholesale prices. It is a golden offer.

A Good Move.

It will be seen by advertisement in another column that Mr. Thos. Morrow, 274½ Water-st., is offering a large number of town lots for sale, in just such terms as the people have been wanting. The prices are put low and ten or twelve years given to pay in by small monthly payments. For instance, a lot costing—

$175 will be paid for in 12 years by monthly payments of..........$1 76

Go and See Them.

The Hyers' Colored Comedy Company appeared for the second time at the Opera House last night. There was a good audience present, and everyone was greatly pleased with the programme. All enjoyed a good laugh, saw some clever dancing, heard good singing and evidenced their appreciation by liberal applause. Miss May C. Hyers is a fine singer and also possesses remarkable dramatic ability, while Tom Davis is a whole show in himself. The company appears again for the last time this evening and should have a bumper house.

Stanley's Great Book.

The Book entitled In Darkest Africa will be published in two volumes of five hundred pages each, 16 maps, 182 full pages and other illustrations. This work will reveal for the first time the full extent of Mr. Stanley's discoveries and adventures. It will be of equal interest to the soldier, to the teacher, sportsmen, political economist, missionary and the reading people generally. The following from Mr. Stanley's own pen will bear out its authenticity:—

"There is no other manuscript, printed book or pamphlet this spring of the year of our Lord 1890 that contains any account of this region of horrors other than this book of mine. HENRY M. STANLEY."

The Doomed Marmora Murderer.

"Peter Davis," says the Belleville Ontario, "who has just thirty-five days in which to prepare himself for the hangman's rope, still continues to grow fat and takes his position as easy as if he were hunting ginseng in north Hastings. For a man so used to the wilds of the woods it seems remarkable that he can so easily resign himself to his confinement and give himself up to die. Having everything that his taste and desire can wish for his bulldog nature is commencing to assert itself and he daily gives vent to his spleen and dissatisfaction by quarrelling with his guards and the gaoler. He is naturally of a quarrelsome and ungrateful nature and since his confinement the gaoler has been compelled to resort to severe measures in order to keep him in the traces. He is as treacherous and subtile as a fox and it is undoubtedly the hope of some day being able to effect his escape that sustains his buoyancy of spirit, although the fact is impressed on his mind by his spiritual adviser that all hope of commutation to life sentence or the granting of a new trial is lost."

The Campaign.

Mr. Carnegie held a meeting last night in the Temperance Hall, Smith, which was well attended and was largely in his favor.

Hon. Charles Drury was called from his own severe fight for his seat in Simcoe to come to Mr. Blezard's assistance and spoke in Keene last night. Mr. Blezard was the first speaker and went over the old ground of the boundary, streams bill, etc. Mr. Stone made a rattling speech on Mr. Kidd's behalf, and the Minister of Agriculture then spoke for some time and pleaded with his hearers to not forsake the Government candidate. The meeting closed with cheers for the Queen, Mr. Kidd and Mr. Blezard.

There was a good attendance at the meeting of Mr. Carnegie's committees last night. The committees will meet again on Monday evening—old Council Chamber, Opera House block.

Never had a preparation a more appropriate name than Ayer's Hair Vigor. When the capillary glands become enfeebled by disease, age, or neglect, this dressing imparts renewed life to the scalp so that the hair assumes much of its youthful richness and beauty.

Gorton's Minstrels.

Gorton's celebrated New Orleans Minstrels will appear at Bradburn's Opera House on Friday evening, May 23. This is an old organization and bears an unblemished reputation for refinement. Consequently ladies need have no scruples in attending their performance. The company comes highly endorsed by some of the leading journals of the States and Western Ontario journals, when they have appeared. The following complimentary notice is from the Daily News, Baltimore:—"At Masonic Temple Gorton's Original New Orleans Minstrels appeared to a packed house last night. This organization contains among its members some of the best minstrel talent in the country. The songs, sketches and specialty acts are admirably given, and the jokes possess the merit of a considerable degree of freshness. The Minstrels will continue as the attraction through the week." 1d11

Personal.

Rev. M. L. Pearson returned last evening from Toronto, where he had been attending a meeting of the Book Committee of the General Conference.

Still Another Night.

The Hyers Colored Comedy Company will play an additional night. Monday night next, in the Opera House. A good bill will be presented. 1d116

At the Sons of England public service tomorrow afternoon the centre circle of the church will be reserved for members of the Order. The Bible classes will meet as usual at 3 p. m., and the church doors will be thrown open to the public at 3.25 precisely.

One Phase of Equal Rights.

While many people are disputing as to what Equal Rights really mean for both sides, there can be no misunderstanding as to Equal Rights on the tea question. Some like black, some green tea, some with nuts in it. Put into the teapot half-and-half and you have an Equal Rights beverage. Get these teas at Hawley Bros., George-st. d112

Ragged, Dirty and Drunk.

John Driscoll was a miserable specimen of humanity when he was gathered in and placed behind the bars by the police this morning. Ragged, dirty and drunk he was making himself objectionable to the public at the market when the police removed him to private quarters. At ten o'clock he appeared before the Magistrate and pleaded guilty to having been drunk. Two dollars or twenty days was the fate that fell to his lot, and being financially confused, he went up on the hill for the twenty days.

An Oddfellow's Ward.

It is now a decided thing that the Oddfellows of Peterborough will furnish an Oddfellow's Ward in the Nicholls Hospital. The Joint Committee composed of member from Otonabee and Peterborough lodges will proceed at once to have the ward fitted up in good style. This idea, so entirely in accord with the teachings of Oddfellowship, is a worthy one and will redound to the credit of the Order in Peterborough. The ward will always be open to any patient when occasion demands it, but a sick Oddfellow who may be sent to the hospital will enjoy its comforts in preference to the others.

Literary Notes.

Mr. Wm. Bryce, Toronto, has issued in popular form "Stanley and his Heroic Relief of Emin Pasha," by E. P. Scott, with a number of illustrations. Among his late publications of fiction is "Beatrice," by H. Rider Haggard, a writer who never loses his charm.

"The Firm of Girdlestone," a novel by A. Condan Doyle, has been published by John Lovell & Son, Montreal, and a copy has been received from Salisbury Bros. All who have read "Micah Clarke" will not rest satisfied until they have procured the latest work by A. Condan Doyle.

Swearers Take Warning.

Profanity is every day becoming more common on our streets. From the aged men down to the small boy it is not an uncommon thing to hear the oath. When done privately the law cannot interfere, but when bawled out on the streets to jar upon the ears of the passers-by the law draws a strict line. A lesson was read to young men who too often indulge in this loud-mouthed profanity this morning at the Police Court. A young man was arrested last night for disorderly conduct on George-st., where he was swearing and cursing. At the Police Court this morning he pleaded guilty and was fined five dollars or twenty days. He paid the money.

An Oddfellow's Excursion.

The proposition to run an Oddfellow's excursion out of Peterborough early in the season will probably be carried out. The joint committee of the two local lodges have held a meeting and a committee was appointed to ascertain rates on two trips which were favored. One was to Jacob's Island and the other to Belleville and Massassaga Park. The latter would be an excursion out of the ordinary line of outings and the destination, Massassaga Park, is one of the most beautiful spots that could be chosen. On Monday night at the regular meeting of Otonabee Lodge the members of the joint committee are requested to be present when the place will be decided upon. A large attendance of all local Oddfellows is especially requested at this meeting.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The General Secretary received through the post office an anonymous letter to-day containing $5.00 and the following scripture text:—"The silver and the gold and the cattle on a thousand hills are His," and another friend left $5 00 at the office, but no name of donor. We praise God, knowing He will bless these kind, interested friends far more than we can thank them. We do bless and praise God's holy name for His provision for carrying on His work. We know he can and will provide all our need through His riches in glory by Christ Jesus, and we shall soon be able to say "we owe no man anything."

Pianos This Time.

The Campbellford Herald tells of a farmer in Percy, Mr. Greenley, who was tricked into buying a piano. The agent for the "Canadian Piano Co.," of which C. Butler, jr., seems to be the principal, asked permission, the Herald says, to leave the piano at his house, saying he wanted to place them eight miles apart throughout the country. He would send a man to play the piano, and for his board and lodging he would give Mrs. Greenley $4 a week as long as he remained with the family. In addition to this he offered to teach the two little daughters free of charge. Moreover, if he could dispose of four pianos in that community, at $400 each, the agent said he would make Mr. Greenley a present of one, as the company for whom he was working could afford to do so. Mr. Greenley was prevailed upon to agree and he signed a paper giving permission to leave the piano there. A few days afterwards along came Mr. Butler, along with the professor, and taking the paper from his pocket informed Mr. Greenley that it was an order from him to deliver the piano at his house. Mr. Greenley protested against this, but threats of a suit having been made he was induced to give his note for $400. Mr. Greenley has advertised the note. Mr. C. Butler, jr., has since written to the Herald and says Mr. Greenley gave wrong information, asks why the criminal law is not put in action if he has done wrong, and protests he is "an honest man." Mr. Butler was formerly connected with the "Dominion Grain and Seed Co." which operated in this neighborhood.

HATS!

"Where did you get that hat?" is a query that thousands of years ago came as "trippingly on the tongue" of the ancient tenantry of Nineveh and Thebes as it does to-day on that of the Peterborough gamin.

Love of extravagance in costume is as inherent in mankind as love of eating and drinking, and jibes at the extravagant or uncouth are older than literature. When King Assur-bani-pal came home from a campaign, bringing with him a long line of chained prisoners, their uncouth garb doubtless excited the derision of the Assyrian boys, who did not fail to shout "Where did you get that Hat?" The heavy swells of Rome as they rolled along the Via Appia in chariots of ivory and gold, and the newest things in headgear were saluted with the same cry; and from that day to this it has never ceased.

In our corner of the globe the question is easily answered. All Peterborough's well dressed people get their

SATURDAY, MAY 17, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

"I do not want the love of men for anything," she said, stroking his brow. "I want my love. I want Harry. If I cannot have him, I will have no one. You are not going to take him from me. You can not be so cruel, papa."

"I must do what I must, daughter. You can surely see that. My will is not my own."

"Papa, forgive me if I say something unkind. But I believe you had rather see Harry convicted than cleared. Answer me truly—Is it not so?"

"No! cried the judge, excitedly, "I hope to Heaven that he will go free. It will be an infinite relief to me if he does."

"Then," said Margaret, "why did you not accept the evidence of that witness?"

"For reasons, my daughter, that you can never know or understand. These things are not for women——"

"Papa! That from you! Tell me the reason. Did you know who the witness was?"

"I suspected. He had nothing but a sensational story. I know something of the matter before. It would only have delayed the case to no end."

But all that evening, Margaret ceased not to use every art in her power to enlist the sympathy of her father. She sang to him, talked her lovely dream upon the old happy life before the murder, talked of her courtship, their future joy, her marriage. Did she touch the judge? She could not determine. She slept in her old room, and slept sound. The next morning early she was awakened by the bursting into the room of her father.

"Margaret, Margaret," whispered he, creeping up to the bed and raising one finger. "Sit up. Listen. Hear what the boys on the street are calling." Margaret sat up and pushed the hair out of her eyes. Some strange alteration had come over the judge. His whole [illegible] and his eyes were deep in his head, he looked [illegible] old. "They will [illegible]. Listen," said he. It seemed to Margaret suddenly as if a black shadow had fallen upon her. Or as if a flood of angry waters were rushing over her and crushing the life out. The sensation of suffocation grew as she looked at that old face before her, with its sunken eyes. The finger went up [illegible] for her to listen again. There was a newsboy right under the window bawling the attractions of his sheet.

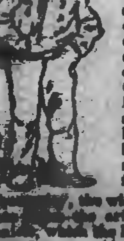
"Morning Chronicle! Full 'count of the 'posure of Judge Barthwait. All about the Leiter murder. Judge Barthwait guilty."

"Of what?" asked Margaret, straining her eyes at her father in the dimness.

"Of the murder of Henry Leiter. Get up, Margaret, and dress. We must go. Get your things together before the servants are up."

"I will be ready," said Margaret.

CHAPTER XIX.



NO JUDGE upon the bench has so frequently and so bitterly denounced the interference of the press in the course of the law as has Judge Barthwait. And it may be added that the rebukes of others never cut so deep as did his, for of all the men who have dignified the bench of Cook County, Ill., he has been the most respected, his judgments have been the most highly esteemed, his reputation for justice, foresight, penetration and humanity, the widest.

The [illegible] article in the Morning Chronicle, which the [illegible] read [illegible] at the cover of her machine, and Harry read sitting on his bench, and McCook read with his coffee, and every one in Chicago read where and when he might. The article [illegible]:

"It is an odd chance of fate, that it should become the duty of a newspaper to try Judge Barthwait by the very method that he has so often deprecated in the treatment of others. But there are times when the [illegible] become too great to meet [illegible]. Such a time is the [illegible], therefore, it is necessary to try Judge Barthwait at the bar of public opinion. Only the newspapers can do this effectively and quickly, and, therefore, the Chronicle must do it. It is a public duty.

Harry Leiter, one of the best known and best liked of society young men in this city, is at present on trial for his life. He stands accused of murdering his uncle, Henry Leiter, on the night of January 15th, of this year.

The evening preceding the murder had been pleasantly spent. There were present as the guests of the venerable Harry Leiter, Judge Barthwait and his daughter, William Wendell McCook, state's attorney, his mother, Madam McCook and Harry Leiter. That night after the guests had left, and after Harry Leiter had gone to his room, the old man sitting in the wonderful room which is famous in this city as one of the best of private museums, was killed. If a fiend had torn him, it could not have butchered him with more murderous intent. His head was hacked with [illegible] in such a manner that it gave an expression of sinister weight to his corpse. But for being so ghastly, he would have been ludicrous. In this respect it was the most remarkable crime ever committed in this city. Unfortunately, Harry Leiter and his uncle had had a slight quarrel, and after Harry had gone to his room he was touched with remorse and came down stairs for the purpose of begging his uncle's forgiveness, but he found the light extinguished. It had been put out by the man who murdered Harry Leiter; for the deed was already committed.

Restless and unhappy, young Leiter felt his way through the dark, helped himself to his coat and hat and went out for a walk in the star-lit night. By a strange coincidence he had that night become betrothed to Margaret Barthwait, his old companion and school friend. Like a true lover, he turned his steps toward the Barthwait mansion. As he was slowly wandering by, musing as a lover might, he saw a figure run rapidly to the trellis-work that decorates the porte-cochere of that imposing residence and climb it. Before he could raise objections the man had thrown up the window of the room Leiter knew to be Miss Barthwait's and entered. As he did so he spoke her name. Leiter heard him say, "Now, my pretty Margaret, I am here." What could a lover, who believed in the truth of his mistress as he did in heaven, think? The gas was lighted for a few moments. Then it was put out. The house was dark and silent, and that man, whose figure looked strangely familiar to the tormented man outside, was within.

Not to keep the reader in suspense, the man who entered that window was the man who murdered Henry Leiter. That same night that man had killed two other living objects. One was a parrot and the other was a rabbit. The parrot belonged to Margaret Barthwait, and it was killed with a stiletto that the judge kept to cut his magazines with.

The rabbit was Henry Leiter's and it was killed in the Leiter conservatory with a little garden rake. When the old butler at the Leiter house came down the morning after the murder, the first thing that met his eyes was this little creature, slaughtered as if by a wild beast. He sent one of the women servants to inform the old master. Entering the room where he usually sat in the morning, she found him in his favorite chair, in grotesque hideousness—dead.

The statement that the Chronicle must now make is a terrible one, and the full consequences of that statement have been considered.

Judge Barthwait, alone in his library with that pet parrot, wantonly killed it. Judge Barthwait returned to the conservatory of his friend's house after the others had left and wantonly tore out the brains of the sleeping rabbit with the tiny garden rake. Judge Barthwait went to his home, could not sleep for the fever in his blood, went out for a walk to calm himself, and, passing the Leiter house, saw a light burning. The good old man within was still sitting where Harry had left him, mourning over the little misunderstanding that had come between him and his beloved boy. The judge crept up to the window. It was unlocked. The old butler said next morning to the reporter who was sent to investigate the matter, that after he had got in bed he was troubled with a sense of having failed to lock one of the front room windows. What more natural than that he should have done so. The judge enters there. His old friend is surprised to find him coming into the house in that manner, but lays it to eccentricity, or thinks that he has come to consult with him about the marriage of their children. He is not alarmed when he sees him pick up a large pocket knife that lies near, nor agitated when he approaches him.

AMBITIOUS CITY NOTES.

A Protest Against Type-setting Machines—Increase in Bread Prices.

HAMILTON, May 16.—The Hamilton Typographical Union at their meeting last night passed a resolution protesting against the proposed purchase of type-writing machines for the Government Bureau and appointed a committee to draft a memorial to be presented to Sir John Macdonald explaining their grievances.

Mrs. Morton, who was so terribly burnt by the explosion of a lamp in her house on Wednesday evening, died in the city hospital to-day as the result of her injuries. She never recovered consciousness after being taken to that institution.

The master bakers of the city have decided to increase the price of bread from 11 cents to 12 cents per four pound loaf, the increase to go in force on Monday next. The raise is caused by increase in the price of flour.

The 13th Battalion band of this city and the Queen's Own band of Toronto gave a joint concert in the drill hall to-night before a large and appreciative audience, and the playing of the bands individually and jointly received loud applause.

Mr. William Carey of the firm of Southam & Carey, proprietors of The Spectator, died at his residence about 6 o'clock this evening.

JINKS' DREAM.

Jinks had a queer dream the other night. He thought he saw a prize-fighters' ring, and in the middle of it stood a doughty little champion who met and deliberately knocked over, one by one, a score or more of big, burly-looking fellows, as they advanced to the attack. Giants as they were in size, the valiant pigmy proved more than a match for them. It was all so funny that Jinks woke up laughing. He accounts for the dream by the fact that he had just come to the conclusion, after trying nearly every big, drastic pill on the market, that Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or tiny Sugar-coated Granules, easily "knock out" and beat all the big pills hollow! They are the original and only genuine Little Liver Pills.

Coughs, Colds, Croup.

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced COUGH CURE. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.

A CUBAN DISASTER.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION OF POWDER AT A FIRE.

Nearly Forty Persons Killed and Over One Hundred Injured—Four Fire Chiefs Among the Victims—Portions of Mutilated Bodies Taken out.

HAVANA, May 18.—At 11 o'clock last night a fire broke out in Yeasis' hardware store. In a short time the flames reached a barrel of powder in the building and a terrific explosion followed. The whole structure was blown to pieces and 33 persons were killed. Among the dead are four fire chiefs, Senores Mussett, Zenovich, Oscar Couill, Francesco Ordorez and the Venezuelan Consul, Senor Francesco Silva, who was in front of the building at the time of the explosion.

In addition to the killed over 100 persons are injured. The explosion caused the wildest excitement throughout the city and thousands flocked to the scene of the disaster. The Governor-General, the Civil Governor and all the principal authorities of the city were promptly on the ground and did everything in their power to aid the injured and calm the grief-stricken relatives of the victims.

Several houses adjacent to the wrecked building were damaged by the explosion.

Gangs of men are at work on the debris. Many human limbs have been taken from the ruins. The relatives of missing persons supposed to be in the ruins are gathered on the spot and as the bodies are brought out the scenes are most distressing. The conduct of the authorities is the subject of universal praise. The highest officials have incurred personal risk in conducting the search for the dead and have offered the use of their own carriages to convey the injured to the hospitals. Yassi, the proprietor of the wrecked hardware store, has been arrested. It is feared that there are several more victims in the ruins.

Over the theatres and the Chamber of Commerce and many other buildings flags are hanging at half mast. Everywhere are signs of mourning.

Up to the present time the number of the dead is 34.

Other Fires.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 17.—The works of the Oriel Cabinet Company were burned last night. Loss, $150,000; insurance, $70,000. A few dwellings adjoining were destroyed.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., May 17.—Covington, the saloon town across the river, was entirely consumed by fire yesterday morning. In January all the buildings on the west side of the only street were burned, and yesterday's blaze took all on the east side. Nine buildings were burned, including 6 saloons. Loss $16,000. There is no probability that the town will be rebuilt.

LAKE PARK, Minn., May 17.—Carlson Ebeltaft's store was burned here early yesterday morning. Ebeltaft and his family lived in the upper story. Two of Ebeltaft's children were cremated, and the rest of the family had a narrow escape. P. Martinson's residence was also consumed and the business portion of the town was only saved by hard work.

ROCHESTER, Minn., May 18.—An explosion of dust occurred in John A. Cole's flour mill here yesterday and the mill was destroyed by fire, which followed. Loss $30,000.

SALT LAKE CITY, May 18.—Henry Dinwoody's furniture establishment was burned here to-day. Loss $125,000.

TOLEDO, May 18.—Early this morning fire broke out in the third floor of the Crescent Candy Company's establishment in the Hiett block, which speedily spread to the wholesale grocery of Wood & Manny. There were 600 boxes of firecrackers and Roman candles in the stock of the Crescent Candy Company, whose explosion caused the flames to spread with great rapidity. All four stories of the candy company's store were gutted and the wholesale grocery is nearly a total loss. The loss is $107,250.

Ontario's Marvellous Jump.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—S. S. Howland's high jumping horse Ontario, who with Roseberry held the high jumping record of the world, made at the Chicago horse show in November last, yesterday afternoon in the presence of 150 persons at the Washington Riding Academy on a clay floor made the extraordinary high jump of seven feet, thus breaking his own and all other records.

A DOUBLE CALAMITY.

TOMSK SWEPT BY CONFLAGRATION AND CYCLONE.

Hundreds of Lives Lost—Three-fourths of the Buildings Destroyed—Brutality of the Garrison—Thousands Wander Homeless in the Stinging Cold.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 17.—Horrible scenes are reported as having occurred during the burning of Tomsk, the capital of Western Siberia. The place was visited by a conflagration and a cyclone, the result of the combined disasters being the destruction of three-quarters of the buildings, which were of wood, and the loss of hundreds of lives.

The cathedral, situated in the High Town, is in ashes. The walls in falling crushed the adjacent hospital, burying the inmates, who were subsequently roasted alive. The garrison brutally refused to render the least assistance in saving lives and property on the plea that they had enough to do in protecting the barracks and other government buildings. They also added that they had no time to assist "worthless exiles." In strong contrast to this action of the troops was that of the bishop and his assistant priests, who went about the streets succoring the wounded and blessing the dead.

Much of the suffering might have been averted had there been the slightest effort at organized relief. The storm was followed by a sudden fall in the temperature and soon the devastated city was buried beneath a mantle of snow that added stinging cold to the sufferings of the thousands of men, women and children that were without shelter.

Moltke's Speech Makes for Peace.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The Tribune's London cable from Mr. Smalley says: Count von Moltke's speech on the Army Bill on Wednesday in the Reichstag is more important than any other event on the Continent during the week. So deep is the impression which this discourse has made that it may be said it will do not less to preserve the peace of Europe than all the new legions which Germany is preparing for. Count von Moltke has dispelled once for all the delusion that the next war is likely to be a short war. The powers of Europe, he tells the world, "are armed as they have never been armed before. No one of them can be shattered in one or two campaigns so completely as to confess itself beaten and to conclude peace on hard terms, or not to recover in a year or two and renew the conflict. It may be a 7-years' war; it may be a 30-years' war. Woe to him who sets fire to Europe."

There is no nation, there is perhaps even no Emperor who, after such a warning as that from the first soldier of his time, can enter upon a war with a light heart. Till Count von Moltke spoke the common idea was that the next contest would be sharp but short. No idea did more to make war possible and probable. Count von Moltke said many other striking things. It is the speech of a man who thinks much and speaks seldom. The era of Cabinet wars, he [illegible], is over. "We have now only peoples' wars," of which the consequences are incalculable. What is wanted is a strong government, strong enough to resist popular impulse. "For a long time past only the sword has kept the sword in its sheath." It will be long before the echo of these peaceful phrases, with the ring of steel in them, ceases to reverberate throughout Europe.

Bismarck's Talk to a French Reporter.

PARIS, May 18.—The Matin publishes an account of an interview had with the French journalist, Des Houx, who recently spent a few days at Friedrichsruhe and was entertained at dinner by Bismarck. The conversation was devoted principally to political reminiscences. Bismarck referred to his resignation as a first-class funeral but added that he was quite alive still. He did not understand the French law compelling retirement from public service at 60 to 65 years of age. He had been forced to retire at 75 but he was too young to do nothing. He was accustomed to politics and now felt the lack of political business. His resignation was absolutely final. He defended himself against the charge of barbarity in having caused the bombardment of Paris. He declared that Germany would never attack France or provoke France to attack her. Germany well understood that Russia would intervene to protect France if attacked, just as Germany would aid Austria if Russia attacked her. He professed high admiration for President Carnot, M. de Freycinet and M. Constans.

Russia Threatens the Porte.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 18.—The Porte has not yet replied to Russia's claim for the payment of the arrears of the war indemnity. M. Nelidoff, the Russian ambassador, in an urgent note to the Porte demands the payment of the arrears from the new loan. Otherwise he adds Russia will reserve the right to take further measures.

Another Trans-Atlantic Race.

LONDON, May 18.—The Anchor Line steamer City of Rome sailed from Queenstown at 12.30 p.m. to-day for New York. The Guion steamer Alaska sailed at 1.20 p.m. and the Cunard steamer Aurania at 3 p.m. All went ahead at full steam "directly" they cleared Queenstown harbor. There is heavy betting on the result of the race.

A Riot at Halle.

BERLIN, May 18.—An anti-Semitic meeting was held at Halle to-day at which Deputy Sonnenberg was the principal speaker. Rioting broke out between Socialists and anti-Semites and the meeting was dissolved by the police. The Socialists stormed the platform and a free fight ensued. Many arrests were made.

Sir Henry Parkes's Leg Broken.

[illegible] Cotton in the Crimea.

LONDON, May 18.—An attempt will be made in [illegible] to cultivate American and other cotton in the Crimea and other places on the Black Sea coast.

Another Victory for Wissmann.

BERLIN, May 18.—Advices have been received from East Africa that Major Wissmann captured Mikindani on May 4, placing the whole coast from that place to [illegible] in the hands of the Germans.

Boulanger [illegible].

LONDON, May 18.—General Boulanger has informed a friend that the letter by which he dissolved the Boulangist National Committee does not mean that he is renouncing his claims, but that he desires the absence of any medium between universal suffrage and himself.

French-Canadian Miners on Strike.

UTICA, May 18.—About 60 French-Canadian miners, at the Jefferson Iron Mines, Antwerp, have struck for an advance from $1.20 to $1.50 per day. The company will not concede. The other miners are working as usual.

ROYAL SOCIETY OF CANADA.

Topics for the Annual Session at Ottawa on May 27.

OTTAWA, May 18.—The Royal Society of Canada will hold its annual session here on May 27 and following days in the railway committee room of the House of Commons. This year's meeting promises to be of unusual value to the country, judging from the program which has been prepared. Mr. Sandford Fleming, C.M.G., will devote his presidential address to the topic of the unit measure of time, which his well known knowledge of the subject is sure to render popular and interesting. In the English literature section, Dr. J. G. Bourinot, C.M.G., the clerk of the House of Commons, will deliver a series of important papers upon politics under the title of "Canadian Studies in Comparative Politics," which will be divided under the heads of Canada and England, Canada and the United States and Canada and Switzerland.

Sir Daniel Wilson, president of Toronto University, will read a paper upon the Vinland of the Northmen, in which he will review the narrative of the Sagas relative to the explorations of the Northmen on the coast of North America in the tenth century, and will argue that the site of "Vinland the Good" was a Nova Scotian locality rather than that in Rhode Island favored by Rafn in The Antiquitates Americanae. Rev. George Patterson, D.D., has promised a paper upon "The early Portuguese explorations on the northeast coast of America and the first European attempt at colonization there," and Mr. Charles Mair of Prince Albert, the historian of the Northwest, will contribute what is sure to be a valuable paper upon "The American Bison."

But perhaps the most attractive portion of the intellectual bill of fare to be submitted to the societaires is that of the section of French literature. Such names as Benjamin Sulte, Napoleon Legendre, Louis Frechette, Hon. Felix Marchand, J. Marmette, J. M. Lemoine, Paul de Cazes, P. LeMay, Faucher de St. Maurice and the Abbes Laflamme, Cuoq, Verreau and Casgrain carry their own value and an assurance that the documents they will submit will be of the highest interest.

LIVED NEARLY A CENTURY.

Death of Mrs. Nancy Bridge Jefferies at Hamilton, Aged 96.

HAMILTON, May 17.—Mrs. Nancy Bridge Jefferies, relict of Col. Jefferies, who was perhaps the oldest woman in Hamilton, died this morning. She was born in Montreal on Oct. 13, 1794, and was therefore 96 years old. Her father was a U.E. Loyalist. She was married three times. In February, 1815, she married Philemon Terrill, who died in December, 1820. Her second husband was Dr. Parker, whom she married on May 13, 1824. He died on Oct. 29, 1828. In March, 1831, she married Col. Jefferies, who took part in the putting down of the rebellions of 1813 and 1837. He died in August, 1836.

Mrs. Jefferies lived in Montreal most of her life and used to take great pleasure in telling about the growth of the city. Three or four years ago she came to Hamilton and lived with her granddaughter, Mrs. J. S. Robinson, 53 Victoria-avenue north. She enjoyed good health until three or four months ago, when she was taken sick, but her illness was not considered serious until a couple of days ago. Her memory was clear, and she was very active for a woman of her age. Her two children, Dr. Terrill and Mrs. Creighton, wife of Rev. William Creighton, are both dead.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Argument in the St. George Case Finished—Judgment Reserved.

TORONTO, May 19.—The argument in the St. George accident case was concluded Saturday. His Worship reserved decision, to be given at an early date. It was decided to meet at 10 o'clock on Wednesday, June 18, to proceed with the assessment of damages in each case before the same jury.

Mrs. Abbie Burrell, who displays a modiste's sign at 322 College-street, was arrested Sunday night on a charge of keeping an irregular house. Three young women with a male companion each, found in compromising situations when the police called, were also arrested. All gave fictitious names.

It is claimed that Assistant Police Magistrate Baxter's appointment was illegal and that consequently all his judgments and sentences are void. Chief Justice Galt on Saturday, on application of counsel for James Lynch, sentenced to six months at hard labor for vagrancy, issued a writ of habeas corpus calling upon the authorities to show cause to-day why the conviction should not be quashed.

MURDERER SMITH'S CONFESSION.

He Beat His Wife with a Bible, then with a Poker.

LONDON, Ont., May 17.—In connection with Henry Smith's confession of the murder of his wife, the prisoner says that he inflicted the bruises on the woman's head by beating her with the heavy Bible before he hit her with the poker. It is understood further that he accused his wife of improper intimacy with a soldier in the Old Country before their marriage, and this was the ground on which he was provoked into the crime.

It is founded, says Mr. Besant, as the organ of literary men and women of all kinds; the one paper which will fully review, discuss and ventilate all questions connected with the profession of literature in all its branches. Publishing and the ways of publishers will be a prominent topic. Many other features of practical value and much interesting literary discussion and literary news are found in this first number, which is excellently edited throughout.

ALL ON BOARD LOST.

THE JESSIE BRECK CAPSIZES NEAR NINE MILE POINT.

Her Crew of Seven Find Graves in the Angry Waters—All the Victims Residents of Wolfe Island and Kingston—The Latest Particulars.

KINGSTON, May 17.—During the gale today the schooner Jessie Breck, loaded with oak timber from Toledo for Garden Island, capsized near Nine Mile Point and it is feared the crew were all lost.

The victims were:

Thomas Mackie, captain, Wolfe Island.
Joseph Mackie, mate, Wolfe Island.
Maria Mackie, cook, Wolfe Island.
John Mackie, sailor, Wolfe Island.
Frank George, sailor, Kingston.
William Murphy, sailor, Kingston.
R. Davidson, sailor, Kingston.

The first four were brothers and sister. The captain was married.

People on shore who saw the vessel capsize say that about 1½ o'clock she was [illegible] seen battling with the heavy sea. She careened time after time, but righted, until finally she went over on her side and disappeared. The steamer Hiram Calvin was at once dispatched and found the boat water-logged and drifting down the Batteau channel. Her canvas was torn into shreds, her stern knocked out and her deck load floating. Her boats had undoubtedly been torn away while trying to weather the storm. The steamer hung about Wolfe and Simcoe Islands for an hour, but could get no trace of the crew. The capsize is supposed to have occurred two miles from shore. The Jessie Breck was valued at [illegible] and uninsured. Breck & Booth owned her.

Damage on Burlington Bay.

HAMILTON, May 18.—Considerable damage was caused on the bay, principally among the yachts, by the gale of Friday night. The Verve dragged her moorings from opposite Zealand's dock to near the yacht club house. Here her anchor was let go and she rode easily until this morning, when the Mascot, in turning round, ran into her, cutting her moorings and anchor lines and carrying away her bowsprit. She immediately went on the shoal, where she appears to be lying easily. The White Wings broke her mooring, but her anchor was let go before she touched the shoal, although she is lying very close to it. The little Daphne broke loose and went to pieces against Myles' dock, not a vestige of her being left above water.

Heliographing Extraordinary.

PRESCOTT, Ariz., May 18.—The greatest achievement made yet in heliographing was accomplished during practice in the department of Arizona yesterday by Lieut. Wittemeyer, who signalled a message by a single flash 125 miles from Mt. Reno, near Ft. McDowell to Mt. Graham, near Ft. Grant, where it was received by Capt. Murray. The latter by turning his instrument flashed the message to Ft. Huachuca, a distance of 90 miles, making a total distance of 215 miles with a single interviewing station. The longest distance heretofore with a single flash is said to be about 70 miles.

Clark of Gloucester, Mass., bound for Key West. He says the schooner capsized last Thursday in a squall off Frying Pan shoals. He believes all on board except himself were lost. The victims are Captain Sargent Lane and five seamen.

Cutting Western Passenger Rates.

CHICAGO, May 18.—The Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City road yesterday gave notice that it would reduce the rate between Chicago and Des Moines from $12.15 to $8.65. This is cutting into the local territory which has been so jealously guarded by some of the Missouri River lines and will prove a particularly hard blow to the Rock Island, which has advanced its Missouri rates in order to protect the revenue on interstate local traffic.

"Try Ayer's Pills"

For Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout. Stephen Lansing, of Yonkers, N. Y., says: "Recommended as a cure for chronic Costiveness, Ayer's Pills have relieved me from that trouble and also from Gout. If every victim of this disease would heed only three words of mine, I could banish Gout from the land. Those words would be—'Try Ayer's Pills.'"

"By the use of Ayer's Pills alone, I cured myself permanently of rheumatism which had troubled me several months. These Pills are at once harmless and effectual, and, I believe, would prove a specific in all cases of incipient

The Daily Review.

MONDAY, MAY 19, 1890.

THE LATE MRS. NICHOLLS.

The will of the late Mrs. Nicholls, a portion of which, relating to the public bequests, has been given to the public by the executors, shows her to have been a lady of a large heart and generous impulses. She had already won the gratitude of the people of Peterborough by her donation of the fine Nicholls Hospital building and the grants she had given to the endowment fund of that institution, and she had manifested her deep interest in religion by the aid she had given to the Presbyterian churches, especially St. Andrew's, and to the Young Men's Christian Association. By her bequests now made public, however, she has established her memory more firmly in the hearts of the people. The legacy to the town for public parks alone amounts to over $5 per head of the whole population of the town, while the bequests for the parks, the hospital and other charitable, religious and educational institutions of the town amounts to the large sum of $176,000. In addition to this she has bequeathed $25,000 to Presbyterian missions, $10,000 to the aged ministers and widows and orphans funds of that church, and $40,000 to the Presbyterian colleges. In all the public bequests amount to the large sum of $262,000.

It is unnecessary to enlarge on the nobleness of mind that such benevolent gifts manifested, for it will be recognized and appreciated by all. No monument will be needed—though by a grateful people a memorial may be erected—to commemorate Mrs. Nicholls' munificent gifts, for the public buildings, parks and institutions she has donated, endowed or benefitted will be lasting memorials of her generosity and by succeeding generations, as well as by the present, she will be held in venerated remembrance.

A SHAMELESS ACT.

It is becoming too evident that the Examiner will stop at nothing to try to forward the political interest of the Government candidates. In its issue of Friday evening, May 16th, it quotes Dr. Caven as having said that "unqualified approval is fully deserved" for the Government Separate school bills of last session and that it was his "positive opinion" that that bill "does remove all ambiguity and doubt on the question." The whole paragraph which purports to be the words of Dr. Caven occupies fifteen lines, and the words we have quoted are printed in large type.

Now, not one line of the paragraph was ever written by Dr. Caven and the words attributed to him are not his at all. He never wrote them; they were never used by him in any public way, and the Examiner has placed his name to sentiments he has never expressed and words he never used. It has attributed to him words that sound very much as if they were those of a strong partisan of the Government, but whoever may be responsible for them they are not Dr. Caven's.

Such a shameless act cannot be too severely characterized. And this is not the first time that the Examiner has misrepresented Dr. Caven's position and put words in his mouth that he did not use, although this attempt is of a bolder and more barefaced character. Such utterly disgraceful tactics could only be required in an utterly bad cause, and they should be severely condemned.

The electors must be continually on their guard if they would not be deceived. A paper or a candidate that has perpetrated such a fraud on the public should not be trusted.

Dr. Caven, with other officers of the Equal Rights Association, issued an address to the electors in which their views were distinctly given. This address was published in the REVIEW, but we will reproduce some salient features of it. One paragraph says:—

"You are now called upon to elect representatives to the Legislative Assembly, and the legislation of the next four years on the subjects dealt with in this manifesto may be fraught with consequences of great importance to the future well-being of the province. It behooves, therefore, every lover of his country to bear well his part in the maintenance and defence of principles so dear to every British heart."

In reference to the limitatory clause in the B. N. Act regarding education the address says:—

"At this juncture, therefore, those of you who agree with the view taken by the Council it is hoped will see to it that there are members in the next Assembly, where the motion for the repeal of the limitatory clause must by constitutional usage originate, who will ensure that the question is brought up."

The address further says:—

"There is, however, in the opinion of this Association, a fundamental principle in relation to the Separate schools which should never be lost sight of. It is that every person must be assumed to be a supporter of the Public schools, unless, being a Roman Catholic, he, by written notice given by himself or by his agent duly authorized in that behalf, declared himself a supporter of Separate schools.

"That this principle, at least prior to the legislation of last session, had been violated there can be but little doubt."

The address proceeds to say that the Council "deem it inexpedient to express any positive opinion" in regard to the amendment of last session on that subject. It also declares for the ballot in Separate school elections, for state supervision of instruction and text books used in the schools, and that the Province must remain "emphatically an English-speaking province." The address closed as follows:—

"Such are the views of the Council on the issues which present themselves at the present election. How are those amongst you whose opinions are reflected in this statement to give them effect? The answer is plain. In constituencies in which candidates have not been nominated by those who owe allegiance to the Association, the candidates in the field should be approached by our friends in the constituencies, and he who—other things being equal—is found to be most in accord with our principles should receive their hearty and undivided support.

Signed on behalf of the council:—

WM. CAVEN, Chairman.
E. DOUGLAS ARMOUR, Secretary.

J. K. MACDONALD,
DALTON McCARTHY,
D. J. MACDONNELL,
JOHN T. SMALL,
ALEXANDER FRASER,
Committee on Address.

In opposition to this official declaration the Examiner perpetrates the fraud of putting Dr. Caven's name to words he never uttered.

The Government candidates show their anxiety by having no less than three Cabinet Ministers invade the county. Mr. Hardy came first, then Mr. G. W. Ross, and Mr. Drury followed. The ministers will find that it was labor lost.

Did the REVIEW examine the report of the Minister of Education, and not notice that the report of grants to schools is divided into two parts, one for grants to county schools, and one to schools in towns and cities?—Examiner.

The REVIEW gave the figures representing the grant to the town Separate schools and to those in the county, and that was pretty plain evidence that we noticed the division. But Mr. Ross, speaking to a town audience, quoted the county figures only, and omitted the town figures, which is pretty plain evidence that he intended to mislead.

FRIENDS OF LABOR.

MR. MOWAT and his Government is extolled, by those to whom interest it is to do so, as "the men for the masses." But when Mr. Ingram and Mr. Garson, the two labor men in the House, moved last session that "the annual income of any person derived from his personal earnings to the amount of $700," be exempt from taxation, Mr. Mowat and his colleagues opposed it, and it was voted down, among those who voted against it being Mr. Stratton.

To Nervous Debilitated Men.

If you will send us your address, we will mail you our illustrated pamphlet explaining all about Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belt and Appliances, and their charming effects upon the nervous debilitated system, and how they will quickly restore you to vigor, and manhood. Pamphlet free. If you are thus afflicted, we will send you a Belt and Appliances on a trial.

BELIEVED TO BE A SUICIDE.

The Body of a Former Resident of Dundas Found in a Creek.

BUFFALO, May 18.—The man's body found in Scajaquada Creek at Black Rock Friday was buried yesterday, as it was in an advanced state of decomposition and could not be held longer. From letters found on the body it was thought that the remains were those of John W. King of No. 850 Washington-street. A reporter called at that number yesterday afternoon. In a small back room in the tenement block were found John King's sister, a widow with two daughters, and old Mrs. King. They were horror-stricken at the intelligence which the reporter was first to bear to them.

"It must be my poor brother," said Mrs. Sullivan. "He has been missing since about Christmas and not a word has been heard from him. Those letters that were in his pocket addressed to "John W. King" from Dundas, Ont., were from my father, John King, I suppose. Poor Jack was in the habit of writing to father, who lives at Dundas."

Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. King immediately went to the morgue, where their worst fears were corroborated, although they were not allowed to see the body. It is believed that the death of King was a suicide, as there were about 15 pounds of lead in his coat pocket.

His Revised Wishes.

A man got into a side yard on Adams avenue the other morning to find himself surrounded by three large dogs, each one of which seemed perfectly willing to take hold of him, and as he stood there in anxious frame of mind a woman opened the door and asked:

"Want anything?"

"Y-yes."

"Victuals or clothes?"

"Neither one, ma'am."

"But you came for one or the ot——"

"Exactly, ma'am, but circumstances have worked a grave and important change in my wants. I think my present suit will last me for the next five years, and I don't care if I don't have anything to eat for a month to come. If you would only be so kind as to—"

She called 'em off and he skipped.—Detroit Free Press.

The Victim of Circumstances.

"I would work, mum, only I met with a fatal disappointment in early life."

"Poor man, you don't look as if you'd got over it yet."

"I haven't mum. I always felt I was cut out for something great. But as soon as I learned that Columbus had got ahead of me in discovering America I lost ambition and wept. After a while I found the same was true of Shakespeare in poetry and other men kept getting the Presidency. So it drove me to drink. But I'm on the lookout, mum, and my time will come yet."

The victim of crushed aspirations took the innocent old lady's donation and shortly afterward proved that the path of intoxication leads to fighting and the station house.—Philadelphia Times.

Mrs. Nicholls' Funeral.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Charlotte Jane Nicholls took place on Saturday afternoon to Little Lake cemetery. The cortege which followed the remains of the benevolent lady to their last resting place was large and highly respectable. There was no elaborate display to signify that she whose mortal remains were being borne to the tomb had been one of Canada's wealthiest ladies. The Town Council and civic officials attended the funeral in a body, and business was suspended on George-st. while the procession of the dead passed down to the cemetery. The blinds in all the stores and places of business were lowered and business was hushed out of respect to the memory of the charitable woman who had been called away. The bearers were Messrs. Jas. Stevenson, M.P., G. McGill, Richard Hall, T. G. Hazlitt, Robt. Innes and Judge Weller.

At the Police Court this morning Mayor Stevenson, who was on the bench, fined him two dollars or ten days. Lacking money he took the days. Another inebriate, was fined one dollar and costs. He paid up and regained his liberty.

Dr. Davies Secured.

A telegram received late on Saturday night announced Dr. Davies' final acceptance of the post of organist of St. John's. This intelligence, as may be supposed, has already given great pleasure and satisfaction to St. John's congregation, many of whom had hardly dared to hoped that this unexpected engagement could be finally consummated, without some obstacle intervening. However, Dr. Davies has now actually taken the position, and St. John's church, as well as the town generally, is to be highly congratulated on the fact. Several letters have already been received from men of recognized position in Ottawa and Montreal bearing the highest testimony to Dr. Davies abilities and character, and expressing deep regret at the possibility of losing his services. Rev. Canon Ellegood, of Montreal, through whose persuasion Dr. Davies first came to Canada, says the Doctor was organist in his church for eleven years giving such satisfaction that he had to press his resignation three times before the congregation would finally accept it. Canon Ellegood says he "considers Dr. Davies to be the ablest organist in Canada to-day." When asked here what made him willing to come to Peterborough Dr. Davies said that on his last visit three years ago he took such a liking to the town and St. John's church that the notion of coming to Peterborough, if occasion offered, then suggested itself forcibly to him. Now the opening has been presented and accepted and within a few weeks Dr. Davies and his family will have been added to Peterborough's citizen-roll.

MANLINESS URGED.

Rev. J. C. Davidson Preaches the Annual Sermon to the Sons of England.

It is the custom of the Sons of England to attend divine service every year on the Sunday which falls the nearest to the 24th of May, Her Majesty's birthday. It was in accordance with this custom that the members of the two local lodges of the Sons of England attended service at St. John's church in a body yesterday afternoon. The rain was falling heavily when the members of the two lodges, over one hundred strong, marched from the lodge room on Hunter-st. to the church. The service was an interesting one, the thoughtfulness in having the entire service neatly printed in phamphlet form allowing each member to follow and enter heartily into the beautiful service from the opening hymn to the benediction. The sermon for the occasion was delivered by Rev. J. C. Davidson, Chaplain of Peterborough Lodge, while Mr. F. Saunders, Chaplain of Lansdowne Lodge, read the lesson.

A SERMON ON MANLINESS.

The discourse was well-timed and fell upon most attentive ears. It was based on the words:—

> "And Moses called unto Joshua and said unto him in the sight of all Israel; 'Be strong and of a good courage, for thou must go with this people unto the land which the Lord has given unto their fathers to give them and thou shalt arouse them to inherit it. And the Lord, he it is that doth go before thee; he will be with thee, he will not fail thee; neither forsake thee; fear not, neither be dismayed."—Deut. xxxi, 7-8.

The rev. gentleman said there were some qualities so necessary to their well-being that they all naturally admired them of themselves. These qualities appealed to all so directly that they should naturally seek them if not directly told to do so in the Bible. Such in the case of woman was modesty and such in the case of men was manliness, courage and spirit. These qualities, he went on to say, were impressed upon them by the Word of God given to man and from this collection he had chosen from among several of similar import one extract which told men to be strong and courageous, and not dismayed; one in which they could see where the message to the human nature ended and where the supernatural began. The preacher went on to point out how the human nature urged them, as Moses urged Joshua, to be and then came the supernatural voice telling them to be strong, to be courageous and spirited, because they had a mission and a work, and the Lord it was that went before them and would be with them and would never forsake them. They should be strong because their mission was a divine one and their work a God-given work. The preacher dwelt upon these qualities, which in a word he called manliness, as spiritual endowments, and pointed to the example given them in scripture in the courage of David, of Daniel and lastly the purest of all centred in the life of Jesus Christ. He told them as Sons of England they could see the propriety of these grand qualities and credited the high and proud position which Britain held to-day to the British courage, the British endurance and the British spirit which was clearly united and allied with true British faith in God, that God in which they all did believe. He said they might all read the characteristics of their forefathers, but they must also remember that God went before them. Continuing further, the minister repudiated the idea that the aims or results, direct or indirect, of the society were to make Englishmen in this land feel that England was their only privileged abode, country or home and that this was a land of exile. If their object was to make Englishmen feel towards England as Chinamen felt towards China, then he said it would have been far better if the society had never been, for they would be causing division and discontent in this land where they should be united. The spirit of the society, he claimed, was the spirit of the text, to be strong, courageous and men of spirit. He made a comparison between the children of Israel and the members of the society before him, and said that considering the over-crowded state of their beautiful and historical land and the poverty and lack of employment which existed there that it had been the direct providence of God that had led them to this beautiful country, where there was abundance of opening and room for them and their families. In closing he exhorted them to be strong, courageous and men of spirit in this day of darkness, and said their society occupied a unique position in that it combined the two great fundamental principles of loyalty to Queen and empire, and faith in the God who guarded the destiny of that empire.

MRS. NICHOLLS' WILL.

A DOCUMENT DISPOSING OF THREE-QUARTERS OF A MILLION.

Prompted by a Generous Mind and Christian Heart the Public and Charitable Bequests are Liberal—The Private Legacies Withheld—The Town Receives $60,000 for Public Parks.

An unusual amount of public interest was manifested in the last will and testament of the late Charlotte Jane Nicholls, whose remains were laid in their last resting place on Saturday afternoon. This interest was naturally aroused by the fact that the deceased lady's estate was known to be worth at least over one million dollars and the manner in which she had disposed of this vast wealth was the subject of much conjecture and many surmises. The will was read on Saturday afternoon after the funeral in the presence of the relatives of the deceased lady. The document is at present kept strictly private, although many of the private bequests were learned from reliable sources. However, the executors, Messrs. Richard Hall and C. McGill, have made request that the private bequests be not used by the papers and therefore they are withheld for the present. The public bequests were furnished by the executors and from these it will be seen that the will distributed the wealth in a liberal and benevolent manner. The relatives and friends were given the sum of $454,000, distributed in legacies ranging from fifty thousand dollars down to one thousand, while the public and charitable requests amounted to $293,000. This makes a total of $747,000 disposed of by the will, and it is known that during the last few weeks the deceased lady has given away, in charity and other ways, cheques amounting to between two hundred and two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. The largest private requests were made to her nearest relations in New York state, while some relations in the Old Country were also generously remembered.

The will was made in August, 1888, at Asbury Park and the public and charitable legacies provided for in it are as follows:—

Schemes of Presbyterian church:
Aged and infirm members fund	$ 20,000
Widow and Orphans Fund	20,000
Home Missions	10,000

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

"Come let us magnify the Lord together The Lord has done great things for us whereof we are glad."

The young men's meeting was well attended. Mr. Wm. Smart gave an earnest talk on the turning point in the life of Adam. When Mr. Roger told us how good the Lord had been to us through the generosity of Mrs. Nicholls our hearts were too full for utterance. It was good to be there, and all services yesterday were seasons of thanksgiving, praise and prayer for future guidance.

Mr. Wm. Freeborn led the Consecration meeting in the morning. The spirit of God was with us in mighty power.

Mr. J. C. Turnbull gave an impressive talk at the Personal Purity meeting in the afternoon. The attendance was good.

Mr. Wm. Wallbrook addressed the Gospel and Song service last evening. The hall was full of earnest listeners to the message given by our young brother.

At all the services the singing was inspiring and helpful, our orchestra assisting.

Bible Training Class Tuesday evening at 8 p. m. Every evening this week a praise and prayer. Service will be held at 7.30 for guidance and humility.

Owing to the open air concert in the park by the band of the Q. O. R. on Saturday evening next our young men's meeting will be held on Friday evening.—Com.

A NOVA SCOTIA TRAGEDY.

Fatal Ending of a Drunken Quarrel—Beaten to a Jelly.

HALIFAX, May 16.—An atrocious murder was committed at Westville, Pictou county, last night.

Dan Robertson is proprietor of a livery stable. William Robertson was a respectable citizen, a widower with two children, aged 1 and 3 years respectively. Both men had been drinking. At midnight Dan was on his way home, accompanied by three or four companions. They called at the residence of William Robertson. He came out on the street and hot words ensued. Dan moved on towards his livery stable followed by William.

When the stable yard was reached the two men clinched. Dan literally pounded his antagonist's face into jelly with an iron bar while four half drunken companions stood by.

When Dr. Sutherland arrived the body of William Robertson presented a horrible sight. His brains were spattered over the sidewalk, blood oozed from his mouth, nose and ears. His skull was battered in and his face pounded out of all recognition.

An inquest was held and a verdict returned that William Robertson came to his death at the hands of Dan Robertson.

The murderer attempted to escape but was captured.

SOLDIERS AT CHURCH.

A Good Turnout of the 57th at the Church Parade—An Interesting Service.

"God bless our native land
Firm may she ever stand,
Through storm and night
When the wild tempests rave,
Ruler of wind and wave
Do Thou our country save
By thy great might."

Thus sang the immense congregation which gathered in the George-st. church yesterday morning at the close of the eloquent sermon which Rev. M. L. Pearson delivered to the officers and men of the 57th battalion. The two hundred or more red coats joined heartily in the hymn and swelled the notes of our grand national anthem until the handsome edifice was filled with the volume of their song. And their hearts seemed to be in the patriotic prayer which they were singing. In fact during the whole service the men entered most heartily into the singing and listened most attentively to the discourse delivered.

The men of the battalion mustered at the drill shed at ten o'clock, and for the first church parade of the season there was a remarkably good turnout. Headed by the band the six companies of the battalion, under command of Major Bell, marched from the drill shed along Murray-st. to Water, down Water to Hunter and along Hunter to George and up George to the church. The marching of the men was very good, while their new uniforms and helmets, which were worn for the first time, gave them a most soldierly appearance. The officers too appeared well in new dress tunics, cross-belts and helmets.

THE SERVICE AT THE CHURCH.

At the church the centre pews had been reserved for the men, while the officers occupied seats to the left of the minister and the band was seated on his right. The remainder of the church was also crowded. A full choir was in attendance and, with Prof. Seward's masterly leadership on the organ, the singing was excellent. "Praise God from whom all Blessings flow," was sang at the opening of the service, and after the other opening exercises, instead of rendering the usual anthem the choir and vast congregation joined in one grand chorus in singing that good old martial hymn "Hold the Fort." "Onward Christian Soldiers" was also heartily sung, the band taking the place of the organ in leading.

The sermon delivered by Rev. Mr. Pearson was an appropriate one, and given with pleasing eloquence which made his congregation listen most attentively throughout. He chose for the basis of his remarks the words:—

> "Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lifted up ye everlasting doors and the King of Glory shall come in. Who is this King of Glory? The Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle. Lift up your heads, O ye gates; even lift them up ye everlasting doors and the King of Glory shall come in. Who is this King of Glory? The Lord of hosts, He is the King of glory."—Psalm xxiv, 6-10.

The minister in opening said there were four great facts in the history of redemption which it would be well not to keep in mind, four rungs in the grand ladder which rests upon earth and touches the sky. These he enumerated as follows:—Born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate and died and was buried, the resurrection and the ascension up into Heaven to sit on the right hand of God. He, the minister, said that last Thursday was Holy Thursday and was observed as such in some of the churches. In that church, he said, it was the custom on the Sabbath after Holy Thursday to [illegible] out as far as Bethany [illegible] Mount of Olive with the [illegible] Christ lift up His hands and bless them and then ascend again into heaven. Accordingly the rev. gentleman proceeded to dwell upon the ascension and to point out the reasons why this event should be a cause for rejoicing among Christians. He then referred to some of the struggles in the battle which Christ fought upon earth and made his remarks appropriate to his martial audience by reference to the achievements in secular history, interspersing his patriotic remarks with well-chosen quotations. In closing he reminded them that they were all soldiers in the war contending for the faith which had been committed to the ranks and appealed to them to report for duty under their Great Captain. The closing hymn, as already referred to, was the National Anthem, and was heartily sung.

After the service the battalion reformed and marched down George-st. to Hunter, along Hunter to Aylmer, down Aylmer to Simcoe, down Simcoe to George and up George to the drill shed.

There will be another parade on Tuesday night.

A Good Beginning.

The first match of the Canadian Military Rifle League was shot on Friday. The local Rifle Association has entered the League this year and they made a score of 665 points. This was a good record, as in the list of the results of the shooting in sixty-two Associations throughout Canada the local Rifle Association stands fifth, being tie with the 13th Battalion of Hamilton. The National Holiday.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—I would like to add my quota to what is said in yesterday's REVIEW by "One of the Boys of 1866." What a reflection it would be upon the fair fame of our town if the greed of a few merchants can quench our loyalty, and instead of celebrating commemorating the breaking [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] out of it some filthy lucre. Just think of it! Clerks and others coming all the way from Toronto to aid us in the celebration and we ourselves not allowed to take part in the proceedings and enjoyment. Nor does the proposal to ask the Mayor to proclaim a day in the following week in lieu of the proper day better things, as if the Queen's birthday could be changed by the proclamation of any man. Man's loyalty and religion are commensurate. No doubt these same moving spirits would postpone the Sabbath day if they thought they could make more money on Sunday than Monday. The Mayor would have as much power to change the one as the other. The Queen's birthday is a statutory holiday just as much as Sunday, and the Mayor's mandate cannot affect or alter an act of Parliament. He might just as well try to repeal the Jesuits Estate Act, which I presume he would not attempt. If these few merchants try to make the day unobserved for their personal gain, let all the ladies and loyal subjects make know their displeasure.

LOYALTY.

Rev. Mr. Burton's Lecture.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—It is hoped that the people of Peterborough will take advantage of the lecture of the Rev. John Burton, M.A., B.D., on "Socialism and the Land Question Viewed Scripturally," to-morrow evening in the Opera House. In the principal cities of the English-speaking world the single-tax theory is making wonderful progress. It finds advocates and enthusiastic ones, too, amongst the most distinguished statesmen of the world. Free admission places this lecture within the reach of all. The city of Hamilton, only the other day, exempted all machinery from taxation. Labor and capital are vitally concerned.

MONDAY, MAY 19, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

And Judge Barthwait wantonly murders his old friend, Henry Leiter. Then he locks the window that none may know how he entered. He goes out by the door and he flings away the knife as he goes. By a fell chance that knife bears Henry Leiter's name, and the reporter for the Chronicle picked it up the following day, where he had dropped it. Then the judge runs madly through the streets, this way and that. At last he reaches his home. His thirst for blood is not satisfied yet. He will cap the climax of his bloody carnival by slaying his daughter. He enters her room from the outside, so that if he is discovered he may be taken for a burglar. He lights the gas, approaches his daughter—and his heart fails him. He goes to his room and leaves her.

The next morning it is possible that remorse comes. But this article does not intend to furnish the explanations for the remarkable and unique crimes of Judge Barthwait. These motives are not yet known. The facts given are, and to these, therefore, must this article be restricted.

Meanwhile, Leiter, maddened by what he esteemed his lady's infidelity, rushes off without knowing where he is going. In the morning he is found lying on the ground near Lawndale. A farmer picks him up, carries him to town and drops him at a Turkish bath house. In the middle of the afternoon the young man recovers from his stupor and goes home to find his benefactor and kinsman murdered. Can he tell where he spent the night? If he does he must tell that he saw a man enter the window of an honorable lady, and one who is still dearer to him than life, and that he saw that man turn out the gas and stay there in the darkness. His lips are sealed as they could not be by any other incident. He, being a gentleman, must die before he can speak. And this, from first to last, he intended to do.

The public may be curious to know how the reporter gleaned his first suspicion of the murderer. The story is a short one. A few days after the crime he was walking with Miss Barthwait, whom he had met upon the street, and of whom he desired to ask a few questions. As she neared her home, the greyhound which passers-by have noticed ornamenting the veranda of the judge's mansion these several years, bounded out to meet his mistress as if stricken with terror. When she tried to force him up the steps he shrank in visible fright. She suggested that something might have taken possession of the kennel, and the reporter ran hastily around the house. As he did so he saw Judge Barthwait entering the back door. The reporter already knew of the killing of the rabbit and the parrot. And he could not help being struck by the coincidence. Yet so above reproach was the character, the charity and philanthropy of Judge Barthwait that he put it from his mind.

Several weeks later the reporter was walking along North Clark street in a hard snow storm. The figures of those upon the street showed but dimly in the strange light, but he was attracted toward two that seemed to hold some sort of relation to each other. From the first the reporter was persuaded that one was following the other. And the curious part was that the man who was being followed seemed a common tramp while the pursuer was a well dressed man who walked with a proud carriage and with that poise of the head that marks the well-bred gentleman. They both turned down the stairs that lead down the side of the bridge to the dock. The reporter leaned idly over the bridge, wondering what they could want there on such a night. It was easy to guess that the first man wanted a night's shelter in a doorway. But what could the other desire?

Suddenly the reporter thought he heard a cry, but the air was so muffled with that blanket of snow that he could not be sure. He hastened down the stairs. Midway of the block he found the first man murdered. A light falling from a high window showed him that the throat had been cut and the face lacerated in a fantastic manner, exactly like that of Henry Leiter.

Why had the form of the man who followed looked so familiar? That was a question that settled itself a few evenings later when the reporter had occasion to visit the house of Judge Barthwait, ostensibly on a simple errand, in reality to see if he would talk about the Leiter case. For, knowing him to be a man of unrivalled experience in criminal matters, and the friend of the murdered man as well as of the accused, his opinion was valuable. Sitting there, the reporter's eye fell upon one shelf of the judge's book-case which was so remarkable that he could not keep from examining the titles. He had observed them closely for some time before he saw that the judge was greatly annoyed by his scrutiny of them. This annoyance showed itself in words so rude that the reporter was obliged to leave. As he did so the judge walked rather angrily before him to the door. And the reporter recognized the walk!

If any prove incredulous, let them listen to the titles of the books: "Neurosis, or the Blot Upon the Brain," by Ireland; "The Source of Crime," by Richard Brownell; "The Incurable Criminal," by Joseph O'Neil; "Hereditary Crime," by Martin Congreve; "Mimetic Hysteria and Contagious Insanity," by I. Goodall, and many others of the same sort. From these books it will be apparent that he has been a close student of crime. These investigations have been carried to a great length—to a sinister length. Yet it must once more be remarked that this article does not deal with the motives of Judge Barthwait's crimes.

It appeared to the two or three persons who were watching the course of Judge Barthwait's mania that it was taking a desperate turn and that at any time his daughter's life might be sacrificed. Miss Barthwait was therefore persuaded to leave home for a time. A tale was invented which made this conscientious young lady willing to deceive her father as to her whereabouts. She was supposed to be at Tillingham Marshes, where her father had a snug little shooting box. Instead of that, with a trusted companion, she was living in the city.

Meanwhile the reporter had gone to Tillingham Marshes himself. He believed that the judge was laboring under the worst form of his mania, and that when he thought his daughter to be there in practical solitude he would yield to the temptation and make one more effort to take her life. It was even so. A few nights passed quietly. At last came a night when a man entered the window of the room where Miss Margaret would have slept had she been there. This man rushed through the darkness to the bed, and leaning over it, fumbling and muttering, felt for the form he expected to find there. The reporter, sitting in the far end of the room, lit a match. With a cry the figure leaped through the window, carrying the sash with him. No train went back to the city before 8 o'clock in the morning. The reporter took that train. As he looked up in the mirror, he saw reflected in it the face of Judge Barthwait, and on one cheek was a slight bloody rent as if his barber had cut him, or as if he—had been injured with broken glass. One hand was swathed in a handkerchief. The judge did not speak to the reporter although he knew him.

There was no longer any doubt in the mind of the reporter that Judge Barthwait was the victim of a terrible mania. What the reason for this mania is, the reporter does not know, but has a theory which came to him from the decision rendered by the judge in a criminal case eighteen months ago. But that may be reserved for the last.

The great Leiter case was called. As was his place, Judge Barthwait sat on the bench. The prisoner before him was a victim of his own terrible, unbidden crimes. More, he was the child of his dear friend—not his son, to be sure, but as dearly beloved by him as if he were. He was the betrothed lover of his daughter. But did the judge flinch? Apparently not. He has sat upon that bench with dignity, wearing a virtuous front. There is some strange mental condition here which cannot finally be arrived at. Harry Leiter has long been acquainted with the truth. He has known that his judge was the culprit. Yet for the sake of that honored name, and because of his dread lest Miss Barthwait should suffer, he has concealed what he knew. More, he has obliged the reporter, who was his friend and confidant, to do the same. Silence would have been kept till the end, had there been any chance that Harry Leiter could be cleared. But the chain of circumstantial evidence seemed too strong to break. Even so successful an attorney as Roger Brisbane was not able to give an innocent aspect to the circumstances that surrounded him. At the last moment the reporter offered his evidence. It was refused by the court. Being aware that an appeal for a new trial will be met with a similar reply, it becomes necessary to make this open exposure.

If this is a lie, Judge Barthwait will be in court to-day. If it is true, he will not. An accomplished criminal might face it still. Judge Barthwait is not an accomplished criminal. It is hard to tell what he is.

BIG CUSTOMS SEIZURES.

The New York Officers Make Two Rich Hauls on Saturday.

NEW YORK, May 17.—An important seizure of men's clothing, cutlery and bric-a-brac was made this afternoon. The articles were discovered on a wagon on the Inman line dock. They were in parcels and trunks and had been carried from the steamer City of New York, which reached here Wednesday. Customs officers this afternoon also seized upward of $60,000 worth of rare Japanese silks and bric-a-brac at Martin's stores, Brooklyn, on the American ship Leading Wind. Captain Huntley is in command of the ship the Leading Wind arrived from Japan on Thursday. The officials learned there were numerous articles aboard which were not on the ship's manifest. They searched the cargo and in one corner of the hold and among some old rope and tarpaulins found what they were looking for. Several boxes, barrels and cases were there and in them were porcelains and silks said to be the finest ever brought into this country. No mention of these was made on the manifest. There were also thousands of dollars worth of rugs, laces and shawls. Captain Huntley said the goods were personal property and that he had brought them over for the purpose of decorating his cabin.

Gladstone on Siberian Outrages.

LONDON, May 18.—Mr. Gladstone speaking at Lowestoft yesterday said the English public conscience had been greatly shocked by the reports of Russian prisoners being ruthlessly shot without the form of a trial and by the fact that these outrages passed without the reprobation of the Russian Government. He had been asked why he did not denounce these outrages in the House of Commons, but he felt a scruple about asking the Government to take steps unless he could see the way to a favorable result. He desired to see the law applied in his own land whenever cruelty and oppression were found. He would be glad if the Government was in a position to expostulate with Russia, but he feared Russia might retort that a country whose police ruthlessly shot innocent Irish citizens engaged in a public meeting was hardly in a position to dictate how another country should treat its convicts.

'A HORSE WHO CAN TALK!

Everybody has heard of a "horse laugh," but who has ever seen an equine gifted with the power of speech? Such an animal would be pronounced a miracle; but so would the telegraph and the telephone a hundred years ago. Why, even now, merely a cure for consumption, which is universally acknowledged to be curable affecting the lungs, would have been looked upon as miraculous, but now people are beginning to realize that the disease is not incurable. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure it, if taken in time and given a fair trial. This world-renowned remedy will not make new lungs, but it will restore diseased ones to a healthy state when other means have failed. Thousands gratefully testify to this. It is the most potent tonic, or strength restorer, alterative, or blood-cleanser and nutritive, or flesh-builder, known to medical science. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh in the Head, and all Lingering Coughs, it is an unequaled remedy. In derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels, as Indigestion, or Dyspepsia, Biliousness, or "Liver Complaint," Chronic Diarrhea, and kindred ailments, it is a sovereign remedy.

GUARANTEED. "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine of its class, sold by druggists, under a printed guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will benefit or cure in every case of disease for which it is recommended, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded.

FIELD, GARDEN & FLOWER SEEDS.

Purchasers of seeds must now be convinced of the disappointment experienced in buying seeds from boxes or packages already put up and placed in stores on commission and in many instances transferred from place to place for many years before being sold, the disappointment experienced not only from their non-vegetative powers but from the small quantity contained in each paper. To prevent these disappointments Messrs. Ormond & Walsh sell the whole of their seeds by weight at a fair and moderate price with a guarantee of their

DRAWN DOWN TO DEATH.

JAMES H. PARCELS' TERRIBLE FATE IN A QUICKSAND.

He Was Slowly Sinking to Death for Five Hours—A Crowd Made Frantic Efforts But Could Do Nothing to Save the Doomed Man.

NEW YORK, May 19.—James H. Parcels, a night despatcher in the New York Post Office, met a terrible death Saturday night in Woodside, L.I., though for over five hours almost the whole population of the town was trying to save him.

Mr. Parcels, who was about 50 years of age, had built a new home for his wife and six children, but had not moved into the house. In his yard a well had been driven. Mr. Parcels discovered Saturday morning that a portion of the pipe underground was defective, and in the afternoon, about 4 o'clock, he set about digging down to the lower end of it, intending to repair it. He began digging from the base of the boring which protected the upper portion of the pipe, and made an excavation about two feet square, shovelling the earth into a bucket, which was hauled up by his son Stephen.

He had dug down to about 15 feet from the surface when his feet struck quicksand and he began to sink gradually. He shouted for help, but his son who had been hauling the bucket up had gone into the house.

When young Parcels reached the well and looked down his father was buried up to the waist in the quicksand. Stephen immediately called Peter Brandt and Lawrence Beck, who were at work in the house. A long handled hoe was held down the well by Brandt and for nearly an hour Parcels scooped out the sand from around himself and filled the buckets as fast as they could be hauled up, but no headway was made. A force greater than the entire weight of his body seemed to be drawing him down.

Shortly after 5 o'clock Dr. [illegible] Wood arrived with a number of other villagers and seeing that Mr. Parcels was down to his head in the sand quickly obtained a long rubber tube and a bottle of brandy. Some of the brandy was conveyed to Mr. Parcels' mouth and then the tube was given him so that he might be able to breathe, even if his head should be covered.

Mr. [illegible] Near then went down into the well on a ladder, taking a rope with him, and after scooping some of the sand from around Mr. Parcels' body, succeeded in placing a loop of the rope under his arms.

The rope was run to the second story window of the house and a dozen sturdy men hauled with all their might upon it but without effect, as the unfortunate man kept sinking.

By this time a crowd of nearly a thousand surrounded the well. Seeing that the attempt to pull Parcels out of the sand was ineffectual thirty of the men obtained shovels and began to dig around the well.

They worked with a will, but it was a big undertaking, and at 8 o'clock they were still a long way from Mr. Parcels, who had sunk entirely below the surface of the sand, his head being covered. With the aid of the tube in his mouth Mr. Parcels managed to breathe for nearly an hour after his head was covered.

Dr. Wood was as far down the well as it was safe to go and kept hold of the sinking man's hand. The Doctor says that about 9½ he heard Mr. Parcels say through the tube, "Hurry, hurry." A few seconds later he ceased to breathe. It was 10½ before the men who were digging succeeded in making an opening sufficient to pull the body of Mr. Parcels through sideways. His death was due to suffocation.

The General Assembly.

SARATOGA, May 19.—In the Presbyterian General Assembly to-day Dr. Kempshall moved that the report of the Committee on Methods of altering the constitution be referred back to a committee enlarged by seven new members fairly representing both sides, with instructions to report as soon as possible to this assembly. This was seconded by Dr. Patton and opposed by Dr. Roberts, the chairman of the committee, who thought the matter had not been sufficiently debated. Dr. Kempshall thought the reference back would prevent waste of time and perhaps serious and lasting dissension. Dr. Patton said he had seconded the motion in the interests of harmony. Dr. Herrick Johnson of Chicago moved that Dr. Kempshall's motion be tabled. Lost.

Dr. Kempshall's motion was carried.

As a result the market was dull and lower.

Utica reports: The cheese market exhibited no encouraging features. There was no improvement in prices. On the contrary there was a further decline. About the only thing the salesmen had to be thankful for was that the decline was not more decided. The indications early in the afternoon were that ruling prices would not be higher than 8⅛c, but before the day's transactions were closed it was established at 8¼c, a fair figure considering the condition which prevails. The top price was 8⅜c though there were rumors that in two instances 8½c had been paid. The day's transactions were 119 lots, 7747 boxes; ruling price 8¼c. A LIFE FOR THREE DOLLARS.

Suicide of a 20-Year-Old Girl at Dundas by Taking Rat Poison.

HAMILTON, May 19.—Amy Waterhouse, a young Dundas girl, died on Saturday from the effects of a dose of rough-on-rats administered by her own hand. From her own confession it appears that she did not intend to kill herself, but merely took a dose of the poison to make her sick. The girl had lived with the family of George Davidson for four months. On Friday she had some trouble with Mrs. Davidson about the disappearance of about $3, which the girl was suspected of having stolen. She wanted to leave the house, but Mrs. Davidson would not let her go because she knew the girl had no place where she could stay.

The foolish girl then went to her room and took a small dose of poison. She was taken sick, but Mrs. Davidson believing that the illness was brought on by worrying did not consider it serious. At 10 o'clock that night Dr. Ross was summoned, but he could not discover the cause of the girl's illness. It was not until Saturday morning that she threw her arms around Mrs. Davidson's neck, confessed that she had taken the poison and asked to be forgiven. It was then too late to save her life and she died shortly afterwards. She told Dr. Ross that she did not intend to take enough poison to kill her.

An inquest was opened on Saturday before Coroner Ross and a jury. After viewing the body the jury adjourned until Thursday night. The deceased was about 20 years old. She was born in England, and her parents being dead she was brought to this country by Miss Rye. For some time she was in the Children's Home here. She left there a couple of years ago, and was at service in Lynden before going to Mr. Davidson's.

He was found Saturday morning sitting on the side of the bed with his throat cut, and directly underneath the bed was a pail half filled with blood. Alexander was 70 years of age and had never been married.

"Try Ayer's Pills"

For Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout. Stephen Lansing, of Yonkers, N. Y., says: "Recommended as a cure for chronic Costiveness, Ayer's Pills have relieved me from that trouble and also from Gout. ASSISTANCE FOR AGRICULTURE.

The Provincial expenditure has gone up rapidly during the past twenty years, but the grants to the local agricultural societies remain exactly the same as they were in 1870. The withdrawal of the grant to the Provincial Exhibition afforded a good opportunity for giving further assistance to the agricultural societies, and Mr. Hudson moved on April 3rd last, seconded by Mr. A. F. Wood, "That this House regrets that especially in view of the withdrawal of the grant for holding the provincial exhibition, an additional grant has not been made to local agricultural societies."

This motion was opposed by the Government, and its members and supporters voted against it in a body.

TESTED BY THE ACT.

On behalf of the Government candidate it is said:—"The law now provides that every ratepayer must be classed a supporter of Public schools until he gives notice to the clerk of his municipality that he desires to be rated as a supporter of Separate schools." The law, instead of reading in that way, distinctly provides as follows:—

"The assessor or assessors of every municipality shall set down the religion of the person taxable, distinguishing between Protestant and Roman Catholic, and whether supporters of Public or Separate schools; but nothing herein contained shall be deemed to interfere with the rights of Separate school trustees under the Separate Schools Act. The assessor shall accept the statement of, or made on behalf of, any ratepayer, that he is a Roman Catholic, as sufficient prima facie evidence for placing such person in the proper column of the assessment roll for Separate school supporters, or if the assessor knows personally any ratepayer to be a Roman Catholic this shall be sufficient for placing him in such last mentioned column."—Public Schools Act, sec. 120.

In order to place the Public and Separate schools in the position they occupied before this clause was inserted, Mr. Meredith introduced a bill which provided that in making up the collector's roll the clerk should rate as Separate school supporters only those who had notified him in writing that they desired to be so rated. The Government and it supporters, including Messrs. Stratton and Blezard, voted against that bill.

ANOTHER EXPOSURE.

In yesterday's issue we referred to a shameless act on the part of the Examiner of Friday last in putting the name of Rev. Dr. Caven to words he never used. But previous to that, on May 8th, the same paper had made an altogether unauthorized use of Dr. Caven's name and had misrepresented his position grossly. The Examiner of that date contained the following:—

"The self-styled 'Equal Rights' candidate seems to be 'in for' repudiation from all quarters. Firstly: Rev. Principal Caven, the head and front of the Equal Rights movement, has cast him off—he objects to Mr. Carnegie taking the 'base and immoral ground' of making the Equal Rights movement an 'instrument in the hands of a designing man for party (and personal) advancement.'"

In saying this the Examiner did so without any authority, and to endeavor to give some color to its statement it distorted a sentence from a letter written by Dr. Caven and inserted words he had not used. What the rev. gentleman did say was that "some who value the principles of Equal Rights" would "permit the Association to become an instrument in the hands of designing men for the advancement of party." The Examiner altered the form of the sentence, changed "designing men" into "a designing man," and deliberately falsified the sentence further by inserting the words "and personal," which were not in Dr. Caven's letter. In its original shape, as written by Dr. Caven, the letter and the sentence taken from it had no reference whatever to Mr. Carnegie, and a letter received from that gentleman states that no one had authority to apply it to the Equal Rights candidate, as was done by the Examiner. The following is the letter referred to:—

"TORONTO, 16th MAY, 1890.

"DEAR SIR,—In the extract which you enclose there are some words quoted from a letter of mine which appeared in the Mail of 30th April. IT SHOULD BE UNNECESSARY TO SAY THAT NO ONE HAS MY AUTHORITY TO APPLY THEM TO MR. CARNEGIE. Any person can see their connection and bearing in the letter referred to.

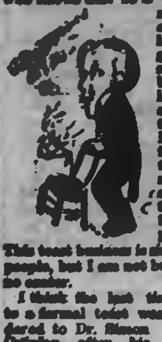
"Yours very truly,
"WM. CAVEN."

"It should be unnecessary to say" that the President of the Equal Rights Association had made no such reference to a candidate of the Association, and it would have been unnecessary if the Examiner had not falsified Dr. Caven's letter. The conduct of the Examiner was just such conduct as Dr. Caven referred to in his letter to the Mail as "base and immoral." No doubt this falsified extract from Dr. Caven's letter and this unauthorized use of his name has done duty in other ways. It is easy to quote views of eminent clergymen favorable to the Government candidates when such "base and immoral" falsification is resorted to as has been shown in this case, and the even bolder case in Friday's Examiner, when a whole paragraph is ascribed to Dr. Caven, though it was not written by him and was the work of some partisan of the Government.

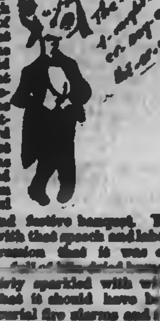
RESPONSES TO TOASTS.

SOME OF THE DIFFICULTIES OF SPEECH-MAKING.

A Post-Prandial Orator Who, Unlike Chauncey Depew, Labors for Months to Prepare a Five-Minute Discourse—Where He Gets Ideas.

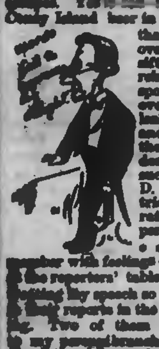


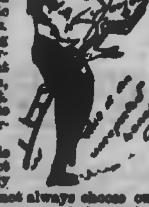
The pleasant sensations of the condemned who knows that he is to be hanged when a month's time has elapsed are not unknown to me. I have got 'em again. Scared, nervous, never had 'em, but—just wait. Perhaps, unfortunately, I am not to be hanged at the end of the month. But what I am to do is this: I am to respond to a toast at a banquet next Saturday night, and if it were not for the disgrace of the thing I think I would prefer being hanged. This toast business is simple enough for most people, but I am not built that way. I am no orator.



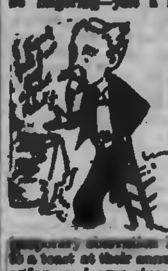
The er— A—ahem—er—

I think the last time that I responded to a formal toast was at the banquet tendered to Dr. Simon Quinlan after his election to the high and mighty position of [illegible] of the benevolent order of Elks in the United States. I did myself proud on that occasion, and responded to "The Press." The toastmaster afterward told me in confidence that it was not considered good form to spring an unexpected funeral oration at a gay and festive banquet. Yet for days I labored with that speech and labored under the impression that it was an exceptionally fine effort, full of [illegible]. Why, to me it fairly sparkled with wit—sparkled so much that it should have been provided with mercurial fire alarms and fire escapes. Yet it fell as dead as a [illegible] of Coney Island beer in May. Still I believed that my speech bubbled over with fun and sparkled with wit. Finally when I rehearsed that toasted response at home it bubbled over to that extent that it leaked through the floor and spoiled the ceiling of the room below mine. Indeed, to insure perfect success, I rung up six A. D. T. messenger boys and tried it on them at the rate of 40 cents an hour per boy. They laughed . . . I shall always remember with feelings of gratitude my friends at the reporters' table, at the banquet, for treating my speech so leniently as they did in their reports in the papers the next morning. Two of them kindly attributed it to my personal brand [illegible] that I should suffer from a chronic condition of paralysis. One hinted at softening of the brain, considerately applying for that the Latin term, which I now forget. There was also a delicate allusion to mental paralysis.

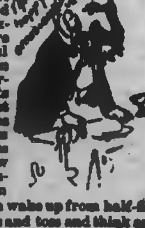


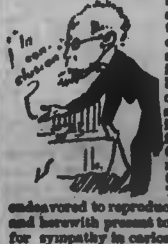


The whole trouble arises from the fact that I am too intensely modest. But we can not always choose our own virtues. The assortment of virtues that I now possess is of the acquired kind like a fondness for caviare, with whipped cream. Next Saturday night I am again to be led like a spring lamb to the slaughter. Only I won't be slain outright—it will be lingering—just a little chunk is to be chopped off at a time. It happens thus: I am an honorary member of the Solemn Thinkers' Club, a swell organization made up of ex-coal barons, retired plumbers, ice men, brewers, [illegible] of gas trusts and the like. In fact, a very desirable set of fellows to meet—outside of business hours and dark alleys. In a moment of unusually temporary aberration I promised to respond to a toast at their annual banquet next Saturday, and ever since I have suffered the tortures of the mill-damned. A couple of hundred guests have been invited and will participate in my confusion.



That toast lies heavily on my mind. There is no butter on that toast for me. There is not a drop of cream for it to float in—no, not even skim milk. It is brittle toast and rough and charred except in spots where unavailing, regretful tears have fallen on and moistened it. During the day thoughts of that coming toast sandwiched themselves in with the thoughts that I am sometimes compelled to bestow upon my ordinary duties. At night I dream of that toast, and then wake up from half-finished slumber and toss and toss and think and think of that infernal toast and of what I shall say in its response. In all this desert of mental misery there is but one little oasis of consolation. It is the vision of the other scared, blanched-cheeked chumps whom I have seen arise like shivering, squeaking spectres from their chairs at the banquet table and mouth and stammer at the toastmaster's call. These visions I have endeavored to reproduce in black and white and herewith present together with a prayer for sympathy in cartoon lots.—Chicago Herald.





Potato Rot.

Sulphate of copper has been frequently recommended to prevent potato rot. It may do so, but it must be carefully handled. An American farmer recently tried it. He dissolved at the rate of 4 oz. to the gallon of water, immersed the seed potatoes in it for about half a minute, then dried and planted them, but they never appeared above the ground. On taking them up afterwards he found all the little eyes and shoots destroyed as if by fire. Advocates of the sulphate process explain the failure. They say the solution was too strong; that there should have been but 1 oz. instead of 4 oz. to the gallon of water. Also that the seed should be merely dipped in the mixture and taken out immediately. A writer in The N. Y. Times says that he has tried the latter plan for several years in succession, and invariably with excellent results. Nor did he ever see any damage from it. It would be well for those contemplating experimentation to remember the mixture and the manner of its application.

Boilers for High Pressure.

Power-Steam tells that an English engineer proposes to make boilers capable of withstanding greatly increased pressures by constructing them of two shells and maintaining a pressure in the space between them. A boiler, to work safely under a pressure of 250 pounds, would consist of an inner shell capable of withstanding a pressure of 150, surrounded by a shell whose safe working pressure was 100. Reducing valves allow sufficient steam to pass from the inner boiler to the space between the shells to maintain the required pressure, and the inner shell is thus subjected to an unbalanced pressure of only 150 pounds, although containing steam at 250. Each compartment is of course provided with safety valves.

A UNION OF SOCIETIES.

The Local Endeavor Union Organized—The Constitution and Officers.

The first meeting of the Peterborough Christian Endeavor Union was held last evening in the Sunday school room of the George-st. church. This meeting last evening saw the Union Society come into existence under most favorable and encouraging auspices. There were about two hundred young people present from the different Endeavor Societies in town and the proceedings were of a most interesting character. Such union societies are flourishing in all the cities and Peterborough's will not be a weakling.

THE UNION'S CONSTITUTION.

Mr. A. H. Scott, of the George-st. Society, occupied the chair at the opening of the meeting. The proceedings opened with singing, prayer and scriptural reading, after which the report of the Union committee appointed by the societies of St. Paul's, Murray-st. Baptist and George-st. churches respectively was read. The report stated that the committee had decided to form a local union with a constitution of seven articles. This constitution is given as follows for the benefit of those interested:—

ARTICLE 1.—This Society shall be called the Peterborough Christian Endeavor Union.

ARTICLE 2.—The object of the Society shall be to stimulate an interest in Young People's Societies of Christian Endeavor in Peterborough and vicinity, to increase their mutual acquaintance, and to make them more useful in the service of God.

ARTICLE 3.—Any Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor in Peterborough and vicinity whose organization is its aims, and prayer meeting obligations, conforms generally in spirit to the "Model Constitution," may join this Society by notifying the Secretary.

ARTICLE 4.—The officers shall be a President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer, and shall be selected from active members to serve one year, remaining in office till their successors are elected. All the Presidents of the Y. P. S. C. E. forming the Union shall be Vice-Presidents of this Society. The President, Vice-Presidents, Secretary and Treasurer shall constitute an Executive Committee to provide for the general interests of the Union.

ARTICLE 5.—This Society shall hold meetings at such times and places as shall be determined by the Executive Committee. The President may call special meetings of the Executive Committee when he may deem it necessary.

ARTICLE 6.—The duties of the President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer respectively shall be the duties usually pertaining to these offices.

ARTICLE 7.—This Constitution may be amended by a two thirds vote of all the active members present at any meeting, the amendment having been submitted in writing, and notice having been given at least one regular meeting before action is taken.

The report, which introduced other minor matters, was adopted. The nomination committee then reported recommending the election of the following officers:—

PRESIDENT—Dr. Scott.

VICE-PRESIDENT—A. W. McCallum.

SECRETARY—A. E. Burch.

TREASURER—J. Connal.

This report was also adopted.

The interesting programme which had been arranged for the evening was then proceeded with, after the newly elected officers had acknowledged their respective elevations and honor in an appropriate manner. Under the head of business Messrs. R. J. Colville and A. W. McCallum were appointed delegates to the International Convention of Endeavor Unions, which is to be held in St. Louis from June 12-15. Mr. R. J. Colville, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., and Rev. Messrs. Torrance and Parker made short, terse and interesting speeches, while a selection was rendered by each of the three societies represented in the union.

The evening's programme was interesting, and after a short time had been spent pleasantly in social intercourse, the meeting closed with the benediction.

The Cobourg baseball club are to play here with the Association team on May 24th. The game will be played at the Exhibition grounds, and as this will be Cobourg's senior team a good game may be expected, as the local nine will do their prettiest to keep the reputation they won last year.

Methodist Convention.

To-morrow (Wednesday) at 9 a.m. the Peterborough district meeting opens and at 2 o'clock a public convention will be held. Questions of importance will be discussed by the delegates, among them being the "Layman Memorial," the "Superannuation and the Church Funds," and the question of "College Federation." The convention will be open to the public and all who desire can take part in the discussion. The meeting will be held in the lecture room of the George-st. church. A collection will be taken up in the evening to defray expenses.

Poverty Was Unhandy.

Two vagrants were the only unfortunates before the magistrate this morning at the Police Court. Patrick Reddy was the tall, clean looking individual who was held on suspicion of having been connected with the Lakefield safe burglary. The fellow has been in gaol on remand for a week, but he has been as silent as a clam, and as nothing could be found against him in connection with the daring burglary he was charged with vagrancy and promising to leave town at once he was discharged. Ed. Carleton was an aged vagrant. He said he had been in Hastings and was on his way to friends in Peel. He said he did not know it was "against the law not to work." The magistrate remarked that in this world it was considered a crime to be poor. "It's mighty unhandy," remarked the old man as he picked up his bundle and started away with "Thank ye, your Worship," as the magistrate discharged him on a promise to leave town.

An Indian's Disappearance.

The disappearance of Brocklin Crow, of Hiawatha, has caused uneasiness in the Indian village. He was in town on Saturday and left the wharf in a canoe heavily laden with flour, a tub and other articles. Two or three miles down the river he put these articles on the shore and left them there, and it is said that he was seen struggling in the water with the canoe. He had not returned home yesterday and no trace of him has been found.

Rev. Mr. Burton's Lecture.

The Rev. John Burton, M. A., B. D., of Toronto, is recognized as a divine of stability and power—a man who thinks deeply and gives out in a lucid manner the result of his study. The subject of his lecture to-night, "Socialism and the Land Question viewed Scripturally," is one in which the whole civilized world is interested to-day. There is diversity of opinion regarding it, but all should be versed in the question and this lecture will be an opportunity to learn more of some phases of it.

A Gift for Otonabee Lodge.

At the regular meeting of Otonabee Lodge, I.O.O.F., held last evening a cheque for two hundred dollars was received from Miss Eliza M. Rowe, of St. John's, N.B. The cheque was forwarded to the lodge through Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., who in the letter which accompanied it said that Miss Rowe had instructed him to send the cheque to the lodge to be applied to the charitable funds of Otonabee lodge in memory of the late Robt. Rowe, her brother, who was one of the earliest members of the lodge and who for many years held the office of treasurer. The generous gift was received with applause, and a resolution was passed instructing the Secretary to convey to Miss Rowe through Mr. Stratton the gratitude of the lodge for the kind, thoughtful and liberal remembrance.

The Oddfellow's Excursion.

The joint committee of the two local Oddfellows lodges which has the Oddfellows excursion in charge met last night. It was decided to run the excursion to Belleville and Massassaga Park, a beautiful spot five miles below Belleville on the Bay of Quinte. The date was fixed for Tuesday, June 17th, and full particulars will appear shortly. It is proposed to make this the excursion of the season. The band will accompany the pleasure seekers and the Canton will also be invited to attend in uniform, while the Oddfellows of Hastings, Campbellford, Stirling and Belleville it is expected will also turn out in good numbers and participate. Cheap rates will be arranged for the round trip and an immense crowd will undoubtedly accept this opportunity of seeing the beauties of the Bay of Quinte and the City of Belleville.

Royal Hand Bell Ringers.

Of the Royal Hand Bell Ringers, which appear here on Thursday night, the Toronto Mail of Feb. 21st said:—"The Royal Hand Bell Ringers, of London, England, who appeared last night in the Pavillion Music Hall, gave a highly pleasing entertainment. They play on a series of 121 bells, and have acquired a manipulative dexterity which can only result from special talent, supplemented and strengthened by long practice. The music they produce is remarkably sweet, the quality of the tone from the bells being, while soft and sweet, of surprising carrying power. This kind of entertainment could very easily be made monotonous, but variety is given and interest maintained by a skilful management of the programme. Very successful numbers last night were Sullivan's 'Lost Chord,' the Irish and Welsh airs, and a piece introducing the Westminster Chimes and Big Ben. Mr. Hayward, who assisted the Ringers, proved himself a most clever performer on xylophone, metalophone and dulcimer." 1d

APSLEY AFFAIRS.

Annual Meeting of the Athletic Association—A Peculiar Plant—Political.

Correspondence of the Review.

APSLEY.—At the annual meeting of the Athletic Association here the following officers were elected for the present year:—

PRESIDENT—Mr. N. J. Webster.

SEC.-TREAS.—Mr. J. W. Webb.

FIELD CAPTAIN—Mr. D'Arcy Strickland.

FOOT BALL CAPTAINS—Messrs. Thos. Stephens and John Morris.

COMMITTEE—Messrs. Chas. Webster, Wm. Elmhurst and S. Windsor.

It was decided to hold a picnic on 24th instant, of which a foot ball match will be played, the second contest for the cup.

THE CAMPAIGN.—Mr. Blezard, Reform nominee, accompanied by Mr. J. R. McWilliams, addressed a meeting of the electors in the Town Hall, Apsley, on Tuesday evening. Mr. Blezard dealt chiefly with the financial administration of the Government, their colonization work, and touched on the timber question. He found difficulty in combatting an antagonist who was professedly as firm a supporter of the Government as he [illegible] tion of [illegible] only [illegible] had always sought to give all men their rights. Mr. McWilliams gave a short address.

CURIOUS.—Mr. R. Elmhurst has a geranium that from the same root has growing a stem bearing dark green leaves, a second stem bearing only variegated, white and green leaves, and the third stem, a branch from the second, that is a pure creamy white and bears only creamy white leaves. The white stem is now six months old and growing vigorously. We would like to hear of others if such there be.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

"Hackmetack," a lasting and fragrant perfume. Price 25 and 50 cents. For sale by Geo A. Schofield, Druggist, Peterborough.

PSYCHO BECOMES IMMORTAL.

Citizen Train Has the Everlasting Twist on the Universe.

NEW YORK, May 19.—George Francis Train, who left for Tacoma via Chicago this morning, says that on March 24 [illegible] meridian he passed beyond all human [illegible] and became immortal. [illegible] according to Citizen Train [illegible] in journeying around the [illegible] certain number of days [illegible] is invariably lost. [illegible] ordinary infallible law [illegible] occurs at about the line [illegible] meridian. Citizen Train [illegible] point in the Pacific Ocean on [illegible] have been and would have been, had he remained at home, the 24th of March. But [illegible] the 1890 there was no 24th of March. Tremendous fact! and awful in its possibilities when one [illegible] Citizen Train was born March 24, 1829. No [illegible] of all men on earth has succeeded in dodging a birthday, and consequently has become immortal and everlasting. So between the birth of Morse and [illegible]—that is between electricity and steam—the great epoch of psychic force looms up to-day a mighty and never-ending reservoir of psychology.

In his own words, Mr. Train has the everlasting twist on the universe.

ALBANY, May 19.—George Francis Train and party passed through here on a special train at 9¾ en route for Tacoma. Barring accidents he will make his trip around the world in 64 days.

Ending of the War.

As we lay facing the rebel lines around Petersburg that last winter of the war the men in the rifle pits refrained from firing at each other, except when ordered to do so to cover some new movement. One night I was in a pit about half a mile from what is known as the "crater," and I soon found that there was a "Johnny" in a pit facing me and only a stone's throw away. Everything was quiet in that neighborhood, and I had been in the pit about an hour, when he called out:

"Say, Yank, what about this hyar war?"

"What do you mean?"

"When are you 'uns gwyne to quit?"

"When you are licked out of your boots."

"Shoo! you can't do it in a hundred years."

"Well, we are going to keep trying."

He was quiet for a few minutes and said:

"Say, Yank, this is an awful war."

"Yes."

"Heaps o' good men being killed."

"Yes."

"Heaps o' property gwine to wreck."

"Yes."

"Does you uns lay it to me?"

"Well, you are helping to keep the war going."

"And I hadn't orter?"

"Of course not."

"And if I should come over to you uns it might end this fussing?"

"It would help."

"Well, sense that way to me. 'Pears to be a sort o' duty. If I kin stop this blood-shed an' won't do it then I'm onery mean, hain't I?"

"You are."

"Hain't got no true sperrit in me, eh?"

"No."

"Then I guess I'll come. I'm sheadin' right fur yur, and do you be careful that your gun don't go off."

He came to my pit, bringing his gun along, and as I passed him to the rear he said:

"This ends the wah and I'm powerful glad of it. Reckon your General Grant will be surprised when he wakes up in the mawnin' an' finds the rebellion all petered out and me a-eating Yankee hard tack."—N. Y. Sun.

THE JUDGE!

All display in writing has been avoided. There has been no effort made at cheap sensationalism. No one knows better than the writer the full meaning of all that has been said here, or how terrible are the accusations made. In conclusion, a set of instructions to the jury in the Craig case are given. They were made by Judge Barthwait a year and a half ago. Jerry Craig, it will be remembered, was a lad of 15, who was an incorrigible torturer. He took pleasure in mutilating animals; he cut at his companions with knives, and he killed a playmate of tender [illegible], cutting her in pieces after [illegible] found time that two mysterious [illegible] had been committed by him previously. Both of the victims were young girls. The cause of their murders or the person who perpetrated them, had never been guessed at. In his instructions to the jury, Judge Barthwait said:

* * * * * A great difference lies between intended and involuntary crime. Crime, to a much greater extent than is commonly thought, is a disease. There are persons born with a tendency toward crime. When such a one is found, he should not be subject to the same punishment as a man who wilfully murders a fellow creature. He should be placed where a restraint can be exercised, and where his disease may be treated by those who have made a study of diseases of the brain. At the same time, in a difficult [illegible] this sort, the jury must conscientiously guard against setting a crime down as due to insanity, when it is only due to a fatal indulgence of the love of killing, which lies dormant in most men. This is proved by the fact that men enter war with enthusiasm, and that the most highly cultivated and Christian men will enjoy a fight, and are willing to themselves participate in it, even when it is not for principle. Among the most honorable men, killing is at times a sort of fashion. There is a spot in the United States known as the old dueling ground, and here some of the best blood of the nation has been spilt. In men entirely of a more common strain this mania for killing takes a different form. Instead of the duel it is the assault, the butchery. Both the duelist and the wanton murderer are culpable. The duelist ranks higher in the law of honor only because he gives his opponent an opportunity for defending himself. Nothing is more necessary than that the State should protect itself against such dangerous persons. Men are highly imitative creatures, and we seldom hear of the commission of a peculiar crime without meeting its counterpart within a short time. This mimicry in viciousness is one of the things that the law has to put a continual check upon. For this reason it is necessary to treat with severity any who seem to have committed what I may term experimental crimes. By this, I mean crimes without any apparent motive. In reality all crimes have a motive; and more frequently than the optimist would be willing to believe the motives are pure gratification. It is a well-established fact that when man has once been given a taste of blood, he is pleasurably excited by it. Something of a carnivorous instinct lives in him. The days when men rent each other in the struggle for existence have left their mark. Every few years some child is born, who seems to possess this instinct in a great degree. The present conditions of society make this power, which, under other conditions, might be bravery, or self-assertion, a frightful vice, and a superfluous force. Crime is misdirected energy. The fierce energy born in such a person therefore becomes crime—in one of its worst forms. We call such a person abnormal. Considering the age he lives in, he is. What would be normal in one age is abnormal in another. In this age a man or child who kills is abnormal, because it is no longer necessary to kill. We are therefore forced to term such a person an incorrigible criminal. Such must be restrained; if possible, such must be cured. Where such a person can best be treated, is for the gentlemen of this jury to decide. But it is certain that such a person must be restrained, for he is no longer master of himself, and the mania that holds him will relax reluctantly.

Judge Barthwait has been noted all over the country for the extraordinary discourses which he addresses to juries. [illegible] profundity have won for him a great reputation. He has made a deeper study of the causes that lead to crime than any other man upon the criminal bench.

The question is, has he been making studies from life? Has he taken to the commission of experimental crime? Has the love [illegible] in all men, been awakened [illegible]

Wh[illegible], Judge Barthwait stands [illegible] before the people of Cook County of the commission of foul murder. The Chronicle makes this accusation, and will prove it. The Chronicle maintains the innocence of Harry Leiter of murder, and will prove it."

Thus ended the article.

* * * * *

Long before the hour for court to meet, the corridors were filled with an awed but vulgar-like crowd. The morbid in human nature lies but a little way below the surface. To watch death struggles, or the progress of great despairs, or listen to an exposure, is a great diversion and entertainment for the many.

At length the court doors opened. The crowd rushed in, in spite of the efforts of the bailiffs to restrain them. The lawyers took their places; the pale reporters entered with business-like air, as they, no doubt, will at the crack of doom. The prisoner was brought in, white as death, with a look of misery he had never worn when his life was in [illegible]. A half hour passed. The ba[illegible]ed [illegible] to call: "Hear ye, hear ye, [illegible], the County Court of Cook." Presently a deputy entered hurriedly and spoke in a low voice to the clerk. The latter appeared puzzled, but stepped down and consulted with the crowd of waiting attorneys. The lawyers talked in subdued tones, and most of them left the court room. Then out came the papers from the pockets of the vultures. "If this is true, Judge Barthwait will not be in court to-day," they read. There were sinister smiles, and looks in which enjoyment was barely concealed. Had he been a less mighty man the pleasure would not have been so great. But as it was—it was delicious. The vultures could have voted a resolution of gratitude to the absent judge for the surprise and pleasure he had given them. But as for the prisoner, he was being carried out in the dead faint of a strong man.

Pond cast one look of pity at him and then hurried from the room.

"He will never clasp my hand in friendship again," he said sadly to himself. He sent a messenger to the housekeeper of the Barthwait house, asking if Miss Margaret or the Judge were at home. He walked around the square of the house for an hour. They were not yet home. He took the cab and drove to Walnut street. The [illegible] had not seen Margaret since [illegible] the night before. Then she dropped her head on her arms and burst into a flood of tears, and Pond, unnerved at last, sat beside her, and, while he wiped her eyes, shed some bitter unregenerate drops himself.

CHAPTER XX.

HOW foreign to her knowledge seemed the city that morning to Margaret. Had she ever seen these houses before, or these towering elevators, or the etching of masts against that sombre sky, or the tangle of wires overhead in the streets? Yes, thousands of times, and yet they were all strange. Had she ever known that mumbling, stooping old man beside her, who clung to her hand, and asked her constantly where they were, and what had happened, and why they hurried so? It was her father, and she had loved and trusted him all her life; prayed for him every night, raised her lips for his kisses every morning. Hidden in her bosom was a fortune. The judge had long since held a mistrust of banks, and in his safe kept all his savings. In the first lucid moments that followed his shock he had thought of his money, as he had of the necessity of flight. Then suddenly he collapsed. His judgement, his very sanity left him. Margaret saw beside her a foolish old man, who talked constantly and said nothing.

ALBANI ISN'T SPOILED.

The Diva Sails For Europe—Her Jewels and Her Talk.

NEW YORK, May 19.—Mme. Albani has deserted these shores. On Saturday the steamship Servia bore her away from the land of her birth, along with all the jewels and bibelots and knick-knacks and memories of wild applause and assurances of everlasting affection with which a winter's sojourn in America has provided her. Sacrilege though it be to utter it, 9 people out of 10 who followed the season of Italian opera know deep down in their hearts that they like Albani better than they do Patti, and that's the truth. By-gone triumphs pale in the light of present love and a diva is but for to-day.

Albani entertained only one newspaper writer after her return from the three weeks' concert tour in the Canadas and that was a woman. To her the diva showed the bracelet which someone had given her. In the horseshoe there were eleven amethysts, each about the size of half a split pea. They were set with 22 little diamonds, and on either side of the horseshoe on the gold band were six huge diamonds and three "copper stones," mottled green affairs which are found nowhere in the world except in Canada. Then there was a big ring of sapphires and diamonds which the ladies of Montreal had given her. She had a pin presented to her by the French Minister at Quebec—the Canadian emblem, a beaver of dead gold keeping a lookout with a diamond eye, and surrounded by the maple leaves and all else that is dear to the Canuck soul.

The reporter learned something about Albani that had in the past few minutes: that she isn't spoiled. It isn't surprising that the people who travel with her love her. Would you believe it, all the time she was talking about the triumphal journey in the North she didn't say "I" did this, or "I" did that. It was always "we." The ovations, according to her story, were never to her, they were always to the company.

She did admit that the Canadians were a little kinder to her because they seemed to look on her as Canada's representative singer. "For I'm a Montreal product, you know, though I left there so early I don't remember much of it. They did just use me delightfully. If there was any place that outdid another in its welcome I think it was Quebec. The French, you know, are wonderfully enthusiastic. The University students [illegible] at the station. And didn't they make a noise! Well, I should rather guess they did! And the notables were so kind. We were most charmingly entertained by [illegible] and Sir John Macdonald, [illegible] and found to my heart's content."

NAILED HIMSELF TO A CROSS.

Sensation Caused in a Church by a Demented Young Man.

PHILADELPHIA, May 19.—Several hundred worshippers at vespers in St. Mark's Roman Catholic Church at Bristol, Pa., the other night noticed that a fine-looking young man, who moved from one pew to another until he had reached the [illegible] directly in front of the altar, was laboring under [illegible] excitement. He was [illegible] J. Curran of No. 5 Race-street, Bristol. The congregation was astonished [illegible] the enclosure in front of the [illegible] and, placing his hand on one of the [illegible] of a large wooden cross in the chapel, [illegible] a nail through his palm [illegible] he had brought with him. [illegible] before Father [illegible] could stop him. Curran told [illegible] he wished to serve Jesus [illegible] and that he was willing to offer himself as a sacrifice to the Lord. He is [illegible] years of age, and has worked in [illegible] in Bristol.

Father Maly, who is connected with the [illegible] Church, said that Curran had been [illegible] for several years, and he thought that the [illegible] of Patrick Curran, a relative of Curran who was drowned a few days ago, had aggravated his malady. [illegible] injured and that he was [illegible] quickly.

SMITH'S A GOOD 'UN.

The Colorado Pug Stands Up for Five Rounds Before Peter Jackson.

CHICAGO, May 19.—Six thousand people to-night witnessed a rattling five round match with four-ounce gloves between Peter Jackson, the colored Australian champion, who is to fight John L. Sullivan, and Ed. Smith, the champion of Colorado. Much interest was taken in the question of Smith's ability against Jackson, as the Colorado man has been trained by Sullivan's helper, Muldoon the wrestler, and as Smith recently knocked out Cleary in one round. Smith made a decidedly good showing against Jackson, standing up the five rounds without suffering a knockout. Smith appeared timid in the first round and was floored three times, but in the [illegible] and though at a disadvantage from Jackson's long reach landed repeatedly on Jackson's jaw and wind. Both men were [illegible] when the combat ended. Muldoon offers to back Smith for $[illegible] to a finish against any man in the world bar Sullivan, McAuliffe and Jackson.

Absconder Wallace Arrested.

NEW YORK, May 19.—Robert Wallace, who ran away two weeks ago with [illegible] belonging to his relative, John H. Wallace, the publisher, was arrested in Havana to-day. A requisition will be obtained.

"If a woman is pretty,
To me 'tis no matter,
Be she blonde or brunette,
So she lets me look at her."

An unhealthy woman is rarely, if ever, beautiful. The peculiar diseases to which so many of the sex are subject, are prolific causes of pale sallow faces, blotched with unsightly pimples, dull, lustreless eyes and emaciated forms. Women so afflicted, can be permanently cured by using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription; and with the restoration of health comes that beauty which, combined with good qualities of head and heart, makes women angels of loveliness.

GUARANTEED. "Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. It is a positive specific for all those painful disorders, irregularities and weaknesses with which so many women are afflicted.

HAMILTON EVIL LIVERS HEAVILY FINED.

A New York Paper Under the Ban at Montreal—Another Cliff Slide at Quebec—The Hintonburg Town Hall Burglarized and $500 in Cash Taken.

HAMILTON, May 20.—Maud Hamilton and Minnie Shaw, keepers of irregular resorts caught in the raid Sunday night, were each fined $100 by the Police Magistrate this morning, six months in jail being the alternative. Two inmates were assessed $20 each or three months. John Grey, a frequenter, was fined $40 or three months.

The Canadian Packers' Association will be in session in the city to-morrow and Thursday.

At the meeting of Hamilton Presbytery to-day these commissioners to the General Assembly were appointed: For Rev. Mr. Wells (resigned), Rev. Mr. Walker of Binbrook; for John Charlton, David Morton, Hamilton; for David McLellan, John Ross of Freelton; for Mr. McCullough, Mr. McKnight of Wyndham Centre. The resignation of Rev. Mr. Moody of St. Andrew's Church, Niagara Falls, was accepted. A call from St. John's Church, Hamilton, to Hon. and Rev. Mr. Moreton was sustained. The induction will take place on Tuesday, June 3, at 7½ p.m.

At the annual meeting of the Hamilton district of the Niagara Methodist Conference to-day Rev. Thomas Stobbs and Rev. J. E. Dyer were recommended for superannuation. Mr. Stobbs has been a minister for 40 years, never missing a Sunday from the pulpit, and Mr. Dyer for 36 years.

At noon to-day a special vestibule train with 130 Baptist clergymen and their wives en route from New England to the convention at Chicago was welcomed here by a deputation from James-street Baptist Church. The Hamilton ladies had an abundance of fruit and flowers for their American friends and decorated the five handsome coaches occupied by them.

Last night Mrs. Charles McCarthy, aged 80, dropped dead at her home, 135 Dundurn-street. Her decease is attributed to heart failure.

A Miraculous Escape.

OTTAWA, May 20.—Hugh Mix, a young man who lives with his uncle, Mr. Davis in King-street, had a terrible fall yesterday afternoon. He was employed by Major Stewart, contractor, in raising a building overlooking the cliff in the rear of Mr. Christie's in Wellington-street. A portion of the ruin gave away, carrying with it the scaffold on which the young man was standing. Down the face of the cliff he went, clutching in desperation a board of the treacherous scaffold down to the rocky strand below, a distance of 80 feet. He was picked up insensible, but to the surprise of everybody Dr. McDougall pronounced that no bones were broken and that unless his internal injuries turned out to be more serious than apparent he stood a fair chance of recovery.

A Paper Under the Ban.

MONTREAL, May 20.—A few days ago a newsdealer was arrested for having on sale The New York Mercury, which was alleged to contain libellous and immoral statements, and he was admitted to bail till May 28. This morning warrants were sworn out against a number of journalists as being the correspondents, but the names have not been divulged. Nearly all the news correspondents have already appeared privately before Judge Dugas and made depositions as to their innocence of any complicity in furnishing Montreal items of an objectionable nature.

Lost Her Life for $60.

PUGWASH, N.S., May 20.—Mrs. Jeremiah Wood of Linden was burned to death on Sunday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Wood were having a nap in the afternoon when they were awakened by the flames coming in at the window. Mrs. Wood, in attempting to go up stairs to save about $60 which was in a trunk, was caught by the flames and fell down stairs.

TORONTO, May 21.—The Civic Executive Committee yesterday decided to report a recommendation that the City Council memorialise the Attorney-General that he instruct Police Magistrate Denison to return to Toronto forthwith and resume his duties, cancelling his leave of absence.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

ALLEGED TENDENCY TOWARD SOCIALIST LEGISLATION.

The Earl of Weymss and March Complains in the House of Lords of Grandmotherly Interference with Affairs—Lord Salisbury's Reply.

LONDON, May 20.—In the House of Lords to-day the Earl of Weymss and March, Liberal-Conservative, denounced the tendency of the Government toward Socialist legislation. Parliament, he declared, seemed ready to do anything in the shape of grandmotherly legislation and to meddle with affairs that ought to be left to private initiative, like workmen's hours, the payment of wages and the feeding and education of the poor. The London County Council, he said, was especially inclined to predatory objects and fostered projects to abolish leaseholds and deprive landlords of their ground rents. They even proposed to take by compulsion, without compensation, property belonging to city guilds, in order to apply it to what they called industrial schemes. Serious legislative bodies ought to look where Socialism was leading. It was not land alone but every kind of property that was threatened. Freedom of contract and freedom of private enterprise were assailed. State help was substituted for self help, thus destroying the fibre of the nation.

Lord Salisbury, the Prime Minister, admitted the existence of a strong tendency to lean upon the State on every occasion. Against this, he said, statesmen must guard. If they imposed upon the State burdens beyond its power to bear they would create an infinite source of expense and ultimately produce unlimited corruption. Socialism might be defined as the State doing something that might be done by private persons for the sake of gain. Sometimes this was very unwise to do and at other times a wise thing. There was nothing so Socialistic as the mint and postoffice, yet at the same time there was nothing more justifiable. It was not practical politics to classify legislative proposals as Socialistic or otherwise. Every subject ought to be treated on its own merits. Too much importance, Lord Salisbury declared, was attached to a spectre of Socialism. The public could be trusted to find out what practical good lies behind the Socialist doctrine. Nobody not absolutely blind could deny the existence of great evils from which arose the Socialists' proposals and action. Industrial and other causes produced great centres of misery. We are bound to do all we can to remedy these evils, even if we get called Socialists, knowing we are undertaking no new principle or striking out on a new route, but are simply pursuing the long and healthy tradition of English legislation.

Lord Salisbury's remarks were received with cheers.

KINGS, QUEENS AND KNAVES.

Edmund Yates Chats Familiarly About His Royal Friends.

LONDON, May 20.—I hear on good authority that the Prince of Wales will go over to Ireland on Saturday next and have the opportunity of witnessing the Baldoyle races on Whit Monday, when Royal Meath is sure to run, and of assisting at the great international tennis match in Guinness' court, the only one in the kingdom, it is said, where the champions ever played. The Prince will be the guest of Sir Edward and Lady Guinness, at Farmleigh, Phœnix Park.

The young King of Servia is the coming man in the east of Europe, for the blandishments and diplomacies of Queen Natalie have been so successful that he is in a fair way to become a great protege of the Russian Government, and it is expected before long that his betrothal to a member of the imperial family will be announced. Queen Natalie and Metropolitan Michael are working hard to bring about a match between King Alexander, who is yet but 14, and Grand Duchess Exenie, the elder of the two daughters of the Czar, who is 15 months older.

I hear the King of Italy's health since the death of his brother, the Duke of Aosta, has caused anxiety. Nothing can rouse him from a state of profound melancholy.

Considerable of a sensation has been caused throughout Hungary by the beautiful Countess Edmund Szchentzi, who was well known about 10 years since in London society, being placed under restraint. Her husband, who was once reputed to be enormously rich, is now chief of the Constantinople fire brigade. The reason for this action is that the Countess is suffering from monomania.

Sir Henry James has broken down in health and is ordered to take entire rest for a long time. So he has returned his briefs and won't be seen in the House of Commons again this session. Sir Henry leaves at once for Scotland, and will reside for several weeks at a lodge in Glenquoich forest, Inverness-shire, which has been lent him by Lord Burton. There could not be a better place in which to recuperate, for the air is bracing, the scenery magnificent and there is the most perfect quiet. The sea is within a short drive.

There is a revolt in the Irish party against the desertion of his followers by Parnell, whose absence from the House of Commons and neglect of his duties as leader almost brought about a crisis last week, which was averted by his coming down to the House and moving the closure, which for a moment quieted the insurrection. Nothing is less likely than Parnell's withdrawal from the leadership and retirement to private life. He is not well and his life is full of worries and vexations, and the pending divorce suit, added to litigation regarding Mrs. Woods, is telling on his constitution, already enfeebled and overstrained, and among his party it is considered more than probable that with the end of this session he may entirely disappear from public life.

It is probable that the marriage of Stanley and Miss Tennant will take place in Westminster Abbey in July.

Several large sheep farms on the Duke of Sutherland's enormous estate in the great county from which he takes his title are to be converted into a deer forest. Sheep-farming in Scotland does not pay now.

Riotous Prague Strikers Killed.

PRAGUE, May 20.—The striking miners at Pilsen to-day made a raid on the pits and forced the men at work to quit. Troops were sent for and had a collision with the rioters. The soldiers fired upon the strikers, killing five and wounding seven.

The G.O.M. Would Like to Try Again.

LONDON, May 20.—Speaking at Spalding yesterday Gladstone said he would welcome a dissolution of Parliament and an appeal to the country.

Kansas City's Treasurer Short $20,000.

KANSAS CITY, May 20.—City Treasurer Peak was suspended from office this evening. A shortage of nearly $20,000 was discovered in his accounts.

Robbed the Western Union.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Charles Ledrec, collector, employed by the Western Union Telegraph Company here, was arrested to-day charged with stealing $9700 from the company. He afterwards admitted having stolen $8000 during the past nine years.

CANNOT PRACTICE HERE.

A New York Court's License Not Good for Mongolians in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Hong Yen Chang is an intelligent Chinaman, 28 years of age, who studied two years at Yale College and was graduated at the Columbia Law School. He was naturalized in 1887 at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., and admitted to the bar by the New York Court of Appeals. Coming here, the courts would not admit him to practice, and he will not be allowed to practice law in California. By an act passed Feb. 18, 1875, the provision governing such cases was amended so as to limit the right of naturalization to "aliens being free white persons and to those of African nativity and descent." It has been held by the Federal courts that Mongolians are not entitled to be admitted as citizens. By sec. 24 of the act of May 13, 1882, courts are expressly forbidden to naturalize natives of China. Congress alone has the power under the constitution to decide who is entitled to citizenship.

The decision is signed by Justices Fox, McFarland, Beaty and Sharpstein.

A DESPERADO'S BRUTAL REVENGE.

After Torturing His Mistress Seven Days He Cuts Off Her Nose.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., May 20.—The most brutal crime in the history of Wyoming has just been committed by Lee May, a Casper cowboy and desperado. May and Mrs. Lou Polk, a widow, have for several months been running a dance-house at Casper. The pair quarreled, Mrs. Polk leaving and moving to Douglas. May induced her to return under pretence of buying out her interest. The evening of her return to Casper the couple went horseback riding. When out of sight of town May drew his revolver and drove the woman before him into the mountains for seven days. She was lightly dressed and suffered intensely from cold, fatigue and hunger. Twice May bound her to trees while he visited ranches for food for himself. He finally took the woman to the vicinity of Osgood Johnson's ranch, near the Platte River. Here he stole a fresh horse and turned loose those ridden by Mrs. Polk and himself. Before leaving the woman he told her he was going to put out one of her eyes and cut off her nose.

"I'm going to make you so ugly that no other man will ever look at you," he said.

A desperate struggle ensued, but the woman was soon overcome and May deliberately slashed her across the face with his knife and cut off her nose. He then rode away. Mrs. Polk reached the Johnson ranch in an almost dying condition. A dozen cowboys and Sheriff Jaycox are on May's trail. If caught his lynching is a certainty.

NO LAWYER, NO DEFENCE.

Mamie Murphy's Murderer in the Depths of Despondency.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Charles E. Buchanan, known in this city as Jackson, the murderer of Mamie Murphy, was so despondent in his cell at the Tombs yesterday that Warden Osborne deemed it advisable to keep a close watch on him, fearing that he would take his own life if left alone. He has engaged no lawyer as yet and he has no defence. He admits killing the woman and says he was jealous because she was in the company of Policeman Seifert of the Charles-street station. To a reporter who saw him in a cell in the Tombs yesterday he said:

"If I could only recall that fearful act! We had been parted for a few days. I went out that night to meet her and make it up. I found her with the policeman. I wish to God I had never seen him. She sat beside him in Johnson's saloon and I sat at an opposite table watching them. She looked at me and laughed. 'Drink with me,' I said. 'No,' she replied. 'I am drinking at the other table.' I have an indistinct recollection as to what followed. I must have stabbed her at that moment."

CHOOSING CANDIDATES.

Monck Conservatives Put Up Barrister Snider of Dunnville.

DUNNVILLE, May 20.—The Conservatives of Monck have nominated Thomas A. Snider of Dunnville as their candidate to oppose Mr. Harcourt, the late member. Mr. Snider is a barrister and a brother of Colin G. Snider, Q.C., of Haldimand. The Equal Right candidate, Dr. Emmett, it is understood, withdraws.

E. W. B. Snider (Ref.) in North Waterloo.

BERLIN, Ont., May 20.—About 200 delegates were present at the Reform convention which was held here to-day. Several names were presented, but all retired in favor of Mr. E. W. B. Snider of St. Jacobs, ex-M.L.A., who received the unanimous nomination by a standing vote.

Mercier Will Not Stand For Quebec.

QUEBEC, May 20.—A delegation of electors from the county of Quebec had an interview this morning with Mr. Mercier in order to induce him to present himself as the Liberal candidate, but the Premier declined the offer, as he has made up his mind to present himself in the county of Bonaventure.

Charles Fitzpatrick was then selected as the Liberal candidate for Quebec county.

A Blow to Cornell.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—By the judgment of the United States Supreme Court in the Fiske will case Cornell University is deprived of more than a million dollars. This ends a legal controversy that began years ago. Mrs. Jennie McGraw Fiske, daughter of John McGraw and wife of Professor Willard Fiske, bequeathed the bulk of her wealth to Cornell. A liberal bequest was also made by her father. The wills were contested by her husband on the ground that the university was limited by its charter in the amount of property it might hold and that it had already reached that limit. This view is affirmed by the court and hence the money goes to the heirs instead of the institution.

Death of A. P. Muir of Grimsby.

GRIMSBY, May 20.—Andrew P. Muir of Grimsby, the father of Judge Muir, died at an early hour this morning. He had just entered upon his 88th year, having been born on April 12, 1803. He was the only son of the late Andrew Muir, who came from West Calder, near Edinburgh, Scotland, to Niagara in 1798 and settled in Grimsby the following year. Andrew Muir died in 1856, aged 93.

A Landslide Near Troy.

TROY, May 20.—A landslide occurred on the Delaware & Hudson Railway at Dodgins, a station four miles south of Fort Edward, about 9 o'clock this evening and a freight train which came along soon after ran into the obstruction. The engine and eight cars of the train were badly wrecked and the fireman badly injured. The Montreal train arriving here to-night could give no particulars of the accident.

The Behring Sea Question.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The question of the Behring Sea fisheries was considered at to-day's Cabinet meeting and it was decided, it is understood, to adhere to the policy of last season, which is practically the same as the position taken by the last and preceding administrations.

HUNTING DOWN A MAYOR

A UNITED STATES STEAMER'S GUNS TRAINED ON CEDAR KEYS.

Cottrell still in Hiding—The Marines Searching High and Low for Him—Remarkable State of Affairs in a Florida Town—War Memories Revived.

CEDAR KEYS, Fla., May 20.—Cedar Keys is virtually under martial law. Every [illegible] and the United States revenue steamer McLane lies off the city, her guns trained to the main street and covering all approaches to the water front, the railroad station, line of wharves and custom house. The boats of the McLane are all ready to be manned at a moment's notice. Officers and men have their arms close at hand and the watch is kept constantly. Captain Smythe's orders from Secretary Windom direct him to render all possible assistance to Collector of the Port Pinkerton, and this he is doing by keeping the city quiet and cowing by a show of force the numerous friends of Mayor Cottrell. Mayor Cottrell is the person who, with his band of adherents, is now being hunted down in the swamps from key to key by Lieut. Carden and his detachment of sailors from the McLane.

The feeling runs high in Cedar Keys against the President and the United States forces, and during the past forty-eight hours many of the scenes of the last war have arisen with the bitter invectives poured out on the McLane's men. More show of force is needed here. The United States marshals are powerless to make arrests, and without the presence just now of the naval force their lives would be unsafe. Mayor Cottrell, who has bulldozed and browbeaten the inhabitants of Cedar Keys during the past two years, to say nothing of the men he has shot down in cold blood and the outrages he has perpetrated on society, is now receiving every assistance from the people hereabout in his endeavor to elude capture. Not until the past week, when his high-handed action led him to threaten the life of a United States official, the collector of the port, has the United States been able to interfere, and now United States marshals have warrants for his arrest.

Captain Smythe's orders to the officer in command of the pursuing party are to take his man alive if possible, but to shoot him on the spot should he show the slightest sign of resistance. The pursuit of Cottrell has now continued over 36 hours. Under the present condition of affairs it is impossible to locate him. The country is unknown to the detachment on his trail, and on several occasions information has only been wrung out at the point of the revolver. United States Marshal Lestange, who is with the pursuing party, does not hesitate to press boats or whatever comes to hand into the service of the Government. The effect so far has been satisfactory. Cottrell has up to the present writing been tracked down to within three days. He has the advantage of the sailors, however, in a perfect knowledge of the country, though it is hoped that if they are unable to unearth their man they may run him out of his hiding place in the swamps to the high ground, where he cannot fail to be captured by those on the watch.

The presence of United States seamen in the streets of Cedar Keys has set the whole negro population wild with excitement. During the past 10 years the negroes have not dared to show their faces out after dark. Cottrell would often amuse himself by compelling negroes, and especially negro preachers, to strip to the waist and "butt" each other with their heads ram fashion. Any failure to comply resulted in the leveling of a cocked revolver, accompanied with a threat of instant death. As the detachment of Jack Tars marched through the town, their bright cutlasses and revolvers strapped to their sides, their Springfield rifles swung over their shoulders, the negroes shouted right and left: "Good Lord! the Yankee sojers is come: glory to Jesus!" One old colored woman, whose declining years have evidently not been sweetened by the reign of terror, tottered to her door and with upraised hands cried: "Glory to God! Glory! Mass Linkum sojers come at last!"

A little before midnight last night a detachment of bluecoats were landed from the McLane above the town. It marched silently down a by-street and quietly surrounded several suspected houses. All passers-by were "held up" so as not to spread an alarm. The places were thoroughly searched from cellar to attic, but without finding any trace of Cottrell or his friends, except bundles of clean clothing, evidently intended for them. Since the McLane's men have arrived the whites have maintained a sullen silence, breaking out into imprecations before the sailors only when houses were being searched. A common phrase heard is: "So this is a republican form of government!"

The feeling against Governor Fleming is very outspoken by those who dare to speak. Governor Fleming is held directly responsible for much of the present difficulty.

Yields to the Paternal Bank Account.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 20.—Elias Frankenberg, the wealthy Cincinnati merchant, arrived here Friday afternoon and has been laboring with his daughter, Fannie Frankenberg, who is playing light parts in the Wilbur Opera Company, to desert the stage. Up to to-day she refused point blank, but this afternoon, when her father offered her a check for $5,000, she weakened, and if she doesn't change her mind before to-morrow will leave for Cincinnati with him on the noon train. She is but 19 years old and ran away to join an opera company two years ago.

A Pennsylvania Storm.

SUSQUEHANNA, Pa., May 20.—This place and vicinity was to-day visited by one of the most severe storms in its history. Rain fell in torrents from 7 o'clock Monday evening until 10 o'clock to-day. Richmond's shoe manufactory was torn to pieces and drifted down the Susquehanna. Basements were flooded, roads cut up and lawns and gardens destroyed. It was feared Fox's pond, five miles above here, would break and flood the centre of the town and mounted couriers were sent to investigate. Railway tracks were submerged and suburban bridges were carried away.

The Garfield Monument.

CLEVELAND, May 20.—In the Lakeview Cemetery this morning the remains of President Garfield were removed from the public vault to the crypt in the monument. This is to be their last resting place. The remains of the President's mother were also removed to the monument, which is to be dedicated on Memorial day.

OTTAWA, May 21.—Their Excellency the Governor-General and suite will leave Ottawa on Thursday for Toronto, where they will attend the races on May 23 and 24. They will then return to the Capital for a brief stay, going on afterwards to Quebec, where they will await the arrival of the Duke and Duchess of [illegible]

High-Pressure

Living characterizes these modern days. The result is a fearful increase of Brain and Heart Diseases — General Debility, Insomnia, Paralysis, and Insanity. Chloral and Morphia augment the evil. The medicine best adapted to do permanent good is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It purifies, enriches, and vitalizes the blood, and thus strengthens every function and faculty of the body.

"I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in my family, for years. I have found it invaluable as

"For some time I have been troubled with heart disease. I never found anything to help me until I began using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have only used this medicine six months, but it has relieved me from my trouble, and enabled me to resume work." — J. P. Carzanett, Perry, Ill.

"I have been a practicing physician for over half a century, and during that time I have never found so powerful and reliable an alterative and blood-purifier as Ayer's Sarsaparilla." — Dr. M. Maxstart, Louisville, Ky.

TAKING THE MUNICIPALITIES.

By taking from the municipal treasuries the larger part of the license fees the Mowat Government has added that much more to the taxes of the people. And at the same time the appropriation for Public and Separate schools is less than it was in 1873. When Peterborough proposed to increase its revenue by higher license fees according to law, the Government stepped in and passed an act to appropriate part of the increase to itself, and it killed that method of raising revenue for the town.

When the Government in 1886 raised the license fees it refused to allow a portion of the increase to go to the municipalities. At the time the bill was before the House Mr. Creighton moved, seconded by Mr. Ieney:—

"This House regrets that of the proposed additional duties for liquor licenses no portion is to be received by the municipalities, but the whole to be applied exclusively to the use of the Province."

Against this motion the Government and its supporters voted. Since then, instead of repairing the injustice, it has increased it.

DISQUALIFYING RATEPAYERS.

By the way the franchise law stands, in regard to the alleged "one man one vote" principle, a number of people have no vote at all. If a ratepayer, between the time of the assessment or revision of the roll and the election, moves across the river from Peterborough to Ashburnham, or vice versa, he loses his vote and cannot vote in either place. It is a great injustice that men should be thus disqualified, for no good reason, from having a voice in the affairs of the Province, but that is the way the Government has fixed the law. And it refused to permit a change to remedy the injustice. When the franchise measure was before the House Mr. Meredith moved, seconded by Mr. Creighton:—

"That the bill be not now read the third time, but be forthwith referred back to a committee of the whole House, with instructions to insert as a new section number seven, 'Where an elector is not entitled to vote in the electoral district in which he resides, but is qualified to vote in another electoral district, he may vote in such other electoral district.'"

This was too liberal a provision for the Government and its supporters and the disfranchisement remains.

EXEMPTIONS.

THE Government, feeling the necessity of doing something in regard to exemptions, introduced a bill last session which placed the salaries of clergymen in the same position in regard to taxation as other income, made church property assessable for local improvement and some changes in regard to business taxes. The measure was of such a character that the Canadian Baptist properly described it as halting and illogical. Mr. Creighton moved "That this House regrets that a measure of a more comprehensive character dealing with the anomalies and inconsistencies in the mode of assessment of property for the purpose of municipal taxation has not been submitted for its consideration."

This motion was opposed by the Government, which refused to do more, and was voted down by its supporters.

THE Examiner, when cornered, admits that the paragraph it on Friday attributed to Rev. Dr. Caven was not written by him, but says it was taken from a letter written by Mr. Charlton. Mr. Charlton is a Reform member of Parliament for North Norfolk and is a strong partisan. This is just as we supposed, for no one but a strong partisan of the Government would have written the paragraph wrongly credited to Dr. Caven. Mr. Charlton is the man who repeatedly made a false accusation against a fellow member of Parliament and when brought to book a few days ago tried to smooth it over by saying he had "made a mistake." He frequently makes mistakes, but never made a greater one than the Examiner did when it tried to palm off his "approval" of the Ontario Government as Dr. Caven's. The Examiner should apologize to Dr. Caven for its conduct. And it also owes an apology to Dr. Caven, and to its readers, for misquoting him on a former occasion and misrepresenting him in a way that, Dr. Caven says, it had no authority to do. Will it give the apology or will it continue to misrepresent him?

The Campaign.

Mr. Carnegie held a meeting in the Town Hall, North Monaghan, last evening that was largely attended and of a very encouraging character.

Mr. Blezard spoke at Havelock last night, assisted by Mr. Gregory, of Toronto, the third Toronto lawyer who has been sent to his assistance. Mr. Stone gave an address in Mr. Kidd's behalf and the meeting was clearly favorable to Mr. Kidd.

Mr. Carnegie's committee meets this evening—old Council Chamber, Opera House block.

Business on the Queen's Birthday.

At the Committee meeting of the Town Council held last evening a petition was read from a number of residents of the town asking the Council to express itself in some way in regard to observance of the Queen's Birthday on Saturday. Mayor Stevenson expressed himself emphatically on the matter. He said Saturday was the statutory holiday and the post office, banks, municipal offices, etc., would all be closed and he urged upon all loyal subjects to close their stores on that day. If any of them were decided to keep open he said they could allow their clerks a half holiday in the afternoon. The Mayor's expression was backed up by the Council, but no resolution was passed as the Council was only sitting in Committee.

Municipal Matters.

The Town Council met last evening in Committee of the Whole. Mayor Stevenson presided and the ward representatives were all present. The first matter considered was the proposed new electric lights and the introducing of all-night lights. A proposition was put in by the electric light company to furnish incandescent lights for the centre of the town. The committee discussed the matter at considerable length and finally submitted a number of questions to the company who will send their answers to the Fire, Water and Light Committee and this committee will report to the Council. A good deal of talk was indulged in on the question of rents for the stores in the new town block, but finally the matter was referred to the Market Committee to report to the Council. Our manufacturing interests were also discussed, and a committee was left to report as to what the town can offer manufacturers who wish to locate here. Other minor matters were also discussed but nothing of importance was forthcoming.

The Saturday Holiday.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—"What a peculiar lot of men our merchants must be" is a remark that I have heard many people utter during the last few days. They would shout themselves hoarse in any time of danger, such as a Fenian raid or Northwest rebellion, for the boys to go to the front and defend them and the country, but when a time comes when they can do something mean towards them they do it without a thought. Here, on the Queen's Birthday, is an occasion which will not occur again, perhaps, for years when the boys want to show a good front and how do we find the merchants encouraging them? By keeping a large number of them penned up in their stores on that day, hoping to make a few cents (and it will only be a few cents), for no loyal man would shop on that day. The hundreds of Torontonians that will visit us on that day will have a noble (?) opinion of our merchants if they persist in keeping their stores open on that day. I hope the merchants will think better of it.

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

ON THE BOUNDARY.

Ruling of the United States Treasury Touching a "Line Building."

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The Collector of Customs at Plattsburg, N.Y., has informed the Treasury Department that his deputy at Trout River, N.Y., reports that a Canadian house has recently been moved in such a manner as to place it directly upon the boundary line between this country and Canada, thereby placing one-half of the house within the United States and the other half in Canada. In reply to his request for instructions as to whether the whole house or one-half only is dutiable, Assistant Secretary Tichenor refers him to the revised statutes governing the case. If any building were so placed as to fall both within the United States and a foreign country it must be construed to be wholly within the United States for all customs purposes. The secretary instructs the collector to assess duty upon the whole house with reference to its component materials. The secretary adds: "In referring to your statement that you suppose there is but little doubt that the building will be used as a line store, it may be well to say that you should take all lawful precautions in guarding the interests of the revenue at that point."

U. S. Presbyterian Home Missions.

The report was discussed at length and it was decided to take up a special contribution for the debt in both churches and Sunday schools.

The seventh annual report of the Board of Aid for Colleges and Academies was read by Dr. Hemphill, its secretary. He said the number of contributing churches is 2030. The Board aided 35 institutions, 27 of them substantially new. This year its receipts were [illegible].

Bell

Chewed by a Dog.

A four-year-old son of Mr. Wm. Drury, Superintendent at the Gas Works, was severely and painfully chewed by a savage dog yesterday afternoon. The dog was owned by Mr. Jos. Robinson who lives just opposite the Gas Works on Simcoe-st. The dog had just been unchained by Mrs. Robinson when it attacked the young child who was playing on the street. The brute bit the little fellow through the lower lip, knocking out two of his teeth and badly disfiguring his face. The ferocious canine was shot last night by Constable Stewart.

Wedded in Chicago.

A correspondent writes that on May 6th, at 154 South Wood-st., Chicago, Miss Minnie J. Sanderson, formerly of Peterborough and a niece of the Misses Sanderson and of Mr. T. Fitzgerald, was married to Mr. Will. J. Carveth, of Winnipeg, Man., and formerly of Port Hope. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Jackson, of the Centenary Methodist church, and among the guests were many former residents of Port Hope, Peterborough and Lindsay. After partaking of the wedding supper, Mr. and Mrs Carveth left for Winnipeg, where their home will be. The bride was the recipient of many fine presents. Miss Sanderson, who went from Peterborough to Chicago about three years ago, has many friends here who will heartily wish her much and long-continued happiness.

THE SYSTEM OF TAXATION.

The Single Tax—Rev. John Burton Lectures on Socialism and the Land Question From a Scriptural Standpoint.

The local Single Tax Association, which recently came into existence in Peterborough, made its first effort last evening to bring the principles for which it lives before the public by bringing here to lecture Rev. John Burton, B.D., of the Northern Congregational church, Toronto. The all-absorbing politics and the election battle which is now occupying the minds of so many tended to make the audience which assembled in the Opera House a small one, but, nevertheless, there was a fair audience, among which were some of our representative men. The subject of the rev. gentleman's lecture was "Socialism and the Land Question from a Scriptural Standpoint."

Mr. J. H. Burnham, chairman of the local association, occupied the chair, and seated on the platform with him were Rev. F. Clifton Parker, Rev. Mr. Hall, and Mr. F. J. Lewis, of the Bank of Montreal. The chairman read letters of regret at inability to be present from Rev. Messrs. S. J. Shorey and G. H. Davis, after which he introduced the lecturer.

MR. BURTON'S LECTURE.

Rev. Mr. Burton spoke for about one hour and a half in a clear, convincing style, and was attentively listened to and at times applauded. In opening he made a few remarks of an explanatory character, justifying himself as a minister in speaking on a so-called secular subject, but which he said was sacred, as was all work which was undertaken in the proper spirit. He said he did not pretend to solve the social problems of which he would speak; and he did not know that he would be doing a good thing in making the existing darkness a little more visible. He had promised to speak of Socialism and the Land Question from a Scriptural standpoint. He did not intend to preach a sermon, but he wished to take a text which was a description in brief of their condition. The text was found in that collection of wisdom called Proverbs and read:—

"Much food is in the tillage of the poor, but there is that is destroyed for want of judgment."—Proverbs XIII, 23.

The products of labor to-day, the Toronto divine said, were abundant. There were to-day on the shelves of the stores in Toronto enough goods to supply the whole city, but there were also in Toronto women making pants at ninety cents a day and children running the streets without homes and in winter shivering with cold and hunger. He did not advocate the taking down of these goods from the shelves and distributing them, as that would be only temporary relief. There was enough for all in the world and to spare, but the question was how will it be distributed. There was a distribution now but not an equal one. The text said, "Much food is in the tillage of the poor, but there is that is destroyed for want of judgment." Were they men enough, he asked, to face the problem and say it can be done? He had no faith in the hopelessness which said: "The poor we will always have with us and we can't help it." So long as there was human misery, poor to feed, men who needed the help of fellowmen, or in a word, so long as there were men to be lifted to a higher plane so long in Christ's name they should say there was no such word as impossible. They might but they might make a move and step out in advance. In regard to that text, "The poor ye always have with you," he said it was true for a time, but it did not say they were always to be pushing men into poverty and keeping them there. The speaker then gave the instance of an honest, industrious and frugal workingman in Toronto who, on being asked by him, had told him he had earned during a year $480, which was a good average earning in Toronto, and after paying his household expenses had three dollars and a half to the good. The same man had been walking down the street with him when they met a gentleman driving, and the workingman remarked that five years ago the gentleman who was driving past had not been worth a red cent but was now worth some forty or fifty thousand dollars. And how had he made all his wealth? In real estate. The rev. gentleman went on to say that the man who simply transferred land titles was adding nothing to the commercial value of the country. He was not a distributor. He did not blame the man, but it was the system he was speaking against. A man simply by transferring of titles made wealth, and here was the man who toiled and moiled thankful to God that he could make ends meet at the end of the year. He then read figures to show how the wealth of the United States was owned by a comparatively few, and pointed out that if the few continued to increase their wealth in the same proportion, that in a few years fifty persons would hold all the wealth of the United States. He then proceeded to show that land nationalization was not subversive to British law nor unwarranted by the Word of God. He first, at considerable length, went on to explain the meaning of the words Socialism and Communism. The word socialism was first used in the English language, he said, in connection with the movements in the early part of this century agitated by Robert Owen. He went into the history of Owen's movement and gave the principles lying at the base of that movement. Owen was a factory owner and instituted in his factory what was known as the "Socialistic Community," the principles of which said capital should be satisfied with five per cent. and all further profits should be divided among the workers or spent for their benefit. Owen's organization came to an end but gave an impetus to philanthrophy under the name of socialism. The speaker referred to the misery which existed among the poorer working classes, and said that land and labor had tended to accumulate in the hands of a few and labor's earnings as a consequence were cut down and the struggle made harder. Socialism sought to rewarding labor by its true merits. It wanted to have the means of production owned by the community and not by the individual. The post offices, the telegraph system in England, the canals was socialistic in a legal sense. Some wished to extend this further and take in all means of production and try and end the destructive competition in which every man looked out for himself irrespective of the wants of others. The speaker then dwelt upon the two causes which led to the overturning of Owen's organization and which, he said, were just as potent to destroy true reforms to-day. These came from the attacking of religion and the failure to look at the "oughtness" in the question. He also referred to three conceptions of society, the third of which was the socialistic conception. This looked upon society as a unit in the same sense as the body was a unit. If one member of society was hurt all were hurt, or scripturally expressed, it was to love your brother as yourself. The rev. gentleman then took up the scriptural aspect of the land question. He went back to the history of Joseph, as given in Genesis, who, after he had purchased all the land from the Egyptians levied a land tax of one-fifth of all they produced. The speaker asked how Joseph's tax compared with the policy to-day and the policy of the great loan companies. Under Joseph's if a man produced thirty bushels he had to give one-fifth, six bushels. Under our system if a man produced thirty he paid six, if he produced six he paid six just the same. The taxation was a fixed quantity. He thought Joseph's system the better, and said that the land tenure introduced by Joseph had been maintained in Egypt until modern civilization had stepped in. No one in face of this could say there was no scriptural argument for land tenure. In regard to the land nationalization not being subversive to British law, he said these were

NOT SOLVE ALL THE QUESTIONS,

EQUALIZE THE EARNINGS OF TOIL,

SUCH THINGS AS ANACHRONISMS.

It was out of place to talk of Non-conformists in Canada as there were none, and it was just as out of place to talk of proprietorship of land under British laws. He quoted an Act passed under Edward III. and which is yet unrepealed which said the King was the universal lord and proprietor of all lands in his kingdom, and no man could claim ownership unless by the gift of the King and then the land was not held in perpetuity but in feudal tenure. He explained the single tax principle of taxing the value of the land and unearned increment, holding that the community had the right to the unearned value, and giving as his scripture authority the jubilee law found in Leviticus, 25th chapter. After dwelling on this point the rev. gentleman spoke of the mortgaging system of the present day. In this Province he said three-quarters of the lands were under mortgage, owing, as he said, to the change in circumstances, and he read the 5th chapter of Nehemiah, in which the Jews were raising a cry against their debts and mortgages. Was it fair, he asked, that capital like Shylock should exact the very letter and the toiler should bear all the loss. Nehemiah said capital should bear its share of the loss and capital said "We will." If capital to-day did not say the same they would be compelled to. Reverting back to Joseph's system of land tenure, he pointed out that while a one-fifth looked large, yet considering the duty and taxes which we paid the different governments to-day one dollar out of every five went for taxes. In closing he quoted a few verses to inculcate patience into those agitating this movement.

A vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer and the audience dispersed.

"Tell you what," said a chap at Havelock, Monday, "this Kidd's a power in this election. I see his influence all over the Riding." Placing Us Before the World.

The neatly and carefully prepared folder which has been issued by the Board of Trade setting forth to the outside world the advantages, facilities, prosperity, beauties and healthy growth of the town of Peterborough are now being sent out. Several of our leading manufacturing firms have undertaken to send these folders to their customers and business friends all over Canada and the United States, and besides this several thousand of them will be placed where they will come under the proper eyes by the Board of Trade. As already noticed, the folder, which was printed in the REVIEW job room, is decidedly attractive and neatly designed, and contains in a concise yet readable and intelligible form Peterborough's position, its low taxation, its great progress, its business advantages and opportunities, its splendid water power and manufacturing facilities, its public institutions and its sound financial standing. Such an advertisement properly placed cannot but be fruitful of good results to the town, and the Board of Trade is to be applauded for its enterprise in furthering the scheme.

Well Sarah, what have you been doing to make you look so young? Oh, nothing much, only been using Hall's Hair Renewer to restore the color of my hair.

Farewell to Mr. Parker.

Mr. J. S. Parker, who for several years past has been organist of St. Paul's church, was tendered a farewell social by the choir of the church last evening. The Sunday school room had been very tastefully and attractively decorated, and the members of the congregation turned out in large numbers to say good-bye to their departing organist. The evening spent was an enjoyable one, although many were the expressions of regret at the loss the church was sustaining. No chairman presided over the pleasant gathering, but during the evening a good programme was excellently rendered. The choir rendered four anthems, Miss Sophy Cameron, Mrs. Daly and Mrs. W. A. Sanderson each sang a very pleasing vocal solo, Mr. Parker contributed an instrumental number, Mr. C. Browne gave a reading, and Miss Sophy Cameron and Mr. J. Crane a duet. Refreshments were served during the evening. At the close of the programme Rev. Mr. Torrance made a short address, in which he referred to Mr. Parker's departure and the regret which was caused by that event. Mr. and Mrs. Parker in leaving Peterborough will carry with them the wishes of a host of friends for a safe journey to and success and happiness in their new home.

Delighted Everyone.

The Toronto Globe of Feb. 21st said:—"The first performance of the Royal Hand Bell Ringers this season was given in the Pavillion last night. The music furnished delighted everyone and was charming. The dexterity and rapidity of movement of the campanologists was wonderful. Each of the five artists performs with one or two dozen bells grouped on the table, apparently at random, and the constant interchange of the instruments goes on with such bewildering rapidity that the eye can scarcely follow the play of the hands. The tones produced by this band of bells are sweet, and it seems at times almost incredible that the music is not from some single source of harmony. Mr. W. Hayward performed upon the xylophone and the dulcimer in a manner that brought forth repeated applause. His manipulation of the instrument was marvellous, and showed how very pleasant music can be obtained from one of the simplest instruments, composed merely of a series of correctly tuned pieces of wood, when in the hands of a competent artist. The vocal part of the entertainment lends an agreeable variety to the programme, and combined with the humorous remarks of the conductor, Duncan S. Miller, provides a charming entertainment." Hear the Bell Ringers in the Opera House on Thursday night. 1d

A CLERGYMAN GOWNED.

Rev. Mr. Pearson Presented with a Dressing Gown and Mrs. Pearson with a Handsome Piece of Plate.

The members of Rev. Mr. Pearson's Bible Class of George-st. church prepared a pleasant surprise for that gentleman and his wife on Tuesday evening. Through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Stubbs their residence was taken possession of on Tuesday afternoon by an active committee of ladies who laid out tables, etc., and prepared a substantial tea. Some eighty members of the class and friends partook of tea and a couple of hours afterwards were pleasantly spent. Then a short programme was taken up, to which Rev. Mr. Davis contributed a happy and good humored speech, Mrs. J. Turner a song, Mr. J. Turner a reading, Rev. Mr. Leach and the Chairman, Mr. J. G. Early brief speeches. Mr. Thos. Morrow then, on behalf of the class read the following address:—

To Rev. M. L. Pearson, Pastor of George-st. Methodist Church, Peterborough:

DEAR SIR,—We, the members of your adult Bible class, desire on the eve of your departure from among us to give expression to our esteem for you personally and also our regret that the very interesting relations that have existed between us as teacher and scholars, and as pastor and members of the church, must so soon be broken.

We cannot but feel grateful for the interest you have ever taken in our class, and for the help you have been able to give in our study of the Divine word; and we recognize the true spirit of zeal in the service of the Master in your voluntarily placing this important addition to your regular Sunday labors, an addition which you might have reasonably declined.

As a small token of our regard and of our appreciation of your efforts for our spiritual improvement we ask you to accept this dressing gown, and we would also present to Mrs. Pearson this silver sugar bowl and spoon holder; and permit us to express the hope that in days to come they may recall to your minds pleasing recollections of past associations.

In a few short days we will be called upon to say farewell, and as you enter upon new duties elsewhere, be assured our prayers will go up in behalf of yourself and Mrs. Pearson and family, that you may be blessed with all spiritual blessing, and that many years of successful ministerial labor may be given you in the vineyard of our common Lord.

Signed on behalf of the class,

T. MORROW,
Secretary.

Peterborough, May 20, 1890.

The gown—a very handsome and comfortable garment was wrapped around Rev. Mr. Pearson and the fine piece of plate handed to Mrs. Pearson. Rev. Mr. Pearson gratefully acknowledged the kindness and good feeling that prompted the gifts and thanked the friends for himself and wife. After a half hour pleasantly spent the company dispersed, first passing a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Stubbs for their kindness in affording the use of their residence and for such trouble taken in preparing for so many.

Cricket Match.

The first cricket match of the season takes place on Friday next. The Torontos are playing Peterborough and Ottawa and have an exceedingly fine team. It will be a match well worth seeing for the opponents of the local team say that Peterborough has the second best team in Canada.

One Phase of Equal Rights.

While many people are disputing as to what Equal Rights really mean for both sides, there can be no misunderstanding as to Equal Rights on the tea question. Some like black, some green tea, some with nuts in it. Put into the teapot half-and-half and you have an Equal Rights beverage. Get these teas at Hawley Bros., George-st. d113

The prevalence of scrofulous taint in the blood is much more universal than many are aware. Indeed but few persons are free from it. Fortunately, however, we have in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the most potent remedy ever discovered for this terrible affliction.

Gorton's Minstrels

will arrive to-morrow, and Gorton's gold band will be heard in some choice selections. Concerning this excellent band the Sarnia Canadian says:—"The music of Gorton's Celebrated gold band was a feature and the echoes of their sweet strains will long ring in the ears of those who heard them. Most of the selections played were either the composition or arrangement of Mr. Gorton and the faultless manner in which they were executed showed each member of the band to be master of his instrument; and the rich harmony produced can only be prepared to the grand full tones of a pipe organ." 1d119

District Methodism.

The Peterborough Methodist district meeting opened in the Sunday school room of the George-st. church here this morning. Rev. M. L. Pearson, superintendent, presided, while Rev. A. C. Wilson was at the secretary's table. The other members present were Rev. Messrs. S. J. Shorey, W. Burns, D. N. McCamus, J. C. Bell, D. L. Houck, F. Johnston, Robt. Johnston, Adams, Cragg, Powers, Davis, F. A. Leitch and McQuade. This morning's session was occupied with ministerial business, the major portion of the time being taken up by the examination of probationers for the ministry. This afternoon and evening a public meeting will be held at which several interesting subjects will be discussed.

The entering wedge of a complaint that may prove fatal is often a slight cold, while a dose or two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. It would be well, therefore, to keep this remedy within reach at all times.

High Honors for a Canadian.

The Toronto World says:—"Mr. Frank Sanderson, M.A., of Toronto, has just returned from London, Eng., having spent three months in England, Ireland and Scotland in actuarial pursuits. During his stay in England he passed the examination of the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain and was made a member of that institute. He likewise passed his examination at the Faculty of Actuaries of Scotland in Edinburgh and was elected a member of the Actuarial Society of Edinburgh. Mr. Sanderson, it is said, is the only colonist who has ever faced the examiners at these examinations. He will accept the position of secretary and actuary of the Cosmopolitan Life Association." Mr. Sanderson was formerly of the township of Smith and for some years a pupil of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. We extend congratulations on his success and the high honors he has earned.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 21, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

The intelligence had gone out, like a candle puffed by the wind. She did not know where they were going. The head lines of the Chronicle told her what they had to flee from. She never thought of deserting her father, nor, indeed, did it for one moment occur to him that she would do so. Neither of them stopped to reason. The instinct of blood impelled them to act together. Both obeyed it. There was no sacrifice implied by Margaret's action. She followed her daughterly impulse, which was as it should be. With all thoroughly healthy and true-hearted children, that impulse is common. It is the same thing that makes the cub in the lion's lair to lie down. There seemed to be a dual action in the mind of Margaret. One part of it saw dimly the confusion, the misery of her condition, and wondered over the outcome. The other part acted clearly to meet the emergency of the present. This clearer part told her that it would not do to take a train at one of the large city stations. It was already growing late enough for the early workers to be on the street, and in every glance she imagined she saw suspicion and apprehension. A cab passed her, which had been taking some night keeper home. She called it and put her father inside.

"We have a long way to go," she said to the driver, "and I wish to hire you by the hour."

Did she see suspicion in the eye of the little Dane who sat on the vehicle? What if he should refuse to take them? His pale green eyes contracted. It may have been the morning sun that caused them to do so, but Margaret, who saw a foe in every bush, thought it was suspicion.

She began to act with the diplomacy that never afterward deserted her through all the long trial that was to follow.

"Of course I do not want to go unless your prices are reasonable," she said. "If you charge too much we must take the car. We are going to Lawndale." She hit on that place because that was where the little damsel came from, and the name was the first that suggested itself to her tongue.

"My horse has not had his breakfast," said the man.

"We can stop and get that on the road. I will pay for it if you will go for fifty cents an hour."

"Couldn't go for that. Seventy-five is the rate."

"Well, I think that is too much, but I will pay it. We will stop to feed the horse on Ogden avenue. Drive out on that road, please."

She got in, and the little Dane put the small satchels on top, let down the apron, and left her alone with—a murderer. But he did not look harmful. His eyes wandered with a childish restlessness. His white hair looked very beautiful and very pitiable. His delicate features were refined into an expression almost effeminate. His hands played with each other like those of an invalid. Margaret took them in her own and held them still. Under her steady regard the judge's head sank on his breast and in a little while, in spite of the jolting motion of the cab, he was fast asleep.

Margaret was afraid to draw the curtains, lest the very fact of their being drawn should excite curiosity. Yet she feared the glances that the passerby shot into the windows. She wondered how long it would be before the house would be searched. The dear old house! So sacred! So full of holy memories, or treasured articles.

But she did not mourn much. Her heart beat no faster. She seemed to be regarding herself from afar off. This was not Margaret Barthwait, who was flying from her native city with her father beside her, a self-made outlaw! It was some one to be infinitely pitied. This was not Margaret Barthwait who was leaving her dear love, and all the hope and sweetness of life before her. It was some poor girl whose miseries would dismay Margaret Barthwait. Margaret Barthwait had friends, position, respect, love. This girl had nothing but shame for her portion, and a madman for her companion. She was going to a shameful concealment, perhaps to death.

How the mind will flounder in a mental mire like this! How it will painfully extricate itself, only to sink yet deeper!

The horse was the proverbial cab hack. Yet, in spite of his general worthlessness, he had a frightful appetite and ate as if he were trying to fill the pit of darkness. Then he moved on again. It was well in the middle of the forenoon when he reached Lawndale. Margaret had the driver put them down before a hotel. There she ordered breakfast, and saw her father eat like any other hungry animal. He appeared to feel neither remorse nor fear. If he felt anything at all, it was hunger.

Once through with the breakfast, Margaret inquired carelessly about the westward bound trains. There was none till the middle of the afternoon on the road passing through. She carelessly remarked that the noon train went east then. This remark brought a surprised expression to the face of the clerk. There was no noon train, and the trains going east went no further than Chicago. Where was it that the young lady wanted to go? Womanlike, Margaret had but a slight sense of direction. She knew nothing about the towns on the Burlington route. But by a fortunate trick of memory she recollected going to the Quaker hamlet of Western Springs once on the road. Breathing more freely after her answer, she went back to where her father reclined on the sofa in the stuffy parlor. Sitting near him was a man reading the Morning Chronicle! Till that moment Margaret had not realized that they were in as much danger out of the city as in it. The papers there were before her, and in a village she would be regarded with a closer scrutiny than in the city. What should she do? Return to Chicago? Already she thought that the clerk was forming a theory about her. Acting on impulse, she ordered an open carriage. They would take a ride about the country, since the day was becoming so pleasant, she informed the clerk. And that they might be saved the trouble of returning to the hotel, they would take their travelling sacks with them. She would not have been surprised if the clerk had refused to let them pass the door. But he made no remark, and she wondered if she had not been too communicative. Once out in the open country she felt safer. Her father said little now, but looked around at the budding trees and the springing grass with an air of the most innocent curiosity. He did not have a care on his mind. Had he been born that morning he could not have been more free from responsibility than he was.

Down the long, winding prairie road, backward and forward, Margaret kept casting her eyes. They might be followed! Or it might even be that the driver now with them was listening to all that might be said, and that he had orders not to let them go. No sooner had this idea taken possession of her mind than she was eager to put her liberty to the test. She tried to think of some excuse for alighting, but could find none with which she was satisfied. They were several miles from the little village now and had skirted the edge of a couple more. On the road were a number of houses where beer and meals were sold. Such road houses need no description. At one of these Margaret begged to alight. Once on the verandah with her father beside her she said that she had concluded to stay there over night. Her father was not feeling well, and she thought the fresh air would do him good. And now for the first time she began to feel the trembling of the frame, the fright of heart that was natural under the circumstances. The natural surprise of the driver filled her with trepidation which she could hardly conceal. Yet she was careful not to pay him too well, lest he should think her anxious to get rid of him. He loitered around for a long time filling her with nameless dread, and talking with the stable boy, and the rosy-cheeked girl in the dining-room.

THE C.P.R.'S NEW CHICAGO LINE.

Connections Made with the Wabash at Detroit Yesterday.

DETROIT, May 20.—The Canadian Pacific and the Wabash systems of railways were this morning put in connection at Detroit. It was done very quietly. The transfer steamer Ontario of the Canadian Pacific Railway took three freight cars across the river to the Wabash docks for the purpose of loading on a train destined for the other side and the thing was done. The first train which the Ontario took from this side was made up of Phil Armour beef cars and it was expected the train will make the trip in express time.

Absorbed by the Santa Fe.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The principal owners of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway stated to-day that the control of the company had been absolutely sold to the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway. The papers necessary to the transfer will probably be signed to-morrow. This deal adds 1400 miles of road to the Atchison system besides giving it absolute control of the Atlantic & Pacific Railway.

To Restore Lake and Rail Rates.

NEW YORK, May 20.—There was a conference here to-day between the Trunk lines Executive Committee and a number of lake representatives with a view of effecting some arrangement towards the restoration of fifth and sixth-class east bound business from Chicago to the seaboard. It was agreed to restore the former lake and rail rates on fifth and sixth-class freight, thus making it 25 and 20 cents from Chicago to New York. The Central Traffic Association have been asked to follow suit in the matter.

A New Line From the Bridge to Buffalo.

ALBANY, May 20.—The Buffalo, Thousand Islands & Portland Railway Company filed a certificate of incorporation with the Secretary of State to-day. The company is formed with a capital of $350,000 for constructing a 35 mile railway commencing at a point on the line of the Niagara Falls branch railway in Suspension Bridge, running thence southerly and easterly through the counties of Niagara and Erie into Buffalo with a one mile branch extending from a point on the main line in the village of Niagara River.

COLLIDED WITH AN ICEBERG.

The Beacon Lights' Experience in a Fog on the Grand Banks.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The new ocean steamer Beacon Lights, which arrived here to-day from Newcastle-on-Tyne, collided with an iceberg 600 feet long and 90 feet high during a dense fog on May 14 on the Grand Banks. The vessel was moving very slowly but the crash was tremendous. A huge layer of the berg was torn away and 50 tons of ice fell upon the vessel, smashing the iron deck near the forecastle head and filling the foredeck. The steamer went on her beam ends and the ice worked up under her forefoot, tearing the iron plates to pieces and penetrating the hull to the very skin. The cocks of the air tanks gave way and a number of men were overpowered by air gas. There was a momentary panic among the men. Water poured into the tanks through the broken bows with great force and in five hours there was 8 feet of water in the hold. The vessel reached this port with 2820 tons of water under deck. The steam pumps and the fact that several tanks remained intact kept the ship from sinking.

Not a Pimple on Baby

Baby one year old. Bad with Eczema. Hair all gone. Scalp covered with eruptions. Cured by Cuticura. Hair splendid and not a pimple on him.

Cured by Cuticura

I cannot say enough in praise of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. My boy, when one year of age, was so bad with eczema that he lost all of his hair. His scalp was covered with eruptions, which the doctors said was scald-head, and that his hair would never grow again. Despairing of a cure from physicians I began the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and I am happy to say, with the most perfect success. His hair is now splendid and there is not a pimple on him. I recommend the CUTICURA REMEDIES to mothers as the most speedy, economical, and sure cure for all skin diseases of infants and children, and feel that every mother who has an afflicted child will thank me for so doing.

MRS. M. E. WOODSUM, Norway, Me.

Fever Sore Eight Years

I must extend to you the thanks of one of my customers who has been cured by using the CUTICURA REMEDIES, of an old sore, caused by a long spell of sickness or fever eight years ago. He was so bad he was fearful he would have to have his leg amputated, but is happy to say he is now entirely well,—sound as a dollar. He requests me to use his name, which is H. H. CASON, merchant. JOHN V. MINOR, Druggist, Gainesboro, Tenn.

We have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES for years, and have the first complaint yet to receive from a purchaser. One of the worst cases of scrofula I ever saw was cured by them.

ASLEEP ON THE TRACK.

A little child, tired of play, had pillowed his head on a railroad track and fallen asleep. The train was almost upon him when a passing stranger rushed forward and saved him from a horrible death. Perhaps you are asleep on the track, too. You are, if you are neglecting the hacking cough, the hectic flush, the loss of appetite, growing weakness and lassitude, which have unconsciously crept upon you. Wake up, or the train will be upon you! Consumption, which thus insidiously fastens its hold upon its victims while they are unconscious of its approach, must be taken in time, if it is to be overcome. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has cured thousands of cases of this most fatal of maladies. If taken in time, and given a fair trial, it is guaranteed to benefit or cure in every case of Consumption, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded.

For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Asthma, Severe Coughs, and kindred affections, it is an efficient remedy.

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced COUGH CURE. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

HORRIBLE HUMAN SACRIFICES IN DAHOMEY.

Bismarck's Fruitless Appeal to the Empress Frederick—Henry M. Stanley's Approaching Nuptials—Paris Police Keeping a Watch on Anarchists.

MARSEILLES, May 21.—Dr. Bayol, formerly Governor of the Gabou Colony, yesterday said Dahomey was a very rich country and it would be folly for the French to abandon their possessions in that region. Dr. Bayol also spoke of the horrible sacrifices made in Dahomey. He said he had seen two batches of 64 and 43 prisoners immolated on such occasions.

BERLIN, May 21.—The Freisinnige Zeitung says that during the Chancellorship crisis Prince Bismarck appealed to the ex-Empress to intervene in his favor and that she replied: "You know better than any one that I must not use political influence with my son."

LONDON, May 21.—The News says: Henry M. Stanley's wedding will take place at Westminster Abbey and if he makes any further expeditions his wife will accompany him.

PARIS, May 21.—The police yesterday made a fruitless raid with the object of arresting the Italian anarchist leader, Giordani. He is believed to be the leader of a dangerous band. The police are keeping a special watch on foreign anarchists. Many expulsions are probable.

LONDON, May 21.—A despatch from Buenos Ayres says 20 persons were killed and 41 wounded in the recent rising at Puento Alegre.

SOFIA, May 21.—At the trial to-day of the persons charged with conspiring against the Government Major Panitza denied that Russia was implicated in the plot. He asserted that Kissoff, [illegible] Commandant of Sofia, originated the conspiracy and induced the witness to watch the movements of Prince Ferdinand with the view of seizing him. After the conspirators had gained possession of Ferdinand they were to strive to bring about the election of a new prince.

THE HAGUE, May 21.—Despatches from Acheen say the Dutch lost three killed and fourteen wounded in a futile attempt to recover a position from which they had been driven by the natives. The latter lost fourteen killed.

ROME, May 21.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day Premier Crispi said an inquiry had been ordered into the question of granting state assistance to the unemployed.

BERLIN, May 21.—The Reichstag has adjourned until June 9.

THE NAUGHTY JERSEY LILY.

Mrs. Langtry Makes a Night of It With the Mashers.

NEW YORK, May 21.—London society is aghast at the diversions of Mrs. Langtry. One night last week a supper was given at St. James theatre, at which were present Lord Lurgan and several guardsmen, with other men about town. Lively scenes took place and at 3 o'clock in the morning it was proposed to run races around St. James-square near by, to the astonishment of a well-tipped policeman, who grinned at the swells in evening dress, but with their coats off, racing around the inclosure, with Mrs. Langtry and a couple of women of her boon companions wrapped in fur coats, looking on and shrieking with laughter. Charlie Brookfield?, the actor, ran a sack race with Ernest Lawford of the guards, and they fell and rolled over each other in the mud. The gas man at St. James' theatre then arranged hurdles for a race of a hundred yards between Mrs. Langtry and Bob Bourke?, a fashionable youth, the latter allowing the lady twenty yards start; but he lost by two feet. After the race the party returned to the theatre, where Mrs. Langtry distributed prizes consisting of handkerchiefs, flowers, slippers and stockings. The proceedings terminated at 6 o'clock in the morning.

A Murder at Peekskill.

PEEKSKILL, May 21.—Edward McDermott, a prominent saloon keeper and sport, early this morning shot and probably fatally wounded James Dolan, a jewelry peddler.

55 Who Perished at Longue Pointe.

MONTREAL, May 21.—At the Longue Pointe inquest to-day the nuns produced a list of 55 inmates who perished.

NOVA SCOTIA ELECTIONS.

THE GOVERNMENT SUSTAINED BY A ROUND MAJORITY.

A Few Seats Gained by the Opposition but Their Leader Defeated by the Miners' Candidate—The Latest Returns.

HALIFAX, May 21.—The provincial elections took place to-day and resulted in the Government being sustained. The Government have 25 seats sure and the Opposition 11 with Inverness to hear from.

In Cape Breton McPherson and McDonald, the miners' candidates, defeated Dr. McKay, leader of the Opposition, and Colin Chisholm by 600 majority.

Attorney-General Longley and Mr. Chute, the Government candidates, are elected in Annapolis by 200 majority.

Mr. Weeks, who ran as an independent Government candidate, headed his ticket.

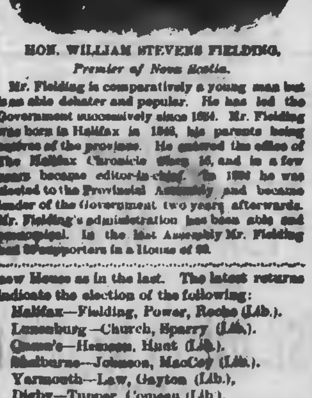
James A. Fraser, "the Father of Repeal," is at the foot of the poll.

In Halifax, Premier Fielding, Power and Roche, the Government candidates, are elected by from 800 to 1000 majority.

The Opposition gain a few seats but lose their leader.

The Latest Returns.

HALIFAX, May 22.—The provincial elections resulted in the Government being sustained by a large majority. They will have about the same number of supporters in the new House as in the last. The latest returns indicate the election of the following:



HON. WILLIAM STEVENS FIELDING,
Premier of Nova Scotia.

Mr. Fielding is comparatively a young man but is an able debater and popular. He has led the Government successively since 1884. Mr. Fielding was born in Halifax in 1848, his parents being natives of the province. He entered the office of The Halifax Chronicle when 16, and in a few years became editor-in-chief. In 1882 he was elected to the Provincial Assembly and became leader of the Government two years afterwards. Mr. Fielding's administration has been able and economical. In the last Assembly Mr. Fielding had 29 supporters in a House of 38.

A Break in the Champlain Canal.

TROY, May 21.—Nearly 60 canal boats, the majority of which are loaded with ice, are detained by the break in the Champlain Canal near Mechanicsville. Northward bound boats form almost a continuous line from West Troy to Mechanicsville. Two hundred boats are delayed. The break will be repaired by Saturday. The present is the third break at Mechanicsville since navigation opened.

$10,000 FOR SLANDER.

They Were Lovers, But They Quarreled and Did Not Make Up.

ST. THOMAS, May 21.—The Journal says: "J. B. Davidson to-day, acting for Mr. Angus McNish of Glencoe, entered an action on behalf of Miss Lizzie Childs of Newbury against Mr. George H. Randalls, an Aldborough farmer, claiming $10,000 damages for slander. The couple had been lovers and engaged. Whether their love was true love or not, at all events the course of it did not run smooth, and they quarreled, and have become totally estranged. The plaintiff now claims $10,000 damages for slander, alleging that her former lover has circulated scandalous and untrue stories about her and about liberties he alleges she allowed him to take while they were engaged. The case will be tried at the June sessions."

HAVANA, May 21.—Eyraud was arrested here to-day. When he was jailed he attempted to commit suicide by cutting the veins in his leg and arm with a piece of glass. He lost much blood, but will recover.

A Wronged Husband's Revenge.

JESSUP, Ga., May 21.—A tragedy occurred here at midnight, resulting in the death of Mrs. R. P. Littlefield and County Surveyor McCall at the hands of the woman's husband. McCall came to Jessup from Brunswick about 10 p.m. and stopped at the Littlefield House. He retired to his room an hour later, but came out, went down stairs in his night clothes and asked for Littlefield, whom he could not find. He then went to Mrs. Littlefield's door and knocked. She admitted him. Littlefield was in the front porch watching the pair and rushed through the window into the room and shot his wife just over the eye, killing her instantly. He then shot McCall four times. McCall died at 3.30 p.m.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Fortune-Teller Convicted under an Ancient Statute.

TORONTO, May 22.—Under a statute of George II. Madam Maggie Milford was convicted at the General Sessions yesterday of fortune-telling. The case will be appealed.

Dr. Dobie has appealed from the decision granting Miss Kate Gelroy a new trial of her breach of promise suit.

Some time ago Rev. John J. Dobie, a Presbyterian minister of Caledon East, was charged with improper conduct and dismissed from his charge. Elder Alexander Cranstone seems to have taken an active part in the prosecution and given free expression to his thoughts. The result is that Mrs. Dobie has brought action against him for $5000 damages for slander, the alleged slander consisting in certain words spoken by defendant at Caledon East and Toronto imputing adultery to the plaintiff in stating that Dobie was not the father of her child.

Mr. A. H. Marsh, Q.C., for defendant, yesterday at Osgoode Hall obtained an order for fuller particulars of the alleged slanders to be furnished by plaintiff. The case will be tried at the Toronto June Assizes.

The Masters in Chambers, at Osgoode Hall yesterday, dismissed the action brought by Savano Napolitano against Giovanna Abbate and 17 other Italians for damages for libel. The alleged libel consisted in the protest of defendants against the appointment of Napolitano as a teacher in St. Patrick school, on the ground that he had been convicted of crime in Italy. The action fails owing to inability of plaintiff to obtain sufficient evidence of the proceedings in Italy.

This case has been before the courts for a couple of years now and has caused intense excitement in the Italian colony.

The officers of the Grenadiers have decided to abandon a trip out of town of the regiment on the 24th. The jaunt to Owen Sound would have been a favorite one could the C.P.R. have furnished transportation on the 23rd. The Brantford visit had also to be abandoned and Col. Dawson telegraphed the authorities of that city to that effect yesterday. The boys will stay at home, which no doubt their wives and sweethearts will appreciate very much, as they have left them behind on so many previous 24ths.

Some months ago a jury empanelled by Coroner Pickering at the Police Court returned a verdict of manslaughter against four employes of the Grand Trunk in the case of Henry Leach, a farmer, killed at the Pape-avenue crossing. As bearing upon the agitation for protection at level railway crossings the verdict returned at that time excited considerable interest. It was yesterday revived at Judge McDougall's court, when Thomas Moore, Stuart White, Thomas Edwards and Daniel Donohue, the employes in question, were brought up for trial. His Honor, however, deeming that no evidence of culpable negligence had been produced, took the case from the jury and discharged the prisoners.

KNIGHTHOOD FOR CANADIANS.

A 'Frisco Fake.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—The Chronicle devotes four columns to an alleged conspiracy to capture Lower California and to found an independent republic to be followed by annexation to the United States. Capitalists interested in Lower California lands and mines and well-known citizens of Los Angeles and San Diego were involved. It is claimed the Mexican Land and Colonization Company composed of wealthy Englishmen owning concessions on the peninsula was to furnish $100,000 to aid the filibusters.

McAuliffe Cannot Raise the Dust.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Joe McAuliffe has been searching very industriously for the extra $5000 which John L. Sullivan demands before he will make a match with the Westerner, and the answer that his manager will give the big fellow to-day will be that he has not found $10,000 recently, but he will fight him at any time or place for $5000 a side and any suitable purse.

CONNAUGHT AT VICTORIA.

ARRIVAL OF THE ABYSSINIA WITH ITS ROYAL PASSENGERS.

Mayor Grant Presents the Civic Address of Welcome—The Prince's Reply—H. R. H. Opens the Provincial Jubilee Hospital.

VICTORIA, B.C., May 21.—The Abyssinia with the Duke and Duchess of Connaught arrived this morning. All were well pleased with the trip. They leave early to-morrow for Vancouver en route east.

The party were driven to Government Grounds, where the civic address of welcome was presented by Mayor Grant. Responding, H.R.H. said: "Allow me to thank you very cordially for the very kind words of welcome with which you have received the Duchess and myself on this occasion. It is a source of great pleasure to us both that we have been enabled to pay a visit to Victoria, the capital of this rising and flourishing province. It has been, as you say, a great satisfaction during our stay in India to have met with such royal receptions on all hands, marking the feelings of loyalty and attachment which the India subjects of Her Majesty bear towards her person. You, gentlemen, in welcoming us have asked me to express to the Queen how warm these feelings are here. I have often heard that among the many parts of Her Majesty's dominion there is not one more loyal or thorough English than are people of Victoria. It is, therefore, an especial pleasure to us that we are able to be among you to-day.

"It is a source of great regret that our stay is such a short one. As you know, sir, we are returning from a stay of several years' duration in India, and we have taken this journey home by this route as we are most anxious to see for ourselves this important new link between the west and the east, namely, the Canadian Pacific Railway, with its steamers running to Japan and China.

"I have heard of the great advance you are making steadily and I cannot wish you anything better than wish you most cordially that prosperity and that advancement which you all desire. I look for a very bright future for this island, for the province and for the great Dominion of which you are part. I hope that God's blessing may rest on this island and upon all who live upon it and that a very happy future may be in store for you. The Duchess and myself will not forget the warm and thoroughly English welcome which you have accorded us this day."

After luncheon at Government House with the Lieutenant-Governor the Prince performed the ceremony of formally opening the Provincial Jubilee Hospital, a large and well appointed institution just completed. The Prince leaves to-night for Vancouver, where to-morrow will be spent. Thence the party go direct to Winnipeg.

GUNS TRAINED ON THE TOWN.

The Captain of the McLane Defies Those Who Threaten Him.

CEDAR KEYS, Fla., May 21.—The revenue cutter McLane still commands the situation and her guns cover the city. The crew has been exercised at small arms and great gun practice, and their actions have jarred on the nerves of the people of Cedar Keys, who look on the cutter's arrival here as a great invasion of their rights. Captain Smyth met a number of the citizens and advised that they form a Provisional Government at once, so as to keep the city's affairs in good shape.

The search made by the officers of the cutter Saturday last under command of Lieutenant Carden was a great success in all respects, but it served to show that a great feeling of irritation still exists here. The men were grossly insulted in some of the houses they entered and called republican hirelings, dogs, scamps and many other opprobrious epithets. The men bore all the insults and not a man replied.

Captain Smyth came ashore about 10 o'clock this morning, and on going up town met quite a crowd of men. Among the persons assembled was one boisterous individual, armed with a double-barreled shotgun. He said as soon as he saw the captain, "I'll blow the head off anyone who tries to march my house," and various other threats of like nature, which the crowd seemed to approve.

This roused the ire of Captain Smyth and he replied: "I tell you that any man who raises a hand against my men will suffer for it, and further, I want you all to bear in mind that we are here acting under authority of the United States Marshal, whom we are assisting to rid your town of an outlaw and fugitive from justice. If any man is wronged by the Marshal he has his redress at law. I warn you that if you think to take the law into your own hands you'll find yourself in hot water at once. As for you, my man," added Captain Smyth, turning to the man with the shotgun, "if I hear any more seditious language from you I shall take measures to stop it. I don't intend to take threats from any one."

Captain Smyth had the field and the man wilted. It is rumored to-night that Cottrell is near here, and that if nothing miscarries he will be in custody within 48 hours.

THE DEATH ROLL.

Edward Browne of Hamilton Falls a Victim to Apoplexy.

HAMILTON, May 21.—Edward Browne, for many years one of Hamilton's most prominent and influential citizens, died suddenly at 11 o'clock this morning of apoplexy. Mr. Browne was born in Castle Connell, County Limerick, Ireland, 73 years ago. While yet a youth he came to Canada and was employed by his elder brother, the late James Browne, who then carried on business as a wharfinger in Toronto. He was not long in mastering the business and was soon sent to Kingston to manage the Kingston branch of the business of Macpherson & Crane, who owned wharves in every Canadian lake port. About 1845 Mr. Browne came to Hamilton, and resided here permanently ever since. He went into partnership with his brother M. W. Browne, and the firm did the largest dock business of any firm west of Toronto in the era before the railways came this way. Later, the brothers dissolved partnership and each continued in business on his own account. In 1855 Mr. Browne married Miss [illegible] of Toronto. She died some years ago. The surviving members of their family are: Miss Browne, Mrs. [illegible] Covene [illegible] Robertson. A SERIOUS MATTER.

Mr. Ross, in his speech in the Opera House here, tried to make light of the facts brought out in the Legislature by Mr. Craig and further exposed in the report of the Commissioners appointed by the Government. Now, no one, whatever his religious opinions may be, desires to have his children taught opinions he holds in disfavor, and no one should be compelled to either send his children to a Public school in the Province of Ontario where such opinions are taught or to allow them to grow up without an education. There is not a fair-minded man in the Province who will not agree with this. Yet in Public schools in Ontario religious doctrines contrary to the views of Protestants were taught—text books that contained such opinions were used, and although the members of the Mowat Government had official knowledge that such was the case they denied it and took no action until forced to make a pretence of doing something. Mr. Craig called attention in the Legislature to these things and exhibited one of the books used in the schools referred to. This book was "Le Syllabaire des Ecoles Chretiennes." Mr. Ross, the Minister of Education, denied Mr. Craig's statements and said:—

"With regard to the charge that unsuitable text books were used in the schools in which the French language is used, he said that the book given as a sample by the member for East Durham was not a text book at all—but one that was used during the hours recognized by the department for religious instruction."

Here was a straight denial, yet one of the Inspectors had informed Mr. Ross that such books, and this particular book, were used. Here is an extract from the Inspector's report (Sess. Papers, 1889, No. 18, page 41):—

TEXT BOOKS USED IN FRENCH SCHOOLS.

English Subjects and Drawing—Same as above.

French Reading—Montpetit's series, Prof. Lagace's Treatise on Reading. A few schools use the Syllabaire des Ecoles Chretiennes.

Arithmetic—Christian Brothers, Kirkland & Scott.

Geography—Christian Brothers, Campbell.

French Grammar—Robert (principally), Larousse, Christian Brothers.

History—Toussaint's (Canada), Drioux's (England), Christian Brothers.

W. J. SUMMERBY, Inspector.

Not only had the Government this information, but the Globe said that the Commissioners' report "contained no information of which the Government had not been already possessed." These Commissioners were appointed by the Government to visit the schools and many schools were notified of the day when they would be visited. Yet let us see what the Commissioners said in their report. The following are extracts from the report as given in the Legislative sessional paper already quoted:—

"The readers, a graduated series of five books, were prepared by Mr. A. N. Montpetit, and are known as the Montpetit series. Whatever features of excellence these books may possess, they are unauthorized and they contain teachings peculiar to the church of Rome. Protestants complained to your commissioners of the use of these books, as it brings their children in contact with religious teachings contrary to their own convictions. By far the most objectionable book from this point of view is an elementary reading book, Le Syllabaire des Ecoles Chretiennes, which is used in many of the schools. * * * Toussaint's history and the Abrege are written in a spirit unfriendly to the British empire and to the development of a patriotism embracing the whole Dominion of Canada.

"Your commissioners found that religious exercises occupy a prominent place in the [illegible] by [illegible]. In sixty-seven schools religious instruction is given during school hours, in twenty-two it is given either before or after school, and in [illegible] no religious instruction is given. This instruction is given by the teachers from a catechism prepared for children of the Roman Catholic church, and it is to the teaching from this catechism that reference is made in the schedule and summary when religious instruction is spoken of.

"In some of the schools special instruction is given from this book for a certain portion of the year, to children who are preparing for their first communion.

"The prayers in use, in addition to the Lord's prayer, which is used in almost every school, are taken from the Roman Catholic books of devotion. These prayers are, in some schools, used at the opening and close of the schools, both in the forenoon and afternoon. In some of the French text-books in use, which are elsewhere referred to in this report, the tenets peculiar to the Roman Catholic church are more or less prominently introduced.

"In addition to these methods of inculcating religion, there were found in many of the schools in the county of Essex pictures of a religious character, the crucifix and small statues or images of the saints. In two instances in the county of Prescott altars were found in the schools. It was stated that these were erected during the month of May for services of a special nature for the people of the neighborhood, who assembled in the school houses for evening prayers, as the churches were at a considerable distance from these localities."

This report shows that Mr. Craig was right in what he said and Mr. Ross wrong. It shows the condition of about a hundred Public schools in Ontario two years after the attention of the Ministers had been called to the facts and a year after they denied that such a condition existed. This is part of the record of the Government.

Nor is that all. Mr. Craig introduced a bill to make it illegal for a teacher to allow such books and teaching in the schools and to provide penalties for the violation of the act, but the Government and its supporters refused to allow it to pass and voted it down. Mr. Ross may think this a matter to make light of, but it is one that the people will view in a different way.

HIDDEN PROPHECIES.

Some papers supporting Government candidates try to find comfort in a "hidden prophecy" found in the names of Liberal members, and the Examiner is so pleased with it that it reproduces the "prophecy." After the same manner of discovering what is to be, the following is submitted:—

Pousse T te
McCart H y
W E ir

J. A. Da V idson
K I dd
Merri C k
S T one
Daws O n Kennedy
Ca R negie
J. L. Hughe S

In the next prophecy if there are names found that the reader is not familiar with, he will understand that they are the names of Toronto lawyers who have been sent into the county to help Mr. Stratton's partner in distress across the river:—

T aylor
R. R. H all
Gr E gory

C. D rury
Di E sard
Mc F arlane
Ker E r
T. Fr A ser
Stra T ton
McGr E gor
D ewart

To quote the Examiner, "it is not the least striking part of this prophecy that Mr. Stratton's name is turned to use to form the word" defeated. The prospects are bright that the above prophecies will be fulfilled.

MAINLY FOR WOMEN.

Mrs. Eliza K. Poole, of Chelsea, Mass., has been appointed as pilot on board the steam yacht Isis, Boston harbor.

Sir William Gull, a celebrated London specialist, said that tight lacing was productive of bad complexions and red noses. This ought to do away with the evil at once.

There is still living on a plantation in Lee county, Ga., a negro woman who does not know that she is free. She is totally deaf, and has never been made to understand about emancipation.

Women inventors appear very often on the Patent Office records, and one of them who succeeded in pushing through an improvement in an eye-glass spring is said to have made a very comfortable fortune by the crystallization of her ideas in practical form.

In a Maine school the other day the teacher was giving out masculine nouns for the pupils to write down the feminine corresponding. The teacher asked the feminine of "hart," which is "hind." One little girl misunderstood the word and wrote "harp," feminine "fiddle."—Bangor Commercial.

Mrs. Garfield has returned to her home in Mentor after a visit to her daughter, Mrs. J. Stanley Brown, in Washington. Mrs. Harrison called upon Mrs. Garfield immediately upon hearing of her presence in the capital, the ex-President's widow returning the call with her daughter on the next day.

The latest novelty that Brooklyn shopkeepers are displaying in their show windows to catch the pennies of school children is a pair of red spectacles. The frame is of brass, and the glass is merely daubed on one side with red paint. The spectacles sell for a cent. Parents complain that they are hurtful.

Annie Dooley, aged 12 years, died at her home, No. 589 Second avenue, New York, on Thursday, from the effects of excessive rope jumping. On Tuesday afternoon a companion of the girl remarked that she could not jump the rope 200 times without stopping. Annie accomplished this feat, but shortly afterward began to fall ill.—New York World.

Seven young New York ladies, gymnastic pupils, gave an exhibition of skill on Thursday. The work consisted largely of bar-jumping, ring-swinging and low parallel barring. In vaulting over a bar with a pole Miss Frothingham and Miss Jones showed the greatest proficiency, clearing the cross-bar when it was five feet two inches from the ground.

Mrs. Lynn Linton says in the London Musical World that the performances provided in London drawing-rooms by hostesses will never be worth listening to so long as "girls with voices no louder than a reed, and shrill and twanging as a jew's-harp clip the words of an absurdly sentimental song to an audience whose present pleasure they destroy, and who have to feign a satisfaction they do not feel."

Parisian authorities have been debating whether the host or the guest should enter a carriage first, says the Chicago News. After much argument the following conclusions have been reached: If the host be a woman she should enter first, and should seat herself so that her guest shall sit at her right, but she should not neglect to explain to her guest that she wishes her to occupy the seat of honor at her right. If the host be a man the guest enters the carriage first and takes the seat to the right of where the host is to sit. In entering a carriage a gentleman should never pass in front of a lady seated within; he should rather walk around to the farther side of the carriage and enter by the outside door.

A Lesson in Horticulture.

A couple of thriving tobacco plants stand in the window of the Berkshire Cigar Company's store. A young lady stood looking at them Tuesday afternoon, and just then Sing Cone stepped from the door. The following conversation ensued:

Young lady—Can you tell me what kind of plants those are, sir?
Mr. Cone—Tobacco plants.
Young lady—Do cigarettes grow on them?
Mr. Cone—No; cigarettes are not made out of tobacco.
Young Lady—When do they blossom?
Mr. Cone—Never. When the leaves wither and turn brown in the fall of the year they curl up and dry in the shape of cigars. Then they are picked.
Young lady—How funny.
Mr. Cone—Very funny.—Berkshire News.

Whitman Proved Guilty.

JOLIET, May 20.—The Baptist Ministerial Council, called to adjudicate the charges against Rev. Edward Whitman, formerly of Charlottetown, P.E.I., and settle the strife which has, during his pastorate of one year, caused great trouble in the Baptist Church here, met here to-day. Nearly all the churches in Northern Illinois embraced in the call were represented. Such a case was presented against the accused that the reporters who were present were enjoined to stand up and solemnly affirm that for the sake of decency and Christianity they would not disclose the evidence. There was not a voice to be raised in Mr. Whitman's favor, and the verdict was that all the charges were sustained. Mr. Whitman was sent for to speak, but he refused to appear and locked his church against the council.

The Town Clerk furnishes the following information which will be interesting to those who intend to vote at the coming Provincial elections in the town of Peterborough. The assessment roll for 1889—upon which the voter's list to be used at the election is based—was commenced on February 2nd. The last day for appeals to the County Judge was October 12th. The roll was returned to the Clerk by the assessors on May 4th and was finally revised by the Court of Revision on June 17th, there being no appeals to the County Judge.

CLERGYMEN IN COUNCIL.

INTERESTING DISCUSSIONS AT THE METHODIST DISTRICT MEETING.

Considering the Best Way to Utilize the Lay Element—Memorial to the General Conference—The Superannuation and Church Fund—The Evening Meeting.

The afternoon session of the Methodist District meeting opened at two o'clock; the Rev. M. L. Pearson in the chair. After singing the Rev. Mr. Craig, missionary at Hiawatha, led in prayer, after which the meeting was thrown open for hearing and discussing of the following topic, How we can best utilize our Lay Element. The Rev. Mr. Power opened the debate by alluding to the organizations now in existence in the church, and the work taken up by each society. He alluded to the fact that many were kept in the back ground by the apparent willingness of a few to take the whole responsibility of the different meetings whereas if the minister or those in charge would insist on more taking part in the services it would have a tendency to cultivate a deeper interest in the work and more would be brought into direct sympathy with the cause of God. In earnest and impressive words the speaker sought to lay special stress upon the need of the baptism of the Holy Spirit to have the lay element realise the power they would have in God's work by being filled with the Spirit. Rev. Mr. McAmus next spoke dwelling chiefly upon the importance of first finding out the various talents possessed by the different members of the church, and then utilizing their special gifts to carry on the work.

Rev. Mr. Burns followed by stating that a large amount of energy is being prostituted by the lay element in cultivating a critical, seniliye spirit with regard to the working of the church and on its government. He also said that if the same energy was excited in building up, as in seeking to pull down, better results would be noticeable in the Christian church.

Rev. Mr. Shorey, in rising to speak, alluded to the importance of organization of the lay element in order to thoroughly and efficiently carry on the church's work, stating that he often felt his inability to thoroughly concentrate and mobilize his members to do efficient work. While he might stir the laity up to a sense of their duty from the pulpit, yet it was simply a stir. In drawing an illustration he used the parable of the vine, saying that a vine might grow and spread and cover a good deal of ground and be very fine to look upon, but when you came to look for fruit you found it small and damaged. It needed the pruning hand of a master gardner to cut off the stray shoots in order that the fruit might draw more life-giving power from the parent stock. So in church work. It needed the Master's hand to trim and prune the laity so that they would bear more lucious fruit, and as the material vine needed the showers from heaven so the church needed the spiritual showers of the Holy Spirit.

Rev. Mr. Pearson said that he believed in using the young people in the church, knowing that the older people would naturally give their attention to church matters. He did not believe neither did he consider it conducive to the best interest of the church to see old men fill all the positions. Referring to other churches that had caught the progressive spirit of the age he said that young men were the ushers, young men took up the collection, young men attended to part of the financing. He thought that it was a great mistake for older members to incorporate themselves into positions, and think that it would be absolutely impossible for the church to succeed unless they took all the responsibility.

Rev. Mr. Davis said that he believed he would have been a gain in the pulpit had he been allowed to attend to the spiritual work of his congregation instead of having his time absorbed in business matters of the church that properly belong to the laity, and he thought that the day was coming when the laity would take full charge of all matters of that nature and leave the minister's hands free to attend to the most important branch of the Christian churche's work, the salvation of souls. This would be a grand step towards making the laity more efficient in the churche's work.

Remarks were made by some of the other brethren present touching the question.

The next subject brought forward was the "Memorial to the General Conference" by the Laymen, and one referring the "Superannuation and the Church Fund," read by Mr. Thos. Johnson, as follows:—

MEMORIAL TO THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

That whereas the inauguration of the Superannuated Ministers Fund was designed to assist those in need and relieve the burdened, and whereas in its present shape it is the most oppressive to those whose salaries are the smallest.

Therefore, be it resolved by the Mark-st. Official Board of the Peterborough district, That we do hereby recommend the General Conference through the district meeting to so amend the constitution of the said fund as to lessen the demand from the weaker circuits and increase it on the strong circuits.

Your memorialist beg to recommend the following,—That is to say, all ministers receiving a salary of $800 per year (including board, fuel, rent and housekeep) for 20 years have no claim on the fund other than their private subscription entitles them to, and all circuits paying their minister that amount of salary be rated 6 per cent. and every circuit paying $900 7 per cent., and on every additional $100 1 per cent., and every circuit or mission paying a salary of $700 be rated 5 per cent. and $600 4 per cent. and 1 per cent less rate on every $100 less salary.

This question created considerable discussion and many points were brought out, but no direct scheme was brought forward to show that the present scheme could be better improved. In referring to the distribution of the Superannuation Fund the most objectionable feature was—that many ministers were drawing from that fund who were in no immediate need of it, having sufficient private means of their own to live very comfortably upon, and that many laymen refused to contribute to this fund using that as an excuse.

THE EVENING MEETING.

At the evening meeting Rev. M. L. Pearson presided. After singing Bros. Rev. F. Johnson and Rev. Mr. Adams led in prayer; another hymn was sung. Rev. Mr. Pearson briefly introduced Rev. Mr. Burns, of [illegible], who read an essay on "The Mission of Methodism." This essay was very instructive and edifying and exhibited a good deal of research regarding the early and modern days of Methodism. He quoted its doctrines and beautifully described the great work it had done. He referred eloquently to the noble good by men who engaged in her service in its infancy, and showed her power to-day, 25,000,000, who were proud and thankful that they are Methodists. He concluded his essay by giving good advice to all as to the best way of carrying out God's work in Methodism.

Rev. D. N. McCamus, of Fraserville, addressed the meeting next. His subject was "The laymen's memorial." This truly was a masterpiece. He showed the inseparable connection between ministers and laymen, and of the necessity of working together. He argued conclusively that we ought to be very cautious and if possible change no part of our constitution. He pointed many things that laymen had a perfect right to memorialize the conference for, such as calling young men to the ministry, the giving of local preacher's license, the requiring of higher education among our clergy, &c. He dwelt upon the idea of laymen assisting the stationing our minister. He objects to them and sees no necessity of their assisting in this work.

His remarks were well put and evinced much thought. His address was food for all and all present were much benefitted. A lively discussion ensued, participated in by ministers and laymen.

The meeting adjourned after a few hours session.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The reception committee met last evening and completed arrangements for the anniversary "At Home" on Friday evening, May 30th. A short informal programme of music, vocal and instrumental, etc., will be given by friends of the Association and refreshments will be served during the evening by the Ladies Auxiliary. All young men are invited. A silver collection will be taken.

We have found how true the words of our Lord Jesus are when He spoke these words in Matthew, 26-13: "Verily I say unto you wheresoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, there shall also this, that this woman hath done, be told for a memorial of her." By the number of letters, telegrams, etc., of congratulations we have received, they have all the true ring of praise to God. Among them we give the following from Mr. Williams, formally general secretary here for six years:—

KINGSTON, 20th May, 1890.

Dear Mr. Colville:

Praise God for His goodness to the young men of Peterborough. I do indeed rejoice with you, as much of my life is bound up in the welfare of your association. He has certainly led you into a large place. I suppose now that you will raise $15,000 or $20,000 more and put up a building worthy of the "Premier Town." Yours will make the fourteenth building in Ontario.

Yours rejoicingly,
GEO. K. WILLIAMS.

Who will give us a site to put up a building that will be an ornament and blessing to our young men in time to come? Who shall have the honor?

This week the young men's meeting will be held on Friday evening. Mr. Albert Hamilton will speak on the turning point in the life of Cain.

A GALA DAY IN TOWN.

THE GRAND CELEBRATION OF THE 24TH OF MAY.

The Visit of Toronto's Crack Regiment to be a Grand Attraction—A Day of Pleasure and Enjoyment. Sport and Fun—The Programme Outlined—A Big Crowd Expected.

Saturday next will be the 24th of May, the birthday of Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria, and all over the British Dominions true loyal hearts will commemorate the anniversary event. In Peterborough the celebration will be a memorable one, and the day, should the weather prove warm, from the rising of the sun until long after he has sunk to rest in the west, will be one of activity, bustle, sight-seeing and pleasure. The visit of the Queen's Own Rifles, the crack corps of Canada, will lend an unusual attraction to the celebration, which will undoubtedly be one of the grandest that the memories of Peterborough's oldest inhabitants can bring up out of the dim and distant past.

About midnight, it is expected, the Toronto corps will arrive here on a special train on the C.P.R. They will march up from the station through the town, across to Ashburnham to their camp grounds on Burnham's Point. This is a most delightful site for a camping ground. Already it has assumed an interesting appearance. Several of the larger tents have been raised and seven electric lights have been placed in well selected locations to illuminate the city of tents. The tents for the regiment will be pitched on Friday, when an advance guard will arrive and prepare everything for the reception of the regiment when they march in early on the morning of the 24th. The regiment will number about 400 men and they are a gentlemanly, jolly, fine lot of young fellows who will enjoy their visit here if they are given any opportunity at all. The Town Council has granted four hundred dollars for the entertainment of the officers and men, and besides this neither labor or money will be wanting to give the visitors a good time and make the celebration a success. Besides the attraction of such a well-drilled corps, the regiment brings with it its fine band, one of the best musical organizations in Canada, and some excellent music may be expected. Along with the volunteers will come a host of other visitors and our town will be crowded.

SPENDING THE DAY.

On Saturday morning the day's programme will commence with a grand military parade. The 57th Battalion will muster in full force at the drill shed and at eleven o'clock march to the Ashburnham bridge to meet the Queen's Own as they come from their camping grounds. The principal streets will be paraded and will terminate at the Exhibition Park, where both corps will be exercised in military evolutions until noon, when a grand feu-de-joie will be fired as the clocks are striking the mid-day hour.

After the men have dined a grand programme of sports and games will be run off. The Queen's Own and 57th battalion bands will be in attendance and will enliven the proceedings with numerous selections. At two o'clock the Cobourg and Peterborough baseball clubs will battle for supremacy on the diamond and at four a team from the Queen's Own will meet the Riverside lacrosse team. This will be an interesting and exciting struggle. While these contests are in progress an exhibition of the new bayonet exercise and physical and fancy drill will be given by a squad from the Queen's Own and the following events will be run off on the track:—Half mile race, vaulting with pole, mile bicycle race, (green), 100 yards' dash, running long jump, sack race, 220 yards hurdle run, fat man's race, 440 yards race, transposition race, two mile bicycle race, race in review order (half mile go-as-you-please), three-legged, hurdle race, mile race, goose race, plug race (slowest horse wins), and tug-of-war between teams from the Queen's Own Rifles and 57th Battalion. These events will be keenly contested as cups and medals to the value of over $150 will be offered as prizes.

The general admission fee to the grounds will be 25c; volunteers in uniform 10c; grand stand 10c. extra.

In the evening the Queen's Own Band will give an open air concert in the Court House Park, which will be a musical treat to the citizens. This concert is given at a cost of one hundred dollars. Should the weather be unfavorable the concert will be given in the Charlotte-st. rink. The non-commissioned officers of the 57th have arranged a moonlight excursion on the lake, at which they will entertain the non-coms. of the Queen's Own.

The programme with the attraction will undoubtedly draw an immense crowd of people to Peterborough from all over this district.

Well Sarah, what have you been doing to make you look so young? Oh, nothing much, only been using Hall's Hair Renewer to restore the color of my hair.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

THURSDAY, MAY 22, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

Would he never go? Yes, he would and did, and Margaret was left to ask herself what next? One of the first things she did, was to secure the services of a barber.

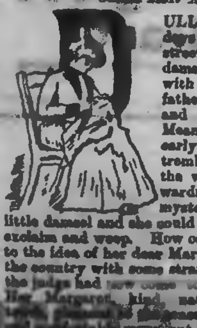
"Father is troubled so with headaches," she said to the strapping darkey that responded to her summons, "that I thought it might be a good thing to cut his hair. You see, it is so long now, and so are his whiskers. Best cut them both. Give his face a clean shave and shingle his hair."

The job was to the barber's liking. When he had finished, the aristocratic head of the judge took to itself a very common aspect, and his face lost his judicial look with his whiskers. A weak chin was made visible, and there were great hollows in the cheeks that Margaret had not dreamed of.

"Do you want another job?" Margaret asked suddenly of the darkey, who was laboring with the whisk broom, rolling his tongue with each motion, as if on the activeness of that member depended his success. "You might cut off my hair too, if you think you can do it well. Summer will soon be here, and I shall find this mop disagreeable." Half an hour later, shorn of her beautiful hair, she went out to a little store near, where all sorts of things were kept for country sale. There she bought coarse shoes for herself and father, overall and blouse of jean for the judge, and a dress of [illegible], ready-made for herself. With hats of corresponding ugliness, a rough overcoat and a shawl of dull tint, she returned to the hotel. The judge was walking the floor restlessly, and in his eyes Margaret thought she saw the light of returning misery. That meant returning reason also, yet she was not glad to see it yet. Not till they were beyond danger. She dreaded his lamentations if he awoke to a sense of their trouble, and felt she would gladly save him that much. He was willing to change his clothes, and to put on those she had purchased. So she left him to do it, while in another room she donned the coarse dress, the outlandish hat, and the awkward shawl. Drawing off the delicate stocking of silk and the dainty kid boots, she replaced them with those from her packages. Then she looked at herself critically. Turning this way and that, now on tip toe, and now on a chair, she viewed herself in the mirror, from every standpoint. It was certain that there were few suggestions of the fashionable city girl, in that ill-dressed figure, with the face staring boldly out from her cropped head. Nor would any have thought that old man in jeans, with the wandering stare, was Judge Barthwait, elegant, courteous and haughty. The thing now was not to let the people of the house see the change that had taken place. So, putting on the cloak and hat she had worn when she came, she told them that just after dark she expected some friends to call for them. These friends had driven to the city, but promised to stop for them on their way home. It was not necessary to send supper up, for they would eat with their friends a little later. On that excuse Margaret managed to get the satchels put on the platform. These held additional clothing now and a box of matches as well.

It was not difficult after the twilight had deepened, to slip from the house, take the light bags, and walk down the road as if in anxious outlook for the expected friends. Once on the way, Margaret quickened the pace, and turning to the north, walked at random over the prairie. Before morning came, the clothes that had been worn in the city, had served to furnish fuel for a fire by which they warmed themselves, and the two figures trudging over the prairie were those of a farmer and his awkward daughter, who walked with a slouching gait and talked with a nasal twang and a free use of the double negative.

CHAPTER XXI.



FULL indeed were the days now on Walnut street. The little damsel had written with tears for her father to come for her and take her home. Meanwhile she sewed early and late with trembling fingers on the wonderful infant wardrobe. All was mysterious to the poor little damsel and she could do nothing but exclaim and weep. How could she get used to the idea of her dear Margaret flying over the country with some strange monster, as the judge had now come to seem to her. Her Margaret, kind, natural, warm to touch, pleasant to the sense [illegible] of [illegible] and comfortable ways, but [illegible] surrounded by unreal darkness. [illegible] such unhealthy condition did Jeanne picture her dear friend. Two whole days passed between the last visit of Fond's, in which they had wept together, and the present one. The young man looked pale and worn and he met Jeanne with a sort of shyness, as if he feared a rebuff from her.

"I feel like a culprit, continually," he said, taking her plump little hand in a grateful clasp. "I have done something that will always cause me remorse, and yet I shall always be able to tell myself that if I had to do it over again, I should do exactly the same thing. It is a terrible thing that I have done, though."

"Dear, dear," said the little damsel, putting up her handkerchief to her blue eyes, "you must not fret. There is no need for any of us to fret. It was all in—ev—itable."

This was a very long word for the little damsel to say, who, in her conversation as in all else, was the soul of simplicity.

"You do not blame me, then?"

"Not a bit, not a little bit. Of course I know a woman has no business to be logical. [illegible] is always expected to be [illegible] and the soldier falls short of the expectation. But in the present case I have the courage to set aside my natural feeling in the case. I am sorry that it was made necessary for you to do what you did, but I realize that it was your misfortune, and not your fault. But my poor Margaret——"

"Don't, Miss Jeanne! For God's sake do not speak of her! How could I imagine that she would do as she has? I thought the judge would be apprehended, yet I would do nothing to aid in that. The police were not informed—no one in authority was. I simply wrote my article, and went to my room to pass a miserable night. I did not know that Miss Margaret had gone home with her father. I thought she was here with you and that she would not see the paper till late in the evening. Instead, she was with him, and the first noble impulse was to protect him from the consequences of his crimes. She has gone away with that lunatic. At this moment she may be dead, or in frightful distress and fear. What have I driven her to?"

"She knew so little about the world," murmured Jeanne, joining in the lament. "She was so sensitive and modest. And now she will be going about the country like an escaped criminal."

"But I could not let Leiter die in the place of that madman, who sat there ready to pronounce the sentence of death on him. I could not let my friend be sacrificed to such a monster."

"That you couldn't," said Jeanne. "You did just right. Think no more about it."

"I am glad one person thinks so. You have a very comfortable way with you, Miss Jeanne."

THE RAILWAY WORLD.

Reading Makes a Deal to Use the Erie to Buffalo and Send Coal to Canada.

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.—Under orders of the Board of Managers of the Reading Railroad surveys are now being made for a line to connect the Reading system at Williamsport with the Erie at Erwin, a few miles west of Corning on the main line of the latter road. About 20 miles of the Erie's Tioga branch (from Blossburg to Lawrenceville) will be used to make the connection. It is understood that the Erie will build the road from Lawrenceville to Erwin, a distance of 9 miles, and that the line from Williamsport to Blossburg will be built jointly by the Reading and the Erie. This will give the Reading a line from its mines to Buffalo 87 miles shorter than its present route via the Fallbrook and New York Central, getting the Reading coal into Buffalo on a shorter line than any other except one—the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western—which is the same length.

The Erie Road is used from Lawrenceville also to make a connection with the Elmira, Cortland & Northern Railroad, which stretches out of the north 140 miles to Camden on the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg Railroad, which it is reported is already operated favorably to the Reading, at which point a large and constantly increasing anthracite coal tonnage is distributed.

It is said that President Corbin is not satisfied with this terminus at Camden and that he has it in contemplation to extend the route from Camden to Watertown and thence to Morristown, the terminus of the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg, where, as well as at Ogdensburg, ferry connections are established with the Canadian Pacific. An extension of five or six miles from Morristown to Ogdensburg will bring the route to a connection with the Central Vermont system. Through these connections Reading coal can be distributed along the entire lines of these two systems where at present it is entirely shut out. The connection with the Canadian Pacific will put Reading coal into the large cities of Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and other points to the Pacific Ocean, at which places the consumption of anthracite coal is on the increase, with every prospect that it will develop in the near future into a large demand. President Corbin, accompanied by a surveyor, is now on the ground investigating this route in person.

In the Hotel Business.

WINNIPEG, May 21.—It is reported that the Canadian Pacific Railway has purchased the Clarendon Hotel here for $40,000, and will fit it up in elegant form. The step is doubtless prompted by the fact that the Northern Pacific is building a mammoth hotel in connection with their station here, the object being to capture all southern business.

It is also stated that Stewart Tupper, acting for the Hudson's Bay Railway, has purchased 60 acres of land in this city to be used as terminal grounds for the company. The belief is general here that the latter company has made such arrangements with the Dominion Government as will enable it to go on with the construction this year.

Government Aid for the H. B. R'y.

OTTAWA, May 21.—It is understood the Government has decided to grant substantial aid to the Hudson Bay Railway. The Manitoba members have been urging this course for some time past.

The Atchison's Acquisition.

BOSTON, Mass., May 21.—The papers completing the deal between the Atchison & St. Louis and San Francisco Railways have been signed.

The Knights of the Punch.

ROCHESTER, May 21.—The conductors' convention adjourned here to-night after a 10-days' session. The work of the day was only the clearing up of routine matters. Secretary Daniels prepared a statement for publication regarding the strike clause, in which he stated that the body would not strike under any circumstances. The conductors leave to-morrow morning for Albany, thence by boat to New York.

Watering Richmond Terminal.

NEW YORK, May 21.—The directors of the Richmond Terminal to-day authorized the increase of the capital stock to $70,000,000. Part of the increase will be exchanged for East Tennessee preferred and Virginia Midland stock. The balance and some collateral trust 5 per cent. bonds will be offered stockholders who, will receive a $1000 bond and 20 shares of stock for $1200.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Falling Off in Contributions for Foreign Missions.

SARATOGA, May 21.—In the Presbyterian General Assembly to-day a resolution urging Congress to pass the bill for an investigation of the effects of intoxicating liquors was adopted.

The 53d annual report of the Board of Foreign Missions was read by Dr. Barrill of Minneapolis. The total receipts were $874,-000, a decrease of $[illegible] as compared with [illegible] coming more and more dependent on the benevolence of the dead and the activity of living women and Sunday school scholars while the churches are falling off. We must and can make up these deficits in the receipts of our board. Our denomination, perhaps the richest in the world, [illegible] of one per cent. of [illegible] the gospel to the heathen. Go [illegible] go home and tell our presbyteries what we need with no doubt as to getting it."

The recommendations of the board were adopted.

Fatality at Port Colborne.

PORT COLBORNE, May 21.—Mrs. Mahaffey, a widow of this place, employed to cook on the steam barge Isaac May, while coming off the boat about 9 o'clock to-night, fell between the boat and the wall of the [illegible] and [illegible]. The body was recovered from the [illegible], but life was extinct.

"There was a frog who lived in a spring. He caught such a cold he could not sing."

Poor, unfortunate Batrachian! In what a sad plight he must have been. And yet his misfortune was one that often befalls singers. Many a once tuneful voice among those who belong to the "genus homo" is utterly spoiled by "cold in the head," or on the lungs, or both combined. For the above mentioned "croaker" we are not aware that any remedy was ever devised; but we rejoice to know that all human singers may keep their heads clear and throats in tune by the timely use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, both of which are sold by druggists.

Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases of Catarrh in the Head, no matter of how long standing, while for all laryngeal, bronchial, throat and lung affections, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is positively unequaled. It cures the worst lingering coughs and builds up the flesh and strength of those who have been reduced by wasting diseases. It is guaranteed to benefit or cure in all diseases for which it is recommended, if taken in time and given a fair trial, or money paid for it refunded.

A SCORCHER AT ALBANY.

ONE OF THE NEW YORK CENTRAL'S FREIGHT HOUSES BURNED.

The Loss Will Reach One Hundred Thousand Dollars—A Fire that Caused Great Excitement—Thought to Have Originated Through Spontaneous Combustion.

ALBANY, May 22.—One of the quickest, hottest and most exciting fires of recent years occurred here to-night in the burning of one of the New York Central freighthouses near the river. About 7½ people all over the city heard a deep, dull, booming report and almost instantly a great cloud of thick black smoke, flames and sparks shot a hundred feet into the air. A moment later the alarm was given on the whistles of all the steamboats and locomotives within sight and within two minutes the bells were calling the fire department to the scene. The building burned was the middle one of three and was of wood; the other two are brick structures and were only scorched.

How the fire started is a mystery, but the blaze is generally attributed to some form of spontaneous combustion. When first discovered it was a small blaze, but before the alarm could be given the fire reached the oil barrels and an explosion occurred. Within 3 minutes the building was a mass of roaring fire. It is impossible to get any accurate idea of the loss. No one can tell to-night what consignments there were in the house, but they are roughly estimated at $100,000.

An Oshawa Blaze.

OSHAWA, May 22.—At 4 o'clock this afternoon a fire broke out in a row of roughcast houses belonging to Miss Hall opposite the McLaughlin carriage factory. Loss light.

SUED FOR $380,000 PENALTY.

Editor Tarte Enters An Action Against Hon. Thomas McGreevy.

QUEBEC, May 22.—Mr. J. I. Tarte, editor of Le Canadien, entered in the Superior Court this morning an action against Hon. Thomas McGreevy for $380,000. The plaintiff alleges that the member for Quebec West is unworthy of the seat he occupies in the House of Commons. As the defendant is a Government contractor he cannot legally hold his seat in the House. Moreover, as the defendant held his seat while not being in the condition required by a member to exercise his duties in an independent and disinterested way, the plaintiff demands that a penalty of $380,000 be imposed on Mr. McGreevy.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

The U.S. House Judiciary Committee to Make a Favorable Report.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—For the first time in the history of the House Judiciary Committee, a majority of the members to-day agreed to a favorable report upon a joint resolution introduced by Mr. Baker of New York providing for a constitutional amendment to grant the right of suffrage to women. Twice before a minority of the committee has reported favorably in similar propositions and one of these reports was drawn up by the present speaker, Mr. Reed.

A Missing Earl.

VICTORIA, B.C., May 22.—A correspondent of a local paper, writing from Kootenay Lake, says that Viscount Boyle, now Earl of Shannon, who was said to have been last heard of at Vancouver in November, 1887, was met by him in September or October, 1888, at Kootenay Lake. Viscount Boyle was then on a hunting trip. The correspondent's impression is that he was on his way to Eastern Montana or Wyoming to hunt elk.

Death on the Track.

AYLMER, May 22.—This afternoon, while an old man named Thomas Wiley was walking on the Grand Trunk Railway track about two miles west of this place, he was overtaken by a train and being almost totally deaf he did not hear its approach. He was struck by the pilot of the engine and hurled down the embankment, killing him instantly. Deceased was a member of the Baptist Church and was highly respected.

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., May 22.—J. Monroe Shellenberger, the lawyer whose forgeries and other criminal escapades and flight recently caused a sensation, was to-day sentenced by Judge Yerkes to undergo an imprisonment of 22 years at hard labor in the penitentiary. When judgment was pronounced the prisoner broke down completely and had to be carried from the court room. The scene was exciting.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

AN IMPORTANT IMPERIAL FEDERATION MEETING

Lord Rosebery's Speech—Australia's National Aspirations—Turks Worsted in a Conflict With Albanians—Russia Aching to Get at Austria.

LONDON, May 22.—An important and numerously attended meeting of the National Federation League was held to-day over which Earl Rosebery presided. In the course of his remarks laying before the meeting the business which called them together Lord Rosebery expressed the opinion that the present was not an opportune time for a conference on the question of Imperial Federation owing to the fact that a strong wave in favor of Colonial Federation was now sweeping over Australia. The Antipodean colonists, he said, were far more eager just now to bring to a successful issue their own federation scheme than to accomplish anything in the way of Imperial Federation and the latter question must therefore bide its time. The prospects of the ultimate success of the Imperial movement, however, were advancing rapidly.

Uneasiness in regard to the situation between Russia and Austria increases notwithstanding the friendly letter of the Czar to the Austrian regiment of which he is the nominal colonel. It is believed that Russia is only deterred from an immediate attack by fear of Germany, but that apprehension may not be sufficient to prevent a determined movement by the Czar's forces toward the Danubian provinces.

Australian Nationality.

MELBOURNE, May 22.—The Parliament of Victoria was opened to-day by the Earl of Hopetown, Governor of the Colony. He congratulated Parliament upon the prosperity of the country and upon the rapid strides towards federation which he said was near. This proved the growth of the feeling of a common Australian nationality.

Turks Routed by Albanians.

LONDON, May 22.—The installation of the Turkish governor Karaiman at Laiche was resisted by the Albanians. Turkish soldiers attempted to quell the Albanians and were routed, many being killed.

Labor Riots in Ravenna.

ROME, May 22.—Labor riots occurred in Ravenna to-day. Three peasants were killed and numerous soldiers and peasants wounded. The latter earn only seven pence a day. The Anarchists are fomenting trouble.

The Egyptian Debt Conversion.

PARIS, May 22.—A cabinet meeting was held to-day, prior to the departure of President Carnot on a tour of the provinces. Ribot, Minister of Foreign Affairs, announced that the arrangements for the conversion of the Egyptian debt had been completed.

A Shock to Their Faith.

BERLIN, May 22.—The village of St. Maylen, near Hildesheim, has been visited recently by a hailstorm which has done great damage. To-day the people gathered in a church to pray for the cessation of the storms. While the services were in progress a thunderbolt came and the church was struck by lightning. Four persons were killed and twenty injured, four being rendered completely blind. The people were panic-stricken and in the mad rush for the doors two children were crushed to death.

CABLE FLASHES.

An Anti-British Compact—The Queen's Illness Not Serious.

LONDON, May 22.—The Post reasserts that an agreement between Cardinal Lavigerie and the German East Africa Company is in existence, although perhaps it has not been reduced to writing. The paper says the cardinal has written to the president of the Brussels conference urging the claims of his mission in Uganda to exclusive recognition on the ground that Uganda is outside British influence.

The Post also says the cardinal has made an anti-British compact with Portugal, and the Portuguese government is reported to have paid him £20,000 down with a subsidy of £800 annually to establish a mission at Mpondo, at the end of Lake Nyassa.

Rumors of the serious illness of the Queen are officially denied. Her Majesty has a trifling cold.

BERLIN, May 22.—Before the Budget Committee of the Reichstag yesterday the Minister of War, Gen. Duvernois, declared that having once overtaken her neighbors, Germany must henceforth lead instead of following the defensive development of other powers. He wished it perfectly understood that the present demand for money for the army was only an instalment. Complete detailed plans would be submitted later. If, however, it were possible to effect a general disarming the Government would welcome it.

LONDON, May 22.—The new British gunboat Thrush carrying six guns sailed to join the fleet on the North American and West India station. She is under command of Prince George, second son of the Prince of Wales.

ORDERS TO THE BEAR.

To Proceed to Behring Sea and Seize all Vessels Engaged in Unlawful Acts.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Secretary Windom to-day signed the sailing orders of the revenue cutter Bear, now at Seattle, Wash., directing that she sail immediately to Ounalaska and then to cruise diligently in Behring Sea for the purpose of warning all persons against entering such waters for the purpose of violating section 1956 of the Revised Statutes and arresting all persons and seizing all vessels found to be or to have been engaged in any violation of the laws of the United States therein.

The commander of the Bear is also furnished with copies of the President's last proclamation on this subject and the act of March 2, 1889, regarding the seal and salmon fisheries of Alaska.

The British Proposition Rejected.

NEW YORK, May 23.—A Washington despatch to The Herald says: At the Cabinet meeting Wednesday it was decided to reject the British proposition submitted three weeks ago for a settlement of the Behring Sea question. This was expected by both parties. A commission will likely be appointed to settle the whole matter. For this year's seal fishing the United States war vessels will be instructed to deal leniently with the sealers.

Miss Mackie's Body Recovered.

KINGSTON, May 23.—The body of Miss Mackie, who was cook on the Jessie Breck, was recovered to-day.

Rykert's Denial.

ST. CATHARINES, May 22.—Rykert has issued handbills denouncing as an infamous slander and infamous lie The World's report of his words on leaving Parliament, to the effect that he had been betrayed by his party and persecuted by a Papist Minister of Justice.

THE WORLD OF SPORT.

Kemp and McLean to Row in July—Racing in England.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., May 22.—A sculling match has been arranged between Kemp and McLean to take place in July.

LONDON, May 22.—The Newmarket second spring meeting closed to-day. The race for the Payne stakes was won by Lord Hartington's Marigo, Duke of Westminster's Blue Green 2d, Rose's Baldemonte 3d. The race for the Bedford 2-year-old plate was won by Lord Durham's Peter Flower, Smith's Bumptious 2d, Cope's Crinoline 3d.

2.38 trotting—Alice won, Maggie B. 2, Shipman 3. Best time 2.32¼.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The St. George Case Appealed — Big Bertha and the Bonds.

TORONTO, May 23.—Notice has been served by the defendants in the St. George case that the decision of the jury will be appealed.

George Hackett was tried before Judge Macdougall at the General Sessions yesterday on a charge of having stolen a ham and some bacon from James Waite's hotel at Aurora. Michael Kane and James Owen, who were in Hackett's company previously, pleaded guilty to the theft and stated that Hackett knew nothing of it. The jury disagreed and Hackett was liberated on his own bail.

Charles Lapage and William Patterson were charged with having some time ago entered Elias Rogers & Co.'s coal and wood office in Queen-street west and there assaulted the young lady in charge, Miss McEachren, and attempted to rob the establishment. Both prisoners were identified by Miss McEachren.

Not specially interesting were the second day's proceedings at Osgoode Hall as to "Big Bertha" and the stolen bonds. Nearly the whole of the day was occupied in the examination, cross-examination and re-examination of Jacob Singer, the defendant. Most of the evidence was of no interest to the public; some portions of it recalled the career of the noted confidence woman erstwhile of fashionable Sherbourne-street.

Defendant, a Hebrew who speaks fairly good English, gave his evidence in an apparently straightforward manner. He detailed to a nicety "Mrs. Brown's" visit to the Singer loan office, his desire to do business and at the same time his racial dislike of being "done." Still it was no case of Shylock and the bond, but of a fair if formidable woman and the Stratford and Yorkville bonds which the dear departed had bequeathed her. The name of this supposititious husband was Rich—Mr. Rich of Goderich—so she told him. Still he knew her locally as Mrs. Brown, and soon found out her local habitation, of which she had told him. When he went to see, Queen-of-Sheba-like, he found the half had not been told. The "beautiful" house—and yet a boarding-house—the splendid furnishings, the tasteful appointments, the intrinsic value of the furnishings, the critical eye of "my Hebrew uncle" at once took in. But more remained: she showed him her horse, carriage—at least she said they were hers, and under oath he swore "it was a fine turn-out." Hope springs eternal in the human breast, but there's ne'er a hope unaccompanied by fear. And Jacob feared. Hence his inquiries into the validity and value of the bonds, though he confessed to having no suspicions of Mrs. Brown or misgivings that the bonds might have been stolen. With a twinkle in his dark eyes he described Bertha's appearance. She was handsome, richly dressed, apparently about 35 years of age. In confirmation whereof Jacob produced her photograph and eagerly did the counsel look at the same. It was also passed up to the Chancellor, who, with imperturbable face, scanned the features of the famous or infamous heroine in the case.

Witness continuing, said he bought the bonds at $[illegible] on the $[illegible] and Mrs. Brown said she was satisfied. She said Mr. Rich was dead; that afterwards she got married in New York, but there was incompatibility between her and her husband, that she there met Wasserman, whom she loved though he had been a wild boy in New York, and that together they came to Canada. He was her boarder and worked for the Bell Telephone Company.

The Quebec Boodling Charges.

MONTREAL, May 22.—At a meeting held to-night at the village of St. Laurent, Premier Mercier stated that a royal commission would be appointed to investigate the charges of boodling that are being made against the Quebec Government.

To Prevent Collisions at Sea.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—A bill introduced by Senator Dolph to-day to prevent collisions at sea incorporates the regulations adopted by the International Marine Conference of last winter.

The Bookkeeper Was Short.

MONTREAL, May 22.—The disappearance of Joseph Young, bookkeeper of the Redpath Sugar Refinery Company, is accounted by the fact that he is a defaulter to the extent of about $800. He leaves a wife and a daughter behind him. Young is supposed to be in New York.

AMONG THE POLITICIANS.

THE FIRST LARGE LIBERAL MEETING AT TORONTO.

Severe Colds Compel the Premier and Hon. Mr. Hardy to Make Brief Addresses—Hon. S. H. Blake's Speech—The First Nominations.

TORONTO, May 23.—The Pavilion was crowded to the doors last night on the occasion of the first general Reform mass meeting in Toronto. Hon. Mr. Mowat, Hon. Mr. Hardy, Hon. S. H. Blake and the local candidates were the speakers.

The Premier was received with loud applause. Owing to his cold his speech could not be heard by more than one-half of the audience, and it was apparent at the outset that he would not be able to continue talking very long. Mr. Mowat said he was pleased to observe Protestants and Roman Catholics uniting in tendering him so hearty a reception. It showed that the Protestants regarded him as a true Protestant and that they spoke falsely who accused him of infidelity to the church he was educated to worship in in his childhood. The last thing he would think of would be to forsake his church, either for political or any other motive. He knew, too, that the kind reception he had received from these Catholics present was a testimony that he had lived up to the maxim of his life—that he had recognized his duty of being fair to men of all creeds as well as his own. A fair-minded Protestant premier can be fair to Roman Catholics without unfaithfulness to his own church. "I don't wish to be premier any longer when I cannot do this."

At this stage Mr. Mowat stopped suddenly and in a voice scarcely audible beyond the reporters' table said: "I am afraid, gentlemen, I will not be able to continue. I feel my throat giving out. Perhaps I may be able to speak later on, but I will say nothing further now except that I rejoice in the conviction that, whilst charged with hostility to the great principles of equal rights, I know and you know that the administration of which I am premier has ever directed its energies towards the best possible means of promoting the well-being of the community, Protestant and Catholic alike, and I stand before you to-night as a representative of that party which has always been faithful to these principles, and on these grounds ask for a renewal of your confidence." [Applause.]

Mr. Hardy was also suffering from a cold and spoke briefly.

Mr. Blake made a humorous and caustic address and in his witty sallies the audience forgot any feeling of disappointment caused by the necessarily short speeches of the ministers.

In conclusion Mr. Blake eulogized the legislation of the present Government and predicted its success.

THE FIRST NOMINATIONS.

The Candidates in Algoma and the Muskoka and Nipissing Districts.

BRACEBRIDGE, May 22.—The nomination of candidates for the Ontario Assembly was held in the Town Hall to-day. A. P. Cockburn (Ref.) was nominated by Thomas Myers of Bracebridge and seconded by W. P. Willmott, reeve of Monck. G. F. Marter (Con.) was nominated by Mayor Armstrong and seconded by Alfred Hunt of Bracebridge.

NIPISSING JUNCTION, May 22.—The nominations in the Nipissing District to-day were: D. Purvis (Con.), J. Loughrin (Ref.) J. Bourke (Ref.).

PARRY SOUND, May 22.—The nomination of candidates to represent the Parry Sound district was held here to-day. These nominations were made: Edmund Yeigh of Toronto, E. Q. The former, who is running in the Reform interest, was nominated by William Beatty of Parry Sound, and the latter, representing the Liberal-Conservatives, was nominated by E. Q. Taylor of Burk's Falls.

A Government Majority of 18.

HALIFAX, May 22.—The new Assembly stands: Government 28, Opposition 10.

In the last House there were 30 Liberals and 8 Conservatives.

The Flour Market Very Dull.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 22.—The Northwestern Miller says: Last week's flour output was 129,740 barrels. Millers give a doleful account of the flour market, it being a common expression that there is none. Business during the week has been disastrously light and there is a disposition to reduce the output. Patent is most difficult grade to dispose of. Some parties are able to sell more or less bakers' to the domestic trade and are sold ahead to some extent. Low grades are now about the easiest to get rid of. During the week quotations have been marked up 5c to 10c by some firms to keep on a parity with wheat. The export trade continues extremely dull.

A Majority of 65 for Revision.

SARATOGA, May 22.—In the Presbyterian General Conference to-day, Dr. Patton, chairman of the committee for canvassing the answers of Presbyteries on revision, read his report. There were 126 that desired revision and 68 that did not. The others declined to answer.

"The Count" Gets Six Months.

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—Giuseppe Caruso, alias "Count Montercole," pleaded guilty before Judge Thayer to-day to libel. The defendant on July 12 last issued and distributed on the street circulars which contained defamatory statements regarding his wife, Virginia Knox Caruso of Pittsburg. The "Count" was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

Waterloo's Programme for the [illegible].

WATERLOO, May [illegible] will speak here May [illegible] the sentimental consequences of the McKinley Tariff Bill. In the morning he will lay the corner stone of a new Methodist Church.

Keenan Stayed Away.

NEW YORK, May 22.—The funeral of Mrs. Bridget Keenan, mother of John Keenan of boodle alderman fame, took place to-day. John did not come from Montreal to attend the ceremony.

Failure of a Tennessee Bank.

LEBANON, Tenn., May 22.—The Bank of Middle Tennessee located here has assigned. Liabilities, $80,000; assets $[illegible]. This was a state bank.

High-Pressure

Living characterizes these modern days. The result is a fearful increase of Brain and Heart Diseases, General Debility, Insomnia, Paralysis, and Insanity. Chloral and Morphia augment the evil. The medicine best adapted to do permanent good is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It purifies, enriches, and vitalizes the blood, and thus strengthens every function and faculty of the body.

"I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in my family, for years. I have found it invaluable as for Nervous Debility caused by an inactive liver and a low state of the blood." —Henry Bacon, Xenia, Ohio.

"For some time I have been troubled with heart disease. I never found anything to help me until I began using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have only used this medicine six months, but it has relieved me from my trouble, and enabled me to resume work." —J. P. Carzanett, Perry, Ill.

"I have been a practicing physician for over half a century, and during that time I have never found so powerful and reliable an alterative and blood-purifier as Ayer's Sarsaparilla." —Dr. M. Maxwell, Louisville, Ky.

The Daily Review.

FRIDAY, MAY 23, 1890.

DETECTED, BUT NOT REPENTANT.

THE Examiner admits that it inserted the words "and personal" into a sentence it pretended to quote from Rev. Dr. Caven's letter in the Mail, which added an entirely new meaning to the sentence. But it is not repentant, for it continues to misrepresent Dr. Caven, and again in last night's issue it distorts his meaning by leaving out words and re-arranging the sentence it pretends to quote.

The two words referred to by the Examiner were not the only ones it interpolated in order to give color to its fraudulent representation of Dr. Caven's position. In the re-arrangement it made of the sentence to suit its "base and immoral" purpose it added four words that were not in the sentence as written by Dr. Caven and left out words that were used by him. This is sufficient to show that the sentence as written could not be applied to Mr. Carnegie, for even the Examiner would scarcely resort to fraud if it could have made its point without doing so, and the fact that it did misquote, distort and interpolate is enough to prove that Dr. Caven's letter could not in any honest way be construed to suit its purpose.

This is evidence plain enough, but if anything further were needed to show that an altogether unauthorized use was made of Dr. Caven's name it is furnished by the rev. gentleman's letter as published in the REVIEW. The Examiner said that "Rev. Principal Caven, the head and front of the Equal Rights movement, has cast him off—he objects to Mr. Carnegie," &c. Instead of that being the case, when Dr. Caven saw how his name had been used he wrote as follows:—

"TORONTO, 19th MAY, 1890.

"DEAR SIR,—In the extract which you enclose there are some words quoted from a letter of mine which appeared in the Mail of 26th April. IT SHOULD BE UNNECESSARY TO SAY THAT NO ONE HAS MY AUTHORITY TO APPLY THEM TO MR. CARNEGIE. Any person can see their connexion and bearing in the letter referred to.

"Yours very truly,
"WM. CAVEN."

If the Examiner was not so thoroughly case-hardened it would not continue to misrepresent Dr. Caven after receiving such a rebuke, but desperate circumstances, we suppose, requires desperate methods, for in no other way could the fraud the Examiner attempted to perpetrate be explained.

EVIDENCE OF EXTRAVAGANCE.

THE Government supporters take credit because provision is made for the unsound of mind, for the education of the deaf and dumb of the Province and similar institutions. But in doing so they try to rob a man who is now in his grave of the credit that is justly due him. These institutions were established before the present Ontario Government came into office and all it had to do was to run them. Even in that comparatively easy matter it shows its extravagant tendencies. Supplies for the institutions are purchased without tender in order that friends may be favored, and the consequence of the mismanagement is that the cost to the people is much more than it should be.

When the number of inmates increase in an institution the average cost per inmate for maintenance should be less. This is an obvious fact. Yet, from statements published by the Government, we find the cost per capita, instead of decreasing, has increased. The per capita cost of maintenance in the asylums in 1871 was, according to a statement published by the Government, $116.21, and in 1889 it was $140.87, an increase of $24.26 for each inmate. In the Penetanguishene reformatory the increase is from $134.13 in 1871 to $200.01 in 1889. In the Central Prison, the one institute established by this Government, the increase is from $64.91 in 1874 to $89.14 in 1889.

The total expenditure, according to the same document sent out by the Government, has increased from $1,816,866 in 1871 to $3,[illegible] in 1889. This increase is defended on the ground that an increased amount is given back to the people. Yet the total appropriation for grants to Public and Separate schools is less this year than it was in 1873, when the total expenditure was much less, and the amount received in Peterborough town and county in 1889 for aid to High, Public and Separate schools was over $1,100 less than the aid received away back in 1871. The grants to the Peterborough Agricultural Societies last year was not one cent more than they were in 1871.

The Dominion Government collects the taxes and hands the subsidies over to the Provincial Government to be expended for the people. In 1871 the subsidy and specific grant was $888,[illegible], and last year, and since 1874, it was $1,196,872. In addition to this the Ontario Government has received yearly from the Dominion, since 1884, on account of special funds, an increased amount, the excess last year over 1871 being $163,[illegible]. This makes a total increase of revenue from the Dominion of $[illegible]. Although in receipt of this increased revenue, the Government has drawn largely on the surplus the Province had when it came into office and has appropriated revenue belonging to the municipalities, and besides drawing on the surplus and raiding the municipal treasuries, in the four years 1884-87 it borrowed $1,[illegible] The Provincial interests are neglected and debt incurred through the extravagance of the Government—an instance of which is seen in the unnecessarily expensive Parliament buildings now being erected in Toronto.

"Let all friends of Equal Rights who are more anxious to have our principles prevail than to secure a party triumph act in concert, with wise forbearance, and with fidelity and honor."—Rev. Dr. Caven.

In the report of the meeting at which Mr. Carnegie was nominated the Examiner put words in his mouth that he did not use, and it sticks to the same method of political warfare since. Witness its unauthorized use of Dr. Caven's name and its attempt to palm off a quotation from a letter written by a strong partisan of the Government as Dr. Caven's.

IT is several days since the following offer was made to Hon. Mr. Hardy, but he has not seen fit to accept it:—

"LINDSAY, May 17.

"The supporters of Mr. Meredith in West Victoria hereby offer Arthur Sturgis Hardy the sum of three hundred dollars ($300) to deliver in Mariposa and Eldon the identical speech which he delivered before an audience, chiefly composed of Roman Catholics, in Lindsay on Friday night, the 16th inst.

CONNAUGHT AT VANCOUVER.

The Royal Visitors' Day in the Dominion's Youngest City.

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 22.—The dreary rain prevailing this morning had the effect of dampening in a manner the enthusiasm of Vancouver's welcome to the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, who arrived from Victoria by the Canada Pacific steamer Abyssinia at 11 o'clock. The Royal party was met at the dock by Mayor Oppenheimer and the city council, forming a reception committee with the resident officers of the Canada Pacific Railway, who extended to the visitors the hospitality of this the youngest city in the Dominion.

An address expressive of Vancouver's loyalty and her citizens' pleasure at the honor of a visit from royalty was read by Mayor Oppenheimer, and in reply the Prince thanked Vancouver for the cordial welcome extended to himself and his royal consort. He was glad, he said, to find himself once more on Canadian soil. It was quite a new experience for him to come into a city of only three years of age and he was perfectly astounded to observe the size and importance of the buildings and the many signs of active progress to be seen on every hand. He greatly regretted that they would be unable to accept the hospitality so kindly extended in the name of the city of Vancouver. As all know he was returning from a long journey and had to make his arrangements some time before in order to make them harmonize with the steamer sailing dates. He hoped all would understand that this was the only thing that prevented him accepting to the full the invitation of Vancouver's citizens. He would with great pleasure convey to Her Majesty the expression of loyalty and devotion contained in the address. He felt sure that this important link between the east and the west, the Canadian Pacific, would prove one of the strongest in the chain binding together the commerce of the nations of the world.

Continued cheers from the assembled crowd greeted the Prince's speech and the Royal party were then driven to the Canadian Pacific Hotel, where they lunched and spent the afternoon. They leave to-morrow morning for the east by a special train.

The Catholic University at the Capital.

OTTAWA, May 22.—The Catholic University of Ottawa, established in 1848, had 308 students in 1889-90, of whom 38 were in the theological department, 16 in civil engineering and the remainder in arts or the commercial course; 208 come from Ontario, 95 from Quebec, 55 from the United States and seven from elsewhere. In the whole number there are but three Protestants. The instructors and disciplinarians total 40, 23 priests of the Oblate order, seven scholastics of the same order and 10 others.

PEOPLE.

Ouida has earned more money than any woman of the century with the exception of Mme. Patti.

Gladstone received $125 for an article in behalf of a closer alliance of capital and labor, printed in Lloyd's News.

Rev. T. De Witt Talmage is a drawing card upon the platform. He is to receive $10,000 for twenty lectures with Chautauqua assemblies this summer.

United States Minister to England Lincoln is reported as being much improved in health and spirits. The grief consequent on the loss of his son has become softened by time.

A well-to-do sheep raiser in Australia claims to be the "real" Sir Roger Tichborne, and has taken steps to oust Sir Henry Tichborne, the present incumbent of the title and estates.

Ferdinand J. Dreer, of Philadelphia, has presented to the Historical Society of Pennsylvania a collection of 9,000 autograph letters and reliquary curios. The collection embraces letters of revolutionary interest and the signatures of distinguished men and women of the last 100 years.

Addressing the Algonquin Club at Boston the other day, Gen. Butler said that of a single class of eight pupils at the Lowell High School three became Governors, two were leading engineers, one was a Secretary of the Navy, one a leading physician and the other died.

Senator Brown, of Georgia, is a lank, loosely built man of angular frame, with a lofty head guiltless of hair as an auk's egg; a fringe of curls wrapped round and carefully covering his ears and a sweeping gray beard have been compared with those of the patriarchs by correspondents who have never seen one.

Thomas Towndrow is undoubtedly the oldest reporter, both in years and length of service, regularly employed upon a daily paper in America. He celebrated his 80th birthday anniversary last Tuesday. He began reporting for Horace Greeley in 1841, and is still furnishing the news of Westchester County to the New York papers.

Lord Rosebery has become the possessor of the original drawing of Punch's famous cartoon, "Dropping the Pilot." He is, by the way, said to be a great admirer of two men, Napoleon Bonaparte and Bismarck. He disagrees with the methods of both, but admires their genius immensely, the one as a soldier and statesman and the other as a statesman.

Shortly after his conversion to Roman Catholicism, "Joe" Biggar, M. P., attended a church service and fell asleep to dream, doubtless, of obstruction at Westminster. When he awoke the service was over and almost all others had left the church; whereupon, glaring upon the empty benches, he exclaimed: "Mr. Speaker, I move that the house be counted."

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes is compelled to relinquish all correspondence, except with intimate personal friends. "My sight is getting imperfect," he writes to a friend, "and the fatigue of writing is wearing upon me; and, although it will cost me an effort, I feel that, in justice to myself, I must throw off the load, which at 'three-score and twenty,' is too much for my old shoulders."

The Rev. Dr. Parkhurst, of New York, used this remarkable language in the course of a sermon at the Madison Square Presbyterian Church: "It is as much a Christian's duty to love his country as his God. To an American the Stars and Stripes ought to be as much of his actual religion as the Sermon on the Mount. It is as much the duty of a New York Christian to go to the polls election day as for him to go to the Lord's table communion day."

A Warning to Canoeists.

Any canoeists or others who may be boating on the river are warned to keep away from the electric light wires which stretch from the bridge across to the camp grounds on the main shore. These wires being within a few feet of the water and it is just possible during the damp weather that a person might get a shock from them if he approached too near that might throw him into the water. Take warning therefore and keep away.

The Campaign.

Mr. Carnegie's committees meet to-night in the committee room, old Council Chamber, Opera House block.

Mr. Carnegie addressed a meeting last night at Lakehurst and speaks to-night at Montgomery's school house, Smith.

Mr. Stratton is in Harvey this week.

Mr. Kidd held a meeting at Grady's school house, Otonabee, last evening, which was largely attended. Messrs. Kidd and Stone spoke and the meeting was clearly with them.

Mr. Blezard held a meeting at Zion last night and was assisted by still another Toronto lawyer. Mr. Merrick appeared for Mr. Kidd. The absence of any signs of enthusiasm must have impressed itself on the Government candidate.

A Welcome Improvement.

The vacant building site at the corner of Water and Brock streets, east side, which has not been a beauty spot since the destruction of the buildings by fire, has been leased from the warden of St. John's by Mr. Frank Mason. Mr. Mason will next week commence building a fine green house and business place on the lot. The Water-st. front will be filled with a large glass roofed house the full length of the frontage and of suitable width. On the Brock-st. front will be located the business office, packing rooms, etc. Mr. Mason's business has, literally speaking, outgrown his premises in the north ward and requiring more room he decided to locate down town. The locality is a central one, and as he has the contract to care for and beautify the Horticultural Park his business will be conveniently situated for the purpose.

"Hackmatack," a lasting and fragrant perfume. Price 25 and 50 cents. For sale by Geo A. Schofield, Druggist, Peterborough.

TO-MORROW'S CELEBRATION.

The City of Tents Erected by the Advance Guard of the Queen's Own.

The rain which fell to-day has not put the roads in very good condition for to-morrow's celebration of Her Majesty's birthday. However, a few hours of an unclouded sun and they will be dried up and be in better condition than ever. The prospects for a big day in town to-morrow, should the weather prove favorable, are good.

An advance guard of thirty men of the Queen's Own Rifles, under command of Quartermaster Heakes, arrived here on the midnight train last night and marched over to the camp grounds at Burnham's Point. This morning they were hard at work getting things in readiness for the regiment which will arrive to-night. Fifty-four tents have been pitched, besides the large mess tents, and the Point presents quite a martial appearance. The arrangements are almost complete, the electric lights are in position and all preliminaries arranged. The advance guard had not a very auspicious beginning this morning under the drenching rain, but little things in a soldier's life are not heeded.

The Queen's Own will arrive on a special train which will follow the regular express on the C.P.R., so that it will probably be midnight before they reach here. It is likely now on account of the muddy streets that the train will run right over to the grounds and drop the men right at their camp.

The parade to-morrow morning will be held at 11 o'clock. The Queen's Own will leave their camp at 10:30 and march to the Hunter-st. bridge where they will be met by the 57th. The line of march will be up Water to London, along London to George and down George to the Agricultural grounds, where the regiments will be exercised until noon when a feu-de-joie will be fired.

In the afternoon programme the exhibition of physical drill, with and without arms, by a squad of the Queen's Own will be a special feature.

A good deal of misunderstanding has arisen in regard to the band concert in the evening. The concert will be given in the drill shed park or, if the weather is wet, in the drill shed.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

We return our sincere thanks to Mr. Frank Mason for plants for our rooms, also to the Bible Society for three dozen Bibles.

A Neighborly Quarrel.

Mrs. Hannah Ralph, a woman whose countenance and general appearance seemed to indicate that her life had not all been a bed of roses, appeared at the Police Court this morning with a long and pitiful tale which she unravelled to His Worship with a glibness and fluency of tongue which would have done credit to a politician. The story briefly told was this: Mrs. Ralph came here from Port Hope in March last. She is married but says her husband drinks and of little use as a supporter. They live together in a house on Chamberlain-st. and have as a near neighbor a Mrs. Vass. Last night Mrs. Vass came over to Mrs. Ralph's to return some borrowed articles, and after performing her task, turned on her neighbor and accused her of telling tales about her. Mrs. Ralph denied the charge of gossiping and one word led to another, until, as the aggrieved lady alleges, Mrs. Vass poked her neighbor in the eye, pulled her hair and threw her down, dragging her down the steps from the front. Mr. Ralph's husband stood by and watched the attack on his wife's eyes and hair without interfering. Mrs. Ralph sought the magistrate this morning, told her tale and laid an information against her neighbor charging with assault. The case will be heard on Monday.

DEATH'S SUDDEN CALL.

The Sudden and Unexpected Death of Mr. Wm. Cumming, Tax Collector.

A feeling of universal regret and sorrow spread over the community this morning when the sad news of the sudden and unexpected death of Mr. Wm. Cumming, tax collector, was carried from mouth to mouth. Yesterday Mr. Cumming was in his office apparently in his usual health and his death was indeed unexpected and a most severe shock to his family and friends. About twelve o'clock last night the deceased, who had complained of a slight pain in the region of his heart during the day, was taken ill. The physician was summoned and after a short time Mr. Cumming recovered so that nothing serious was feared. This morning about eight o'clock he was subject to another attack, but rallied considerably. While the doctor was in the chamber, however, the deceased rose from his bed, but was compelled to lie down again and had hardly done so when the fatal stroke came, and one of Peterborough's oldest and most widely esteemed and respected residents was no more.

The deceased was a Scotchman by birth and was a fine specimen of the sons of the land of whose nativity he was always so proud. Generous, patient and large-hearted he always had a kind word for all and in his public office of tax collector, a duty which is a trying one, he exercised the same even-temper and kind-hearted consideration which characterized him in his private life. Of him it can be truthfully said that, although he had held some of the most trying offices in the municipality, yet to-day there is not a man who knew him who will speak anything but words of regret and sorrow at his sudden demise. This universal sorrow and sympathy with his bereaved family were everywhere heard and were most heartfelt. Being one of the oldest residents in Peterborough and an officer of the town for forty years he was known to almost every citizen and by all he was held in the same respect and esteem.

As already stated the deceased gentleman was a Scotchman by birth having been born in the year 1819 at a place called Balnain, near Dulinbridge, parish of Duthil, which is on the border between Rosshire and Ivernesshire. He was therefore in his seventy-first year when he was so suddenly gathered unto his fathers. He came from the old stock of the celebrated Cummings of Altyr, whose name and history are familiar to all Scots. About the year 1842 he came to this country and went to live with his uncle, the late Malcolm McGreggor, a waggon maker in Ashburnham, which was then called Scotch village. In the year 1850 when the first council of the town which had just been incorporated met, the deceased was appointed constable, which office then included several others. This office he continued to fill through the rough days of the town's early history for several years, when he resigned and was appointed tax collector, which office he has occupied until now. He was one of the grey-haired sires of the local St. Andrew's Society, having been an active and leading spirit in that organization since its inception in 1852. He had at different times held the office of secretary, treasurer and president of the Society and his memory will ever be honored by the sons of Auld Scotia in Peterborough. He was married twice, his first wife who preceded him to the land of shadows many years ago, being Miss Stenson, daughter of the late Robert Stenson. Four children were the fruits of this union, three of whom, William Cumming, of Montreal, Mrs. Brignall, of Belleville, and Miss Mamie Cumming still survive him. His second wife was Miss Moffat, a sister of Messrs. Andrew and John Moffat. By this last union four children, three girls and one boy, were born, all of whom are still living. Mr. Jas. Cumming, who resides in Ashburnham, is a brother of the deceased. The sympathy of the entire community will be extended to the bereaved family in their sad affliction.

In Darkest Africa.

Henry M. Stanley, perhaps the foremost living man in pluck, endurance and achievement, has just finished writing "In Darkest Africa," the story of his last and greatest undertaking, the quest and rescue of Emin. This will be the most interesting book of the age. It will reveal for the first time the full extent of Mr. Stanley's recent discoveries. No authentic information concerning this expedition has yet been published, beyond the few letters and newspaper accounts which have appeared from time to time during the past three years, and which contain little more than a suggestion of the dangers encountered and overcome and the important results achieved. "In Darkest Africa" will be published shortly by Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons, and Mr. John Watt has secured the sole agency for the town, for the sale by subscription of this remarkable book. Mr. Watt will wait on our citizens, or he can be seen at his residence, 236 Sherbrooke-st. 3d121

Brevities.

—There was no Police Court this morning.

—To-morrow being a public holiday the REVIEW will not be issued.

—The children attending the town schools will be given a holiday on Monday.

—The Charlotte-st. Epworth League will meet this evening for the transaction of important business and for Bible study. A large attendance is expected.

—There was a good turnout of the 57th at the parade last evening. The men looked exceedingly well. Every man must turn out to-morrow morning.

—The Gorton Minstrel Company arrived here at noon to-day and are at the Grand Central. The fine band paraded the streets at noon and discoursed some exceptionally good selections.

The entering wedge of a complaint that may prove fatal is often a slight cold, while a dose or two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. It would be well, therefore, to keep this remedy within reach at all times.

METHODIST DISTRICT MEETING.

The Closing Sessions of the Convention—A Resolution of Regret.

The adjourned meeting of the ministers of the Peterborough District met in the George-st. church at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. After singing a hymn and Rev. Mr. Hough leading in prayer, the meeting was opened for general business. The laymen retired to an adjoining room to discuss the subject or question of lay delegation to the general conference. Mr. J. Hull occupied the chair, and Mr. T. Clarke acted as secretary. Some fifteen laymen were elected to attend the general conference on June 5th, to be held in Cobourg.

The afternoon session of the meeting was principally devoted to the reading of the reports of the financial schedule and memberships and the receiving of the memorials from the lay delegates. South Monaghan circuit was changed to Pontypool. Rev. J. McAmus was elected to accompany the chairman to the stationary committee. Rev. B. Greatorix and Rev. R. W. Clark were elected to represent the Sabbath school committee, and Mr. John Hull on the Missionary committee.

DISHORNING CATTLE.

It is Condemned as a Needless, Painful and Cruel Operation.

The subject of dishorning cattle, says the London Lancet, is again attracting much attention among Scottish agriculturists, in consequence of the case now pending in the Court of Appeal in Edinburg. The question as to whether or not this proceeding is in a legal sense "cruel," and therefore punishable, turns, it will be remembered, on the further question whether it is necessary. If cruelty be taken merely to imply the deliberate infliction of pain, there can be no doubt that dishorning in toto, or, as we might say, from tip to base, is cruel. It must unquestionably cause pain at the time of the operation, with more or less after suffering. In this respect, any difference between alternative methods, as tipping, half-horning, or total horning, is simply one of degree. In every case the saw has to traverse a sensitive skin-layer either continuous with the horney covering, as at its base, or subjacent to it where it sheathes the supporting core, and a central axis of highly sensitive bone. Suppuration, trivial when the tip alone is divided, but increasing as the seat of section approaches the skull, inevitably follows. In the course of the trial the veterinary evidence was agreed in asserting that greater suffering was inflicted when a horn was divided at the middle, where pus might burrow in the projecting stump, than when the section opened the sinuses at the skull, through which its exit was more easy. Another argument in favor of the latter method was adduced by Professor Williams when he referred to the possibility in this case of dividing the nerve of supply before its distribution in the horn. Against these facts, however, might be placed the close proximity of the skull sinuses to the brain cavity, and the impossibility, by section of the nerve above mentioned, of controlling sensation in the communicating nerve supply from other sources. Preliminary section of this trunk should rather be considered the natural anesthetic in half-horning. The process, however carried out, is essentially painful, and discussions as to the relative severity of its effects are, therefore, of no great moment. In face of the fact that in many districts where cattle are bred no such measure has been found to be necessary while isolation or other painless means have sufficed for the restraint of the more savage animals, we cannot but hold that dishorning is a needless, painful and, therefore, cruel and illegal remedy.

APSLEY AFFAIRS.

A Phosphate Mine Being Opened in Monmouth—Political Meeting.

Correspondence of the Review.

POLITICAL.—Mr. A. E. Kidd held a campaign meeting in Apsley on Saturday night, 17th inst. The hall was comfortably filled with supporters of his and others who came to hear the Equal Rights platform explained and discussed. Mr. J. J. Crowe, of Dummer, appeared in Mr. Blezards' behalf. Mr. John Young was chosen to the position of chairman and after a short address called on Mr. Kidd, who succinctly stated his platform and requested criticism. Mr. Crowe responded, but failed to touch on a single point advanced by Mr. Kidd, greatly to the disappointment of a number in the hall. There were a number of Government supporters present, but Mr. Kidd seemed to carry the meeting with him.

MINING.—We were shown a specimen from a phosphate mine being opened in Monmouth. It is the crystaline variety and we were told that crystals are in possession of the prospectors that weigh twenty pounds. A Toronto syndicate are operating and are putting on a large force of workmen.

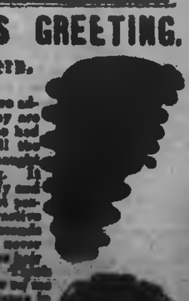
PROF. DORENWEND'S GREETING.

To all Whom it may Concern.



Beautiful women and handsome men are admired and command attention. How many are there who would be beautiful or handsome had they a sufficiency of hair. LADIES, all the dress jewellery and other ornaments are naught if the hair is shaggy or worn-out looking. It requires a Fine Hair Goods Style to beautify and tone down the face. This with the plainest possible dress will create a charming and attractive presence. GENTLEMEN, there are thousands of you with bald tops who have probably never thought of artificial coverings, but when the hair refuses to return—why not get a Toupee? Think of this. I want you all to call at my show room in the Hotel and see my Goods. Ladies' Bangs in an immense variety of styles, sizes and shades. Overpieces in long and short hair, Frontpieces, Wigs, Switches, etc., Gents' Wigs, Toupees, etc. Remember that the Prof. will be in Peterborough at PHELAN'S HOUSE on MONDAY, JUNE 2nd. Drop in and see him. 3e21-2d122

THE JUDGE!

"I am glad my way is comfortable, for I certainly am not. I am going home. Pa is coming for me to-day or to-morrow. I have got all my work out and all my bills paid."

"Bother your bills," said Pond. "Where is your home?"

"Away out in the country, Mr. Pond, where no one ever comes."

"Yes, they do go there, I am sure they do. You are not going to leave me without any friends, are you?"

"Distance has nothing to do with friendship, Mr. Pond. I can give you my warmest [illegible] wherever I am."

"[illegible] you are a perfect [illegible]," cried Pond.

"Thank you! I should think you would be anxious to preserve the friendship of such a person. But instead of talking about myself, I should like to ask you where Harry Lake is."

"The case has been 'nol prossed.' In a few days he will be at liberty to go where he pleases."

"And where will that be?"

"In search of Margaret, I suppose. I have not seen him since. He would not see me now, you know."

"What good will it do him to find Margaret? She would not let him love her. She can not marry him."

"Does it look that way to you?" asked Pond anxiously. "If you were in her place, would you decide so?"

"Yes, I should surely. For one thing, there is the shame of it."

"Oh, nonsense, there is no shame! Shame could not touch Margaret Barthwait."

"Believe me, she will look at it as I say. Think what an injury her father has done him—done her lover. How would it be possible to reconcile them? Think how terrible it would be to even make the effort. It would not be right. There is blood on it. They can never meet. I think myself that Harry will shrink from her. Not because he dislikes her, but because of the blood on it."

"If he deserts her he is a black knave!"

"Do you know what I think, Mr. Pond?"

"No, I do not. Whatever you think must be right."

"Well, then, I think you love Margaret."

"You do, do you? Well, I tell you what I think. I think all who have ever known her have loved her. I am like the rest. But now she, no doubt, holds me as the worst of men!"

"She does nothing of the sort. You are getting simply morbid. Of course she mourns for her father's crimes, but she cannot hate the exposer of them, when he sacrificed himself to save her lover. You give women credit for no sense at all."

"You are right, my little girl, I am morbid. Any one would be who lived the life I do. Fancy my year in and year out at a boarding house. We have many dishes with French names—a sort of mock French cookery. At the table we all hate each other. There are two young men who read the papers, and talk over all the scandals. They imagine they are keeping up with the times, while they are not calculated to understand any time. Then there are ladies who come down in striped flannel house jackets. I think they go to the opera every night. They talk [illegible] Guide, and they [illegible] about the best amount of [illegible] for dyspepsia. Then there is an old bachelor—in whom I see the image of my future self—who studies the occult world and knows all about theosophy. He knows so little about the corporeal world, however, that he cannot keep the sheriff away from the door. Then there are a lot of young things, who come to get fitted up. There is nothing individual about them but their neckties. I am happy for a whole quarter of an hour when I see that one of them has a new tie. Well, then there is the newspaper. If you think that it is a great thing to be a writer for the newspaper, you are mistaken. There is nothing in it at all. I might work conscientiously and well for fifty years for a salary that will not compare favorably with the fool clerk in a gentleman's furnishing store, and at the end of that fifty years I would be denominated a pensioner and a fossil. There is absolutely nothing to look forward to except to become a confirmed pessimist. Not a creature on the face of this earth cares for me, and the secret of it largely is that I do not in the least care for anybody."

The face of the little damsel was very red, indeed, but not a word escaped her lips. Pond went on without looking at her.

"Is it any wonder that the sight of a woman like Margaret Barthwait should wake all the poetry in my nature? Can you marvel that I, who so seldom meet women of any sort, should find the presence of such a one an infinite rest and delight? I tell you, I felt the irritation, the bitterness [illegible] from me. Life had a new meaning. For a time I became almost unselfish, and I assure you that I was never nearer being unselfish, than when I held her father up to public dread and exposed him for a [illegible] deceiver—the most preposterous criminal, and the most remarkable one I very believe, that ever disgraced this city. I saved the life of the man she loved, but at the cost to myself of her dear regard. And at the same time, I made her father an outlaw."

Not a word said the little damsel! But now in place of the flush there was a painful pallor.

"Yet I am wrong," cried Pond, throwing his hands up and clasping them back of his head, "to abuse our profession to you. I tell you it is the most fascinating one in the world. Let your apprenticeship be ever so short, it will win you forever. So long as life lasts you must keep pen in hand and write a-[illegible]. The poison will not leave the blood. Like hydrophobia, it will stay till it kills you. You cannot know the marvel of it! Each day brings new pleasures. All that is best in art, in music, in literature, in science, in discovery, is for you to hear of first, to judge of, to enjoy, to take the best of. The passion and pain of life lie before you. You have opportunities for prying into the most impregnable hearts. You are bound to become a cosmopolitan in the widest sense. The filthy [illegible], eating rotten [illegible] [illegible] a [illegible] of [illegible]. Men and women are the shuttlecocks of fate and all destiny but a joke. You seem to look at life from some high point till all is but a panorama of shadows. And you do not care. Nothing matters. It is a tremendous jest—and yet you watch for the end with bated breath."

"What is a jest?" asked Jeanne, with white lips.

"Life is. Life is a thing you know nothing about. Do you imagine these self-restrained men and women who walk the street with propriety and candor are the real men and women? Nothing is more absurd. These are in reality desperate creatures. They long for death yet they fear to meet it. Religion is a lost philosophy, the fierce competition in this republic makes every man fearful lest he shall be the next to be pushed to the wall. I tell you they are fearful for the present, doubtful for the future, and they are as tired as galley-slaves. I pity them while I laugh."

"I wish I were dead," whispered Jeanne. "I did not know life was so dreadful."

Pond left her in that mood.

TO RIDE IN STREET CARS.

A Bridal Party's Novel Resource—The Ontario Packers' Meeting.

HAMILTON, May 23.—The approaching nuptials of Miss Martin, daughter of Edward Martin, Q.C., of this city, and Mr. Baldwin of Toronto are creating quite a furore in fashionable circles. The wedding will take place on election day, June 5, and will be celebrated in Christ Church Cathedral by His Lordship the Bishop of Niagara, assisted by Rev. Canon Sutherland and Rev. T. N. Nicol of Port Hope. As all the cabs have been engaged for election purposes, the bride's father found it necessary to provide some other means of conveying the guests to and from the church, and was compelled to charter two large street cars for the purpose.

The Ontario Packing Association met again this morning. It was reported that the [illegible] is not [illegible] canned goods, and is generally in a better state than was expected. The members agreed to furnish each other with statistics regarding the extent of the fruit crop in various localities, and after these are in the amount of the output and the price list will be arranged for.

A letter was received in the city this morning from Mr. Haim, of the T., H. & B., in which he states that he will be on to Hamilton at once, and that work will be commenced without delay; probably Monday, June 2, will see the actual start of active operations.

The disorderly house cases were a bonanza for the civic treasury, which in the Police Department has been languishing of late. The sum realized was $460. All those arrested [illegible] Gray and White—paid their fines.

A man named Miller while asking for work at the office of the Eagle Knitting Company yesterday fell in a faint. The poor fellow had walked from Galt and had had nothing to eat all day. He was taken to the hospital.

The trial of John Brady for assaulting his father, James Brady, was continued before Magistrates Ross and Davidson at Freelton on Wednesday night. This is the case over which the alleged riot occurred about 10 days ago. The accused was committed for trial.

Kingston Notes.

KINGSTON, May 22.—On Wednesday afternoon, between 4 and 5 o'clock, an accident occurred at Howe Island by which a highly respected farmer named James Norris lost his life. He was training a colt when it became frightened and ran away, dragging him with it. Being caught in the harness he could not extricate himself. When found he was unconscious and bleeding from many wounds. He breathed only half an hour after the accident. He was a cousin to James Norris, proprietor of the Ottawa Hotel, and leaves a wife and family.

Two boys were flogged to-day in the Police Station for having stolen bags of rags, worth $3, from Mrs. Boyd. The rags were sold to Pedlar Collins for seventeen cents. The Magistrate said if he could rely on the evidence given by the boys he would send Collins to the Central Prison for six months for receiving stolen goods.

Before and After.

She (before marriage)—"And you are going to take me to the masquerade?"

He—"Yes sweetest."

She—"What character should I go in?"

He—"In that of Aurora, goddess of the morning, and I will go as Apollo."

She (after marriage)—"Are you going to take me to the masquerade with you?"

He—"I guess so."

She—"In what character should I go?"

He—"Let me see. I guess Mrs. Caudle would suit you best."

She—"Is it necessary that one should appear in a costume that is deemed appropriate to the disposition of the wearer?"

He (with a chuckle)—"Certainly."

She (sweetly)—"Then, of course, you will go as Mephistopheles."—Boston Courier.

Not a Pimple on Baby

Baby one year old. Bad with Eczema. Hair all gone. Scalp covered with eruptions. Cured by Cuticura. Hair splendid and not a pimple on him.

Cured by Cuticura

I cannot say enough in praise of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. My boy, when one year of age, was so bad with eczema that he lost all of his hair. His scalp was covered with eruptions, which the doctors said was scall-head, and that his hair would never grow again. Despairing of a cure from physicians I began the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and, I am happy to say, with the most perfect success. His hair is now splendid and there is not a pimple on him. I recommend the CUTICURA REMEDIES to mothers as the most speedy, economical, and sure cure for all skin diseases of infants and children, and feel that every mother who has an afflicted child will thank me for so doing.

MRS. M. E. WOODSUM, Norway, Me.

Fever Sore Eight Years

I must extend to you the thanks of one of my customers who has been cured by using the CUTICURA REMEDIES, of an old sore, caused by a long spell of sickness or fever eight years ago. He was so bad he was fearful he would have to have his leg amputated, but is happy to say he is now entirely well,—sound as a dollar. He requests me to use his name, which is H. H. CASON, merchant. JOHN V. MINOR, Druggist, Gainsboro, Tenn.

We have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES for years, and have the first complaint yet to receive from a purchaser. One of the worst cases of scrofula I ever saw was cured by them.

"WHAT MEDICINES ARE MOST CALLED FOR?"

asked the reporter of an old druggist.

"Dr. Pierce's preparations," he replied. "They are sold under a positive guarantee that they will, in every case, give satisfaction, or the money is promptly refunded. His 'Favorite Prescription,' for all those chronic weaknesses, nervous and other derangements peculiar to women, is used with unfailing success. It cures weak back, bearing-down sensations, irregularities and weakness common to the sex, and being the most perfect of tonic medicines builds up and strengthens the entire system. The demand for it is constant, and I am conversant with scores of cases cured by it."

Returning after a few moments' absence, the venerable wielder of the pestle remarked, "the number of sarsaparillas and other, so-called, 'blood medicines' is legion; but Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery outsells them all and it is the only blood-purifier out of the many which I am obliged to keep upon my shelves, that is guaranteed to benefit or cure in all cases for which it is recommended, or money paid for it is refunded."

"In the line of Pills," remarked the old gentleman, "the little Sugar-coated 'Pellets' put up by Dr. Pierce lead all others, both in amount of sales and the general satisfaction they give my customers."

A COMMON SENSE VIEW.

The United States Supreme Court Denies Kemmler's Petition.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The Supreme Court of the United States to-day denied the application for a writ of error in the case of Kemmler, under sentence of death by electricity. Chief Justice Fuller read the opinion of the court.

It is urged in Kemmler's behalf, says the opinion, that the 14th amendment is a prohibition on the State of the imposition of cruel and unusual punishment. The origin of the phrase, the court said, was in the English act of settlement in 1688, and meant that barbarous methods of punishment should not be inflicted. It meant that a man should not be sentenced to death by torture, but did not mean that the death penalty itself was cruel. The change in the form of death was within the legitimate sphere of the legislative power of the state. The Legislature of the State of New York determined that it did not inflict cruel and unusual punishment and its courts have sustained that determination. This court cannot see that the prisoner has been deprived of due process of law. In order to reverse the judgment this court would be compelled to hold that the Court of Appeals had committed an error so gross as to deprive the prisoner of his constitutional rights. The court has no hesitation in saying it cannot do this.

The Next Step.

ALBANY, May 23.—The next step to be taken in the courts in the Kemmler case will be the argument of the appeal from the decision of County Judge Corlett of Cayuga county, denying a writ of habeas corpus, asked for on the ground of the unconstitutionality of the power conferred on Warden Durston in the execution of criminals, which power is claimed to be vested in the sheriff of the county wherein the conviction is had. The appeal will come up before the General Term at Buffalo, June 3. This appeal does not affect the death penalty itself or the crime or manner of the execution, and it is expected the General Term will dispose of it in time to allow it to be carried to the Court of Appeals at the Saratoga June session.

Another issue in the case will be the request for Judge Wallace to vacate the writ of habeas corpus granted by him at Syracuse, but on the condition that he would revoke the writ in case the United States Supreme Court denied Lawyer Sherman's application for a writ of error. This writ is returnable before Judge Wallace at Canandaigua June 17.

A Bank Wrecker Sued.

CAMDEN, N.J., May 23.—Receiver Hood of the Merchants' National Bank of Atlantic City has begun suit to recover $20,000 from Charles L. Work, late head of the wrecked Gloucester City Bank and the Fidelity Trust Company of this city and their branches. The action is based upon a protested note for $10,000 given by Work and found among the assets. Receiver Hood has found much evidence of crookedness, it is claimed, and arrests are probable.

Broker Pell Convicted of Stealing.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Broker George H. Pell was to-night convicted of stealing $31,000 from the Lenox Hill Bank.

His sentence will be from five to ten years' imprisonment. Last January the Sixth National, Lenox Hill and Equitable Banks were wrecked. Pell acted as agent for the syndicate by which these banks were bought just before the suspension.

Floods in Pennsylvania.

ERIE, Pa., May 23.—The long continued rains have caused a great deal of trouble on the railways in this section. This morning a west-bound freight train on the Nickel Plate went through a bridge near Crayton. The bridge was a wooden structure and was 200 feet long and 80 feet high. Almost the entire train went down into the sweeping current. Many floods and cloudbursts are reported.

OUR MINERAL WEALTH.

RICHES UNTOLD HID IN OLD ONTARIO'S BOSOM.

The Commission Makes Its Report—We Have Magnetic and Hematite Iron Ores, Gold, Galena, Plumbago, Arsenic, Mica, Marble, Silver, Copper, etc.

TORONTO, May 24.—The Royal Mining Commission has given its report to the press. Almost the first thing the commission says is this: "The evidence that Ontario possesses great mineral wealth is abundant, and is constantly accumulating."

The table which follows gives the chief mineral productions of Ontario for the year 1888, as far as it has been possible to obtain the figures. A process of education seems to be needed before complete returns of production can be hoped for.

Mineral.		Quantity.	Value.
Arsenious acid	tons	25	$ 1,200
Cement	bbls	40,000	30,200
Copper ore	lb.	2,020,700	262,078
Nickel ore	lb.	1,222,040
Gold		....	2,000
Gypsum	tons	6,000	13,200
Iron ore	"	14,000	44,000
Mica (partly uncut)	"	10	20,000
Petroleum, crude...bbls. of 35 Imp.	gals	609,010	612,000
Phosphate of lime	tons	2,000	44,000
Salt	"	35,000	169,874
Silver ore	"	130	295,410
Building materials, including building stones, granite and marble, brick, drain pipes, tiles, pottery and lime, estimated value about		....	2,000,000
			$5,4[illegible],750

A small quantity of arsenious acid is manufactured from refuse mispickel at the Consolidated gold mine in Hastings County, and it is reported to be of the finest quality.

BUILDING MATERIALS.

Under this heading comes a great variety of substances in which Ontario is exceptionally rich, viz., ordinary building stones, which abound throughout the whole province; cement rock, worked in several places; clay suitable for brick and tile, obtainable almost everywhere; also clays from which earthenware, terra cotta and sewer pipe are manufactured, and which are abundant in certain localities. Of granites and marbles there is an unlimited supply, but they vary in different places in structure and color and in freedom from joints and cracks, which conditions determine their suitability for building or ornamental purposes. There is also a so-called actinolite, used for making a roofing cement, which, however, is chiefly a mixture of fibrous serpentine and talc. A report on all the building materials of the province would in itself fill a large volume.

GREAT STORES OF WEALTH.

The mineral deposits of the province of Ontario are widely spread, varied in character and cover almost the entire list of economic minerals with the exception of coal. The counties of Leeds, Lanark, Renfrew, Frontenac, Addington, Hastings, Peterboro, the districts of Nipissing and Algoma East and other portions of Eastern and Central Ontario contain numerous deposits of magnetic and hematite iron ores, and the discoveries now made over a wide area of country would seem to warrant the belief that as development proceeds the iron mines of this region will be found to be of great extent and value. It also appears that this region is rich in phosphates, gold, silver, copper, lead, plumbago, nickel, arsenic, mica and asbestos; granite, marble and freestone in great variety and of excellent quality; apatite, barytes and lithographic stone; while even rubies, sapphires and emeralds have been found. In the Sudbury region enormous deposits of copper and nickel ore have been discovered, and mines on an extensive scale are being developed. In the township of Denison, between Sudbury and Lake Huron, rich specimens of gold-bearing quartz have been taken from the Vermilion and other mining locations, and promising deposits of copper and nickel have also been discovered. On the north shore of Lake Huron, from Killarney to Sault Ste. Marie, and convenient to navigation, are found iron, copper, lead and immense quarries of marble. Northward of the Sudbury district prospectors report a mineral region of great extent and prospective value, but which can only be developed through the construction of a railway. The entire region north and west of Lake Superior abounds in minerals and valuable quarries. Gold, silver, copper, iron, lead, nickel, plumbage and zinc are found; agates and amethysts are abundant, while valuable building stone of different kinds is spread over a large area.

On Black Bay is an immense quantity of granite of finer grain than the Aberdeen; a red sandstone is found in great bodies at Nipigon Bay and a white sandstone at the head of Thunder Bay, which is of the finest quality. Brown sandstone of excellent quality is found in abundance, also soapstone, serpentine and marble of different colors. The Port Arthur silver district, extending southwest from Port Arthur to the east end of Arrow Lake, promises to be an argentiferous region of great richness. Mines have been opened over a breadth of country extending 20 miles from northeast to southwest, and the range stretches some distance beyond the present limit of development. West of the silver range the Minnesota iron range, it is believed, projects into the territory of Ontario, and it seems certain that an iron region of large area exists, embracing Hunter's Island and the adjacent region. It is not improbable that this will prove to be one of the richest and most valuable iron-producing districts within the province of Ontario. On the various islands in the Lake-of-the-Woods, and over an unknown extent of country around that lake, gold-bearing veins are numerous and seem to indicate from the result of assays of specimens and from the information obtained by partial exploration that this will become, when its mines are developed, one of the productive gold regions of America. But owing to the impossibility of obtaining titles while the dispute between the Dominion Government and the Government of Ontario was pending, none of the properties have been developed to any extent.

That the region of the Whitefish Valley is one of great promise cannot be doubted. The testimony of mining experts from Colorado and other silver producing regions is unanimous upon that point. Actual development has gone so far as to remove the question from the region of speculation.

The iron district is also likely to prove of immense importance. Indications warrant the belief that the iron deposits in Minnesota are less extensive than those upon the same range within the province of Ontario. The Minnesota mines have but recently been made accessible by a railway line from Two Harbors on Lake Superior, yet shipments from these mines for the last five years show a record strikingly suggestive of a rapidly expanding commerce. Following are the figures:

	1884.	1885.	1886.	1887.	1888.
Long tons	62,124	225,484	304,396	390,457	428,473

With a railway line in operation from Port Arthur westward and southwestward, iron ore can be laid down at Port Arthur for shipment practically at the same cost for railway freight as at Two Harbors.

VALUE OF MINERAL PRODUCTS.

Reliable statistics as to the value of the annual mineral products of Canada or of Ontario are not obtainable except for a limited period, and it would be too much to claim strict accuracy for some of the tables given:

Minerals.		1878.	1886.	1887.

Ontario is the only province of the Dominion which produces petroleum and salt; and while we could not perhaps hope to compete with American manufacturers of illuminating oil, there does not seem to be much doubt of our ability to hold the home market for machinery oils, as Petrolea refiners are now finding a market for this class of oils in the United States. The salt fields of Ontario have an area of about 1200 square miles and reports upon the quality of the salt made by American and Canadian experts show that it is of exceptional purity.

In 1887 the amount of iron ore used in the production of pig iron was estimated at 60,494 tons, and is included in the total product for that year of 76,330 tons as given in the table of products for the Dominion. The Geological Survey report gives the export of iron ore from Canada for the calendar year 1887 at 13,000 tons, of which 12,294 tons was from Ontario. The trade returns give the export from Canada for the fiscal year 1887 at 20,287 tons, of which 15,007 tons was from Ontario. Copper, iron and pig iron are not classed in the census returns as raw mineral products, and these are not included in the above tables of comparative production. The production of pig iron for 1887 is estimated at 24,837 tons. The returns of all kinds of iron, exclusive of pig, produced in the Dominion in that year give the amount as 31,887 tons, and of steel as 7300 tons. The returns, however, are incomplete, and the amount of iron produced is supposed to be one-third greater than the figure given. The material used in manufacture was chiefly scrap iron and scrap steel.

The total shipments of iron ore by rail and lake from the mines of Lake Superior since 1850, when the first shipment was made, amounted at the close of 1888 to 40,612,280 long tons. This enormous business has of late years given employment to a considerable part of the lake marine. The value of the output of 1888 at the point of shipment was over $16,000,000, and in its transportation to Lake Erie ports American shipping on the lakes earned at least $6,000,000.

The vast deposits of copper and nickel recently discovered at Sudbury and other points in Ontario give promise of a rapid increase in the production of these metals.

Examination into the character and extent of the mineral resources of Ontario shows even now, when we are only at the threshold of discovery, that they are practically without limit in extent and value.

EUROPE ARMS FOR WAR.

POWERS, GREAT AND SMALL, PREPARING FOR A CONFLICT.

Capt. Zalinski's Observations—England's Position—The Queen's Birthday Gift to Albert Victor—Advertising for a Husband—General Cable News.

SOUTHAMPTON, May 23.—Capt. Zalinski, who was sent abroad by the Washington Government on a roving commission through the countries of the great powers of Europe to keep his eyes wide open and to see how they are prepared or are preparing for war, was interviewed here to-day.

In every European country which he visited—England, France, Germany, Russia, Italy, to say nothing of smaller nations like Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Spain—Capt. Zalinski found them straining every nerve in making preparations for war. In most countries he visited he was afforded every opportunity for observation, though France and one or two other powers seemed disposed to screen all preparations with the strictest secrecy.

It was in France that Capt. Zalinski found the strongest undercurrent of antipathy in regard to the United States and all things American. In his heart the Frenchman has not forgiven the failure of the Panama canal scheme, which he believes was solely due to American interference. But it was in France that Capt. Zalinski found the greatest number of private enterprises presumably engaged in manufacturing munitions of warfare. Capt. Zalinski does not think the next European war will be initiated by trouble between Germany and France. It is far more likely that difficulties will begin in trouble between Germany and Russia. Everything seems to tend in that direction.

As a straw which shows which way the wind blows, Capt. Zalinski mentioned an incident which he saw at one of the great Russian fairs near St. Petersburg. A flock of trained pigeons were liberated to select from a row of flags of all nations the most favored countries. Time and time again amid the plaudits of the crowd these pigeons flew away with the flags of France, Denmark and the United States in the order named, leaving the flags of other nations untouched.

But Russia is not prepared for war yet. Zalinski would not dwell long on this point, but he did go so far as to say that she has made no provision at all for small armaments. Germany, he thinks, is at present the best equipped nation for a European war. The splendid general staff of the German army and her myriads of soldiers, constantly drilled in the practical details of warfare, constitute a force which can scarcely be overestimated. Capt. Zalinski cautiously observed that while he believed the young German Emperor sincere in his expressions of the desire to maintain peace, still he would not regret the opportunity to show what his magnificent army could do. If war is inevitable England, Zalinski says, is ably equipped to defend by land or sea everything she is likely to be called upon to defend. In the event of a European war England may hold the balance of power.

And everybody believes that a great war is coming within the next few years.

The Starving Soudanese.

LONDON, May 23.—In the House of Commons to-day Henry Howarth (Con.) asked whether anything had been done to relieve the sufferers from the appalling famine in the Soudan. According to reliable advices the population was starving and cannibalism was prevalent. The people were eating anything, dogs, cats, rats and snakes being used for food. Around Tokar and Kassala hundreds of persons were dying daily from starvation and in other parts the state of affairs was even worse, nearly the whole population having perished.

Sir James Fergusson replied that relief had been given in every district that could be reached by the Government, but in places beyond the control of government famine was rife and many deaths had occurred. Around Suakim 2000 persons were being fed daily. The failure of crops for successive years added to other causes had led to present intense distress.

The Behring Sea Question.

LONDON, May 23.—In the House of Commons this evening Mr. A. Staveley Hill asked whether orders had been given to British warships to protect English vessels legally engaged in seal fishing in Behring Sea.

Sir James Fergusson said the Government declined to make any statement on the subject pending the exchange of correspondence.

High-Pressure

Living characterizes these modern days. The result is a fearful increase of Brain and Heart Diseases — General Debility, Insomnia, Paralysis, and Insanity. Chloral and Morphine augment the evil. The medicine best adapted to do permanent good is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It purifies, enriches, and vitalizes the blood, and thus strengthens every function and faculty of the body.

"I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in my family, for years. I have found it invaluable as for Nervous Debility caused by an inactive liver and a low state of the blood." — Henry Bacon, Xenia, Ohio.

"For some time I have been troubled with heart disease. I never found anything to help me until I began using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have only used this medicine six months, but it has relieved me from my trouble, and enabled me to resume work." — J. P. Carzanett, Perry, Ill.

"I have been a practicing physician for over half a century, and during that time I have never found so powerful and reliable an alterative and blood-purifier as Ayer's Sarsaparilla." — Dr. M. Maxstead, Louisville, Ky.

A SMALL MINDED INSINUATION.

Mr. Carnegie may despise the vote of Galway and Cavendish.—Examiner.

That is, the kind of argument used by Mr. Stratton, and it an insinuation as foundationless as it is contemptible. It is professedly based on an alleged statement of a supporter of Mr. Carnegie that he (the said supporter) would not follow Mr. Stratton to his meetings in those townships. We cannot say at present what may have been said to Mr. Stratton in the way of private conversation, for the "lieutenant" alluded to by the Examiner is not, at the time of writing this, at home to give the information—as he is in Galway or Cavendish! He returned to Peterborough, filled an appointment near town, and went north again. Mr. Carnegie was active in the interests of the constituency while he represented it, north as well as south, and the baselessness of Mr. Stratton's contemptible insinuation quoted above is shown by the fact that Mr. Carnegie has held several meetings in Galway and Cavendish. Mr. Stratton has repeatedly whined because he was not "given credit" for getting the Nicholls Hospital on the list of aided institutions. We have shown that he was given none because he deserved none, for when the Hospital complied with the regulations it was, by law, entitled to the aid. But does Mr. Stratton give Mr. Carnegie any credit for getting the Protestant Home placed on the list of aided institutions? Or does he give Mr. Carnegie credit for his work on behalf of the constituency during his first term in the Legislature, or for urging upon the Government the claims of the northern part of the constituency during his last term? No, Mr. Stratton does not do that. Instead of doing so, or instead of basing his claim for support on principles, he tries to injure his opponent by false and contemptible insinuations, by misrepresentation, by misapplying and distorting the words of an eminent clergyman and by attributing to the same divine sentiments penned by a practical politician and strong partisan. The people can see through such narrow-minded tricks, as Mr. Stratton will find before two weeks are gone.

"We are the equal righters," say Messrs. Stratton and Blezard. But when Mr. Creighton moved that all teachers in schools receiving Government aid should be required to have proper certificates, they voted against the motion.

Messrs. Stratton and Blezard say they are the true "equal righters." But when Mr. Meredith moved to nullify the prima facie clause, to which the Equal Rights Association objects, they voted against him.

"Of course we favor equal rights," the Government candidates say. But when Mr. Meredith moved that only the authorized text books should be used in state-aided schools, including the Separate schools—which is part of the Equal Rights Association platform—they were among the majority that opposed it.

The Liberals are the only "equal righters," say the Government candidates. But the Government and its supporters are not. When Mr. Meredith moved to have the ballot—and a secret ballot—used in school elections, which the Equal Rights Association demands, they voted down his motion.

THREE PRESENTATIONS.

The Sons of England, the Oddfellows and St. John's Wardens at the Nicholls Hospital.

Friday evening found the trustees of the Nicholls Hospital gathered at the building prepared to receive deputations from the local societies and St. John's church. The deputations were the bearers of gifts. What they did not bring with them had been sent on before. Messrs. R. Hall, C. McGill, Jas. Stevenson, R. S. Davidson and J. Kendry of the trustee board were present. The fine building looked its best and peace and comfort reigned on every hand.

THE SONS OF ENGLAND'S GIFT.

The local lodges of the Sons of England a short time ago conceived the happy project of presenting a flag staff and flag to the hospital. With patriotic zeal they set about it. The order was given to Mr. J. J. Turner who procured a splendid stick about 60 feet long, painted and topped with a golden ball. The flag is a large Union Jack, 12x18 ft. On Friday evening the staff was erected and the flag fastened to the halyards. Then Mr. H. Somerville, President of Peterborough Lodge, faced the trustees and read the following address:—

To the Board of Directors of the Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—Recognizing the great benefit the Nicholls Hospital is to this town and the munificence of the generous founder thereof, lodges Lansdowne and Peterborough of the Sons of England Benevolent Society desire to contribute to keep fresh in the minds of Englishmen who may participate in the benefits of this noble institution the glory of their native land, beg to present to you this "Union Jack" and pole and trust that the flag may long be permitted to float beside your beautiful building.

(Signed.) RICH. WARAN,
Pres. Lansdowne Lodge.
H. SOMERVILLE,
Pres. Peterborough Lodge.
May 23, 1890.

As Mr. Somerville finished reading the flag was run up and spread out grandly in the breeze. Three cheers were given and a verse of "Rule Britannia" sung.

Mr. R. Hall, President of the Board, in suitable terms acknowledged the gift and said that the flag would be a pleasing reminder of the kindly spirit that had prompted the donors to make the gift.

THE ODDFELLOW'S WARD.

Some weeks ago it was announced that the members of the local lodges of Oddfellow's had made the proposition to furnish a ward in the hospital and on Friday evening this proposition had so materialized into a reality that the ward, nicely furnished, was formally handed over to the trustees. In carrying out their charitable and self-conceived idea, the Oddfellows have not only provided any sick brother with a comfortable and tastefully furnished sick chamber but they have put into practice the principles of Order and set a worthy example to other benevolent societies. The ward which has been furnished by them is a most pleasant one facing the east and has been furnished with an oak bedroom suit, tasty curtains, tables, easy chairs, couch and in fact all the necessary furniture of a sick room. The formal presentation was made Friday night by Bro. John Nugent, N. G., of Otonabee Lodge, and Bro. J. W. Mein, N. G., of Peterborough Lodge. Bro. Nugent read the address as follows:—

To the Chairman and Members of the Nicholls Hospital Trust Board:—

GENTLEMEN,—We, the presiding officers of the two local lodges of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, on behalf of the members of the Order in Peterborough have sought your presence here on this occasion to formerly present to you the furnishings of this ward which is to be known as "The Good Samaritan Ward."

While this slight act of thoughtfulness on the part of the members of the Order here is only a practical application or embodiment of the principles and teachings of the Order the emblematic triple links of which are Friendship, Love and Truth, yet we feel called upon to express our gratitude to you as a body in acquiescing so readily and heartily to our proposition and in placing at our disposal one of the most pleasant and desirable wards in this magnificent charitable institution, which it is our prayer will long stand as a monument to the benevolence and generosity of the kind-hearted lady whose liberality reared it and whose recent call to the better land we all sincerely regret.

In allowing us to furnish this ward where an afflicted brother may find sweet solace and kind and tender nursing during his illness, you have merited our gratitude which we ask you to accept together with the furnishings which you see around you and which we hope have been chosen with an eye to comfort and taste.

On behalf of the Order, therefore we ask you to take for the good of the suffering these furnishings.

Signed on behalf of the Oddfellows of Peterborough.

JOHN NUGENT,
N.G. Otonabee Lodge, No. 13.
J. W. MEIN,
N. G. of Peterborough Lodge, No. 111.

Mr. RICHARD HALL, Chairman of the Trust Board, made a suitable reply, thanking the Oddfellows for their handsome gift and lauding their benevolence and generosity. Mayor Stevenson also spoke, and in his well-timed address said he felt proud to be able to say he was a member of the Oddfellows Order and hoped that the example they had set would be followed by others.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH GIFT.

After the Oddfellow's presentation had been concluded, Mr. — Smith, on behalf of St. John's Church-wardens, presented the hospital with a handsome Bible and prayer book, remarking that no doubt the books had already been provided by the Board, but that St. John's desired to add copies. Mr. R. Hall accepted the gift and pleasantly acknowledged its appropriateness.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

The Fate of Two Drunks.

Joseph Smith, drunk and disorderly, was run in yesterday and at the Police Court this morning was fined two dollars and costs or ten days. He was given a week to pay his fine. Patrick Lavery was arrested on Saturday, the 10th inst., for drunkenness, but a friend pleaded with the Magistrate and Patrick was let out over Sunday to appear for trial on Monday morning. This he failed to do, and a warrant was issued for him. This morning however, he turned up in court of his own free will, made an excuse for his long absence and was fined two dollars and costs—six dollars in all. He was given five days in which to raise the money.

When Women Quarrel.

The assault case in which Mrs. Ralph charged Mrs. Vass with having assaulted her on Thursday night last, came up before the Magistrate this morning and afforded no little amusement for the audience at the court. The two women live as neighbors on Chamberlain-st. and have always been the best of friends until the eruption which brought them into court. Mrs. Ralph came here from Port Hope a few months ago, and claims to be a most peaceable person. Alleged gossiping was the cause of all the trouble. Mrs. Ralph swore that Mrs. Vass came into her house to return a pan she had borrowed and at once began to abuse her, saying that she (Mrs. Ralph) had been telling the neighbors tales about her (Mrs. Vass.) The charge was denied and then the words grew warm, hair was pulled and faces scratched. Each woman swore that the other pulled hair first and their stories were so widely different and both unsupported that the magistrate gave the Scotch verdict of not proven. The women had several little tiffs in the court room to the amusement of the crowd, and went freely into personalities. Mr. Vass threatened to bring an action against Mrs. Ralph for defamation of his wife's character as it was said that the latter lady had accused Mrs. Vass to neighbors of being intimate with her husband.

At the agricultural grounds on Saturday when the regiments fired the feu-de-joie the reports frightened a team of horses which were just being detached from a rig. Three Alarms of Fire.

About 11.45 on Saturday the fire alarm was sounded and the brigade called out to extinguish a blaze on Sherbrooke-st. The fire was confined to a frame house, belonging to the Kincaid estate and occupied by Mr. Batiste Larque. The members of the family were all out viewing the parade when the fire originated. When the firemen arrived the flames had secured such a hold on the building and the nearest hydrant was so distant that the building was totally destroyed. The firemen saved the adjoining houses, the roof of one, occupied by Mr. M. Hickey, being slightly damaged. On Sunday morning about three o'clock the brigade were called out again for a fire in the sheds at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer-sts. The sheds were owned by Mrs. Moffat and were only partly destroyed. The loss will be light. Later at about eleven o'clock in the morning another alarm was sounded. The slumbering embers of the fire at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer-sts., had been fanned into life again, but were soon extinguished.

THE VISIT OF THE QUEEN'S OWN TO PETERBOROUGH.

The Celebration of Her Majesty's Birthday —The Visiting Regiment and who Were in it—The Parade and Review—Crowded Streets and Boisterous Fun—The Sports and Games—Peterborough Defeated at Baseball—The Banquet and "At Home"— The Church Parade—Notes of the Visit.

The glorious 24th of 1890 is gone and passed, but it is safe to say that the streets of Peterborough have not had another such awakening for many years past. From early morn until late at night George-st. was crowded and during a good portion of the time the fun ran fast and furious. Of course the boys of the Queen's Own were the principal cause of the excitement, but they seemed to enjoy themselves and as no damage was done no one objected.

The weather, which had been the subject of many an anxious thought, did not prove the most auspicious, yet, nevertheless, the celebration of Her Majesty's birthday and the visit of the Queen's Own can be said to have been a success. The rain which fell on Friday made the roads heavy and left the agricultural grounds in a poor state for sports and games and in this way interferred with the programme in the afternoon, while the threatening clouds which overcast the sky all day on Saturday, no doubt materially decreased the numerical strength of the crowd in town. However, the streets were filled all day with a holiday congregation and there was a large attendance at the grounds in the afternoon. The stores were nearly all open but very little business was done.

THE ARRIVAL OF THE QUEEN'S OWN.

The celebration of Her Majesty's seventy-first birthday may be said to have been begun on Friday night. The streets presented an animated appearance until well into the we' sma' hours of the morning, a large crowd remaining up to meet the Queen's Own of Toronto upon their arrival on the C.P.R. It was about 1.30 o'clock in the morning before the special train with Toronto's crack corps on board pulled into the station here and the soldiers disembarked. Contrary to expectations the regiment landed at the station and formed into column and marched up George-st. to Hunter and across the bridge through Ashburnham to the camp grounds at Burnham's Point. It was just about two o'clock in the morning when the sweet dreams of the residents in the vicinity of George-st. were disturbed by the sound of martial music and the tramp of armed men. The Queen's Own numbered nearly six hundred strong and as they marched up George-st. in the early morning headed by their two magnificent bands, it was a sight, which, with the music of the bugle band, was apt to inspire any volunteer with something akin to patriotic enthusiasm. Lt.-Col. Hamilton, Major Sankey and Capt. Pellatt were the field officers in command, while Capt. Macdonald, adjutant, Surgeon Leslie, Quartermaster Heakes and Paymaster Fahey were the staff officers. The regiment was

COMPOSED OF EIGHT COMPANIES,

and numbered about 575 men strong. This is not by any means the full strength of the regiment, as "K" company, the University boys, was not present. The uniforms and equipment of this company were destroyed in the recent fire and new ones have not yet been received. The companies which were here were officered and numbered as follows:—

"A" Company—Capt. Thompson, Lieut Baird, and 54 non-coms. and men.

"B" Company—Lieut. Ince, Lieut. Lloyd and 40 non-coms. and men.

"C" Company—Capt. Green, Lieut. Reenie and 42 non-coms. and men.

"D" Company—Capt. Mason, Lieut. Pendon, and 55 non-coms. and men.

"F" Company—Capt. MaGee, Lieuts. Lee and Wyld and 43 non-coms. and men.

"G" Company—Capt. Bennet, Lieuts. Mercer and Burnham and 53 non-coms. and men.

"H" Company—Capt. Gruther, Capt. and Lieut. Mowat. Lieut. Morton and 50 non-coms. and men.

"I" Company—Capt. Murray, Lieuts. Orean and Levesseoute and 34 non-coms. and men.

The band numbered 41 pieces under Bandmaster Baille, the bugle band 43 under Bugle-Major Swift, the ambulance corps 11 under Sergt. Dallas, the staff sergeants 8, and the pioneer corps, under Corporal Brash, 9. These, with the fatigue party which arrived on Thursday night, made up a total of about 575.

When the regiment reached their city of tents after their long, weary and dark tramp, it is needless to say they were ready to go to rest. The rain of the day before had made the camp grounds wet, but the men turned in and spent a very good five hours under their canvas shelters.

THE MORNING PARADE.

The camp was early astir in the morning and after breakfast had been served, preparations for the parade were begun. It was about 10 30 when the regiment left their camp. Meanwhile the 57th had mustered at the drill shed, about 250 strong, and, headed by the band and a detachment of cavalry, had marched to meet the visitors. The cavalry acted as an advance guard to the brigade and were a marked addition to the parade. Lieut.-Col. H. C. Rogers and Lieuts. Kent and Strickland officered the mounted soldiers, with Quartermaster Chas. Stapleton on the staff. Lieut.-Col. J. Z. Rogers, Major Edwards and Adj.-Capt. Dennistoun were the field officers of the 57th on parade. The companies were officered as follows:—

No. 1 Company—Capt. Mason.

No. 2 Company—Capt. Langford and Lieut. Scoffield.

No. 3 Company—Capt. Hill and Lieut. Stevenson.

No. 4 Company—Capt. Lee and Lieut. Hayes.

No. 5 Company—Capt. Miller and Lieut. Matthews.

No. 6 Company—Capt. Brennan and Lieut. Lech.

Lieuts. Hamilton and Haultain bore the colors.

THE LINE OF MARCH.

When the two regiments met Lieut.-Col. J. Z. Rogers took command of the whole brigade, with Lieut.-Col Hamilton commanding the Queen's Own and Major Edwards the 57th. The cavalry were the van guard, then followed the Queen's Own, then the 57th and a company of Cadets from the Collegiate Institute under command of Capt. Edmison brought up the rear. The line of march was up Water-st. to London, along London to George and down George to Agricultural Park. The sidewalks along the line of march were crowded with spectators, while on George-st. every window had its occupants who waved their handkerchiefs to our country's brave defenders as they passed along. As the brigade came down George-st., the spectacle from a distance was a pleasing one. The white helmets of the men who numbered in all about eight hundred, looked like a solid mass, moving with a regularity which spoke volumes for their proficiency in marching. Then the music of the Queen's Own magnificent brass band was splendid, while their bugle band also furnished some excellent marching music. The 57th band was out in full strength and played exceedingly well. The appearance of the men of both regiments was remarkably good and was very favorably commented upon.

HONORING HER MAJESTY.

The Agricultural Park was reached a little before noon. The two battalions were drawn up into line, the bands to the rear, and a feu-de-joie was fired, followed by the general salute and "God Save the Queen" by the bands. Three cheers were given for Her Majesty in right loyal style and then the regiment marched passed in column in quick time and on the double. The marching of the men was good, and it was too bad that a larger crowd was not on the grounds to witness the review. After a few minutes at ease the brigade re-formed and marched back to town. The Queens Own reached their camp by the C. P. R. bridge, thus saving the long tramp around.

THE AFTERNOON PROGRAMME.

The afternoon was a lively one on George-st. The Toronto soldiers were out for fun and they made Rome howl. The blowing of fog horns, the singing of the men and the general commotion was something bewildering; but it was all good-natured sport and no person complained. The streets were packed with people, while a couple of thousand more had found their way to the Agricultural grounds, where the programme of sports and games was to be run off. The rain of Friday had made the grounds almost unfit for sports, but the management did their best to carry the programme out. The Queens Own and 57th bands were in attendance and discoursed some fine music.

THE BASEBALL MATCH.

The only game which was played was the baseball match between Cobourg and Peterborough. It was a rather poor exhibition of ball playing, errors being plentiful on both sides. McCabe and Turnbull were the twirlers for the local nine, and threw a fair game but their support was poor. Sullivan was behind the bat for five innings for Peterborough, and caught a fine game but was compelled to quit at the end of the fifth. Malcolmson then went in as receiver and also caught a good game. The lack of practice was noticeable in the local nine, but a few weeks of play will make them the strongest team that has been here for years. The Mulholl brothers were in the points for the visitor and played a good game. The result of the game was a defeat for the Peterborough boys by a score of 9 to 15, but it was a case of playing the umpire as well as the team. McGuire, of Cobourg, was the umpire and some of his decisions were most unjustifiable and partial and had a good deal to do with the victory for his nine.

The score was as follows:—

THE SPORTS AND PRIZE WINNERS.

The sports were run off in front of the grand stand. Mr. R. B. Rogers acted as starter, while Capt. Dennistoun, Lieut. Scoffield and Dr. Halliday were judges. The list of events and prize-winners was as follows:—

Goose Race—1st, Capt. Dennistoun; 2nd, Capt. Green.

THE EVENING CONCERT.

In the evening the magnificent band of the visiting regiment gave a concert in the drill shed. The music was exceedingly fine, and it was to be regretted that the concert was not given in the open air. There were thousands of people outside who were prevented from hearing the treat. The lack of light was the cause of the concert being given inside. A squad from the Queen's Own also gave an exhibition of physical drill with and without arms, which was a new thing here and was performed with remarkable precision to the music of the band.

While the concert was being rendered the men of the regiment were making things lively on George-st., but by half-past eleven, when all the men were supposed to be in camp, the streets had resumed their wonted quiet.

THE OFFICERS ENTERTAINED.

After the morning parade the officers of the two regiments were entertained at luncheon at the Oriental hotel by Mayor Stevenson and the Town Council. The tables had been spread in the billiard room and were a sight to behold, mine host McIntyre having arranged them with most excellent taste and faultless style. The spread was served in good form and the Councillors and their guests were highly pleased with it. After the tables had been cleared, a short time was spent in toasts and songs. Mayor Stevenson and Lt.-Col. Hamilton, of the Queen's Own, made short speeches and Lieut. Ince and Capt. Mutton gave a couple of rattling songs.

AN AT HOME.

In the evening the officers of the two regiments were given an "At Home" at the residence of Mr. J. J. Lundy. An evening of the most enjoyable and pleasant social character was spent, Miss Lundy entertaining her guests in a most admirable manner.

YESTERDAY'S DOINGS.

Yesterday morning the Queen's Own and 57th attended divine service at St. Paul's church. There was a large turn out of both regiments, fully seven hundred men listened to the sermon. The 57th mustered at the drill shed, marched to the bridge, met the Toronto corps and marched up Water-st. to the church. The centre pews of the sacred edifice had been reserved for the soldiers, while the members of the congregation occupied the side seats. Chairs had been placed in the aisles but there was many who were unable to gain admission. The bands occupied the gallery, and while the collection was being taken up the Queen's Own band rendered a very beautiful selection. The church choir also rendered an anthem. Rev. E. F. Torrance preached a very able and well-timed discourse, taking for his text the words:—"Fight the good fight of faith"—I Tim. vi.-12.

The soldiers entered heartily into the service and listened most attentively to the discourse. After the service the regiments reformed and marched back, the Queen's Own to their camp and the 57th to the drill shed.

Shortly after dinner the heavy rain which fell kept the men under canvas and prevented them from seeing the town. They were off duty until ten o'clock when every man was to muster at the camp to prepare to embark on the special train. Shortly before twelve the train was boarded and the regiment left amid the cheers of the crowd at the station, all tired out but highly pleased with their outing in Peterborough.

NOTES OF THE VISIT.

The 57th both officers and men can feel proud of the appearance and marching.

A fatigue party were left in charge of the camp last night, and the tents will be struck to-day.

The cadet corps from the Collegiate Institute made a very creditable appearance and marched well.

The visiting soldiers were remarkably quiet and orderly yesterday and deserve credit for being so.

The police looked with an eye of indulgence on the doings of the boys in bottle green, and did not interfere.

Messrs. Miller, of the Globe, and Kelly, of the World, came down with the men for their respective papers.

The hotels did a rushing business on Saturday, as also did the store where tin horns, flags etc., were for sale.

The men were delighted with the camp site and the arrangements of the local committee, but regretted, as did everyone, the wet weather.

Such celebrations do the town no harm but on the other hand infuse life into everybody. Let us have more of them this summer than we did last.

One of the officers of the Queen's Own was taken ill at the service at St. Paul's church Sunday morning and had to be taken in charge by the ambulance corps.

The non-com. officers of the 57th entertained the Q. O. R. non-coms. at a moonlight excursion on the lake on Saturday night. A good orchestra was on board and a most enjoyable time was spent.

The men were loud in their complaints of the "grub" that was served in the men's tents. Betts, the caterer, was paid in advance twenty-five cents a meal for each man and then the men had to come over to the hotels for their meals declaring that they could not eat the meals he provided.

PETERBOROUGH DEFEATED.

The Toronto Cricketers Secure an Easy Victory.

On Friday an eleven of the local Cricket Club played a match with the Toronto cricketers. The wet weather of the morning made the ground rather soft but the crease was in fair condition. The local eleven have had very little practice this season, so that the defeat was not altogether unexpected. Attewell, Turnbull and Goldsmith did the bowling for the Peterborough men and the first two did their work well. Leigh, (pro) McCullough and E. C. Senkler were the trundlers for the visitors and they did very good work. Peterborough went to bat first and made 51 runs, while Toronto in their first ran up 91. In the home eleven's second they made 43, so that the visitors had 34 to make in their second to win the game. In their second McCullough went out for 6 being bowled by Turnbull, Goldingham had made 3 not out and Bethune 2 when time was called, and the game went to the Toronto's on the first innings.

The score was as follows:—

The entering wedge of a complaint that may prove fatal is often a slight cold, while a dose or two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. It would be well, therefore, to keep this remedy within reach at all times.

All Over the Riding.

"Tell you what," said a chap at Havelock Monday, "this Kidd's a power in this election. I see his influence all over the Riding." "How's that, does he make big speeches and whoop 'er up in good style?" "Yes, but tain't politics I mean, but Kidd's boots, which Grits and Equal Righters are stumping the country in Kidd's shoes. Best for wear and looks. Buy your boots at Kidd's shoe store, Peterborough." d119

The Salvation Army.

Special services were held in the Army barracks yesterday. The Bowmanville army band was present and discoursed some good music. Major Spooner conducted the meetings and Capt. Temple, of Bowmanville, and Capt. White, of Port Hope, assisted. The meetings were of an interesting character. This evening a tea and "big go" will be held at the barracks.

An Accident.

As Mr. John Bennett, assessor of North Monaghan, was starting off with a load of hay this morning he got down on the pole of the wagon to reach the lines. The horses started off and Mr. Bennett fell at their heels and was dragged about one hundred yards before the team was stopped by a gate. He was badly bruised and his legs were badly cut. He also received internal injuries. Dr. Clarke was called and attended to his injuries, which, it is hoped, will mend in a few days.

Prof. Dorenwend Coming Again.

You will see by the advertisement elsewhere that Prof. Dorenwend of Toronto, announces another visit. The popularity of his goods is assured and his visit here is an opportunity not to be lost. His bangs are simply grand, are all made of finest quality curled hair. In other styles the Prof's stock is also most complete, it embraces all modern improvements in the way of their goods, crimpieces, wigs, half wigs, switches, etc. It is most pleasing to know that when once hair disappears such goods as made by Prof. Dorenwend can be secured. He will be in Peterborough, Phelan's Hotel on Monday June 2. Be sure you see him. 1w21-2d123

In Darkest Africa.

Henry M. Stanley, perhaps the foremost living man in pluck, endurance and achievement, has just finished writing "In Darkest Africa," the story of his last and greatest undertaking, the quest and rescue of Emin. This will be the most interesting book of the age. It will reveal for the first time the full extent of Mr. Stanley's recent discoveries. No authentic information concerning this expedition has yet been published, beyond the few letters and newspaper accounts which have appeared from time to time during the past three years, and which contain little more than a suggestion of the dangers encountered and overcome, and the important results achieved. "In Darkest Africa" will be published shortly by Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons, and Mr. John Watt has secured the sole agency for the town, for the sale by subscription of this remarkable book. Mr. Watt will wait on our citizens, or he can be seen at his residence, 226 Sherbrooke-st. 2d121

The Meeting To-night.

To-night's meeting in the Opera House will probably be largely attended. The meeting is the first in the interests of Mr. Carnegie, the Equal Rights Candidate, that has been held in town, and it is expected that there will be a grand rally. Mr. Carnegie will address the meeting and Mr Stratton has also been invited to attend and will be given an opportunity to speak. The speaker of the evening will be Mr. Dalton McCarthy, Q.C., and his effort is sure to be an able one, as he is a speaker of ability. No boys will be allowed in the house.

The prevalence of scrofulous taint in the blood is much more universal than many are aware. Indeed but few persons are free from it. Fortunately, however, we have in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the most potent remedy ever discovered for this terrible affliction.

Walked Away With Fifty Dollars.

Fairweather's hat store was not open to do business this morning but a customer who chanced to obtain admission to buy a hat proved to be a rather undesirable visitor, as he not only bought a hat but carried away with him about fifty dollars which did not belong to him. It seems that Mr. James Fairweather had just handed his brother Robert two packages of bills containing about $150. One package contained fifty dollars, part of which was in cheques. Just before the customer came in Robert Fairweater dropped this package of money on the floor, and as he is crippled so that he cannot stoop he kicked the bundle under a centre hat stand until someone would come in to pick it up for him. The customer must have noticed the act, and while the young man was getting a hat in the back of the store the stranger picked up the roll of money which was wrapped in paper. The man bought his hat in a hurry and got out and upon his departure the clerk looked for the money but it was gone. Mr. James Fairweather, who let the stranger into the shop, knows the man and can easily identify him, so that if the money is not returned it is quite probable the gentleman who did the sneak act will be in limbo shortly.

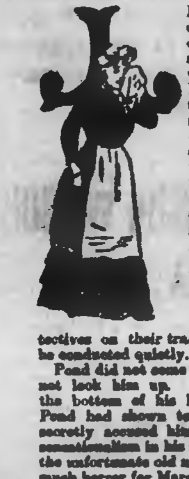
THE JUDGE!

CHAPTER XXII.



LIBERTY is valuable only under certain conditions. Harry did not especially prize it when it came to him. Destiny had him by the throat. There was no escape, apparently—for destiny is not a slight opponent. What to do first, was a question that he might well find it difficult to answer. To find Margaret was to find the judge, and the least that Harry could wish was that the judge should not be found. It was therefore impossible to put detectives on their track. The search must be conducted quietly.

Pond did not come near him, and he did not look him up. He was thankful from the bottom of his heart, for the devotion Pond had shown to his cause, and yet he secretly accused him of coarseness and of sensationalism in his method of showing up the unfortunate old man—for Harry felt as much horror for Margaret's father. Harry did not stop to consider that Pond's first duty was to his paper, and that Pond had actually been disloyal to that duty for a time, out of friendship to him. He only knew that Margaret had been made to suffer. To find her, and to comfort her, was his one idea.

Tillingham marshes were sent to the first thing, although Harry had but little hope of finding the fugitives there. A search was made in the city, but a search can never be thorough in a great city.

Harry was satisfied, after an investigation, that Margaret had plenty of money with her, and that relieved his anxiety slightly. The safe stood open, as the judge had left it that morning of the flight. Harry knew enough of the judge's habits to be certain of the large amount of money he ordinarily kept there, and its present moneyless condition assured him that the leave-taking had not been without calmness. Mrs. Kee, the mournful housekeeper, was, fortunately, placed at last. It was something after years of waiting, to find an adequate outlet for her talent for sorrow. She had simply swathed herself in the habiliments of woe, and moved with a slow and stately grace that suggested the funeral cortege. She recalled incidents in the life of Margaret—incidents of kindness—and told them with a sort of obitual accent. Harry found the door bell muffled, and the chairs tied up in the Holland covers, while the piano was covered with a ghastly winding sheet. Not a line or a clew could Harry find, that would give a hint of Margaret's hiding place, and he came to the conclusion that she had gone without plans, and had gone where chance directed.

He closed up the house, kept Mrs. McKee and the stout stable boy to look after the house and directed the rest of the servants to find other places. The judge's room he thought best to lock up. To be sure the police had already rumaged in it, but without finding anything of interest to them, but it was impossible to tell what might be concealed there.

It was a trial that a less poetic man might have suffered from, to enter the room where Margaret had slept through all her sweet girlhood. Not a thing was disturbed. In the closet hung the dresses so dearly familiar; on the table were the late magazines and the books that she and Harry loved, and had read over and over together for many years. The perfumes, the jewel cases, the potted flowers, the divan with its Turkish cushions all wrung his heart with their familiarity. Standing side by side near the divan were two little slippers that bore the imprint of her feet still. Above was the guitar with its worn ribbon.

Over on Walnut street a repetition of the trial awaited him. But Margaret had never impressed her individuality upon that place. It was the little damsel who was visible there in the brightness and the air of industry. The room was somewhat too crude, too gay, for Margaret. A simple taste and a happy one was visible there. Margaret had luxurious habits and a love for rare and historic things. A pleasant little den, though, did Harry find it, although the poor little mistress was not in a pleasant mood. She was engaged in taking down the fashion plates that hung on the walls, and as she did so she heaved many a grievous sigh.

Harry had never met the little damsel, but she knew who he was immediately, from the pictures of him she had seen, and she held out both hands with a very engaging gesture of welcome. Something about her sincerity brought the tears to Harry's hot eyes.

"There is no one that I can think of, except my own dear girl, that I would be so glad to see as you," he said with truth.

"Dear me, yes," said Jeanne incoherently. "No more glad than I, I guess. Sit down. You are awfully white. How do you feel?"

"Feel pretty well," said Harry, growing laconic, merely because she was. "Last few days hard on you, no doubt."

"Oh, terribly. I have got the megrims. That is the way grandma would express it. I am packing up. Papa is to come for me, you know. He would have come several days ago, only I put him off. Someway I could not get over the idea that Miss Margaret might want me, and come here to look for me. If she came, I could not bear that she should find me gone."

"And yet they say that women do not make faithful friends?"

"Who says it," said Jeanne, putting up her head like an angry sparrow. "Any one whose opinion is worth anything? I once heard a man say, he would not stay an hour in a town that had a woman for a Mayer. He was a dirty little Hungarian, who knew as little about paying his debts as he did about the bath tub. He was so disagreeable that his wife had to leave him and so disgusting that no one could work in the same office with him."

"Yes," said Harry, very much amused, "I think myself that the men who are so eloquent on the inability of women are generally the most irremediable failures themselves. Have you any idea—for I value a woman's opinion—that Margaret is in the city?"

"No, I haven't," said Jeanne, thoughtfully. "I think that if she had been in the city she would have let us know. But anyway, I think she would get out as early as possible."

"Do you suppose the judge would have his wits about him?"

"Oh! do not speak of him," cried Jeanne, putting a minute bit of muslin up to her eyes. "I shudder when I think of her being alone with that monster! At night I dream that she is dead—killed. How can we tell where he might take her to, or what he might do! That is what gives me the megrims, you know," with a sudden smile breaking out.

"I don't believe anything could give them to you very long, could it?"

"Not very," Jeanne confessed. "There are times when I think that my way of being pleased all the time—or almost all the time—is actually coarse. But Miss Margaret liked it. She said it was worth one price of admission just to see me smile. She called me her patent smiler. And now, where is she, Mr. Leiter?" The tears followed close on the heels of the last smile.

"I should have thought the smiles beautiful, anyway, Miss Whitfield, but I am bound to do as now that Margaret did," said Harry, ignoring the tears for diplomatic reasons, that every man will understand.

"Mr. Leiter," said Jeanne suddenly, growing a little white about the mouth, "I want to know if you are going back on Mr. Pond."

"Going back on him? What do you mean? Why should I?"

"He thinks you and he can never be friends again now."

"Well, it is quite true, Miss Whitfield, that he did promise me that he would not betray the judge. We held that knowledge in common, and he swore to me that it should not be made public."

"But it was to save your life. Don't you see? He would never have broken his word, otherwise. You know he never would, Mr. Leiter."

"Well, certainly, I shall always count him my friend. I know how devoted he was. Yet I think the temptation to do a piece of brilliant newspaper work brought about the exposure as much as any desire to help me. And yet, do not imagine that I underestimate his kindness. But for him Margaret might be safe now."

(To be Continued).

THE FILIBUSTERING SCHEME.

Uncle Sam Jumps on It—Troops and a Gunboat Sent to Stop all Operations.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The report from San Francisco and Los Angeles to-day about the filibustering expedition for the capture of Lower California attracted little attention, because, first, it early became known that the Government had known of the scheme, and provided against it with great promptitude and vigor several days ago, and second, because the high-sounding titles which the leaders were reported to have given themselves made the scheme ridiculous. How the Government got wind of the plot before the press is not known, but last Saturday, at the request of Secretary Blaine, who seems to have been remarkably well informed, the Secretary of War ordered the commander of the United States steamer Charleston, stationed at San Diego and in that neighborhood, to so dispose his command as to frustrate and capture all persons and organizations attempting to violate the neutrality laws by a demonstration against the Mexican Peninsula and to use his utmost vigilance in the matter. At the same time the new cruiser Charleston was ordered to go to sea and cruise along the coast of the peninsula to prevent any filibustering operations by sea.

An Impecunious Lobby.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—The United States steamer Charleston left San Francisco to-day under sealed orders, her ostensible destination being Honolulu. Her real orders are as stated above. The attorney-general has also given orders to his subordinates and agents in California to be on the watch, and to bring to punishment all filibusters. It is known here that at Ensenada, in Lower California, a Mexican troop of about 300 soldiers is stationed under command of an energetic colonel, and besides these there is a considerable squad of mounted police. A Mexican man-of-war, the Democrat, lies in the harbor, and Governor Torres is a man of energy, who would act promptly against the filibusters.

It is stated in San Francisco that a lobby has been at work here all winter to secure the acquisition of Lower California. This is true. The lobby is very well known. It consists of three men: Rodman, Price of New Jersey and Parton of New Mexico—and it was said of the three by gentlemen who know them well, that a joint note of all three for $10 would not be accepted by any bank in the city. It is not believed here that the Mexican Colonization Company has, as is asserted, aided or countenanced the filibusters. That company has several million dollars invested in Lower California, and it would forfeit all its concession if the Mexican Government should find that it had countenanced filibustering schemes.

THE WORLD OF SPORT.

The Royal Windsor May Meeting.

LONDON, May 23.—At the Royal Windsor May Meeting to-day the race for the May plate of 1000 sovereigns was won by Milver's Gavotte, Maple's Prince Hampton 2, Baron Hirsch's Romance 3.

The Trotting Dog Doc Defeated.

BRANTFORD, May 23.—The International Horse Fair opened here to-day. The weather was fine and mild and a fair attendance. There are 126 entries. On account of last night's rain the track was heavy. To-day's races will come off to-morrow. The dog race came off between the celebrated trotting dog Doc of Brighton and Peter Gerrie's dog Con from Elora, resulting in Con getting two heats out of three.

who is—
"Standing, with reluctant feet,
Where the brook and river meet,
Womanhood and childhood fleet!"

is a type of thousands of young girls who are emerging from the chrysalis stage of their existence, as they enter upon their "teens." Nervous, excitable, irritable, stirred by strange, unknowable forces within them, each a mystery unto herself, our girls need the tenderest care, the most loving, patient oversight, and the aid of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, to safely carry them through this critical period, during which, in too many lives, alas, are sown the seeds of distressing forms of diseases peculiar to the female sex. But this boon to womankind will prevent all such diseases, or cure them if they have already seized a victim. Woman owes it to herself, to her family, and to her social station, to be well and strong. Let her then not neglect the sure means of cure. "Favorite Prescription" is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system. Sold by druggists: $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S ANGER

FINDS VENT IN AN ADDRESS TO THE QUEEN.

An English Journal That Thinks the Island is a Part of Canada—The Kaiser's Painful Injury—A British Ambassador to the Vatican.

LONDON, May 26.—The Standard says that no one can be surprised at the strong feeling which exists in Newfoundland over the fisheries question. We fear that France is aware of our embarrassment and is trading upon it. England is ready and anxious to offer compensation, preferably cash, for the surrender of French rights, and nothing but churlishness can prevent its acceptance; but it is certain that eventually the necessity for satisfying the Canadians must weigh more with us than a desire, however sincere, to propitiate a foreign and unaccommodating state.

Lord Knutsford, colonial secretary, has received an angry address to the Queen from the Newfoundland Legislature. The address protests in the strongest manner against French aggressions, bounties and smugglings, which it says the English Government appears to tolerate and absolutely declines to consent to arbitration of the lobster dispute. The Legislature calls upon the Imperial Government to cause the removal of the lobsters and to stop all fishing privileges until the bounties are abolished, threatening to take its own measures if the Government refuses.

THEY MAY FIGHT THE FRENCH.

Injured Fishermen of Newfoundland Growing Furious.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., May 26.—A crisis in the quarrel on the so-called French shore of Newfoundland will apparently soon be reached.

Maddened by the action of the English Government and the increasing incursions of the French, the unfortunate fishermen of the West Coast are banding together to maintain their rights.

Under the modus vivendi recently arrived at between the English and French Governments the captains of the war vessels of either country are invested with jurisdiction over the fishermen on the French shore, and it is claimed that the French are taking advantage of this power to forcibly expel Newfoundlanders from their own bays and harbors.

A French war vessel entered St. George's Bay, drove out the Newfoundland fishing schooners and confiscated their nets. Naturally, the most intense excitement exists and everywhere fishermen are arming to protect their interests against French aggression.

Her Majesty's sloop-of-war Emerald has been ordered to the spot. The general feeling is that while the confiscation may not in itself precipitate a conflict between the islanders and their oppressors, it represents the first link in the chain of aggressions on the part of the French that must ultimately end in an appeal to arms.

Severe Storms in Germany.

BERLIN, May 26.—Severe storms followed by floods are reported in various parts of Germany. At Alvensleben, a house was undermined by water and 16 of the occupants drowned. At Suplinger five persons were killed by lightning.

Sunk by a Collision.

LONDON, May 26.—The British steamer Albano from Baltimore, collided off the Scilly islands yesterday with the steamer Nerissa and was sunk. The crew was saved. One man was seriously injured. The forepart of the Nerissa is full of water.

His Hand is Swelled, "Also."

BERLIN, May 26.—The Emperor's foot is swollen and he is unable to wear a boot on it. He has been ordered to keep in his room for 10 days.

English Ambassador to the Vatican.

ROME, May 26.—The Tribune says that General Sir Adrian Dingle, president of the Court of Appeals of Malta, has been appointed English Ambassador to the Vatican.

Ran on a Rock in a Fog.

HAVRE, May 26.—On Sunday morning an accident occurred to the steamship La Gascogne, which arrived here from New York to-day, creating a great sensation on board. The vessel was steaming at half speed off the Scilly Islands in a dense fog. Suddenly the fog lifted and an immense rock was sighted only a few yards ahead. The engines were reversed and backed at full speed and the ship struck the rock with only slight damage. The sudden lifting of the fog undoubtedly saved the vessel from being wrecked.

INDIANS THREATEN VENGEANCE.

Braves Excited Over the Burning of 300 of their Ancestors' Bodies.

WINNIPEG, May 26.—The Indians of Northern British Columbia are in a terrible state of excitement and are liable to break out in rebellion over the burning of their burying grounds.

Canadian Indians bury their dead by hanging them to large trees. The Siwash tribe had 300 of their ancestors hung up in this manner, and while hunters set the forests on fire the bodies, dried by years of exposure, burned like tar barrels. Among the Indians there was uncontrollable grief, and they threaten vengeance.

THE TORONTO BUDGET.

CONVICTED OF SENDING THREATENING LETTERS.

William Smith in Danger of a Long Term of Imprisonment for Sending Two Minatory Epistles to His Darling Jennie—James McGinn's Plight.

TORONTO, May 27.—A case of considerable interest involving the sending of two threatening letters to a young girl named Jennie Hickey was tried before Judge McDougall in the Court of General Sessions yesterday. The name of the prisoner who stood up in the dock to answer to the charge is William Smith, a resident of Toronto, and the owner, as it is alleged by the Crown, of a not too creditable reputation. The facts which led up to the sending of the letters constitute the old story of confidence and subsequent betrayal. It seems that about two years ago the girl, then a little over 15 years of age, was led astray by Smith under promise of marriage. She became an inmate of the Burnside Lying-in Hospital. Upon being discharged she went to the Infants' Home, where for six months she worked for her living. Some time after leaving him the child of which she was the mother died. In the meantime, it was alleged, the prisoner refused to contribute to the girl's support and she was compelled to enter service in a Richmond-street domicile. She then positively refused to marry Smith, but he was assiduous in his attentions and endeavored once more to renew their relationship. At last he sent her the letters which led to the case being brought into court. They are most illiterate and violent, and from their contents it would appear that in penning them Smith was largely actuated by feelings of jealousy against some more favored suitor. They were produced in court and read as follows:

TORONTO, May 5, 1890.

Jennie,—I have a man on the track to look after you and I won't be very far behind him all the time, Jennie. I will make you come back to me. You were gone to get me arrested last night. You have got to come back and see me and tell me what you left me for. I wish you would get me into court; I will have you yet or I will die, and you must die too. I will not give you peace until I get you again. Jennie, you broke my heart. Come and see me once more and save trouble for you and me. Good-by, my lost love.

You are the only friend I got now, so I need not be afraid of dying. May God bless you, Jennie. This letter was written by your only friend, to his only friend, Jennie Hickey. I am mad, Jennie, I am mad. WILLIAM SMITH.

TORONTO, May 6, 1890.

My lost friend Jennie, from William Smith. I will get even with you yet and don't you forget it. I have got your brother on your track and three girls and four fellows. Now, Jennie, I will not blow you, but they will. But, Jennie, I will kick the head off him [the other lover] and don't you forget it, Jennie. I have a few fellows following me where I go. I have no home to go to in this world so I don't care; I am willing to die on the gallows before I let you in the hands of that fellow you loved best. You will have to come back or you will not have peace so long as you are away from me, Jennie. If you don't come back to me I will make you suffer for this.

The second letter bears no signature, the writer being [illegible] in the opening sentence.

The jury, after hearing all the evidence put in, remained out a short time and at 3½ returned a verdict of guilty. The prisoner was then removed. The heaviest penalty that it is possible to inflict is 10 years' imprisonment.

Mr. Justice Falconbridge, at Osgoode Hall yesterday, took under advisement an application made by Mr. E. E. DuVernet, of Jones Bros., & Mackenzie, for a new trial in the suit of Machism v. Horn. About a year ago, Nellie, the 15 year-old daughter of Mrs. Nellie Machism, was convicted at Whitby of selling liquor contrary to the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act, which was then in force in the County of Ontario. The sale in question took place in her mother's house at Whitby. Police Magistrate Horn sentenced Nellie to 60 days' imprisonment, but after serving one-third the time she was liberated by order of the Minister of Justice. The young woman forthwith instituted an action for $3000 damages for false arrest and imprisonment against Mr. Horn on the ground that the Scott Act was virtually repealed when he signed her commitment to jail. Chief Justice Armour, before whom the case was brought, non-suited the plaintiff, who now moves for a new trial.

Miss Machism is now a resident of Toronto.

James McGinn, the young man who was arrested Saturday charged with abducting and seducing Nellie Howell, aged 15, was in the Police Court yesterday. He was sent for trial, the charge being laid under the Charlton Act. The girl stated that McGinn enticed her away from home and kept her in a low lodging house, where the pair were accidentally discovered by Detective Slemin. The girl went home with her father. McGinn is married, but there is some doubt whether his wife is dead or alive.

Another of Toronto's old landmarks passed away on Sunday, at his residence, "Castle Frank," Rosedale, in the person of Mr. Walter McKenzie, clerk of the County Court. Mr. McKenzie had occupied that position since 1836, and during his fifty odd years of service he was faithful, honest and tireless in the discharge of his duties. Previous to his appointment he took an active part in suppressing the rebellion, and his influence was greatly felt throughout the whole community. At that time he lived on what is now known as Yorkville-avenue.

Mayor Clarke and his aldermen had a somewhat animated meeting last night, the chief bone of contention being a grant to the Reception Committee to entertain the Duke of Connaught and for the celebration of the National Holiday. The Reception Committee had asked for $6000, and Ald. Dodds, the chairman, had a big wrestle with Ald. Boustead to get even $5000 through.

CONNAUGHT AT WINNIPEG.

The Royal Party Spend the Night at Sir Donald Smith's Residence.

WINNIPEG, May 26.—The ducal party arrived this evening somewhat unexpectedly and without coming into the city proceeded on the train to Silver Heights, Sir Donald Smith's residence, 5 miles west. But a short stay had been made at Brandon and the train simply stopped at Portage la Prairie. In the evening Governor Schultz, Bishop of Rupert's Land, General Wrigley of the H. B. Co., United States Consul Taylor, Supt. White, C.P.R., Justice Bain and Mayor Pearson dined with H.R.H. An elaborate program has been prepared for to-morrow. The party will leave for the east at noon to-morrow.

SWINDLED EXCURSIONISTS.

The Bogus Ticket Racket in the Ambitious City—Highway Robbery.

HAMILTON, May 26.—Some unscrupulous swindler has been working the bogus ticket dodge in the city during the past week. On Saturday morning just before the Select Knights excursion left the H. & N.W.R. depot a couple of ladies came up to the ticket office and purchased a child's ticket. On receiving the ticket they remarked that it was quite unlike the tickets they had provided themselves with, and on being asked in what particular they produced their pasteboards for examination. The "tickets" were found to be ordinary cards issued for the purpose of advertising the excursion, and which some enterprising swindler had hawked about the town and sold to the unsuspecting would-be excursionists. Nor were the two ladies the only victims, as on board the train other cases were discovered when the collection of tickets was begun.

A curious case of highway robbery occurred in Barton-street on Friday afternoon. Mrs. Jenkins, 179½ Macnab-street north, sent her seven-year-old son to Wanzer's factory to get her eldest son's pay. The money, amounting to $12.50, was put up in an envelope and given to the boy, who put it in his pocket. He had only gone about a block when a girl, whom he did not know, knocked him down, took the money out of his pocket and cleared out with it. The robbery occurred at 4½ in the afternoon.

David Hardie, Thomas Loftus and Freeman Johnson were charged at the Police Court this morning with stealing a white bull-dog, the property of the hostler at the Zimmerman House, Burlington. After hearing the evidence the magistrate imposed a fine of $10 and costs on Johnson and $5 each on the other two prisoners.

TRADE AND TRAFFIC.

Leading Features of the Grain and Produce Markets at Home and Abroad.

TORONTO, May 27.—Receipts of eggs are light and dealers have no stock on hand. Prices are firm at 13c.

Butter receipts continue liberal and the market is weak. The quality of all offerings is generally good, and almost no poor stuff is coming in. Large rolls sell freely at 10 to 12c, and pound rolls in baskets at 14c.

Choice timothy would bring $10.50 and $11 on track, but little is offering. Lower grades are again coming in too freely, and the market is over-supplied. Sales slow at $6 to $10 according to quality.

A quiet trade is going on in oat straw at $6 to $6.50 on track.

BREADSTUFFS.

There has been a better demand for flour the past two days than for three weeks. High grade Ontario patents are quoted at $6. Straight rollers offer at $4.60. Hard wheat patents $5.80 to $5.90.

Wheat seems easier. Holders still ask $1.08 outside but there are no bids.

Oats are strong and higher. There were sales this week at 40c on track. On call 40c was bid and 41c asked; one car of white sold outside on C.P.R. at 39c with none wanted; one car mixed offered on G.T.R. outside at 39c with 38c bid; 39c was bid for five cars of white outside, and 41c was bid for white on track; mixed offered on track at 41c.

Peas are firm on a good demand and light offerings. Quotations: 58c to 60c outside.

Bran is quiet and held at $12.50 on the track, with buyers unwilling.

No English markets on account of the holiday.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Buffalo reports: Cheese sales were 3045 boxes, the offerings of five districts. All sold at 9⅛, market dull.

Utica reports: On account of the washout on the Central Railway near Whitesboro, many salesmen from points west did not attend the meeting of the Board of Trade and transactions were consequently not so large as they would otherwise have been. The market was without any features of particular interest. Transactions were: 135 lots, 906 boxes, ruling price 8⅝c. Transactions same date last year: 11,885 boxes, ruling price 7½c.

Little Falls reports: The cheese market is to all appearances in a good healthy condition. The business is moving steadily along without special incident, and with no change in prices. The quantity of cheese sold is largely increased and the stock is sold up about as close as it can well be. The excessive rains have reduced to some extent the flow of milk and consequently the quantity of cheese made. Transactions: Eight lots 8½c; 73 lots 8¼c; 12 lots 8⅜c, and 11 lots on commission. Total 5521 boxes. The sales of farm dairy cheese are 970 boxes at 8¾c to 9c, bulk 8⅞c. Only 15 packages of farm dairy butter were sold at 16c to 18c. Of creamery butter 23 packages were sold at 18c.

WRECK OF THE ONEIDA.

She Goes Down in Behring Sea—Seventy-Seven Chinamen Lost.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 26.—Captain Anderson of the ship Oneida arrived here last night on the schooner Mary Kimball. He reports that his ship was wrecked April 26 on Henning's rock, Lanck Island, in Behring Sea, and 77 Chinamen were lost. The Oneida had on board 119 Chinese and 46 white men, nearly all of whom were on their way to a salmon cannery on Lanck Island.

A FOOLHARDY LEAP.

Tom Sheehan Jumps from a Bridge Sixty Feet High and Dies.

AMSTERDAM, N.Y., May 26.—Thomas Sheehan, aged 26, was drowned this morning. Sheehan, with two other young men, was crossing the bridge over the Mohawk River at 11 o'clock this morning. When near the centre of the bridge, one of the young men dared Sheehan to jump, saying that he would follow. Sheehan immediately pulled off his coat and his companion did so too. The other young man did not think the two were serious. Sheehan mounted the railing and jumped into the river, sixty feet below. The other young man did not follow, and other people who witnessed Sheehan's act hastened to help him. He rose to the surface and swam a short distance towards the south shore, but was apparently overcome by cramps and sank. The men at once dragged the river, but Sheehan's body has not yet been found. He was well known here and had many friends. He had been drinking, it is said, and that made him foolhardy.

STABBED TO THE HEART.

BRUTAL MURDER OF SAMUEL TORRIE AT ST. JOHN, N.B.

Theodore Watt, an 18-year-old Tough, Wields the Deadly Knife—An All-night Search for the Murderer—He is Apprehended and Confesses His Crime.

ST. JOHN, N.B., May 26.—Samuel Torrie, a resident of the North End, was fatally stabbed on the threshold of his own door last midnight. Before medical assistance could be summoned Torrie breathed his last. A gaping wound to the right of his heart marks the spot where the knife of the murderer entered, and the well-worn garments saturated with blood give evidence of a flow of the life current which nothing could stop. Capt. Rawlings placed under arrest several young men who were in the house at the time. From these this story is learned:

Near midnight a knock was heard at the door and Torrie answered it. Two toughs named Theodore Watt and William Gray were there and asked for a drink of water. Torrie told them to be gone, and the next moment those sitting within heard him cry out: "My God, I'm stabbed." Torrie fell into the arms of his friends and expired within ten minutes.

Until 5 o'clock this morning the officers kept up a diligent search and their efforts were rewarded. It was just 5 o'clock when Officers Lahey and Hamilton, stationed where the suspension and cantilever bridges cross the Douglas-road, saw figures approaching. These proved to be Gray and Watt, who on being arrested offered no resistance. Watt turned to the officers and said: "I did it, but it was an accident." He is the youngest prisoner, is 18 years of age and has a widowed mother, a very respectable woman. Torrie was a man 40 years of age and leaves a widow and two children. He has been drinking heavily lately and was in the company of Gray and Watt early last evening.

Your correspondent had an interview with Watt this morning and he confessed to having committed the murder although unintentionally. He, Gray and Torrie had been together during the evening drinking. About 11 o'clock Torrie returned home, they followed him and knocked at the door of his house; they asked for a drink and were ordered away. They knocked again and Torrie came to the door. "I was standing on the stoop cutting tobacco," said Watt, "when Gray demanded a drink and Torrie sprang forward and struck him, knocking him down. I raised my knife and plunged it into Torrie's side and we ran away."

They hid in a barn for some hours and were making the best of their way out of the city when arrested.

Charlie Mitchell is Getting Old.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The Police Gazette has received a cablegram from London stating that, in reply to Slavin's challenge to fight Mitchell, the latter offers to match an unknown against Slavin. The unknown is said to be Kilrain.

Lacrosse Points.

At St. Catharines yesterday the Stratford twelve was defeated by three games to two.

The Junior Brants of Paris played at Ingersoll yesterday and won from the Dufferins by four straight games.

The second match of the Toronto Lacrosse Club takes place next Saturday at Rosedale, their opponents being the St. Regis Indians that made such a creditable showing at Montreal last week.

They Are Evenly Matched.

The three Canadian and three American International clubs are pretty evenly matched, as is shown by the percentage of games won up to date, the three American having an average of .485 per cent. and the three Canadian clubs .489. Should two Canadian clubs win to-day the percentage would be about a tie.

A BIG DAY IN NORWOOD.

THE METHODIST CHURCH CORNER STONE LAID BY ODDFELLOWS.

Grand Master Bell Performs the Ceremony —Addresses by Rev. Dr. Stafford and Others—The Roman Catholic Picnic—Football Tournament and Concerts.

The village of Norwood celebrated the birth of Queen Victoria in royal style on Monday. The programme for the day was an attractive and varied one, and included an Oddfellows' demonstration and the laying of the corner stone of the new Methodist church, a football tournament and a picnic under the auspices of the Roman Catholic congregation.

The Corner Stone Laying.

A special train left Peterborough for Norwood at 10:20 a.m. with a large number on board who went to take part in or attend different events. Among them were a number of Oddfellows, including the members of Canton Peterborough in uniform. The delegation of Oddfellows was met at the Norwood station by the Norwood brass band and the local members of the Order, when a procession was formed and proceeded to the Methodist church. After arriving at the church Mr. R. J. Stewart, N. G. of Norwood Lodge, took the chair and called to the platform Dr. R. W. Bell, Grand Master, Messrs. J. Nugent, N. G., and T. Armstrong, V.G. of Otonabee Lodge, J. W. Main, N. G. of Peterborough Lodge, and Major Moore and Lieut. Mills of the Canton. In a brief speech Mr. Stewart welcomed the Grand Master and visiting Oddfellows.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME.

Mr. J. B. Pearce, Reeve of Norwood, then read a nicely worded address of welcome from the village to the Grand Master and the visiting Oddfellows, to which Dr. Bell replied in a short address. Rev. J. S. Clarke, on behalf of the Methodist congregation, added a few words of welcome. Mr. J. Davidson, P. G. of Norwood Lodge, read another address of welcome from the Norwood lodge, to which Dr. Bell also replied, thanking them for the address and kind welcome. Major Moore having been called on made a brief but neat speech, and the brethren then adjourned for dinner to the tables in the rear of the church which had been provided in a sumptuous manner by the ladies of the congregation.

THE CEREMONY.

After dinner the Oddfellows assembled at the agricultural grounds and, headed by the splendid village band, proceeded through the principal streets to the church, where the ceremony was performed. The new church, which occupies the site of the former building at the corner of Peterborough and Colborne-sts., will be a magnificent structure. It will be 74x112 feet, and the audience room will be 70x71 feet, with a Sunday school room 37x54 feet in the rear. It is being constructed of excellent stone from the Norwood quarry, trimmed with Beckworth stone. The building will be heated with hot air. The contract price for the building is $10 000.

On the platform erected for the occasion were Rev. J. S. Clarke, pastor of the church, Rev. Dr. Stafford, of Toronto, Rev. J. Carmichael, of Norwood, Rev. A. R. Campbell, Hastings, Rev. J. Anderson, Campbellford, Rev. J. J. Lewis, Blairton, Messrs. J. B. Pearce, Reeve of Norwood, J. Lang, M. P., T. Blezard, M.P.P., A. R. Kidd, Dr. Ford, W. H. Stephenson, Thos. Buck, the Trustees of the church and members of the Official Board, T. H. Dunk, the contractor, and others. When the procession arrived at the scene the members of the Canton divided ranks and presented swords, while Dr. Bell, Grand Master, Dr. Pettegrew, D.D.G.M., Bros. Nugent, Stewart, Main, W. E. Roxburgh, W. Doughty, Davidson and other officers took places on the platform. The choir of the Methodist church sang an appropriate hymn in an excellent manner, and Rev. J. S. Clarke opened the ceremony with prayer. The ceremony in accordance with Methodist usage was then continued by Mr. Clarke and Dr. Stafford, at the conclusion of which Mr. Thos. Buck, the oldest member of the Trustee Board, came forward and presented Grand Master Bell with a beautiful silver trowel, and in doing so gave some interesting reminiscences. The trowel, which had been procured from Mr. Duffield, of Norwood, was handsomely chased and bore an appropriate inscription. A bottle containing a list of subscribers to the building fund, the names of the officers of the church, of the pastor and members, of the officers, teachers and pupils of the Sunday school, of the members of the Village Council, professional men, Oddfellows of Norwood Lodge and those taking part in the ceremony, a list of the schools with the Principals and teachers, the manufacturing industries of the village, a copy of the Christian Guardian and other church papers, the Norwood Register and daily papers, coins, and a copy of the Oddfellows constitution, was placed in the cavity in the stone.

The Grand Master then addressed the large assemblage of people, and Rev. J. Carmichael, Chaplain of Norwood Lodge, led in prayer. The Grand Master then laid the stone with the beautiful ceremony of the Order of Oddfellows, and Dr. Pettigrew, D.D.G.M., declared it duly laid, and Rev. J. Carmichael again addressed the throne of grace.

Dr. Bell, in an able address, expressed his pleasure personally and as executive head of the Order of Oddfellows at having the honor of performing the ceremony. This was an interesting and impressive occasion, as it showed the progress of the cause of Christianity in the community, and he commended the liberality and earnestness which made the erection of such an edifice possible. He was pleased with the recognition of Oddfellowship by the church, and the order was really a handmaid of the church, as it took up a good work that the church did not carry on. He touched on the aims and objects of Oddfellowship and the work the order had done. The day was an appropriate one for the ceremony, as it celebrated the birth of their noble Queen. He congratulated the Methodist church on its success in the good work it was accomplishing, and assured them of the good feeling of the Oddfellows towards it. He wished them success in their undertaking in erecting a building for Divine worship to which they could point with pride.

Rev. Dr. Stafford gave an eloquent and able address that was most attentively listened to. He said the day of polemical contests was passed, and dwelt eloquently on the concensus of opinion that was growing up as to what should be the religious doctrines of the future. The stone that had been laid was a re-affirmation of their adherence to the faith of their fathers—in Christianity as a system and in Methodism as one representative of Christianity. He dwelt on the elevated moral standard of the age and closed with a fine peroration.

Mr. W. H. Stephenson reported that $16,000 had been subscribed by the members of the church towards the building fund, and he read a list of other subscriptions amounting $692, while the proceeds of the dinner would be about $150.

Mr. Clarke read letters of regret from Mr. T. P. Pearce, of Belleville, and Mayor Stevenson, of Peterborough. The former asked that he and Mr. J. B. Pearce be permitted to place in the church a memorial window to the memory of their parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Pearce, and also endorsed a cheque for $50.

Mr. T. Blezard, M.P.P., moved a vote of thanks to the Grand Master and the Oddfellows of Norwood, Peterborough, Campbellford and Hastings. The motion was seconded by Mr. J. Lang, M.P., and acknowledged by Dr. Bell.

Rev. J. Carmichael moved a vote of thanks to the Managing Committee, which was seconded by Mr. A. R. Kidd and carried.

On motion of Mr. W. H. Stephenson, seconded by Mr. P. W. Reynolds, a vote of thanks was tendered Rev. Dr. Stafford and acknowledged.

After a few remarks by Rev. Jas. Anderson, of Campbellford, a former pastor of the church, the proceedings were concluded by the band playing the National Anthem.

A report of the other proceedings of the day is unavoidably held over.

TWO NAUGHTY MINISTERS.

Seriously Wounded by Outraged Husbands —One Preacher Stabbed 16 Times.

CHATTANOOGA, May 26.—Henry Hurd, a well-to-do colored man of Sherman Heights, took his wife to Barnum's circus on Saturday night. After the circus Hurd said he would stay in the city, and Rev. Mr. Dobbins, a preacher at Sherman Heights, escorted Mrs. Hurd home.

Hurd in the meantime went home a round-about way and secreted himself in the house, where he watched his wife and the preacher, and saw them go to bed. Hurd stealthily emerged from his hiding place, secured a rusty knife and savagely attacked the preacher, cutting him sixteen times about the body. The preacher will probably die. Both man and the woman have been arrested.

At about the same hour Nat Mosely (colored) went to his home near the river from the circus and found Rev. James Sloane with his wife. Mosely secured a heavy iron ladle and beat the preacher unmercifully, and would have killed him had not the ladle broken. The preacher made his escape, and a warrant is out for his arrest. Mosely was arrested and fined for disorderly conduct.

The Erie Canal Washout.

UTICA, N.Y., May 26.—The Central-Hudson road at Whitesboro, which was damaged by the Erie Canal washout last evening, was so far repaired that trains passed over track No. 1 to-night. The total loss from the break is estimated at $200,000. It will be certainly two weeks before the damage to the canal can be repaired owing to the difficulty in getting material to the break.

An Arrest at the Political Meeting.

At the Police Court this morning Mr. T. Cavanagh was called on a charge of having been disorderly in a public place. Mr Cavanagh was at the Carnegie meeting in the Opera House last night and while Mr. Weir was speaking made some interruption when Chief Rossel cautioned him to be quiet. The reply is said to have been disrespectful to the officer, and Chief Rossel and Constable Stewart arrested Mr. Cavanagh and took him to the police station, but he was not locked up, being allowed out to appear this morning. At the Police Court Police Magistrate Dumble told Mr. Cavanagh that they did not propose to go into the merits of the case, but would take it for granted that he had been disorderly. He gave Mr. Cavanagh some good advice to follow at exciting election meetings and allowed him to go.

Well Sarah, what have you been doing to make you look so young? Oh, nothing much, only been using Hall's Hair Renewer to restore the color of my hair.

A MAGNIFICENT MEETING

THE OPERA HOUSE FILLED AS IT NEVER WAS BEFORE.

The Meeting Held in the Interests of Mr. Carnegie, the Equal Rights Candidate—Beautiful Decorations—The Ladies Present in Large Numbers—Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Stratton both Speak—Mr. Dalton McCarthy Makes a Most Able and Eloquent Address.

It was a grand spectacle that met the gaze of those seated on the platform in the Opera House last night at the meeting which was held in the interests of Mr. John Carnegie, the Equal Rights candidate. An unbroken sea of faces stretched from the one end of the large hall to the other, while in the gallery were a large representation of Peterborough's fair sex who filled the seats to overflowing. The hall was a beautiful sight to behold. Flags, festoons of evergreens and mottoes appropriate to the Equal Rights Association had been stretched across the hall in tasteful profusion and made the barren walls of the Opera House appear more attractive than they ever did before. Over the platform was the motto "God Save the Queen," while directly opposite across the back of the hall was another "Welcome to Peterborough." Around the walls encircled with evergreens were the following other mottoes:—"State Control of Education," "No Class Legislation," "Equal Rights for all," "Special Privileges for None," "Complete Separation of Church and State." There was not a vacant foot of space in the building when Mr. A. P. Poussette, Q.C., walked out upon the platform followed by the speaker of the evening, Mr. Dalton McCarthy, the Equal Rights candidate Mr. Carnegie, Mr. Kidd, the Equal Rights candidate in the East Riding, and Mr. J.A. Davidson. The appearance of these gentlemen was the signal for a storm of applause, which was loud and long prolonged. Among the other gentlemen seated on the platform were:—Rev. G. H. Davis, E. Duff, Alex. Hamilton, Orange County Master of West Peterborough, of Nassau; Robt. Weir, E. B. Stone, J. L. Hughes, J. A. McWilliams, R. J. Kidd, Wm. Graham, Jos. Walton, A. C. Dunlop, D. McLeod, Adam Ostworthy, Wm. Pearson, Jos. Barnard, John Agnew, Dawson Kennedy, Wm. Stewart, A. McNeil, J.J. Mason, Jas. Might, Jas. Kendry, Robt. Hambidge, Thos. Armstrong, Wm. Croft, Jas. Petrie and many others.

OPENING THE MEETING.

At the request of the chairman the vast audience rose to their feet and joined heartily in singing the National Anthem, after which an invitation was extended to Mr. Stratton to take a seat on the platform. Mr. Stratton's appearance was greeted with applause.

Mr. Poussette said he did not purpose to detain them with any lengthy speech, but there was one thought which he wished to leave with them. For the last twenty years the Roman hierarchy had boasted that they held the balance of power in this country and the Equal Rights Association now asked them to consider whether it was better for that state of things to exist or whether it was better to elect independent men to go to Parliament and hold the balance of power. (Cheers.) He asked them as sensible men whether it was better for them to leave the balance of power in the hands of these independent men of the Equal Rights Association or in the hands of the Roman hierarchy. (Applause.) He then called upon Mr. A. R. Kidd, the Equal Rights candidate in the East Riding.

THE EASTERN CANDIDATE.

Mr. A. R. Kidd was first introduced to the audience and was received with hearty applause. He would not detain them, however, he said, when there were abler men to follow.

THE ASSOCIATION'S SECRETARY.

Mr. E. B. Stone was warmly received and said he had been at a number of meetings in the East Riding and they had met with unqualified success. He believed that Mr. Kidd would represent East Peterborough in the next Legislature. They had been met with nothing but abuse, but the riding was "solid for Kidd."

THE CANDIDATE IN THE WEST.

Mr. Carnegie was received with long and continued cheers. He was pleased to see such a large audience present to hear his friend Dalton McCarthy—(cheers)—a man who had done more for Equal Rights than any other man in Canada. Mr. McCarthy being present, he (Mr. Carnegie) would be as brief as possible. Occupying the position he did as the candidate of the Equal Rights Association, and standing on that platform and on it only, he did not think it necessary to explain the platform at length, as he had dealt with its salient features on a previous occasion. He stood pledged to endeavor to have those principles carried out, without reference to either of the old political parties, and he would vote for any government, no matter which party it represented, that would honestly carry them out and against any government that did not do so. (Cheers). As their opponents could not attack their principles, they attacked the standard bearers. It would be impossible for any man, especially one who had been long connected with either of the old political parties, to unite with the Association without going back on something he had done before. It was because of the acts of the old parties that the Association was formed. They had gone as far back as nineteen years to show that he had not always occupied a position similar to his stand now, and had produced a letter from Rev. Mr. Lynch. He stood then to say that in the past, as a member of a political party, he had done things that were foolish and wrong to do. He had been forced into it by the style of party warfare and, to use an expression once used by Mr. Mowat, to "fight the devil with fire." What were the circumstances in 1871, the time to which the letter referred? The Reformers had brought John O'Donoghue from Toronto to run in East Peterborough to try to get the votes of the Catholics in both ridings, and he had, in accordance with the wishes of his friends in the party, tried to "go one better" by speaking to Rev. Mr. Lynch and to thus offset the other influence. Such things the Association condemned, and in doing so was endeavoring to protect their liberties in the Dominion and in Ontario. There was a pamphlet produced by Mr. Ross at the recent meeting, and it was the same one that Mr. Stratton, at the nomination four years ago, read from by the hour. He said now, as he said then, that he had never seen that pamphlet until he saw it in the Globe. But was that pamphlet in keeping with the policy of the old parties in trying to secure power? With the old parties it had become a race for power, no matter if they sold their country or made it, as they did in the Jesuit bill, an appendage of the Pope. He held in his hand a small pamphlet entitled "Facts for Irish Catholics to Consider." It looked like an appeal from the Conservatives to the Irish Catholics and was used in 1886 to give Protestants the impression that he was not sincere then in the position he took regarding Separate schools. He got this fly-sheet from Mr. J. A. Davidson, to whom it had been given by a supporter of Mr. Stratton to influence him. They should beware of tricks of that kind, for they might be tried again.

Mr. Stratton—Read it.

Mr. Carnegie—You can see it.

Mr. Stratton—I have seen it before. (Hear, hear, and laughter.)

Mr. Carnegie said he had no doubt Mr. Stratton had seen it before, and there were experts in printing who told him the printing looked very much like type that was in the Examiner office. (Cheers.) He held that it was never too late for any man who had been on the wrong track to get off it and get on the right one. Both political parties had made efforts to get the Catholic vote, and without going into details he held that they had done things contrary to British liberty and he believed that ultramontane principles, rather the Protestant principles, should take a back seat. He had not come to that conclusion on the eve of an election, for he had not attended a party caucus since the last Dominion election, which was before the Jesuit bill came up. After that election—for he did not believe in forsaking a party in a contest—when he was in a position to honorable do so, he made himself a free man as far as party connection was concerned. When Mr. McCarthy and others took that noble stand at Ottawa he was not long in communicating to him his approval and promising his support. There were those present who remembered that at a meeting here addressed by Rev. Dr. Sutherland he had told them he was no longer in line with the Conservative party. He was told by some that they agreed with his views and that they would vote for him if he had not been so long a Tory. Where was the public man, he asked, who had not changed his views on public matters? How many times had Mr. Gladstone done so? But suppose he was as bad as they said—suppose if elected he would fall at the feet of Sir John—would they not by endorsing the platform of the Association make a record that all the waters of the Otonabee could not wash out? He then referred to Mr. G. W. Ross' reply regarding the exception in the compulsory education law in favor of Roman Catholic children and pointed out that Mr. Ross had read sec. 209 of the Act but had omitted to read sec. 215, which made the exception. Mr. Ross had told them that the law was consolidated while he was in the House, but he did not tell them of one amendment he had opposed with some success. This was an amendment to authorize the municipal council and Separate school board to enter into an agreement by which a certain fixed proportion of the taxes would be handed over to the Separate schools, and there was no limit to the term of years the agreement might cover. He (Mr. Carnegie) had got this changed so that the municipal council that made such agreement must have a majority of Protestants and, more important, that either party could terminate it by giving six months notice. So he had not been quite so much asleep as Mr. Ross would have them believe. Mr. Ross had said that the Separate schools in this county had received only $42, which had caused a misapprehension, as that did not include the town at all. The law stated that the school grant should be divided among the municipalities and then among the schools in accordance with the number of pupils. But Mr. Ross did not follow the law and as a consequence the Separate schools of this town received in five years from 22 to 26 cents per head for each pupil attending more than the Public schools. If the Public schools had received the grants at the same rate per pupil they would have got $1,780 in the five years more than they did receive. That was the way the Public schools had been milked for the Separate schools. He wondered why, when Mr. Stratton was such a watchful man, he had not got this money for the Public schools of the town? He had spent money in the north so freely that he said that he (Mr. Carnegie) need not look for a vote there, but Peterborough evidently was of no consequence and could be overlooked. It had been said that he (Mr. Carnegie) did not want a Catholic vote. He wanted the vote of every man who could accept the platform of the Equal Rights Association and of no one who could not do so. As he understood the ultramontane principles—though he might be mistaken—no Catholic could accept the Equal Rights platform and therefore he did not ask for his vote. One of the things he had to contend against in this election was the boodle distributed in the north country. Mr. Stratton went there openly and said if they voted for him they would get the money and if they voted against him they would not get it. When in the House he wrote no less than six letters to the Department regarding those roads without getting an acknowledgment. Was that a proper or a just way to deal with the people's money? They should bear in mind that it was of little consequence who was elected or who received a majority at Toronto, but the great question was whether the principles of the Equal Rights Association or those of the Pope would prevail in Ontario. By their decision on June 5th they would fix to a large extent the future of Ontario, and also of the Dominion. If they gave an uncertain sound on June 5th they could not expect the support of the Protestants in the other Provinces, but if they gave no uncertain sound Protestants all over the Dominion would rally to the standard of equal rights for all and special privileges for none. He would be glad if their Roman Catholic fellow citizens would come onto that platform, for they asked nothing for themselves that they were not willing to grant to others. The only him, apart from his duty to the state, that taught him this doctrine of equal rights to all was Protestantism and on these Protestant principles he stood. He would a thousand times sooner be defeated than be elected on any other platform. He had been told that he was old and decrepid, but if that were true he was near the time when he would have to render an account for his doings as a politician as well as in other ways. There were loud and prolonged cheers as he resumed his seat.

THE GOVERNMENT CANDIDATE.

Mr. Stratton was received with cheers, the loudness of which, to some extent, made up for the lack of numbers of those taking part in them. After some introductory remarks, he said that the record of the Government had not been attacked, but a base cry had been raised in the riding, as all over the Province, in the interest of Mr. Carnegie, whom he called the Conservative candidate. He maintained that for their administration of the financial affairs of the Province the Government deserved approval, and again paraded the misleading surplus statement. The people of Ontario would not know the benefit Mr. Mowat had been to them until he was gone. (Laughter.) Nettled by the laughter, he declared that the "horde of hungry men" who wanted to get into power should appal them. Proceeding he quoted from the Montreal Gazette, and said that Mr. Carnegie had mounted the Equal Rights platform to pull the wool over their eyes. Dr. Caven had repudiated him—(cries of no)—and so had Mr. E. Douglas Armour. He then read from a report of a speech by Mr. Armour which did not mention Mr. Carnegie's name in any way. Mr. Carnegie was endeavoring to run this contest on the Separate school question, and so was Mr. Meredith, and Mr. Carnegie had said Mr. Meredith's platform was nearer to his than Mr. Mowat's. How many men on the platform had given Reform votes? Mr. Carnegie was the Conservative candidate—(No.)—and there was no other Conservative candidate in the field. He then read an extract from a letter written by Dr. Caven in the Mail, which he said, applied to Mr. Carnegie, although Dr. Caven's letter, which he also read, stated that no one had his authority to apply his words to Mr. Carnegie. He claimed he had as good a right to construe that letter as he thought fit as Mr. Carnegie had to quote "Scots Wha' Hae." The Imperial Parliament, he pointed out, would have to change the constitution before the Separate schools could be abolished, and said that the British people maintained their treaties, as was shown by their dealings with the Indians. He read an extract from the Globe, referring to a speech made at Newmarket by Mr. McCarthy, in which the Globe contended that the Separate schools had not been foisted upon the people of Ontario. He had no doubt the Globe had hunted up the record, and that it would not present the matter in a wrong light. (Laughter.) Mr. Carnegie had not the courage the other night to attack the administration of the Education Department when Mr. Ross was present. Just as four years ago when Mr. Ross was present, he dealt with the Agricultural college, finances and other two-penny-half-penny affairs. He denied that the Separate schools of the town had received more than they were entitled to. Up to to-night Mr. Carnegie had not attempted to prove the statement though he had made it in a letter in the Review some time ago. He did not make the statement in Mr. Ross' presence, but he (Mr. Stratton) read figures of attendance at the Public and Separate schools which, he said, were correct. In reference to the fly-sheet Mr. Carnegie referred to, he said that it had been used in Muskoka and he (Mr. Stratton) had printed a few of them to show the kind of literature used. (Laughter.) In regard to the French schools, he said that Dr. Ryerson had adopted the principle of waiting for the influx of English settlers to bring about a change and that Mr. G. W. Ross had inaugurated a policy of reform. Was he not entitled to their support when the remedies had been provided for all the defects while he was in the House? (Laughter.) The Government, he said, had adopted the recommendation of the Commissioners who had visited the schools and he exhibited a copy of the text books that had been prepared for the schools in Prescott and Russell, and again read an extract from Dr. Caven's letter warning the people against party alliances. There was no more able or eloquent man than Mr. McCarthy in Canada, he said, and such was the man Mr. Carnegie had to bring to assist him. He had no doubt Mr. McCarthy would "wipe the earth" with him, but he believed they would conclude that the Mowat Government should be sustained. He said that Mr. McCarthy had a grudge against Mr. Mowat—(laughter)—because they had been opposing counsel before the courts. Mr. McCarthy was the leader of the "devil's dozen" or courageous thirteen who voted against the Jesuit Estate bill, but he had not gone into Lincoln to oppose Mr. Rykert, one of the 188. He did not want them hoodwinked. As sure as they recorded their votes on June 5th, Mr. Carnegie would be on the opposition side supporting Mr. Meredith. He claimed again that he was the true Equal Rights candidate and said his opponent only referred to two or three "buncombe resolutions" introduced early in the morning of the last day of the session of the Legislature to show that he was not. He closed by claiming he would have a majority.

A TRAP EVADED.

Mr. Carnegie rose amid cheers and said that in regard to Mr. Stratton's challenge in respect to the inequality of the distribution of the school moneys between the Public and Separate schools, he would accept the challenge and would leave the question to three men, one to be named by himself, one by Mr. Stratton and these two to choose the third. He would name as his representative Mr. Poussette.

Mr. Stratton—I name Hon. G. W. Ross as my representative. (Laughter.)

Mr. Poussette said he feared he would not have the honor of meeting Mr. Ross until about six months hence. (Laughter)

Mr. McCarthy, upon arising was compelled to stand for several moments while the vast audience cheered and applauded with the greatest enthusiasm. It was a grand ovation and was repeated when Mr. Robt. Weir led the little daughter of Mr. A. McNeil to the front of the platform while she presented the leader of the renowned thirteen with a beautiful bouquet. An enthusiast in the audience called for three cheers for the noble thirteen, which were given, and when the applause had finally subsided Mr. McCarthy began a speech which occupied about one hour and a half in delivery and which was void of any hot-headed personalities or mean-spirited abuse. He was frequently interrupted by vociferous applause. The summary of his speech is held over until to-morrow's issue.

WAS OFFERED A BRIBE.

At the conclusion of Mr. McCarthy's speech Mr. Robt. Weir rose to move a vote thanks to the speaker. Mr. Weir was referring to the clear manner in which Mr. McCarthy had handled his subject when a voice shouted out "What About the Marriage License?"

Mr. Weir, who had been standing back on the platform, immediately came forward and said if they would give him one moment he would tell them all about the marriage licenses and only be too glad to do so. (Cheers). He said he was appointed an issuer of marriage licenses without any solicitation on his part and while he was away attending the Grand Lodge. It had been imputed to him that he had left the Reform ranks because another man had been appointed issuer of licenses. Some time ago Mr. McWilliams, who all knew as the confidential friend of Mr. Stratton, gave him a list of office holders in the county and asked him to look over it. About two weeks before the list of county office holders appeared in the Examiner Mr. McWilliams sent Mr. Moore, who was employed in his (Mr. McWilliams) office, over to his (Mr. Weir's) shop stating that Mr. McWilliams wanted to see him. He had gone over and Mr. McWilliams had the list of names lying on his desk and told him if he would sign his name to a little preamble stating that he had been an Equal Rights man, but after reading that list had come to the conclusion that Mr. Mowat had not given any more to the Catholics than they were entitled to, he (Mr. Weir) could have Mr. Cochrane's position as License Inspector. (Loud cheers.) Mr. Weir pointed out how much more profitable a license inspectorship would be than a position as issuer of marriage licenses. He, however, had told Mr. McWilliams he was an Equal Righter before a party man and could not sign it. Mr. Weir also referred to a misrepresentation of his remarks at meeting at Selwyn which had appeared in the Examiner.

While Mr. Weir was speaking a disturbance occurred under the gallery and the police arrested a man and took him from the hall.

This caused some excitement, in the midst of which Mr. James Kendry and Mr. Alex. Hamilton both rose to second the resolution of thanks moved by Mr. Weir. Mr. Kendry seconded the motion, which was enthusiastically carried.

The meeting then broke up with cheers for Mr. McCarthy, the Queen, the Chairman and Mr. Carnegie.

THE JUDGE!

"With you under sentence of death, and with her living in the house with her dead father? I think she would have been in a worse way than she is now."

"Perhaps she would—if it could be worse. Do you think I shall ever have her back again?"

"I am sure of it. I—I feel it in my bones, Mr. Leiter."

"I hope your bones are prophetic," said Harry, with a look of wistfulness. "I have no such pleasant inward assurance."

"I'm not a prophet myself. I have heard that women never are."

"Oh! There's Mother Shipton and Cassandra."

"They are not very well authenticated, are they?"

"Nothing is, that happened yesterday. I have heard it said that it was possible to prove that Napoleon never existed."

"I wish it were possible to prove that I am right about Margaret."

"I have got to prove it some way. This is my work now. My occupations are gone now, and I will devote my time to finding my poor girl."

"What are you going to do with your house?"

"With uncle's house? It is mine, I suppose I shall sell it. I could not stand it to live in those dear rooms now. They are ruined for me. I should see that terrible old music room. You never saw it, Miss Whitfield? You ought to. I shall give the violins to an old collector who has grown sour envying uncle the possession of them. He has offered fortunes for them, but I will surprise him by making him a present of them. It will more than likely kill him. He is subject to apoplexy."

"You will get your revenge and be generous at the same time."

"Precisely. I have found a purchaser for the old house, and most of the furniture goes with it."

"What a pity it seems!"

"Doesn't it? But I could not live among those things. If ever happy days come to me again, they must be spent far away from here, and in a new, bright home. I shall miss the old, rich associations. But I must have my household goods fresh and pure—not with the memory of terrible deeds upon them."

"Yes," cried the little damsel, furnishing Margaret's home in her mind's eye, "you must have flowers and clean curtains and wood floors and——"

"That is it; you grasp the idea exactly. And pictures of pleasant places and statues of happy gods and people—none with the old tragedies upon them. No dying gladiators, no Ophelias, no Othellos, no mourning Sapphos. Only Mercury and Pan and Rosalind and Eros——"

"I am sure he is no giver of happiness. If any one has the shadow of the tragedies upon him, he has."

"Eh! You are not serious! Well, it's none of my business—but you know I want to help you in any thing I can. Of course I do not need to say that, do I? Is there any thing I can do for you?"

"Do? No. There is nothing the matter with me. I suppose I can make an abstract remark, as Mr. Pond would say."

"Does Pond come here much?"

"N-no; not very much." Jeanne turned her attention once more to the fashion plates, which were not all taken down yet. "I shall see nothing of him now, for I am going home."

"Do you live in an impregnable castle, then, may I ask?"

"I live in a funny farm house. Pa has painted it a pale pink. I mean Mr. Pond will never come out that far."

"No, I suppose a man used to racing over the continent as he is will not be able to make a trip of five or six miles."

"What will Mr. Pond come out to a dull farm house for? I cannot imagine him making such an effort. Why do we talk about it all? You must think me very familiar for a stranger, Mr. Leiter."

"Our acquaintance has been cemented by too many sorrows—common sorrows—for us to be strangers. I have heard a great deal about you and if any thing could make me happy now, or lift this load that I am conscious of day and night, it would be meeting you."

"You are ever and ever so kind to say so and I believe you mean it. We will both be happier some time."

"We must pass through deep waters first, then. But I forget that these troubles touch you only remotely and that your friendship all comes from your kindness of heart, merely."

"We all love Margaret," said the little damsel, softly. "That is the bond." She looked very dainty, indeed, as she stood there, flushed with feeling and a little tremulous about the lips. Her dress of red brown shaded into her more brilliant hair. Her transparent skin was as fair to look at as a rose with the dew on it. Her lashes, moist with friendly drops, revealed, yet concealed, her friendly eyes. Looking at her so, Harry said that she stood for whatever was womanly, unselfish, true and homelike.

Just then there was a knock at the door.

"Come," cried Jeanne. It was Pond who responded.

"I beg pardon," he said. No one had the grace to make a reply. Jeanne flushed scarlet now, and Harry had some trouble in stammering out a "Glad to see you."

But the apprehensive eyes of the little damsel noticed that they did not shake hands.

"I owe you a great debt," said Harry, stiffly. "I ought to have written; but it is not easy to thank a man for doing what you did for me."

"I can see very well that you think I was not disinterested. Well, then, I was. But you will know about that some day. And then I suppose you will think worse of me than ever."

"Think worse of you! Are you trying to pick a quarrel, Pond? What should I have against you?"

"Well, I kept you from being a martyr. That is hard to forgive, I should imagine."

"Now you are together," broke in Jeanne, finding her tongue and her tact, "why don't you talk about the best way to find Margaret?"

"Sure enough," cried Pond, looking at her with thankful eyes, "that would be more like it. Ask us to sit down, Miss Whitfield. We must begin some concerted action."

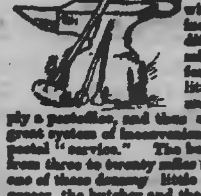
"By to-morrow or the next day," said Harry, taking the chair set for him, "my business affairs will be brought to an end. The house, the horses, the furniture and all the rest will be sold, and I shall be free to wander where I will. From that time on I will devote myself to my melancholy search, Mr. Pond." Dennis looked up sharply at the "Mister," but said nothing.

Then they talked for an hour, but, as Jeanne remarked to herself after they left, they did not seem to arrive at very much.

"That is a jewel—that little girl," said Harry to Pond, with the first really cordial tone he had used.

"She is that," replied Pond. "Odd that I did not fall in love with her, isn't it?"

CHAPTER XXIII.



THE traveler is apt to stumble upon tiny villages anywhere upon the Illinois prairie. It is difficult to determine what excuse for existence these little hamlets have, unless it is to supply a postoffice, and thus apologize for our great system of inconvenience known as our postal "service." The busy farmer drives from three to twenty miles for his letters to one of these drowsy little towns, and the grocer, the butcher and the dry goods merchant availing themselves of this importance on the part of the Government, bring their wares where they will tempt and console the neglected and put-upon farmer.

Less than fifty miles from Chicago is such a place, known by the name of Hathrone. It had no manufactories, few enterprises, no competition—and the postoffice. The acquaintance of the neighbors, one with another, was intimate. Each woman knew exactly how many rinsing waters her neighbor put her washing through, and there was a recipe for graham gems which was common property, and which was offered to each new comer as a guarantee of good fellowship.

In the midst of one of the grassy streets of this friendly hamlet had stood for many years, a deserted smithy. The horses of the neighboring farmers were shod at a brick place down the west road, and no enterprise of a competitive nature was started. Hathrone was not a little surprised, therefore, when it became aware one morning that a genial glow from the old forge lit up the cobwebby interior, and the resonant clang of the anvil was breaking the quiet of the morning.

HERMAN KEMPINSKI'S STORY.

A United States Citizen 13 Months in a Russian Prison.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Herman Kempinski, a passenger on the steamship Augusta Victoria, which reached this port yesterday from Hamburg, is an American citizen of foreign birth, who nevertheless has spent 13 months in a Russian prison and would probably have been sent to Siberia but for the energetic action of Secretary Blaine in his behalf. The horrible crimes of which he was guilty were, he says, leaving his native country without the Czar's consent and becoming an American citizen.

This is the story he told to a Tribune reporter. He was born in the town of Konin, in Russian Poland. At the age of 17 he came to America, was naturalized five years later, and after spending 18 years in the United States sold out his profitable business in Bridgeport and returned to his native town to visit his parents, taking his wife and two little girls with him. On his way he took the precaution to inquire of the American consul at Berlin if he ran any risk in going back to Russian soil. The consul advised him to consult the Russian consul in that city. This he did. The answers he gave to the consul's questions were satisfactory, and both officials endorsed his passport, the endorsement of the Russian consul certifying that he was at liberty to travel in any part of Russia.

This was on June 15, 1888. Eight days later he reached Konin. His stay with his friends there was undisturbed until Dec. 24 in that year, when two policemen suddenly made their appearance at a friend's house where Kempinski was about to sit down to dinner, and arrested him. On the way to the prison he asked, "What is the charge against me? What have I done?" The officers intimated that it was none of his business.

The burgomaster whom he saw at the prison, although more civil, was unable to answer the same questions. None of the officials ever told him why he was arrested, and he was never brought before a court to be tried, but a friend came to the prison and informed him that he was to be exiled to Siberia on the charge of having left Russia without the permission of the government.

A rumor spread through the town that the prisoner's friends intended to force an entrance into the jail and set him free. Accordingly the chief of police had him removed in handcuffs to the city of Kalisch, 51 versts distant. At Kalisch he was consigned to a cell in the middle of the prison, where he remained for four days and a half. Kempinski described this place as swarming with vermin and so dark that he could not realize its horrors when he first entered it, until an officer lighted a match. A few days of this was enough to entitle him to admission to the prison hospital, where his body gradually resumed its normal size. After an illness of several weeks he was better treated, for a good reason. His devoted wife paid liberally for the privilege of bringing his dinners to him, and further fees to different officials secured other comforts. She paid 400 roubles to postpone his being sent to Siberia.

Meanwhile the governor of the prison drew up a petition to the Czar, which Kempinski signed. It was written in Russian, a language he did not understand. The governor explained that it merely prayed for the imperial pardon for his leaving Russia without permission. During his imprisonment his wife made two unsuccessful journeys to St. Petersburg, where she saw Mr. Wurts, the American charge d'affaires, who told her at her first visit, in March, 1889, that her husband would be free in three weeks. At her second coming, Mrs. Kempinski says, she was coldly treated, and Mr. Wurts declared that her husband had, in his petition, denied his American citizenship. Meanwhile a friend who had returned from Poland to New York appealed to Mr. Blaine.

Kempinski showed the reporter a Berlin paper in which the foreign policy of the new administration was favorably compared with that of its predecessor, and stating that Mr. Blaine had instructed the American representative at St. Petersburg to ask for his passports if Kempinski were not released. On Jan. 24, 1890, he was set free in accordance with a despatch from the Emperor pardoning him.

During his imprisonment $10,000, he says, was consumed in fees to his jailers for decent treatment. He returns to his adopted country almost penniless to begin life anew in a free country.

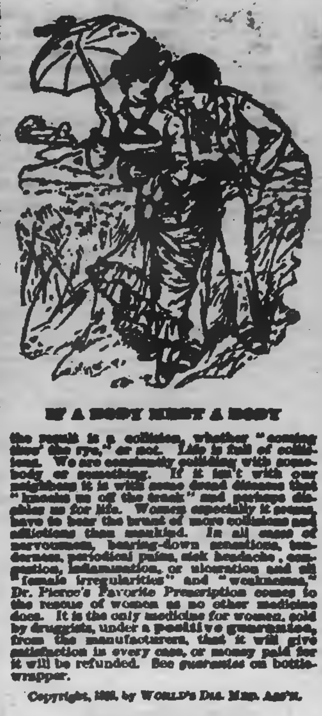
Bound to Pick a Quarrel

A gentleman was known by his acquaintance to have certain infirmities of temper, which had to be endured by his family. On one occasion a friend chanced to be present at breakfast at the house. It was in August. Mr. X. had not slept well, and all his British blood [illegible] found [illegible] and declared there [illegible] on the [illegible] fit to eat. After [illegible] another had been sent away Mrs. X. had some eggs freshly laid the day previous and boiled to suit her husband, put before him. He looked at them crossly a moment, then took one up and broke it.

"How often have I told you my dear," he said in a tone anything but endearing, "that I did not want eggs in August? Do you see how light the color of that is?"

"Well," the wife asked, "what if it is light colored? It is perfectly fresh."

"Fresh!" her husband retorted angrily, "that's nothing. Its light color shows that there's no good in it. It stands to reason that in such warm weather hens get debilitated and lay debilitated eggs. If you really cared what I have to eat you would have thought of that."



IF A BODY MEET A BODY

the result is a collision, whether "coming thro' the rye," or not. Life is full of collisions. We are constantly colliding with somebody or something. If it isn't with our neighbors it is with some dread disease that "knocks us off the track" and perhaps disables us for life. Women especially it seems, have to bear the brunt of more collisions and afflictions than mankind. In all cases of nervousness, bearing-down sensations, tenderness, periodical pains, sick headache, congestion, inflammation, or ulceration and all "female irregularities" and "weaknesses," Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes to the rescue of women as no other medicine does. It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money paid for it will be refunded. See guarantee on bottle-wrapper.

WISCONSIN'S SCHOOL QUESTION.

Bishop Katzer of Green Bay Makes a Fiery Speech at Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, May 27.—In the convention of German Catholic societies of Wisconsin today Father Beublo said the Catholic faith in this country must be taught by church schools and no interference with the schools should be allowed.

H. J. Spannhorst of St. Louis said the Bennett Law presented a political question that Catholics could not ignore because it directly affects the welfare of their institutions.

Bishop Flasch upheld the right of the church to go into politics when its interests were attacked.

He was followed by Bishop Katzer of Green Bay, who took off his coat as if to emphasize his earnestness and proceeded to attack the Bennett Law in the bitterest manner. He said the law practically denied the right of the child to obey its parents by putting its claims before those of the parents. The friends of the law, he said, tell us the child has rights which the State must see are accorded it. But the parents have more interest in the child than the State. The governor and his "little German boy" will be well taken care of by their parents if the State will let them alone. As the Bishop proceeded he warmed to his subject and fairly brought his hearers to their feet by the intensity of his manner. He became angry, pathetic and sarcastic by turns.

"The matter of teaching English, they tell us, is what we are fighting, but this is not so. English is now taught in our schools. But if the State has the right to tell us we must teach English it will soon be telling us what we shall eat and what we shall get on our tables for the family dinner. They are all of a class, these laws, whether in Wisconsin, Illinois or Massachusetts. They attempt to interfere with personal and parental rights, and carried out to their logical conclusion would be very dangerous to the church and to society. This Bennett Law was conceived in the minds of freethinkers, and those opposed to the Catholic Church and her schools." He was told recently, he said, by a Mason that the Bennett Law was first suggested by the Masons. The man said:

"I could prove it to you if I did not put so high a value on my head, that the Bennett Law was first agitated in the Grand Lodge of Masons of the State of Wisconsin."

The applause which followed this statement was deafening, and the bishop had to stand fully half a minute before he could continue. In closing he urged his hearers to oppose all measures like the Bennett Law to the best of their ability and stand firmly by the church.

BUSINESS AND CHRISTIANITY.

Indianapolis Ministers Demand that Street Cars on Sunday be Stopped.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 27.—The Indianapolis Ministers' Association to-day demanded that J. C. Shaffer, president of the Citizens' Street Railway Company, stop running Sunday cars to baseball and beer resorts or resign the presidency of the Indiana Young Men's Christian Association, a position he has held for a couple of years. During the last few weeks several resorts outside the city limits have been opened where Sunday ball games are played and beer has been sold. The carousals at these places have been disreputable in the extreme.

Two weeks ago the ministers in their meeting took up the subject and decided that President Shaffer, as a Christian gentleman, should refuse to furnish extra cars for the transportation of the crowd to these resorts. A committee waited upon Mr. Shaffer and were politely told that the running of cars was wholly in the hands of the road superintendent and that he (Shaffer) was powerless to do anything. The ministers decided that Mr. Shaffer's actions were not what a pious gentleman's should be, and that he could not consistently continue to run Sunday cars to the resorts and officiate as president of the Young Men's Christian Association; hence the demand that he resign as president of the association.

Mr. Shaffer says he will neither resign the presidency of the association nor quit running the cars. He has been very liberal in his donations to the Young Men's Christian Association, and the association intends to stand by him.

A CHICAGO MURDER MYSTERY.

Another Foul Affair of the Cronin Variety—A Body in a Catch-Basin.

CHICAGO, May 27.—The body of a large man, who had apparently been choked to death, was undoubtedly thrown into the Wallace-street sewer at Sixth-street some time on Saturday night. The Englewood police have to-day discovered evidence sufficient to show that a foul crime has been committed, although they have not yet found the mutilated corpse which was washed down the sewer when Lieut. Healy endeavored to extricate it. Investigation shows that there are wagon tracks in the dust in the street leading up close to the manhole. This morning a board cover, that looks like the cover of a long box, was picked up two blocks north of the catch basin in Wallace-street. It was lying in the ditch at the side of the street. There were no spots of blood upon it, and whether it will throw any light on the mystery cannot now be discovered.

A Murderer's Confession.

CHICAGO, May 27.—John Williams, aged 31, of Leeds, Eng., has surrendered himself to the police here and confessed that he murdered Emma Roberts, a domestic in that city, in 1889. He has been a sailor on the lakes for the past two years. He says the girl refused to marry him and he hammered her brains out.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES

EDMUND YATES' GOSSIP ABOUT CURRENT AFFAIRS.

Parnell's London Supporters Extremely Dissatisfied—Gladstone's Great Meeting at Hawarden—Another Liverpool Strike—The Newfoundland Question.

LONDON, May 27.—The entrance of the eldest son of the Prince of Wales into the House of Lords during the lifetime of his father is an event unique in English history, for the simple reason that the newly-created Duke of Clarence and Avendale and Earl of Athlone is the only eldest son of a Prince of Wales since Princes of Wales were, who has attained, much less passed by several years, his majority, while his father was still heir-apparent to the crown. Frederick, Duke of Edinburgh, afterwards Prince of Wales, the "Fred who was alive and is dead, and after that left no more to be said," came close to doing so, but George II. became king while his son was a minor.

During the visit of the king of the Belgians to London, his opinion was freely asked on most of the important points relating to the future of Central Africa, which Lord Salisbury feels increasing difficulty in dealing with. King Leo has made the whole question his own, and many of the dinners to which he was invited during the last few days were arranged with a view to his business. At the Duke of Abercorn's he met Lord Wolseley and Knutsford and was able to have a long and uninterrupted conversation with Percy Anderson, who has just returned from his delicate negotiations at Berlin.

Stanley's graphic word pictures of the Congo and its prospects have excited much attention in this city, and if the King of the Belgians needs more capital he need not go across the Atlantic to obtain it.

Parnell's meeting at Westminster Palace last week was a dismal failure. The ostensible cause of the calling together of his supporters among the London Irish was to prepare for the general election, which these folks wish to believe is coming. But the gathering was really to make an effort to heal the disaffections which are at present rife throughout the league organization in the metropolis. The Irish of the league want some greater excitement than paying subscriptions for the election support of members of Parliament. They are now in for "devilment" and care nothing for Parliamentary work. The result has been that the weekly meetings of the various branches have been dwindling for a long time past, and efforts made to compel them to pay over the funds to the M.P.s have produced dissatisfaction bordering on mutiny. It was supposed, however, that the prospect of voting against the Government on an early day would bring them all into line again; hence Tuesday's meeting. But Parnell's oration was received in cold silence by the rank and file, and indeed he had to use his influence to prevent the prevailing discontent openly declaring itself. Then he left the meeting abruptly before it was concluded.

Gladstone's Great Meeting.

LONDON, May 27.—An immense gathering of people assembled on the grounds of Hawarden Castle to-day to listen to an address by Mr. Gladstone. Throughout the morning special trains, packed with people from English and Welsh towns and villages, far and near, were constantly arriving, while hundreds of persons living within a few miles of the ex-Premier's seat joined to the procession and marched to the castle. Mr. Gladstone was in excellent form and voice and addressed the vast crowd from an elevated position in a corner of the castle yard, while Mrs. Gladstone held an umbrella over his head to shield him from the rays of the sun. He was frequently interrupted by applause, and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed throughout the day. Among the gathering were many recognized Conservatives, but the speaker's remarks elicited from them no signs of disapproval.

The Newfoundland Question.

PARIS, May 27.—Deputy Deloncle, formerly M. Spuller's secretary in the foreign office, proposes that the Newfoundland question be submitted to arbitration. A few thousand pounds, he thinks, will suffice to compensate the French fishermen. While some indemnity, but not in money, is due to France for the surrender of diplomatic rights, he suggests territory in Africa as that indemnity. He ridicules the idea that either America or Canada has anything to say in the matter.

Portugal and Africa.

LISBON, May 27.—Ex-Minister Carvalho has been appointed Inspector-General of Portuguese Africa. A despatch from Africa says Chief Siebe has revolted and has scattered Captain Conceiro's expedition, the remnants of which have concentrated at Caconda. Government reinforcements have left Mozambique for the scene of the trouble.

Silva Porto, an explorer of 50 years' experience, has committed suicide.

Another Liverpool Strike.

LIVERPOOL, May 27.—The timber laborers at the docks here have struck for an advance of sixpence per day in wages.

Indian Troubles in Arizona.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Delegate Smith of Arizona to-day handed President Harrison a telegram from the citizens of Tombstone, Ariz., giving the verdict of the coroner's jury in the case of Robert Hardie, who was killed by Apaches on May 24, and complaining bitterly of the lack of proper military protection. The President endorsed the telegram as follows: "This telegram is submitted for the information of the Secretary of War with directions to take prompt and effective measures to protect the settlers and to capture and to bring to merited punishment any hostile Indians who have been concerned in killing our citizens."

BROKEN HEARTED BY DISGRACE.

A Port Hope Girl Attempts to Commit Suicide in Wisconsin's Metropolis.

MILWAUKEE, May 27.—Broken-hearted over her disgrace, Julia Conroy, a girl 19 years of age, tried to hang herself in a cell at the Central Station this evening. Her attempt was discovered in time. The young woman was arrested this afternoon to answer for the death of her child. She recently came here from Welcome, near Port Hope, Can., where she was employed by a wealthy farmer named Walker. One of the farmer's sons, she says, is the father of her child. He sent her to live with her sister in this city. Last Monday while alone in her sister's home at No. 691 Market-street her child was born. She thrust the babe into a closet, where she left it for two days. Its body was found to-day and she was arrested.

The McKinley Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The Senate Committee on Finance to-day took up the Tariff Bill. On motion of Mr. Sherman it was voted to consider the bill in full committee instead of submitting it to a sub-committee. The committee will meet Thursday to begin its labors. There was some talk on the question of giving hearings to interstate parties, but no conclusion was reached.

JUSTIN HAS THE A. P.'S EAR.

An Unsuccessful Trial of the Dynamite Cartridge Glossed Over.

UTICA, May 27.—Fully 1500 people gathered at Perryville, Madison County, this afternoon to witness the third and public test of Dr. Justin's dynamite cartridge. The attendance comprised both men and women and the sides of the pretty ravine were lined with crowds of people. The cartridge as heretofore was fired from a 12-ton Blakely rifle of English make. Six shells had been made for this trial differing slightly in construction, the walls of the steel shell and the inner brass cylinder being one-sixteenth of an inch thinner than before. The service charge of powder was used, being 20 pounds of hexagonal grained powder. The shell was about 46 inches long and nearly nine inches in diameter.

At 3 p.m. the gun was loaded with one of the shells containing 16½ pounds of highest power dynamite with a bag of 20 pounds of gunpowder back of it. The shell, including bullet and dynamite, weighed 299 pounds. The regular service weight for this gun is only 250 pounds. Dr. Justin applied the fuse, the crowd being scattered to a safe distance except the newspaper men who took refuge behind large trees. There was a flash and roar succeeded by a sharp cracking sound as if of heavy thunder and lightning and then the air was filled with huge pieces of iron, some of them weighing a ton or two. The huge gun had burst. Fortunately no one was hurt. The muzzle of the gun was thrown 100 feet forward, a piece of the jacketing, weighing about three tons, was thrown 500 feet to the rear almost to the dynamite storehouses. The shell had evidently burst at the rear end, not where the dynamite was, and no indications of dynamite or of the brass inner shell were found near the gun. On the contrary a piece of the brass shell and a piece of leather with dynamite still on it were picked up near the target and a section of the steel bullet, still hot, was brought down from the neighboring village where it had buried itself. It is therefore believed that the inner shell containing the dynamite and the steel bullet were thrown from the gun and exploded at the target and the explosion throwing the bullet up over into the village about a mile away.

A number of spectators say they saw the shell strike and explode at the target. If so the experiment was a success in spite of the explosion of the gun and the latter was caused by imperfections in the gun and the explosion of the powder alone. Dr. Justin will make farther trial with a new steel gun, using a thicker shell.

MARRIED FOR THE FUN OF IT.

The Romance Fled with Her Husband and She Got a Divorce.

CHICAGO, May 27.—One of the Valdis Sisters, aerial performers, was divorced by Judge Tuly to-day from a husband whom she married in Geelong, Australia, ten years ago under peculiar and romantic circumstances. She never saw him after the marriage until nine years later, when she accidentally met him in San Francisco.

The sisters were performing in Geelong, Australia, in March, 1880, under the management of one Lanzy, who, when about to lose his position, thought to make himself secure by marrying Louisa to John St. Dennis. Louisa testified that she was only sixteen years old and married St. Dennis, whom she had never seen, for "the fun of it." Lanzy's scheme miscarried, as John Henry Allen, who subsequently married the other Valdis sister, appeared on the scene just as the last word of the ceremony was uttered by a magistrate, and made St. Dennis sign a paper acknowledging that he had perjured himself in swearing that he and his bride were not under 21. The strange union was never consummated, and being amenable to the British law for marrying without the consent of his parents or those of his bride St. Dennis fled.

Mrs. St. Dennis said that she never saw or heard of him until twelve months ago, when she was called out of a theatre by St. Dennis, who made himself known and demanded money. He is now a barkeeper in San Francisco. Louisa had grown wiser in ten years than she was at 16, and her whilom husband was sent about his business.

THE GREASERS ARE EXCITED.

About the Lower California Filibustering Scheme—President Diaz Talks.

CITY OF MEXICO, May 27.—President Diaz, speaking of Lower California, said yesterday he placed little importance on the filibustering movement. He knew the United States Government would not allow neutrality to be violated and the Mexican Government would protect its territory and have a sufficient force in Lower California to repel any invaders. Secretary of the Interior Rubra said all statements that the natives of Lower California are in league with the filibusters were false and he has advices that the natives are ready to operate against invaders. Telegrams received here state that the people of Lower California are a unit against the filibusters, and there is very little complaint against the federal officials, who in most instances were sent from here but are men of intelligence and ability. Besides, Governor Torres is very popular there. The filibustering affair is the topic of general conversation here, causing considerable excitement. The better classes are satisfied with the conduct of the United States government.

President Diaz expresses himself in favor of the proposed inter-continental railway.

RAIDING CANADIAN ROADS.

UNITED STATES SENATOR CULLOM BENT ON WAR.

The Illinois Republican Leader Introduces a Resolution of Enquiry Aimed at the Canadian Pacific—A Minnesota Republican Objects.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—In the Senate today Mr. Cullom offered a resolution calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for information as to the authority under which merchandise in bond and goods of domestic origin are permitted to be forwarded between Atlantic and Pacific ports of the United States over the Canadian Pacific Railway, such merchandise on arrival at Vancouver, B.C., being transhipped to vessels or cars, and whether or not such transportation and transhipment on foreign territory is consistent with the safety of the revenue and the laws governing the United States coasting trade. Also to report by what authority merchandise other than the products of contiguous countries is permitted to enter the United States under consular seal and proceed to destination without entry or examination at the port of first arrival.

He explained there was much doubt as to what the law authorized the Secretary to do in the premises, and the Senate should have a report from the Secretary before any legislation was attempted. As it was now goods went up from all the Pacific coast and were transhipped at Vancouver over the Canadian Pacific Railway and foreign goods from China and elsewhere under consular seal to Vancouver entered ports of the United States. There was evidence before the Treasury Department of great irregularities and there was evidence that the country was probably losing some revenue by the manner in which this commerce from foreign countries came through Vancouver and into the United States.

Mr. Washburn intimated the resolution covered an intended raid on the Canadian lines of transportation in favor of the trunk lines of the United States. He objected to its consideration to-day and hoped it would be referred to a committee.

Mr. Cullom repelled Mr. Washburn's suggestion and declared there was no such raid proposed. But some legislation might be necessary to protect American interests against foreign interests on this hemisphere.

The resolution went over.

LOUISVILLE, May 27.—The American Association has changed the dates of several games which conflicted with League and Brotherhood games.

Russell Wins the Big 2-Year-Old Stakes.

BROOKLYN, May 27.—About 15,000 people gathered at Gravesend to-day to see the great American stakes race for 2-year-olds, worth $18,000 to the winner. All the cracks were entered. The track was sloppy and there were a number of scratches.

Of the 20 entries but 13 responded: Rotation, Blacklock, Eveline Carter colt, Conrad, Bolero, Sallie McClelland and Arrogance were scratched leaving Necromancy colt, Abundance colt, Willie L., Capt. Wagner, Russell, Ambulance, Correction, Amulet, Fairy, Vagabond and Sirrocco in the field. The second horse was to receive $1500 and the third $500. The last betting before the start showed Russell a heavy favorite for such a field. The bookmakers were doing a good business, laying 7 to 5 against him, 5 to 1 against Ambulance and Capt. Wagner, both being well backed for place.

There was a long delay at the post, every jockey doing his best to get the advantage. The flag fell to a poor start. Vagabond was left at the post, while Capt. Wagner might as well have been out of it. Correction was the first to show, followed by St. Charles and Ambulance. Correction held her lead to the head of the stretch, when she gave way to Russell, who held his lead and won easily by six lengths from Correction, who was three lengths before St. Charles. The rest were so bespattered with mud that it was almost impossible to recognize them. Time 1.03. The winner was probably the best horse in the race, but there were three or four whose chances were killed by the start.

But He Need Not Worry.

BEAVERTON, May 27.—At the athletic sports held here yesterday George R. Gray put the 15 lb. shot 47 ft. 9 in., and the 20½ lb. shot 40 ft. 9 in., both puts being in advance of the record, but on account of the ground being a little sloping they will not be credited as such.

"Ayer's Pills have been in use in my family upwards of twenty years, and have completely verified all that is claimed for them."—Thomas F. Adams, San Diego, Texas.

"I have used Ayer's Pills in my family for seven or eight years. Whenever I have an attack of headache, to which I am very subject, I take a dose of Ayer's Pills and am always promptly relieved. I find them equally beneficial in colds; and, in my family, they are used for bilious complaints and other disturbances with such good effect that we rarely, if ever, have to call a physician."—H. The Northwest Crops.

WINNIPEG, May 27th.—Reports just in from sections of country to Regina, Moosomin, Glenboro, Plum Creek, Deloraine and Brandon showing an increase of about twenty per cent. in acreage under crop. Farmers in good spirits over prospects for large yield. Grain well rooted and promises for good crops could not be better.

The St. Andrew's Church Case.

The Synod Commission which is considering the St. Andrew's church appeal case sat until after midnight last night. The afternoon session was taken up with the reading of the documents and papers in connection with the case. In the evening Rev. Messrs. McEwen and Bennett addressed the commission on behalf of the Synod, Dr. Bell and Mr. A. McFarlane as representatives of the managers and Rev. Mr. McWilliams and Alex. Bell for the session. Rev. Mr. Bell had not concluded his address when the Commission adjourned at midnight. To-day the Commission are questioning the Presbytery, managers and session and will probably reach a conclusion to-night. Of course nothing new in connection with the trouble has come out, the same old straw being threshed over again, as it has been already a couple of times.

LOSSES CAUSED BY FLAMES.

A $30,000 Blaze in Montreal—An Unfortunate Street Corner.

MONTREAL, May 27.—A fire occurred this morning at the corner of Craig and St. Peter-streets, by which $30,000 damage was done and a fireman seriously injured. This corner has been particularly unfortunate, having suffered three times within the last ten months. This time it was the premises of T. W. Ness, dealer in electrical supplies, which were gutted. Samuel May & Co., billiard ball manufacturers, were also burned out. William Thomas, for about six years a fireman of the Winnipeg brigade, was among the spectators and he ventured to lend a hand. He fell through a hoist and was so badly hurt that he had to be removed in the ambulance to the hospital.

HAMILTON, May 27.—The cigar store of Charles Israel got a severe scorching last night. There was an insurance of $2000 in the Victoria Mutual, which Israel says will not cover the loss. The origin of the blaze is mysterious and incendiarism is suspected.

SUICIDE AT GALT.

Thomas B. Fisher Stabs Himself to the Heart—No Reason Known.

GALT, May 27.—Thomas B. Fisher, aged about 40 years, a married man and a machinist by trade, was found in the dining-room of his own house about 8 o'clock last night, stabbed in the left breast over the heart. Dr. Wardlaw was summoned, but found it impossible to save the man's life. Death occurred at 10½ p.m. An open pocket-knife was discovered under the table, and the deceased's coat, vest and shirt plainly showed the holes made by the deadly weapon. It is considered a case of suicide, although no reasons for such an act are known. The dead man leaves a widow and four young children.

A Terrific Storm in Hamilton Township.

COLD SPRING, May 26.—The township of Hamilton (county of Northumberland) was swept yesterday afternoon by a severe thunderstorm accompanied by a regular downpour of rain, doing immense damage to land and growing crops and clearing out bridges and culverts in all directions. It is impossible to estimate the loss to the township, but it will reach the thousands, not speaking of the damage to land and crop. At the village of Camborne the water and mud swept clear through some of the houses, destroying carpets and other articles of household furniture. During the storm the lightning struck the driveshed on the farm owned by David Eagleson and occupied by Alfred E. Eagleson, doing considerable damage, but fortunately a heavy rain falling at the time it did not take fire.

The Mail's Plea.

MONTREAL, May 27.—The Toronto Mail to-day filed its plea in the Superior Court in the libel suit for $50,000 taken against that paper. The Mail pleads that the alleged oath ascribed to the Jesuits was copied from another paper, La Semaine Franco-Americaine, that the substance of the oath republished is included in the vow of obedience which every Jesuit takes upon entering the order and is in harmony with Jesuit doctrine and teaching. The case will shortly come up for hearing on its merits.

Murdered for Money.

JACKSON, Miss., May 27.—A. N. Kimball, an old and respected citizen and receiver of public monies, was murdered while on his way home from the midnight train where he had been to meet his son. He was found this morning, with his skull crushed, a short distance from his residence. There is no clue to the murderer. It is supposed the crime was committed for the purpose of robbery.

Introduction of Fresh Blood.

There are two ways in which the skill of the breeder can be exercised. First, in the formation of new breeds; and, second, in the improvement of existing varieties. Both these are very desirable objects; the first because some of the most useful varieties of domestic fowls we possess have been what we term manufactured breeds, that is, they have been composed of two or more distinct varieties, and without these our stock of poultry would have been manifestly inferior to what they are at the present day. Crossing, properly conducted, is always a means of adding to the stamina of fowls and animals, and these new or manufactured varieties are usually much hardier than the older ones, for there has not been time for fine breeding to weaken the strain. This work, however, of producing new varieties is not open to many breeders, as it takes a considerable amount of time and often the expenditure of much money. We were, not long ago, in the yard of a very noted and skillful breeder, who showed the result of some of his experiments in the production of one new variety. He had been engaged in it for nine years, and yet he had not fully succeeded. Therefore, the work of most breeders is limited to the improvement of existing strong varieties, and this second way permits of enough work to satisfy the majority of people. Some breeds, it is true, appear to be as near perfect as it is possible to get, but these are few and far between, and in the others there need be no lack of work.

Whatever may be the object of the poultry breeder, it is necessary if he is to succeed, to have some ideal towards which he can strive, for without this he is almost certain to be erratic in his efforts. Those who object to the present number of varieties forget that each of them has some quality to conserve, and even if there be mistaken ideas as to the connection of color and economic qualities, less harm is done than if we had not these clear lines of demarcation. If it were not for the strict adherence to types and standards we should soon see a very marked decadence in our poultry. The law of reversion would come into play, and it would be impossible to gauge the merits of almost any stock, for breeding would then be a lottery and nothing more. Now we can say that certain breeds are most noted as layers and others as table fowls, and there is no doubt on this matter, for years of experience and breeding have shown that this is so. It is true, as has already been acknowledged, that the attentions of fanciers in some breeds have been injurious, but in the majority of cases the reverse is the fact. In seeking profitable poultry we are quite sure that it is the better plan to run upon regular lines, and as far as possible utilise existing breeds, which, with due consideration for economic qualities, may be first class in these points. It does not make the Shorthorn any worse as a useful breed because conformity to the adopted standard is insisted upon; nor does it detract from the mutton produced because there is a defined standard for the Southdown sheep. The reverse is the case.—L.'s (Eng.) Journal.

The Campaign.

There was a good turn out at the meeting of Mr. Carnegie's committees last night. The committee rooms will be open every night until the election takes place. A rally is requested for this evening, when Mr. Carnegie will be present.

The nomination will take place at noon to-morrow at the Court House. The East Riding nomination will be held at the same time at Norwood.

Mr. Carnegie held a meeting at Bellisboro last night. Mr. J. A. Barron, M.P., appeared for Mr. Stratton and "went for" Mr. Meredith. The meeting was well attended.

Mr. Kidd and Mr. Stone addressed a large meeting at Fife's school house in Asphodel last night, when Mr. Roxburgh appeared for Mr. Blezard.

MR. M'CARTHY'S SPEECH.

AN EXPOSITION OF EQUAL RIGHTS ASSOCIATION PRINCIPLES.

He Deals with the Abolition of Separate Schools—The Changes in the School Law and the Ballot.

As stated last evening Mr. McCarthy was received with a grand ovation when he arose to address the vast assemblage which filled the Opera House on Monday night at Mr. Carnegie's meeting. After the applause had subsided Mr. McCarthy said he was much obliged indeed to Mr. Stratton for his request to the audience to give him (Mr. McCarthy) a fair hearing, but he did not think that the request was necessary, for he did not doubt, no matter what political feeling they might have, but that they would give him a fair hearing because he proposed to discuss the questions in a fair and cool spirit. He had not come there to whitewash Mr. Carnegie or to wipe the floor with Mr. Stratton. He had listened to the addresses of both these gentlemen. Both had addressed the audience ably and both had addressed them on questions regarding which he had no knowledge and did not, therefore, propose to consider. But, he said, he did know that the charge Mr. Stratton sought to make against Mr. Carnegie that he was making use of the Equal Rights Associa*tion and its platform for the purpose of cap*turing the constituency was a false one. He knew, for Mr. Carnegie had been work*ing on this movement since its commence*ment and before there was any thought of an election in this constituency. He did not propose to follow Mr. Stratton in any attacks upon the Mowat Government. Mr. Stratton was like the Irishman at the Donnybrook fair who wanted someone to tread on the tail of his coat. (Laughter.) What he would say would be in support of Mr. Kidd, who had been a Reformer before Mr. Stratton was born, as much as Mr. Carnegie. He was told that he was an enemy of Mr. Mowat. Mr. McCarthy said he thought if Mr. Mowat was present he would be the first to deny this. He was told by Mr. Stratton that Mr. Mowat and he had met in legal controversy and he had been downed. Well, Mr. McCarthy said, he had downed men in his day and yet been friends. He and Mr. Mowat were the best of friends. The statement was made to prejudice them against what he might say, but he told them not to believe the tirade of the Globe any more than the statements of Mr. Stratton made that evening. He had done more by his stand to injure his old leader at Ottawa than he ever could do to Mr. Mowat, and it was rather late to say that he was not sincere. His record in Parliament, when his friends all forsook him and he stood to his guns advocating those principles which had done more to disintegrate the Conservative party than they could Mr. Mowat, showed his sincerity. He asked Mr. Stratton, good man as he said he was, whether he would deny *that these principles were not appli*cable to the Mowat Government? If that Government was not depending upon the Roman hierarchy for election on the 5th of June, nothing he would say could injure it. But, he asked, if the facts as known, look*ing at it fairly and squarely, not politi*cally, did not warrant the righteous conclusion in that direction. He challenged Mr. Mowat as a foe to these principles, and it was because he was a foe to these principles which he (Mr. McCarthy) supported that he was there he had named, the one a life-long Reformer and the other a life-long Conservative. In Ottawa, only last month, under the very nose of the Government, he could have been found supporting Mr. Hay, a Liberal whose record was as good as Mr. Stratton's or any other Liberal, and Mr. Hay had been supported by men of both political parties and came out with three-fifths of the Protestant vote of that constituency. He took strong grounds on one question, about which there could be no hair-splitting or quibbling. Just here, he said, he might give Mr. Stratton a good character as a special pleader, for he did not believe, and he had heard many, that he had ever heard more special pleading than when he tried to show that Principal Caven and Mr. Douglas Armour were opposed to Mr. Carnegie, while the truth was these two gentlemen were speaking of their opponents. He did not know what stand Mr. Stratton took on the question of the abolition of Separate schools as he had not told them, but he supposed it would be safe to say he was perfectly in line with the views of his party in that and in Dominion matters. He was not there to quibble about school amendments, but he took the stand boldly on the abolition of the Separate school system of the Province of Ontario. (Loud cheers.) He claimed their right to have that clause taken from the constitution and also claimed that the interests of the Roman Catholic subjects as well as the community itself would be benefitted if the Separate school system was abolished. Upon that there could be no doubt of their position and upon that there could be no doubt of Mr. Stratton's position. They were told by that Minister who had spoken here recently in Mr. Stratton's interest that no dastard hand should be laid upon the institution and Mr. H.E. Blake, speaking on behalf of and in the presence of the Prime Minister, Hon. Oliver Mowat, had said that he would be false to his religion, false to his God if he was to attempt to remove the Separate School Act from the statute books. The Equal Rights Association claimed that they could never have peace in this land until that Separate school clause was wiped out and the people of Ontario left to deal with their schools as they thought proper. He did not know whether Mr. Stratton was opposed to the abolition in the abstract or not, as Mr. Gibson, Mr. Tait and others professed to be. It was quite possible, he said, that Mr. Stratton told them quietly that he did not like Separate schools. (Laughter). But if they did not like them, what were they to do? How were they to get rid of them? This was the only English speaking Province that could not deal with the school question in its entirety, free from any limitation or control. British Columbia, in the far west, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick down by the sea, and even Manitoba had shaken the shackles off, but in this great premier province they had not the right, they had not the privilege to deal with this school question, free and unfettered, but were bound down by the British North America Act. How was it to be done? Why, he asked, should it not be done? On what ground would they venture to deny their right to deal with the school question as the other provinces? They were told there was a treaty. A treaty, forsooth! Who were the parties to it? He knew of no person who had the right to speak for Ontario and he denied to the Province of Quebec the right to say they should not deal as they liked with the school question in the Province of Ontario. Where was the treaty? It was a compromise that was made that confederation might be brought about more smoothly. The Liberals were saying "You cannot change the law." He did not know these laws were like the laws of the Medes and Persians. This was new Liberal doctrine to him. Mr. Stratton called it a treaty, and asked them to believe that they would be dishonoring their country if they violated it and sought to justify himself by saying that they had kept the treaties with the Indians.

TO SUPPORT THE TWO GENTLEMEN

WHERE WAS THE TREATY?

asked Mr. McCarthy. When was it made and by whom? They knew what an Indian treaty was and how it was made, but where was this treaty? Who surrendered their rights and privileges? They talked about Provincial rights, and then wanted to give them up. They were told he had tried, with his gown on his back, to deprive them of their territory and to take their rights in the Streams Bill, but now he wanted to give back this right and privilege, so that the children of the Province should be brought up together, not in hostile camps and schools where they are taught doctrines which made them look upon one another as Protestant and Papist. He denied that there was a treaty and that any one had power to make it, but still treaties did not always stand but could be denounced. While they were not going to call upon Great Britain, they were going to settle the question here, after full and careful consideration, and then ask Great Britain to record their opinion. Another matter referred to was that this question should be mooted in Ottawa and not in Toronto. They were told that Ontario had not the right or power to deal with Separate schools, but Mr. Stratton and his friends would take Edward Blake as an authority and that gentleman had said during the last days of the session during the consideration of a constitutional document, that in matters of local concerns if the province desired an amendment to the constitution that desire must come from the province itself. Indeed Mr. McCarthy said it would be poor provincial rights if they would seek in Ottawa to change the laws of Ontario. No, said the speaker, be not deceived. They either wanted it changed or wanted it to remain. If they did want it changed it was not by sending a *man like his friend Mr. Stratton to repre*sent them that they would secure it, but by sending a man whose stand they knew on the question and in whom they could put their trust. It remained to be seen what change there could be in the House after the 5th of June. The question must be discussed and the province address the House at Ottawa the same as the Northwest had on the dual language question. If this was done he would be proud to take up the appeal. (Cheers). He said he need not argue this question further as there was nothing to say against it. Every man he had heard discuss it, every man whose speech he had read, every uttered sentiment he had seen agreed that the Separate schools were not desirable, but it was a question of the ways and means of getting rid of them. One question which deserved fair consideration was what would be done with the Protestant minority in Quebec if the Separate school clause of the B. N. A. Act was abolished. It behoved them to think carefully whether it would be right or not to push their just claims in the Province of Ontario. He had arrived, by the aid of Dr. Caven, at the conclusion that it was not going to run our Protestant fellow citizens into any danger because our school systems in the two Provinces were different. In this Province our Public schools were non-sectarian, free to all whether Catholics or Protestants. Theirs in the Province of Quebec were denominational, were Roman Catholic. Did they think a denominational school to the Protestant minority? They might threaten them, as Mr. Mercier had been threatening to make certain reprisals, but like Mr. Mercier they would be down on their knees because they knew their elections depended upon getting a share of this vote. There was no danger of the abolition of the Protestant schools and the allowing of only Roman Catholic schools, for there would be such a burst of indignation throughout the country that they need not fear that. Then here they were, the only English speaking people in the world who allowed this state of school system. In Australia, in the other Provinces, or in the United States to the south, they had no limitations of their rights and privileges of the local Government to deal with Separate schools. The question was raised and it would be well to settle it. In 1863 the Roman Catholics received great concessions with regard to Separate schools, and he had been perfectly correct in saying that these concessions had been forced upon the people of Upper Canada by the votes of the people of the Lower Province. It was perfectly true also that prior to that certain amendments were sought against which Alexander Mackenzie and the late George Brown fought with might and main, but which in the end were carried and these privileges were guaranteed to them in the British North America Act. What did George Brown say in defence of this Act? He said he did not believe the Separate school system was likely to increase and he despaired of making any amendment, much as he was opposed to Separate schools. He believed that this would be a finality, and therefore agreed to it. Mr. Brown made a mistake, Mr. McCarthy said. That was not the end. There was no end. He believed that the majority of Roman Catholics would say away with the Separate schools.

THE MAJORITY DARE TO DENY

A Voice—No.

Mr. McCarthy—Some one says no, but I am basing my statement on conversations which I have had with prominent Roman Catholics on the subject and I say that I believe the majority of the Roman Catholics are opposed to Separate schools.

A Voice—No, No! (Cries of put him out).

Voice—I'll go out, but I don't want Mr. McCarthy to say that again.

Mr. McCarthy—Don't go out on that account, for I'll not say it again. (Laughter). Proceeding Mr. McCarthy said in 1867 the privileges of 1863 were made perpetual as far as the British North America Act could make them. How quiet they laid at this time. It was understood by the Protestants that these concessions were to be taken as a finality and settlement. But the Roman Catholics increased their power by the use of ballot, as they had a right to do, and when the old system was done away with and the new one had been inaugurated, it was not very long before they had the consolidation of the school laws and several amendments crept in. In 1863 the Roman Catholics had the right to send their children to the public schools and none could be coerced. A man could be a Roman Catholic and give notice in writing that he wished to support the Separate schools. That privilege they had in 1867 and it stood under the British North America Act. He was not going to travel over the money question or grants to the Separate schools or attack Mr. Mowat's record. He supposed Mr. Mowat had given the people back some money, and he had not been charged with pocketing it all. He was not going to refer to the fact that he (Mr. Mowat) had appointed his son as Sheriff of Toronto or say a word about his having divided the registrarship in Toronto to make a berth for his friend Mr. Ryan. Mr. McCarthy then took up some of the school amendments. The first change, he said, that had been made effected the clause which said that no man was to be classed as a Separate school supporter unless he gave notice in writing. This was a plain, simple law. But the assessor had been directed by the change to fill two more columns in the roll, one for the religion and the other where it was shown whether a man was a Separate school or Public school supporter, and if a man was a Roman Catholic the assessor was to assume, primia facie as it was called in the amendment, that he was a Separate school supporter. So that whether a man gave notice or not, the town clerk refers to the assessors' roll as his guide and handed over as Separate school supporters all on the list. This was an amendment to the law of 1867. While he denied the treaty, yet at all events he held that they were not required to go beyond that treaty. Did their "faithful representative," Mr. Stratton, look into and see that these rights were not encroached upon or the liberties of the Roman Catholics taken from them? Under the new law the man was assessed as a primia facie Separate school supporter, and no matter whether the man was or was not a Separate school supporter he was put down as such. He belonged to a good church, but he did not know whether he would like to place himself in antagonism to his minister. He did not know whether a Catholic priest was a man who exercised more influence over his people than a Protestant minister or not; he would leave that for them to judge. Mr. Mowat, they should remember, was a great constitutional lawyer, before whom they all quaked, and Mr. Mowat said that was not law and pointed to his record before the Privy Council. Mr. McCarthy said he wished they could have seen him before the Privy Council. He never pleaded a case without being led by an abler man. In the boundary dispute the great speech was made by a man who had Canadian connections, and in the St. Catharines milling case, which Mr. Stratton had referred to, the great speech was made by Mr. Blake. (Laughter.) They would see then that Mr. Mowat did not cut such a figure before the Privy Council as he did in Mr. Stratton's imagination. Returning to the effect of the primia facie clause, he said it was a nice question, and Mr. Mowat's position

WAS VERY HUMILIATING.

There was the institution on Church-st., the palace, on the one hand saying it understood that the law was that every Roman Catholic was considered a Separate school supporter. The Presbyterian supporters of Mr. Mowat said "surely Mr. Mowat you are not going to listen to that. Do you not remember a few years ago in South Ontario when it was 'Morrison and the Pope, or Mowat and Protestantism.' Where are you." Mr. Mowat therefore said the law did not say that. Remember, this was the Premier of the Province, the leader of the Legislative Assembly with gentlemen such as Mr. Stratton at his back, who never gave an independent vote, but who had even voted against conscience when the House went into Committee of supply. (Laughter). Well, if Mr. Mowat said that was not the law what was to be done to clear it up. Some might say, go to law. But he asked if they did not think it a easy way would be to bring in an amendment so that the law would be as it ought to be and then his friend Mr. Stratton might come back to them and say "There, look at what I have done. The Roman Catholics were stealing on you, but I was there and prevented it." (Laughter). Did they do this? Nothing of the kind. But Mr. Mowat with a majority of twenty-four followers at his back, asks the Court of Chancery what his own law meant. (Laughter). Of course this was peculiar and had no precedent. (Renewed laughter). He never heard of such a thing as a court sitting on a fictitious case and he thought the judges should have said they would not judge a fictitious case, but were there to give judgment between man and man. But the Court did not like to fly in the face of the Government, so they sat down and one distinguished lawyer was employed by the Government to prove that black was not white and another distinguished lawyer was employed to prove that black was white. (Laughter). Referring to the "Facts for Irish Electors" Mr. McCarthy said the fate of the whole Mowat Government seemed to hang upon this pamphlet which Mr. Meredith did not write or send out, but which was written by some follower. They were told not to vote for a man who used "Facts for Irish Electors." What was more reasonable, he asked, than that pamphlet should have been issued? Both sides at the time were trying to paint things for the Irish electors. Away with such an argument. When men were speaking on important questions the Government candidates were trying to introduce these things to influence the votes of thoughtful men. (Cheers). Now, why did the Government not deal with the Separate School Act as they did with the Joint Stock or any other Act? Was there a man, he said, who had a shade of a doubt why they did not do it? Did any man doubt? No, and the reason should be given by the ballots on the 5th of June. (Loud cheers). Did Mr. Mowat, he asked, honestly endeavor to defend the rights of the people. Mr. Meredith—"perhaps," said Mr. McCarthy, "it is sacrilegious to mention his name, perhaps you may think I am supporting him, and that would be awful."—had introduced a bill which said the law should be the same as in 1863. He asked Mr. Stratton how he had voted on that bill.

Mr. Stratton—I voted for a better one.

Mr. McCarthy—Mr. Stratton says he voted for a better one. Well, I have got both here and you shall judge. (Cheers). Mr. Meredith said that no man should be classed as a Separate school supporter who did not give the notice as required by the Act of 1863. Mr. Mowat said that what the judges said was law was not law and that no man could be put down as a Separate school supporter unless he authorized the assessor to do so. Mr. McCarthy said he failed to see the distinction. If the priest put a name down as a Separate school supporter the man was not likely to tell the priest he had no authority to do so. If the Separate school roll was made up he did not know how they would get it changed unless they went before the Court of Revision. Could Mr. Stratton or the Government tell why the question was left in doubt. Why this doubtful, dubious, hesitating way? The statute books were full of amendments, but when they touched the hem of the garment of a certain individual Mr. Mowat was careful and cautious, and, he asked, if any one doubted the reason why. This question had been raised and they would pass judgment at the polls on the 5th of June next. He did not blame the Roman Catholic bishops, as they were only true to their religious doctrine and teachings. It was part of their dogma that the state was subject to the church and they believed they were right in carrying out this belief. If the Protestants were not strong enough to determine at the polls that they should not have these privileges then they could rest assured that the Roman Catholics would go further and ask further privileges. Mr. McCarthy then read a document showing what demands the Roman hierarchy were making in Germany and said they, in Ontario, would come to the same state of affairs if they were not checked. In reference to an old friend of his, the Bishop of this place, a gentleman whom he had known personally for years, he would not say a word against him, but they all remembered that he had said that he had the right to exclude trustees from his own school house.

Mr. C.J. Leonard (rising)—That is not true.

Mr. McCarthy—Well, I saw the statement in print and it was never contradicted. At any rate they knew that was the position the Bishops took of controlling the schools. He said, let the children be educated together. Away with Separate schools, for there would be no peace as long as they existed. Let this province be as the others and then if the Roman Catholics wanted anything they should have they could give it to them. Look at New Brunswick. It had done away with Separate schools and established Public schools and from that day to this they had been a success. Protestant and Catholic went to the same school and the system served all purposes wonderfully, and there had been no bad feeling in consequence. He regretted that there was so much feeling among their Roman Catholic fellow-citizens. They should realize that upon this question depended the

FUTURE OF THIS YOUNG COUNTRY

and on this ground they should not look at it from their standpoint, but as a public matter. In regard to both the candidates in the East and West Ridings of this county the candidates had uttered no uncertain sound and they should send independent men who had taken their stand on this question. Mr. McCarthy then referred to the giving of the ballot to the Separate school electors. He said the ballot should be given to the supporters of Separate schools for the protection of those who might be laboring under any undue influence. In Toronto, Separate school trustees had demanded the ballot, because they felt that they were competent to manage the affairs of the schools without the aid of the parish priests. Considerable excitement had arisen and the priests turned out and canvassed. The result was that those who had been opposed to them had disappeared and a great many of the priests' candidates were elected. Why did Mr. Mowat refuse the ballot? They said they would give Separate school supporters the ballot when they asked for it, but Mr. McCarthy pointed to the case in England where it had not been the poor workingmen or the factory employees, but the great reformers who had made the petition and secured the ballot. The ballot was denied and the elector must go and vote in the presence of his priest, an influence he was not able to control. In conclusion Mr. McCarthy indulged in an eloquent appeal to the electors to support the principle which he was enunciating or how could they expect him to have weight when he went as representative to the Dominion House to fight the battle in the dual language and other important questions. He asked them if they were so hide-bound to party, so wedded to their party idols that they could not come out, and he referred to his own stand on account of which he had been ostracised by his party. In closing he said Mr. Mowat had been bartering for the corporate vote, but he be lieved there were enough free men to show him that the corporate vote was not going to rule. As Mr. McCarthy resumed his seat the applause and cheering was prolonged for several minutes.

Going to Toronto.

At the parade of the 57th Battalion last evening a vote of the men was taken as to whether they favored a trip to Toronto on July 1st. Col. Rogers explained to the men that if the trip was taken they would each be docked four days pay ($3) to meet expenses. When the men who favored the trip were told to shoulder arms, every rifle went up to the shoulder like one man, which was repeated when a vote was asked whether they remain two days or not. It is therefore decided that the battalion will go to the Toronto summer carnival on Dominion Day and will remain for two days if arrangements can be made.

—Mr. Betts, the caterer for the Queen's Own, says that the information given the Review regarding the catering was incorrect. He says the only dissatisfaction arose out of the fact that members of the regiment acted as waiters and he had no control over them, but that he carried out his contract fully.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

The Daily Review.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 28, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

Close upon this discovery came Will Windom, the urbane and plethoric "real estate dealer" of the place, who gave it forth at every door that the day before a strange old man had visited his place and purchased the old smithy "for clean spot cash." This last announcement alone was calculated to arouse public astonishment. To what a degree, then, was it agitated when the daughter of the old blacksmith was seen going from place to place purchasing the necessities for housekeeping. So many things had not been sold in the town in one day for many a long month. There were apartments above the smithy and these were [illegible] by the [illegible] as the best living [illegible] the price in town. Low, large and [illegible], they had a peculiar, not easily defined charm, especially on a day when the tender spring rain came falling with musical resonance upon the roof, as it did on this day.

"Father has not done any blacksmithing for a long time," the girl confided over the counter to the furniture dealer. "But his health has failed him at bookkeeping, and hard work of a physical sort is the best thing for him, the doctor says." This tale was rapidly circulated, and before night the old man possessed an able assistant in the person of a young man who concluded that he could better himself by leaving the smithy down the west road.

Some great willows flung their limbs against the upper windows of the smithy, and the smith's daughter appeared to set much store by them. Already a tender flush was to be seen in their supple branches and it was evident that the younglings of spring would soon appear. Leaning out of the bare window, the smith's daughter felt these branches with loving and curious hands. The new assistant, hidden in the shelter of the smithy across the street, found chance to scrutinize her as she did so. She was very pale and wonderfully sad, but she looked as if she knew how to be happy, and he could not help seeing that she was very pretty in spite of the ugly manner in which her hair was shaved. She wore a dress of purple calico, with a large handkerchief of cream silk knotted about her throat. The young maidens of Hatherne would not have appeared in a dress so devoid of "style" under any circumstances. But then, to be sure, one had no right to expect much of a blacksmith's daughter.

The watching matrons were in some doubt about this young girl. It stood to reason that she had been used to work all her life, and yet she had a very remarkable way of doing things. There was a shaking of the feminine heads at the way she went at her work. For instance, she innocently went about settling the sitting-room first, with no thought for the kitchen, and when the dinner hour arrived she actually went over to the town hotel with her father, instead of heating tea on a neighboring stove, as it had been hoped that she would do. Here was an [illegible] waste on the part of the [illegible] which the frugal matrons were sorry to see. It was impossible to get more than a word with her—which was another thing against her—for she stayed with her father constantly, and it was noticed that though she was very quiet and sad when she was out of his sight, that she affected great merriment when with him, and was even heard to sing little songs in a very sweet and joyous voice.

When she had put matting down on the floors of the room, and had the walls—which were ceiled—gone over with a new coat of paint, and put flowers at the windows, with some light muslin hangings, the old place became quite transformed. She found part of a set of quaint blue dishes and had them put in a cabinet that the furniture dealer had despaired of ever selling, and she laid in a good store of linen, which was the one thing the housewives admired her for. But once settled, she seemed to care little for keeping the house up, and general disapproval spread about the neighborhood when she hired a woman to do the work for her, while she sat for the most part in the blacksmith shop with her father.

Now a blacksmith shop is the place of all places for men to congregate, and is certainly no place for a young girl, even though she bear herself with the greatest discretion. But not at all did the smith's daughter mind the criticisms passed upon her, although they were brought to her immediately by the stalwart assistant, Peter Ford. He had no sympathy with these harsh reflections, and was ready to stand up to his employer's daughter to any length.

The gentle way in which she thanked him for every favor, and a certain regardful interest she seemed to take in him, touched him deeply. She was not loud of voice like the other girls in the village, and though she did not look so pretty as they did, with their elaborate over skirts and beribboned hats, she had an eye which pierced him through and through with a sort of pain as he had never felt before. He defended her from the intrusions of the other girls who were anxious to visit her, and to talk her over, and he tried with his stalwart stories to help her pass the evenings, which he spent before the forge, with her father and herself. Sitting here, with the glow of the fire reflecting in her mournful eyes, poor Jack decided that she was different from all the other women in the world.

"What is your first name?" he asked one evening. "I only hear your father call you daughter."

No answer came at first. Instead of replying the smith's daughter colored a painful red, and avoided his glance. Poor Jack was overjoyed at this confusion, and set it down to embarrassment at the familiarity of his question. [illegible] apologies were not in his [illegible] waited.

"[illegible] is Margaret," she said at length, "but I do not like to be called by it."

"Ye don't!" cried the young fellow heartily, slapping his thigh with a loud laugh. "Well, I think that is as fine a name as ye could find if ye picked it t'out yer self."

"Father does not call me that any more."

"He makes a mistake. Why not let me call ye Mag—or Meg. I ain't no hand at putting on airs."

"Call me Meg if you like. But do not be surprised if I do not always answer at once. I am not used to the name."

After that the girl at the shop was known as Meg Farrier, but her father was seldom referred to in any other manner than "old man Farrier," an expression which he never resented, but seemed to actually derive some amusement from.

Sunday the smith and his daughter appeared at church, clad in some new garments they had purchased the day before at the Hatherne dry goods store. These garments did not show the aspirations that distinguished the rest of the inhabitants. The people of Hatherne felt that they were as good as any one, and they acted as if they did. But Meg Farrier was dressed in such a severe gown of black, and a wide black hat with nothing but a band of ribbon around it, as though she were anxious to announce herself a daughter of the people. Silently the two—father and daughter—entered, and contrary to the custom of the church, they knelt side by side for a few moments upon entering, and prayed together, with her hand in his. At the close of the service, to which they listened attentively, they went out without stopping to salute their neighbors, as was the habit of the rest, and those who looked closely saw that the old man was trembling and weeping.

Immediately great hopes were entertained of a conversation, that should afford legitimate theme for church talk for a time to come, but the hopes entertained were crushed when the quiet of the Sabbath was broken by the blows of the old man's hammer in the smithy. Labor was not thought too much of at any time in Hawthorne, and on Sunday it was deemed a crowning sin. Never before in the history of the place had any one so deliberately offended in this particular, and after the work had gone vigorously on for some time, a deacon of the church was delegated to go to the smithy and remonstrate with its new tenant.

Deacon Melton had grown old in the service of the church and its observances. He could not have told you, had he tried, what part of his life was directed by the Lord and what part by the traditions of the church. But there was certainly every authority for the sinfulness of work on Sunday, and he accepted his errand with eagerness.

The front door of the smity was closed and locked, and though he knocked repeatedly, he could not make himself heard above the terrific clangor inside. So the deacon picked his way carefully through the spring mud to the rear of the shop. The back door was also closed, but it yielded to Deacon Melton's efforts and opened.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Martha McLean Acquitted of Attempting to Murder Her Seducer.

TORONTO, May 28.—It was anticipated that some interesting evidence would have come out in the Martha McLean case at the general sessions yesterday, and when her name was called the court room was well filled. The shooting affray in Richmond-street west is well remembered. On April 28 last Miss McLean, who had been on terms of intimacy with Nathaniel J. Hutchinson, entered his machine establishment, asked him to marry her, and upon his refusal shot him, the bullet passing through a portion of the scalp. In the court yesterday Hutchinson intimated that he wished the case dropped, and stated that he did not now believe the girl wished to kill him. The jury, after a few minutes' absence, returned a verdict of not guilty. The charge of attempted suicide against the girl was not pressed.

"Jim" Frawley, proprietor of the Cibola Hotel and a well-known Liberal politician, was called to answer the charge of inflicting bodily harm on William Brophy. Brophy, it is said, went behind the bar to collect some money which he claimed was due him. Frawley disapproved of this and, it was alleged, kicked the complainant. The judge in his charge was very severe on such a method of assault as that of kicking. The jury remained out for about half an hour and then returned a verdict of guilty of common assault. Bail was not accepted pending sentence.

CHICAGO CARPENTERS.

The Alien Contract Labor Law Violated by Canadians.

CHICAGO, May 27.—A newspaper here says Treasury Agents Schilt and Lester, who have been here looking into the matter of the alleged importation of foreigners under contract by the old boss carpenters' association to take the places of the strikers, have some sensational testimony to submit to the joint conference of immigration and naturalization, which began its session here yesterday. To learn the movements of the old bosses they in conjunction with the union carpenters put 500 union men at work for the old bosses. They are mostly French-Canadians. These 500 spies have for more than a week been mingling with the 500 imported men employed by the old bosses and sounding the relations they sustain to their employers. It is said the spies have gathered evidence, documentary and otherwise, showing that the alien contract labor law has been violated in spirit and letter. It is intimated one spy was despatched to Canada by a would-be employer of carpenters with instructions to bring to Chicago 700 carpenters and guarantee them work at 30 cents per hour for six months. Criminal prosecutions, the authorities say, will be begun as soon as the evidence can be got into proper shape.

A Failure at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, May 27.—The drygoods establishment of William T. Matthews closed here to-day under foreclosure on a mortgage on the stock, fixtures and personal property of Matthews. Assets, $115,000; liabilities, $98,000.

Not a Pimple on Baby

Baby one year old. Bad with Eczema. Hair all gone. Scalp covered with eruptions. Cured by Cuticura. Hair splendid and not a pimple on him.

Cured by Cuticura

I cannot say enough in praise of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. My boy, when one year of age, was so bad with eczema that he lost all of his hair. His scalp was covered with eruptions, which the doctors said was scall-head, and that his hair would never grow again. Despairing of a cure from physicians I began the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and, I am happy to say, with the most perfect success. His hair is now splendid and there is not a pimple on him. I recommend the CUTICURA REMEDIES to mothers as the most speedy, economical, and sure cure for all skin diseases of infants and children, and feel that every mother who has an afflicted child will thank me for so doing.

WOMEN AND MICE.

The reason why a woman is afraid of a mouse is a profound mystery—indeed, it has never been very clearly proven that she is. But some women are constantly in such a nervous, irritable condition that the slightest thing annoys and startles them. The cause of this unfortunate state of affairs is usually some functional derangement; some distressing or painful irregularity, some derangement or peculiar weakness incident to her sex; or, it may be due to inflammation, ulceration or displacement, of some of the pelvic viscera, or to other organic lesions peculiar to her sex. From whichever cause it may arise, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive remedy, so certain in its curative results that its manufacturers sell it, through druggists, under a guarantee of its giving satisfaction in every case, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded. As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Coughs, Colds, Croup.

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced COUGH CURE. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.

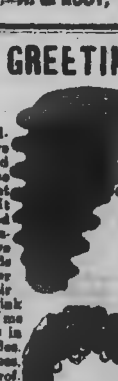
To all Whom it may Concern.



Beautiful women and handsome men are admired and command attention. How many are there who would be beautiful or handsome had they a sufficiency of hair. LADIES, all the dress jewellery and other ornaments are naught if the hair is shaggy or worn-out looking. It requires a Fine Hair Goods Style to beautify and tone down the face. This with the plainest possible dress will create a charming and attractive presence. GENTLEMEN, there are thousands of you with bald tops who have probably never thought of artificial coverings, but when the hair refuses to return—why not get a Toupee? Think of this. I want you all to call at my show room in the Hotel and see my Goods. Ladies' Bangs in an immense variety of styles, sizes and shades. Crownpieces in long and short hair, Frontpieces, Wigs, Switches, etc., Gents. Wigs, Toupees, etc. Remember that the Prof. will be in Peterborough at PHELAN'S HOTEL on MONDAY, JUNE 2nd. TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

A WHOLESALE ROBBERY AND MURDER ORGANIZATION.

Maniacs at Bicetre Break Out in Rebellion—A Clever Dog—Secretan and His Copper Syndicate Associates Convicted and Sentenced.

CALCUTTA, May 28.—At every station on the Eastern Bengal Railway passengers are warned not to accept food or drink offered to them by strangers, as an organized band has been discovered whose plan it is to treat passengers to food, drink and sweetmeats, which have been poisoned, and decamp with their booty, while the victim is insensible or dead. Many deaths have resulted from these crimes.

Fighting Maniacs.

PARIS, May 28.—Yesterday night the lunatics in the great asylum for the insane at Bicetre broke into rebellion. A maniac named Jolly burst the bars of his cell and then released 40 others, who attacked and drove away the guards and sacked the keepers' dwelling. The maniacs fought madly till the fire hose was turned on them, upon which they got frightened and cowered together in a corner, drenched and trembling, and thus were captured.

A Clever Dog.

PARIS, May 27.—Among the awards at the meeting of the Animals' Protection Society to-day was a handsome collar to a dog named Bacchus, who has stopped many runaway horses by seizing their bridles, and thus prevented a great number of accidents.

Strikers Resort to Violence.

VIENNA, May 28.—The strikers at Prossnitz are becoming desperate and resorting to violent measures. To-day they forced their way into several factories and cut the loom warps.

Murdered Five Persons.

MADRID, May 28.—A farm servant at Cordoba murdered his master and four other persons to-day. The murderer had been refused permission to visit a bull fight and this led to the commission of the crime.

The Copper Syndicate Convicted.

PARIS, May 28.—M. Secretan and others connected with the recent copper syndicate, were found guilty of fraudulent practices today. Secretan was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and was fined 10,000 francs. Laveissiere was sentenced to three months' imprisonment, fined 600 francs, and Hentsch was fined 600 francs.

A Job for Canadian Bishops.

ROME, May 28.—The Vatican has instructed the Catholic bishops in Canada to endeavor to lessen the existing antagonism between the English and the French.

A White Star Liner Scorched.

LIVERPOOL, May 28.—A fire broke out today on the White Star line steamer Runic, announced to sail to-morrow for New York. The hold had to be flooded. The damage to the cargo is said to be extensive.

Boulanger Going to Africa.

PARIS, May 28.—The latest report from Jersey is that Gen. Boulanger contemplates making an expedition to Africa. He says the French people are ungrateful to their exiles and martyrs, but he is anxious to serve his country and would rather die the death of a soldier than rot in political exile.

YIELDED TO SUPERIOR FORCE.

British Fishermen at Bay St. George Driven Away by the French.

HALIFAX, May 28.—Advices from the west coast of Newfoundland to-night say that at Bay St. George, on May 23, the commanders of the French warships compelled the British residents to take up and remove all their fishing gear and nets from the water under threat of immediate destruction by the French forces. The French claimed that they wanted to fish at that place themselves. Unable to resist the armed forces of France the helpless British inhabitants sullenly and reluctantly obeyed the orders of the foreigners.

The Abducted Constable.

HALIFAX, May 28.—The Newfoundland constable who was abducted by the French fishing vessel Marie was placed on Red Island, from which place he was rescued by the French warship Isnere and returned to his home at Port au Basque.

TOO MANY WIVES.

A Nova Scotia Minister Convicted of Bigamy at Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 28.—Rev. Frederick T. McLeod, formerly of Economy, N.S., was sent to jail to-day, the jury having found him guilty of bigamy. His second wife, being at home with a sick baby, was not disturbed, though she too was found guilty. McLeod's lawyer asked to have his client admitted to bail pending a motion for a new trial, but the judge said: "It won't hurt him. A minister of the Gospel living with two women! A term in jail will do him no harm."

McLeod married Mary Ann Moore in Economy two years ago. He was obliged to leave there because of trouble about a woman. He came to Chicago, and when his wife came to see him six months ago she found he had another wife and child.

Rhody's New Auditor.

NEWPORT, R.I., May 28.—The Legislature to-day elected E. W. Burklin, Democrat, state auditor.

HER SLAVERY ENDED NOW

A CHINESE GIRL RESCUED FROM A BRUTAL COUNTRYMAN.

He Purchased Her in New York for $600, and Beat Her When She Refused to Do His Bidding—His Revenue Came from Her Shame.

NEW YORK, May 28.—A pretty Chinese girl was found cowering in a room on the top floor of No. 11 Mott-street yesterday afternoon and was rescued by the police. If the girl's story, as interpreted, is true she had been bought from a gambler for $600 and forced to engage in an immoral life for the financial benefit of her purchaser.

The rescue and arrest of the man who claims to own the girl agitated Chinatown to such an extent that business generally was suspended, and even the opium joints were neglected for the time being. All the inhabitants of Mott-street gathered in the vicinity of No. 11, a double five-story tenement, with a pressed-brick front and more pretentious appearance than its neighbors. It was erected with Chinese capital, and each floor is subdivided many times and occupied by several tenants. Almost every article of trade known to Chinatown, from Joss to fan-tan, can be found in the building, and, it is claimed, the upper floors are given up to white women of the worst class.

The Chinese girl, who gave her name as Suen Yee, was found in room 18, on the top floor of the building, by Policemen O'Connor and Dwyer, of the Tombs Police Court. When the officers entered the room the girl tried to escape, but was captured. She afterwards said her owner, Lee Khi, had told her that policemen were all murderers and that white men generally were possessed of similar proclivities, and she thought that the officers had come to kill her because she had offended Lee Khi. Lee was also found in the room and he was arrested on a charge of abduction.

They were taken to the Tombs and arraigned before Justice Gorman. Difficulty was experienced in obtaining an interpreter, as the Chinamen who could speak English claimed their countrymen would kill them if they interfered. Finally one was found who agreed to act privately, and the girl was taken to the justice's examination room. She is quite young looking, and when she smiles and shows her pearly teeth is remarkably pretty. At other times she has a wearied and somewhat hardened expression.

She said she was born in Amoy, China, nineteen years ago and came to this country four years ago. After residing in San Francisco three years she was brought to New York by a Chinese gambler named Ah Moon, who sold her to Lee Khi for $600 and then went back to China. Since coming to this city she said she had lived with Lee Khi at No. 11 Mott-street, and he had forced her to lead an immoral life. When she objected he would beat her with a "black jack" (slung shot). The girl said she did not want to lead an immoral life and wished to be protected from the man, as she was afraid of him. She said she wanted to be good, "just like a Melican lady." She said she was "swindled" when she was brought here from San Francisco by Ah Moon. He told her they were coming here to live, and after he lost all his money playing fan-tan he sold her to Lee Khi for $600 and went back to China. She said she was "excited" when she was sold to Lee Khi and did not know much about the transaction, but he told her he "bought her for business purposes."

Lee Khi was committed to the Tombs Prison in default of $2500 bail for his appearance and the girl was committed to the House of Detention as a witness. Col. William C. Beecher and the Chinese consul have been invited to be present at the hearing. Col. Beecher is a member of the Christian Chinese Association and has in his employ a trustworthy and competent interpreter who is not afraid of the other Chinamen. Lee Khi's friends say he claims the girl as his wife and they deny the stories of ill-treatment, but Khi himself grins and says nothing.

The Chinamen who were instrumental in bringing about the arrest say there is abundant proof that the girl was held for immoral purposes and was frequently and brutally beaten by Lee Khi, who never allowed her to leave the room and rarely gave outsiders a chance to get even a glimpse at her. It is asserted that Lee Khi kept a burly Chinaman on the landing below as a guard and only men who were vouched for by Lee Khi could pass. According to the stories in Mott-street the girl's presence and imprisonment have been generally known and her beauty extolled for months.

It is said that when she first came from China she was a marvel of Oriental beauty and was employed by an aged and wealthy Chinese merchant in San Francisco as a companion to his young and pretty wife. On the street one day she met Ah Moon, with whom she fell in love. When she learned he was a gambler her devotion did not falter. Finally he persuaded her that he would marry her and inveigled her away from her friends. He dressed her in boy's clothing, and after making brief stops in Denver, Chicago and other cities brought her here and took her to No. 11 Mott-street, where they lived as husband and wife until he, in trying to bankrupt the Mott-street fan-tan shops, lost the remnant of a once ample fortune from a Chinese standpoint.

At this juncture Lee Khi offered $600 for the girl and persuaded Ah Moon that she had been his evil genius and caused his bankruptcy. Ah Moon was also advised that with $600 and the new gambling tricks he had learned in America he could return to China and win a very large fortune. The arguments prevailed and Ah Moon sold the girl and disappeared.

Suen Yee is said to have wept for days after the gambler left, as she was deeply in love with him. Her new owner stood this for a few days, and then finding remonstrance and advice unavailing he resorted to abuse and beat her. He also impressed upon her mind horrible disasters as sure to follow any attempt on her part to escape. It is said he would take her to the window and point out the policemen when they appeared in Mott-street and tell her they were the regular murderers of this city, and that the reason she saw no Chinese women in Mott-street was because the murderers had killed all of them as fast as they were caught. He would also, it is alleged, tell her the white men whom she saw upon the street were employed to drag women out of the house so the murderers could kill them. White women who lived in the building at various times interfered and threatened Lee Khi with the vengeance of the law if he did not mend his ways. Then he would treat the girl more humanely for a time, but soon the beatings would be resumed.

Suen Yee was kept in a dingy room, into which the sun never penetrated, containing a small bed, a washstand, a table and one chair. Her food was chiefly rice, and sometimes water as an accompaniment. The white women made several efforts to release the girl from her imprisonment, but Suen Yee could not understand a word of English and had been educated to fear white women as well as men. She had been made to believe that her purchaser owned her absolutely under the laws of this country and had a perfect legal right to kill her if he chose.

BUNS AND BEER.

No Standing Treats in Boston—Thirsty Citizens Must Sit Down and Drink.

BOSTON, May 28.—The police commissioners notified the liquor dealers of this city three weeks ago that after 20 days the 20th condition of their licenses, which prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquors over public bars, would be enforced, and recommended that the bars be removed within that time. Governor Brackett called attention in his annual message to this provision of the law, which had been unenforced for fifteen years. The twenty days' notice has expired, and for the first time in the history of Boston it was impossible for a man to get a drink unless he sat down. It made no difference where he sat, but sit he must or do without his "eye-opener." There has been a lot of fun and a lot of swearing over the new order of things. Very few take kindly to the change. The only really happy ones are the carpenters and dealers in tables and chairs and wire screens. Within the last few days 15,000 tables and 50,000 chairs have been distributed among the various saloons until they look not unlike regular eating houses, but of course they take up room, and in more than one bar room to-day the familiar call "Next" made the thirsty men who were waiting think they were in a barber shop. Some of the changes made are ludicrous. One store, the exterior of which was adorned with the sign in large letters, "Family wine store," appears now with still larger letters above the original sign, "Lunch-room." "Blank's liquor store" becomes "Blank's cafe," and so on.

The general acceptance of the term "food" seems to be the dictionary definition, "substances eaten for nourishment," and these substances consist in the main of crackers and cheese, with occasionally a dish of beans or a plate of sardines. A big place, formerly called "Doherty's barroom," now comes out with an elaborate four-page bill of fare. Here are extracts from it:

Hard sandwiches, with lager, 10 cents.
Hard crackers and cheese, with ale, 5 cents.
Hard crackers and cheese, with old bourbon, 10 cents.
Hard crackers and cheese, with Holland gin, 15 cents.
Hard crackers and cheese, with pint of claret, 75 cents.

And so on over two pages, crackers and cheese, with something else. Several liquor dealers in the west end have also caused a bill of fare to be printed, which reads something like this:

Lager beer and crackers, 5 cents.
Ale and crackers, 5 cents.
Whisky and crackers, 10 cents.
Rum and crackers, 10 cents.

In some of the cheaper barrooms the greatest sport was at the noon hour when the laborers wanted their glass of beer before eating. Many did not wait for chairs but sat down on anything convenient and were served as comfortable as possible. Now and then a big man in overalls would sit down on the floor cross-legged like a tailor and take his bock as the Sultan takes his coffee. Meanwhile the great unquenched and unquenchable crowd that could find no seats at all swayed against the barred bars and vented their good and ill-humor in comments upon the enforcement of what had been considered an obsolete law.

Montreal Loses Boodler Keenan.

NEW YORK, May 28.—John Keenan, the Bismarck of the County Democracy, who ran off to Canada four years ago in anticipation of an indictment for bribing the members of the "boodle" Board of Aldermen of 1884, has returned to this city and yesterday went through the farce of surrendering himself to the district attorney.

Although Keenan was popularly supposed to have handled the Broadway railroad "boodle," which was distributed among the aldermen who voted away the valuable franchise, he was not indicted until Oct. 19, 1886. He was in Montreal then and has since been a fugitive from justice. He is now on $40,000 bonds to answer to the indictment against him when it is called. But Col. Fellows has practically admitted that there is no prospect of trying Keenan, and it is probably only a question of a few days when all proceedings against him will be dropped.

It was rumored to-day that ex-Ald. Dempsey had returned to the city from Canada and would give bail under the indictment charging him with bribery in connection with the Broadway railroad grant in 1884.

The Royal Society.

OTTAWA, May 28.—The Royal Society assembled again this morning. Dr. Kingsford was elected a fellow on motion of Mr. Sandford Fleming. A resolution was adopted praying the Governor-General to ask the Imperial Government for the assistance of the Astronomer Royal to settle the exact longitude of Montreal. The reports of the Natural History Society of Montreal, Historical Society of Nova Scotia and Nova Scotia Institute were presented. A telegram offering the use of rooms in the Legislative buildings, Quebec, for the society's meeting next year was read and tabled for future consideration.

Athletic Records Broken.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 28.—The annual field meeting of the New England Inter-collegiate Institution was held here to-day. Eight records were broken, one being the world's amateur record. This was the standing high jump, in which S. Crook of Williams cleared 5 feet 1½ inches, the previous record being 5 feet 1¼ inches, made by W. Soren in 1880.

A Suicide Spoiled.

WINDSOR, May 28.—Joseph Langlois, living near Colchester village, tried to commit suicide by hanging. Edward Aikens found his body suspended in a stable, and in his haste to cut the rope he also cut the face of the supposed dead man and the body fell a considerable distance to the floor. Langlois was brought around by the doctors and is still alive, but is in a precarious condition.

The Pan-American Bank.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Representative Hitt to-day introduced the bill to carry into effect the recommendations of the International American Conference for the incorporation of the International American Bank.

The Senate Committee on finance will begin consideration of the tariff bill to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Kilrain's Term Served Out.

CINCINNATI, May 28.—Jake Kilrain, the pugilist, passed through this city to-night en route for New York. Kilrain looks well and is fat. He says he was treated like a prince in Mississippi. He also expressed the belief that Sullivan was the hardest hitter in the world.

Murdered for Money.

DES MOINES, May 28.—Prof. [illegible] Braithwait, an artist formerly connected with Callahan College, was [illegible] to-day fatally [illegible] for robbery. The crime is [illegible] in mystery.

IT LOOKS LIKE MURDER.

KIMBER'S BODY FOUND IN THE RESERVOIR AT MONTREAL.

A Gash in the Throat Penetrating the Windpipe—Stones in the Coat Pockets—The Coroner's Jury Find a Verdict of Suicide.

MONTREAL, May 28.—The mystery which surrounded the disappearance of the missing young Englishman, T. S. Kimber, who suddenly vanished from the Grand Central Hotel last April, was dispelled in a degree by the finding of his body this morning in the high level reservoir which supplies the upper part of the city with water. The discovery was made by a young man who was going to his work. The body was much decomposed and was recognizable only by the clothing.

There was a wound about five inches long across the neck penetrating the windpipe. On the left side of the throat were three small wounds but only skin deep. In the coat pockets were three stones weighing each about five pounds. In the other pockets were found two penknives, a pouch of tobacco, a corkscrew, a watch chain, a lead pencil and 15 cents in silver.

Kimber arrived in Canada from Topsham, Exeter, Eng., per steamship Sarnia on April 11. He took quarters in the hotel of Thomas Styles and after a heavy bout of drinking suddenly disappeared. Blood was found in his room when the door was forced open and a razor covered with hair and blood was discovered.

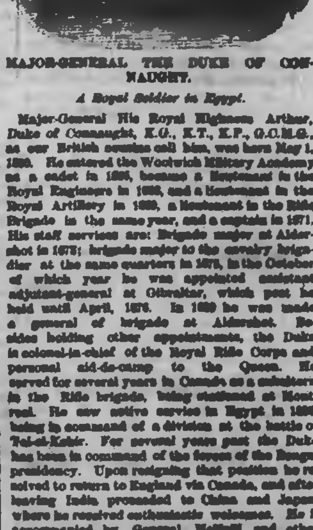
There were and are still two theories as to his disappearance: Suicide and murder; and although the jury at to-day's inquest inclined to the former theory, the general impression is that the young Englishman met with foul play. Detective Grose, who has been employed by the Dominion Government on the case, thinks it a straight murder case and has so reported to the Government.

Major Sherwood, chief of the secret service at Ottawa, was notified by his Montreal agent of the finding of the body and he thinks it another Benwell case. Major Sherwood was acting at the request of Kimber's people in England made through the Colonial Office. The whole evidence points to this view of the case. The question is, how a man could possibly cut his throat to the extent of five inches, quietly leave the hotel on St. James-street at 11 o'clock in the morning and with a bloody towel round his neck, weak with loss of blood, stagger up the streets that lead to the mountain, climb the steep hill to the reservoir, surmount the iron railings that surround it and plunge into the water. Even had his strength held out to perform this extraordinary feat it is pointed out that the strange and ghastly appearance presented by the man must have attracted special attention from some of the numbers of persons that he must have passed on his journey.

There is much criticism as to the method of holding an inquest. The jury was composed of workingmen taken from the street, and found a verdict of suicide before a post-mortem examination was made. It is almost certain that the unfortunate Englishman met with foul play, but as yet no arrests have been made.

In Toronto To-day.

TORONTO, May 29.—The Duke and Duchess of Connaught will arrive by the Northern Division of the Grand Trunk about 5 this afternoon. They will remain in the city until Saturday.



MAJOR-GENERAL THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT.

A Royal Soldier in Egypt.

Major-General His Royal Highness Arthur, Duke of Connaught, K.G., K.T., K.P., G.C.M.G., as our British cousins call him, was born May 1, 1850. He entered the Woolwich Military Academy as a cadet in 1866, became a lieutenant in the Royal Engineers in 1868, and a lieutenant in the Royal Artillery in 1869, a lieutenant in the Rifle Brigade in the same year, and a captain in 1871. His staff services are: Brigade major at Aldershot in 1873; brigade major to the cavalry brigadier at the same quarters in 1875, in the October of which year he was appointed assistant adjutant-general at Gibraltar, which post he held until April, 1876. In 1880 he was made a general of brigade at Aldershot. Besides holding other appointments, the Duke is colonel-in-chief of the Royal Rifle Corps and personal aid-de-camp to the Queen. He served for several years in Canada as a subaltern in the Rifle brigade, being stationed at Montreal. He saw active service in Egypt in 1882, being in command of a division at the battle of Tel-el-Kebir. For several years past the Duke has been in command of the forces of the Bengal presidency. Upon resigning that position he resolved to return to England via Canada, and after leaving India proceeded to China and Japan, where he received enthusiastic welcomes. He is accompanied by General McNeill and other officials. Prince Arthur is a studious and accomplished man, said to be the most intellectual man in the royal family of England.

He married in 1879 the Princess Louise, daughter of Prince Frederick Charles of Prussia, by whom he has three children.

PORT ARTHUR, May 28.—The special train bearing the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and suite arrived here at 6.30 this morning. Mayor Squire presented an address to the Prince on behalf of the citizens, to which His Royal Highness made an appropriate reply, referring to his pleasure in visiting a town called after him giving evidence of so much enterprise, thrift and progressiveness. At 9 o'clock the party left for the East.

The ducal train passed Chapleau, 151 miles east of White River, at 10 midnight.

Bank Wrecker Claassen Convicted.

NEW YORK, May 28.—At 7.40 this evening the jury, in the case of Bank Wrecker Claassen, rendered a verdict of guilty on five counts. They include embezzlement of funds and misapplication of loans. The jury was out six hours. Counsel for Claassen gave notice of a motion for a new trial. Claassen seemed unnerved by the verdict. He was led to the marshal's office, where the news was imparted to his wife and daughter. Mrs. Claassen shrieked and fainted.

Two of the Crew Drowned.

NEW ORLEANS, May 28.—A despatch from Puerto Cortez reports the loss of the steamer [illegible] in tow of the City of Dallas from New Orleans. Two of the Mountain [illegible] crew, John Donovan and George Baker, were drowned.

OFFICES AS BRIBES.

THE statement made by Mr. Robert Weir at the Opera House meeting on Monday evening, when he told how Mr. McWilliams, a confidential friend of Mr. Stratton and a most active political worker, tried to get him to sign a paper to help Mr. Stratton by holding out as an inducement the position of License Inspector, shows to what use the Government and its supporters put the patronage in the hands of the Government. Public offices and public money are used to strengthen the Government in power, and this was a specimen of the way it is done. Mr. Weir had been a strong supporter of the Reform party and of the Mowat Government for many years, but that Government has forfeited his confidence, as well as the confidence of many other Reformers and feeling the weakness of the Government's position to secure support by fair means, the plan of using a public office was resorted to. How strong the blow fell was shown by the fact that the Examiner eliminated all mention of Mr. Weir's remarks from its report of the meeting.

To how many this and other offices may have been promised the public may not at present have means of knowing, but they will be perfectly safe in assuming that Mr. Weir was not the only one who was approached in this way.

DESPICABLE TACTICS.

MR. STRATTON was forced into acknowledging on Monday evening that he had printed a fly-sheet, addressed to "Irish Catholic Electors" and purporting to be issued by the Conservatives, so that they might be circulated among Protestants to try to influence them against the Conservatives. Such tactics were in keeping with the plans that are being followed in this campaign, but "forewarned is forearmed," and this is another warning to the electors to be on their guard against such tricks. This acknowledgment Mr. Stratton seems to have regretted, for he left it out of the two-column report of his speech in the Examiner.

AFRAID TO FACE THE MUSIC.

How boldly Mr. Stratton denied the correctness of Mr. Carnegie's figures regarding the distribution of the school grant. But how soon his valor fled when Mr. Carnegie accepted his challenge to prove their correctness and offered to leave the question to a fair arbitration. Mr. Stratton named the Hon. G. W. Ross to represent him, but will he have Mr. Ross meet Mr. Pousette, whom Mr. Carnegie named as his representative, before the election? Did Mr. Stratton think there was not a man in Peterborough competent to examine the figures, which are published in the reports of the Department of Education and thus easily available? If not, why did he name a resident of Toronto, a member of the Cabinet?

It was so plainly a little scheme to crawl away from the challenge, and so pitiable a pretence, that Mr. Stratton did not allow a a mention of it to appear in the Examiner report of the meeting.

MR. BARRON ON THE STUMP.

MR. J. A. BARRON, M.P., has been called to the rescue and has appeared in this riding on Mr. Stratton's behalf. Mr. Barron has tried to make the most of his action regarding the Jesuit bill without injuring his party, although he has not united with the Equal Rights Association, but in his present attitude in supporting Mr. Stratton he has shown himself in his true colors and has swallowed at a gulp what he proclaimed as his principles. Speaking in Smith on November 1st last Mr. Barron said:—

> "He desired to say that he hoped the day was not far distant when Separate schools would be abolished in this Province. He hoped to have the opportunity of voting to do away with them."

But now Mr. Barron is not so anxious to have men vote in that way, and is opposing the candidate who favors those views. Mr. Barron cannot claim now, with any show of sincerity, that he has not confidence in Mr. Carnegie, for at this same meeting, where Mr. Carnegie also spoke, the Reform M.P. for North Victoria said:—

> "He did not think so much importance should be attached to the thirteen, as they simply did their duty, and if others, Mr. Carnegie for instance, had been there they would done the same."

Mr. Barron had confidence then that on such a question Mr. Carnegie would vote independent of party, and he has still, but party exegencies are with Mr. Barron stronger than his professed principles. He may now set up the petty excuse that the Provincial Legislature cannot deal with the question, but his backsliding cannot be hid that way, for common sense would tell him or any man that the question must be mooted in the Provincial Legislature by way of petition, in the same way as the Northwest Council dealt with the dual language question. This is Mr. Dalton McCarthy's opinion, and last fall Mr. Barron had a high opinion of Mr. McCarthy's legal knowledge, for at that meeting in Smith he said that Mr. Dalton McCarthy's opinion would be more valuable than that of the Law Officers of the crown—the Solicitor-General and Attorney-General of Great Britain, Sir Richard Webster and Sir Edward Clarke. Mr. Barron also said:—

> "His view was that the clause of the Separate school law which compelled Roman Catholics to send their children to these schools was unjust."

It will be seen that Mr. Barron then agreed with those who said the prima facie clause had that effect and dissented most pointedly from Mr. Mowat's view. And that clause was not repealed, but was re-affirmed by the 4th section of Mr. Ross' bill of last session. Mr. Barron's views expressed last fall and his action now are at variance, and by attempting to aid Mr. Stratton he has only succeeded in showing how little he is to be relied on himself.

It is to be hoped the fact that Mr. Barron received $600, and his firm of Barron and McLaughlin $814, a total of $1,414, from the Mowat Government last year did not have anything to do with his rapid change of opinions.

OUT OF THEIR OWN MOUTH.

"The total deficits under the Mowat Administration since and inclusive of 1873—nearly eighteen years—amounts to only $[illegible]. The deficits occurred in the year 1875—$[illegible]; in 1883—$[illegible]; in 1884—$[illegible]. In every other year since 1873 there has been a surplus, making a total surplus of $4,[illegible]. Deducting the total deficit we have the sum of $3,[illegible], the net addition to the surplus out of revenue.—Examiner.

It will be seen that the Examiner claims a surplus for last year, but in his budget speech on Feb. 12th last, Treasurer Ross said (see official report of speech, page 15): "Our expenditure for all purposes, including capital, has been $144,951 more than our receipts from all sources." It will also be seen that the Examiner admits no deficit during the last four years, but Hon. A. M. Ross said (see same speech, page 20), "We have received during the four years $12,-811,128 (included in those receipts are $1,392,000 from sale of timber), and we have expended $14,125,118." Out of the mouth of the Provincial Treasurer the Examiner is shown to be wrong.

But let us examine further. On page 40 of this same document there appears a statement of the total receipts since Confederation and on page 44 a statement of the total expenditure. Now these statements are more favorable to the Government than the Public Accounts will bear out, but they are published by the Government, and they show the Examiner to be wrong. According to these statements the deficits since 1872 have been:—

	Receipts.	Expenditure.	Deficits.
1874	$2,446,[illegible]	$2,871,[illegible]	$425,[illegible]
1875	[illegible]	[illegible]	447,[illegible]
1876	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
1877	[illegible]	3,119,117	616,[illegible]
1878	2,385,170	[illegible]	617,[illegible]
1879	2,307,[illegible]	2,941,714	[illegible]
1882	[illegible]	3,020,161	30,711
1883	2,469,941	[illegible]	447,[illegible]
1884	[illegible]	3,207,[illegible]	307,[illegible]
1885	[illegible]	3,046,112	40,193
1886	3,146,[illegible]	3,181,769	34,049
1889	3,[illegible]	[illegible]	114,861
			$4,274,[illegible]

And according to the same statement the surpluses have been:—

	Receipts.	Expenditure.	Surplus.
1873	$2,941,615	$2,940,[illegible]	$20,713
1880	2,564,169	2,512,[illegible]	65,[illegible]
1881	2,769,746	2,[illegible]	208,[illegible]
1887	3,546,024	3,454,373	92,[illegible]
1888	3,[illegible]	3,546,254	28,[illegible]
			$421,[illegible]

Total deficits	$4,274,[illegible]
Total surpluses	421,[illegible]
Net deficit	$3,852,7[illegible]

This statement is too favorable to the Government, because it classes as ordinary receipts borrowed money! Yet it shows an acknowledged record for the Mowat Government vastly different from what the Examiner would have its readers believe. And there would be no need of sending to Toronto for a referee or arbitrator to see if these figures are here correctly quoted. Anyone who wishes to do so can examine the statements as published by the Government, and the document can be seen in this office. But do not let anyone palm off a campaign pamphlet prepared by Mr. W. T. R. Preston, Liberal organizer, as an official document.

The Mowat Government has not saved one cent out of revenue, but has gone behind to the extent of millions.

REFERRING to the Separate school Act of 1863 the Globe of Saturday says:—"The Scott bill was introduced and carried as a final compromise with the help of a Lower Canada majority." Exactly. But the finality of the compromise was disturbed by Mr. Mowat's amendments.

IT is argued that the compulsory use of authorised text books in the Separate schools would be contrary to the constitution. This is not admitted, but the Ontario Legislature has on Mr. Mowat's motion asked for other changes in the constitution by passing the celebrated Quebec conference resolutions, for which Messrs. Stratton and Blezard voted, and how is it that the constitution has become so sacred all at once?

THE Examiner sneers at Mr. Dalton McCarthy because he is "a lawyer" and thinks "his visit here was a palpable interference in our domestic affairs." Perhaps that was the reason the Examiner devoted thirty lines to reporting his speech and two columns to Mr. Stratton! But who has Mr. Stratton had here speaking for him? Mr. Hardy and Mr. Ross, both residents of the same city as Mr. McCarthy and both lawyers, and Mr. J. A. Barron, of Lindsay, another lawyer, while Mr. Dewart, Mr. Gregory and Mr. Taylor, all lawyers from Toronto, have been stumping the county on behalf of the Government. The gentlemen from town who have assisted Mr. Stratton at his meetings are all or nearly all lawyers, including Messrs. G. M. Roger, C. J. Leonard and R. E. Hall. A sneer at "a lawyer" and "outside interference" comes with bad grace from Mr. Stratton under the circumstances.

Tuberculous Meat.

British butchers are about petitioning parliament to relax some of the more stringent measures against the sale of tuberculous meat on the ground that "no adequate proof has yet been given that such flesh is unfit for the food of man," or that "tubercle has been transmitted to the human subjects by its consumption."

Prof. Walley, of Edinburgh, takes issue with the petitioners. Direct proof, such as they contend for, he says, cannot, for manifest reasons, be obtained, but the mass of indirect testimony in favor of the assumption is enormous, while the question is of such grave import that arguments based upon analogy above should decide it.

The professor favors, to a certain extent compensation to butchers for losses through condemnation, but adds that all risks of this nature could be obviated if the butcher buy with the distinct understanding that the carcass must pass the government meat inspector. The money would then be turned over, not before, but after killing and examination, and in the event of disease, would not be paid over at all.

Shearing by Electricity.

Sheep are now sheared by electricity in Australia, Frederick Wolseley, a brother of Lord Wolseley, having invented a machine for the purpose. The method of using the shears is very simple, the operator having merely to throw a friction wheel into adjustment by means of a handle, then push the comb into the wool, pressing it continuously forward and keeping it as closely as possible to the body of the animal being operated upon. From one to one hundred shears can be operated at one time. By this mode the shearing is done more mercifully than when done by hand shears.—Exchange.

BLAINE AND THE PRESIDENCY.

Friends of the Secretary of State Say That Gentleman Will Not Be a Candidate.

NEW YORK, May 28.—A Portland, Me., special to The World says:

James G. Blaine keeps himself in touch with Maine. He is constantly in communication with his friends here and when any of his trusted lieutenants goes to Washington Blaine talks to them with greater confidence than any one else. From these gentlemen I have learned Mr. Blaine's present feeling in regard to the Presidency. It may be summed up thus:

Mr. Blaine put the presidency behind him once and for all in the spring of 1888. He meant all he said in the Florence letter, though had the Chicago Convention persisted in forcing upon him the nomination he would have accepted with reluctance. When Harrison was nominated stories flew about that Mr. Blaine would get first place in the Cabinet and the Presidency in 1892, Harrison to withdraw in his favor. I have succeeded in finding a man who saw every word of the correspondence between President Harrison, then in Indianapolis, and Mr. Blaine in Augusta in regard to the Secretaryship of State. There was, he said, absolutely nothing in or between the lines that indicated any such understanding between the two men. Blaine has repeatedly said in private that he has been near enough to the office to learn its cares and responsibilities, its wearing hard work, its day and night worry, and the little thanks one gets in the place. Blaine may, therefore, be given up as a candidate for the Presidency, his friends say. It is likely that in 1892 Blaine's personal following will go to Harrison.

Their Visit to Toronto.

Now that the 57th Battalion has decided by a vote to go to Toronto on Dominion Day, it behooves each individual member of the battalion to make it his duty to attend both battalion and company drill regularly until that day. Every man should take an active interest in this direction, as the Rangers will not want to make a poor showing in the grand military review which is to be held in the Queen city.

A Misunderstanding Corrected.

In regard to a Police Court paragraph that appeared in yesterday's issue referring to an arrest, some explanation or correction should be made. In justice to Mr. George Graham, of the Oriental hotel, it can be stated that he was not fined for assault nor was he at the Police Court—in fact he was not prosecuted on such a charge at all. This explanation is made to correct any misunderstanding that may have arisen.

OFFICIAL NOMINATIONS.

Messrs. Carnegie and Stratton in the Field—Very Little Speaking.

The nomination of candidates to represent West Peterborough in the Provincial Legislature took place at the Court House at noon to-day, Sheriff Hall, returning officer, presiding.

THE NOMINATIONS.

Mr. J. R. STRATTON was nominated as the Government candidate by Mr. Peter Hamilton, seconded by Mr. Richard Hall.

Mr. HAMILTON, in making the nomination, spoke briefly.

Mr. JOHN CARNEGIE was nominated as the Equal Rights candidate by Mr. J. L. Hughes, seconded by Mr. Robert Weir.

Mr. WEIR, in seconding the nomination, dwelt upon the Separate school law amendments, which had been injurious to the Public schools. Mr. Stratton had followed his leaders through everything, and they should have an independent representative and he believed Mr. Carnegie would be triumphantly elected.

The Returning Officer read the list of polling places, and Smith was divided into six divisions, instead of four as at first, No. 2 being the only one undisturbed. The polling places are given in another place in this paper.

SHORT SPEECHES.

Mr. STRATTON thanked his nominator and seconder and said he was in the field as a supporter of the Government. He hoped he would receive a larger vote than he did on the last occasion and believed he would be elected.

Mr. CARNEGIE also thanked his mover and seconder. He stood upon the Equal Rights platform. The great question was the school question. The Provincial Legislature could largely curtail the evils in this regard and should take steps to have them abolished. Mr. Stratton took an opposite view and it was for the electors to decide. He was as confident—and perhaps a little more confident—than Mr. Stratton that he (Mr. Carnegie) would receive a majority on June 5th.

The proceedings then terminated.

A Peterborough Boy Gone.

From the Wheatland Eagle, published at Cass County, North Dakota, U.S., we learn of the death of Mr. Bert. S. Palmer, whom many will remember. The Eagle says:—"Mr. Palmer was born in Peterborough, Ontario, in August, 1854. He learned his trade, printing, in that city, and from there he went to Rochester, N.Y., and Boston Mass., and after several years steady work at his trade came west and has since made his home in North Dakota. He was always a Union man and at his death he was a member of the Sioux Falls Typographical Union and in good standing. As a fellow printer and tradesman he stood in the front ranks and was a universal favorite with all who knew him."

Savages expect to imbibe bravery by drinking the blood of their brave enemies. A more enlightened method of vitalizing the blood is by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It braces up the nerves and gives strength and fortitude to endure the trials of life.

Their Deliberations not yet Ended.

The Synod Commission that is considering the St. Andrew's church appeal case had not reached a conclusion in time for this issue to-day. Yesterday at noon the case was closed and the Commission went into secret session to consider the evidence and arrive at a conclusion. The parties in the case were told the conclusion would be brought in at four o'clock in the afternoon. At that hour the interested parties in the case, together with a number of members of the congregation, were at the church to hear the conclusion, but the announcement was made that no conclusion had yet been reached, but that the verdict would be given at 8.30 o'clock in the evening. At the hour the interested crowd assembled again but another announcement of "no conclusion yet" was made, but it was said that a conclusion would surely be reached at eleven o'clock this morning. At eleven o'clock the same faithful crowd of interested persons assembled for the third time to hear the conclusion and after waiting till half past eleven they were told that the decision had not yet been arrived at but would be announced at three this afternoon. The members of the commission are carefully weighing the case and deliberating calmly so as to bring in as just and fair a conclusion as in their judgment is possible. The long delay is causing some of the members much inconvenience.

THE NORWOOD CELEBRATION.

Conclusion of the Report of Monday's Doings in the Village.

The picnic under the auspices of the Roman Catholic congregation was held in a grove opposite the church. The grove was a pretty one, though scarcely large enough for the large number who attended the picnic. Dinner was served on tables arranged in the shade of the trees and the tables were amply provided with substantial and tempting edibles and were liberally patronized. A large platform had been erected for dancing, and all day it was occupied by young people who tripped the light fantastic to the excellent music of the Peterborough orchestra, Mr. Jas. Coughlin being an efficient floor manager. A programme of sports and games was also carried out, and considerable amusement was afforded by the use of an air gun. Rev. Father Conway was on the grounds all day and met a number of former parishioners and friends from Peterborough.

The Football Tournament.

The High school Football team played Belleville city team a draw game in the forenoon, one goal each being taken. The Norwood team was composed as follows:—A. Hutchinson, goal; J. Jory, J. Breckenridge, backs; E. Smith, J. Quinlan, A. Finlay, half backs; H. Pearce, J. Roberts, right forwards; F. Truscott, centre forward; D. Fraser, H. Bewell, left forwards.

In the afternoon the boys played the Stanleys, of Toronto, and defeated them two goals to none. Mr. Frank Roxburgh, who is home from Toronto University for his summer vacation, was referee in both matches.

Evening Entertainments.

The Oddfellows concert in the old Methodist church was well patronized and the entertainment was good. Each number was well received. Grand Master Bell gave an interesting address and the Canton exercises were very pleasing.

Mrs. O'Neil's concert in the Town Hall was also very successful. A fine programme was rendered, among those taking part being several from Peterborough, including the Peterborough orchestra.

Rev. Father Chiniquy gave a lecture in the Metcalf block. There was a fair turnout and the proceeds amounted to about $50.

HAVELOCK HAPPENINGS.

The Growth of the Thriving Village—A Church Re-opening.

Correspondence of the Review.

CHURCH RE-OPENING.—About five years ago the Methodist congregation at Havelock, feeling they should have something better than a school house wherein to worship God, erected and dedicated for that sacred object a beautiful edifice in what was then called Havelock, but what is now known as the "corners" or "old Havelock." Just about that time the railroad was laid and the workshops were built about one mile from what was then Havelock. The choosing of that site as the end of a division on the road simply meant that a number of men had to be employed to carry on the work and that for convenience they had to live as near the station and workshops as possible. Time went on (as it generally does) and houses were built, different lines of business were established until the foundation of a thrifty village was firmly and fully laid. Building has gone on until what was five or six years ago nothing but a cedar swamp is now a pleasant, busy and compact little village, which can boast of a population of about six or seven hundred inhabitants. Almost one year ago the Presbyterian congregation, having sold their church, which was a mile from the village, completed a church which is indeed a credit to the village, and last December the members of the English church congregation opened for worship St. John's church, which is neat, substantial and attractive in every particular. Well, in the face of such zeal and enterprise on the part of these two congregations the Methodist people felt that they, too, must take steps towards sustaining the cause which they had so well established here. It did not take them long to see clearly the advisability of having their church, too, in a central part of the village. Work was at once commenced. A lot was secured in a central place and the old edifice placed upon it. The building has undergone several changes and has been thoroughly overhauled and finished and last Sunday, May 18th, it was reopened to the public worship of God, Rev. O. R. Lambly, of Madoc, and chairman of that district, preached appropriate sermons both morning and evening to large congregations, and on Monday a dinner was served from 4 to 7 o'clock, after which addresses were delivered by Rev. Messrs. O. R. Lambly, McMillen and Denike, Rev. J. J. Rae, pastor, presiding. Subscriptions were freely given, which, together with the results of the dinner which was about $160, will place the church almost free from debt. Sheds have been built and a lot secured just west of the church upon which a parsonage will immediately be built. Great credit is due to the pastor, Rev. J. J. Rae, who has so wisely and successfully controlled the moving and finishing of this comfortable church. Let the Methodists of Havelock thank God and take courage.

PERSONALS.—Mrs. W. B. Seccombe, of the Carrying Place, spent Sunday last with us....Miss Mark, of Keene, paid us a flying visit....Mr. W. Connaughty, of Belleville, has been visiting friends here....Rev. J. J. Rae has returned from the District meeting in Stirling and reports that the next financial District meeting which meets in August, will assemble in Havelock....Mr. J. R. Peake, a former teacher here, has been visiting some of his old friends. He was attending Albert College for a while, but through ill health had to give up studies and is now stopping in Shannonville.

A CONVENIENCE.—Philip Bros. have placed one of E. C. Gurney's scales for weighing hay, etc. It has been needed very much and they are to be congratulated on their enterprise and we trust it will pay well financially.

GARDENS IN THE CITY.

HOW SMALL GROUNDS MAY BE MADE BEAUTIFUL.

Points From a Practical Florist—Designs and Colors Showing to the Best Advantage in Flower-Beds on Small Lots—How an Attractive Conservatory May Be Made.

JAMES Henderson, one of Chicago's best florists, contributes an article to the Herald on the beautification of city gardens. Says he:

I will begin with outdoor flower-beds. For most city back-yards the only space that can be devoted to the purpose of flower-raising is a border or strip of land about two feet in width between the walk and the fence.

Close to the fence we would advise planting quick growing climbers, such as moon-flowers, passiflora, honey-suckles, German ivy, etc.

In this border, between the climbers and the walk, I would suggest assorted bedding plants such as petunias, heliotrope, ageratums, geraniums, coleus, lobelias, pansies, salvias, etc. These plants will cost on an average $1 per dozen, and they should be set out in double line one foot apart. These one dozen plants will occupy a space of six feet.

To suppose that every city man has a back yard that can be used as a flower garden is stretching the imagination to the cracking point, but in most cities there are front yards which can easily be beautified.

Suppose your vacant plot of ground is 25x 50 feet in size, all the space not to be occupied by the flower-bed should be sodded, leaving room for the necessary walks to the bed. This having been done, lay out the bed in the center of the plot, in the form of a circle, with a diameter of seven feet. Within the inner circle plant French cannas. This will take about six plants, which will cost $1.50. Plant the second circle with scarlet geraniums, taking twelve plants, which will cost $1. The outer circle should be planted with coleus verschaffeltii, taking fifty plants, at a cost of $3, making a total of $5.50.

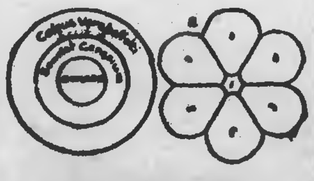
This bed can be modified in form and size to suit the taste of the designer.

A MORE ELABORATE DESIGN.

Now we will suppose that the house-owner has a plot 50x100 feet in size at his disposal. He may either have several small beds, similar in style to the one I have described, or if he be very ambitious he can have one large bed of this style covering a larger space and naturally increasing his variety of plants.

It is best as a rule to have comparatively few colors and few varieties of plants, as the amateur will have to study the habit of each of these plants, and if the colors be very many the effect by any mischance may be spoiled.

Such a bed is described in figure No. 2. As in figure No. 1 the lot should be sodded, or if that be not practicable, the bed should have a narrow border or sod. The plants should be distributed as follows:



DESIGNS FOR FLOWER-BEDS.

1. Coleus Verschaffeltii, crimson; 2. Geranium, Gen. Grant, or other scarlet; 3. Geranium, Queen Olga, pink.

Judging from the cost of the bed first described the price of this bed may be calculated easily.

All such planting must necessarily be largely a matter of taste, although, of course, sharply contrasting colors make the most striking effects. One important point in all planting of this sort is to trim the plants so that they shall form clean, defined lines; that is, if they in growing overlap one another, they must be pinched back so that each color shows plainly and distinctly where they meet, also that the top growth be so pinched back that the bed presents a smooth and even surface.

WINDOW GARDENING.

Window gardening during the summer months is made more successful in England than with us, owing to a more temperate climate, and hence it is there almost universally practiced. In the cities especially, where space is economized, the buildings so close together that there is often no room for even a spear of grass to be grown, the only garden that is possible is one formed of a box on the window-sill. This is limited in extent, as the space afforded is only four or five feet in length and from eight to ten inches in width, with a depth for the soil of about six inches.

These boxes are made of a great variety of material, such as wood, terra cotta, iron, etc., according to the owner's taste and means.

As the boxes are usually too high up for a close inspection from the street, and as the sides soon become draped with drooping plants, an ordinary box of pine will answer as well as a more expensive one.

It should be put together very firmly and lined with tin or zinc. Usually spaces are left in the bottom to admit of the water passing freely through. When this is not done greater care is required in watering.

This box may be painted or it may be covered with oil-cloth of some small pattern, in which case it can not be told at a distance from a box covered with tiles.

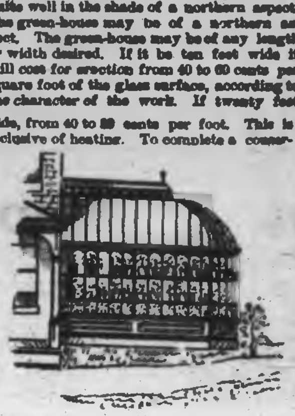
These window gardens in summer produce the finest effects when planted with some drooping plants. For our climate during the summer months, when exposed to a full sun strong and vigorous plants must be selected, such as tropaeolums, petunias, passifloras, etc.; while the upright plants may be double and single geraniums, heliotropes, begonias, and the like.

A CONSERVATORY FOR $72.

For those ambitious amateurs who want to add conservatories to their out-door flower beds, I will suggest two kinds. The first can be built for $50, and the second would cost at least $400.

My first conservatory is simply a back veranda closed in with glass frames. Such a conservatory may be built for $50, providing cheap material is used and the house-owner.

My second green-house should be attached to the house on any side save the north, if flowering plants are to be grown. Ferns, lycopods, palms, and other plants grown for the beauty of their form or foliage will do quite well in the shade of a northern aspect. The green-house may be of a northern aspect. The green-house may be of any length or width desired. If it be ten feet wide it will cost for erection from 40 to 60 cents per square foot of the glass surface, according to the character of the work. If twenty feet wide, from 40 to 50 cents per foot. This is exclusive of heating. To complete a conservatory with heating apparatus, shelves, etc., ten feet wide by forty feet long, would cost about $400.



A $75 CONSERVATORY.

The first green-house may be heated with a coal-oil stove.

In the small green-house a good selection consisting of about 200 plants can be obtained for about $25, making the entire cost of the experiment come within $75. Among the varieties composing this last are the following:

Anthemis, bouvardias, calla-lilies, carnations, chrysanthemums, fuchsias, geraniums, primulas, winter-flowering roses, and smilax.

These plants cost on an average $1 a dozen if bought from a florist in the spring, but in in fall they cost $3 a dozen. Those gardeners who intend building conservatories can save money by buying their plants in the spring and keeping them through the summer, besides adding thereby considerably to their experience and pleasure.

THE JUDGE!

What the deacon saw then he will never forget, though he would willingly do so. Certainly he will never be able to understand what it all meant though he has related the incident to his friends many times and has talked it over with an attention to detail that showed an unconscious absorption of the artistic spirit of the age.

The fire was glowing fiercely and in the full sweep of its red illumination was the old man, swinging his hammer with prodigious movements. Those arms were strong, but not the arms of a blacksmith. The cords stood out in them, but it was [illegible] straining to which they [illegible] and not from muscular development. And their gestures were of frenzy that amazed and dismayed the deacon, for they wrought no work, they merely dashing the resounding implement against the glowing iron, without producing any recognizable thing. As the smith raised his eyes at the opening of the door, the deacon saw depicted upon his face, a suffering so acute, an impatience so intense, that he lost heart and feared to enter. The eyes the smith fixed upon him had no recognition in them, indeed the deacon has since [illegible] half so [illegible].

"I killed a coyote once out west," the deacon is wont to say in speaking of it, "an' when he died he had just such a look in his eyes. It was an animal look, you know, but it had a sort of horror in it to."

The smith did not stop for the approach of the deacon, but went on swinging his hammer with terrible force, regardless of what it struck or what it accomplished. To get within the reach of that sweeping hammer was a dangerous thing, and the look in the smith's eyes was not inviting. Fascinated, the deacon closed the door behind him and stood silently in the corner, with staring gaze upon the wild old man. After a time it seemed to him that the blows grew weaker. Then he was certain that the arms were wavering. Finally they trembled convulsively, dropped the huge hammer and fell to the smith's sides. Then the old man raised a changed face. It was haggard, worn—and very humble.

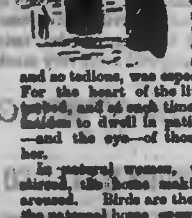
"Saved," he said to himself.

Then from out the shadows at the far end came his daughter. She was as pale as death, and something more than ordinary fear shone in her large eyes, which were an unnatural aspect to the bewildered deacon. She held out her arms to her father, and he fell in them, sobbing like a grieved child.

Tenderly, with soothing words, and many pattings of the hand and caressing touches, the daughter led him up the narrow stairs that led to the apartments above, and as they went the old man still murmured "saved," until they were out of hearing.

Then the deacon stole away, and told the story to every one he saw.

CHAPTER XXIV.



HERE had come quite a change in the life of Jeanne. Quiet and very dull seemed the paternal nest to the little damsel. Her fine clothes were sadly out of place, and mocked her with their inappropriate elegance. The daily round, so familiar and so tedious, was especially hateful now. For the heart of the little damsel was disturbed, and at such times it is difficult for a maiden to dwell in patience under the roof—and the eye—of those in authority over her.

In natural women, when the heart is stirred, the home making instinct is also aroused. Birds are the same way. Then the paternal home grows distasteful. The labors performed there are graceless tasks, the days spent there, impatient ones.

Yet Jeanne loved her home—every inch of it. Just to follow her mother about the house was a pleasure. The chickens, the dogs, the blind cat, the cows and each of the horses greeted her after their manner. The little bare room welcomed her with its silent familiarity. Its uncarpeted floor, its chilly little windows, its narrow bed with the pieced calico cover, were in violent contrast to the comforts she had grown used to in the last several weeks. But they gave her a sense of rest. As she nestled at night in the bed and curled herself up in a ball, as she had done so many hundred times in the old days, she almost [illegible] time would never had lain through the greater part of the night watching the shifting shaft of moonlight on the floor. The Jeanne of the old time did not know the sad plaint of Gretchen—

"My life is empty, my heart is sore,
He has left me—he has left me forever more,'

and she would have had no patience with it if she had.

There were [illegible] many [illegible] the Jeanne of the present time that the old Jeanne would have laughed at. This Jeanne spent twenty minutes a day manicuring her finger nails, she tied her [illegible] curls in a bewitching Grecian knot, and she used heliotrope on her handkerchief. Yet her mother found her as helpful as of old, and much sympathetic.

The hearts of the good woman and her husband were deeply grieved that their merry little daughter should have chanced among such terrible surroundings, as they laid her very apparent melancholy to the [illegible] Jeanne [illegible] damsel. She cared nothing for the matters they talked of, and their jests, out of which she had once drawn infinite amusement, were most offensive now. At another time she might have enjoyed them, even by the light of her wider experience, for she was nothing if not humorous. But the truly humorous person has as great a capacity for tears as for laughter, and now Jeanne found the tears uppermost. Not that they ever fell, but that they lay near the surface.

One night the misery reached the cap of the climax. It was raining drearily, and as all at the farm house went to bed soon after supper, Jeanne had gone to her room. Its bareness had never been more repellant. Even the prints lately pinned upon the wall, and the bright curtains, and the warm rug, could not make it looked inhabited. It contained no stove and the air was raw and damp, so that Jeanie found it necessary to wrap herself in her mantle in order to read without danger of catching cold. Her book was "Hyperion," that melancholy chronicle of a young poet. Its light, yet mournful philosophy was suited to the mood and the experience of the poor girl, and the poetry of it sank deep into her soul. On the window the rain swept drearily and echoed through the half-furnished house. Jeanne laid down the book to revel in the deep plaintiveness, and sitting with clasped hands stared before her, her blue eyes filling with sorrowful dreams. She crooned a little song—"The Long, Long Weary Day," with pathos that compelled a strong self pity, and was just dragging to the lachrymose end of the second verse when she was startled by a resounding knock on the seldom-used front door.

There was no one up but Jeanne, and once abed, the good farmer folk heard nothing till morning, when they awoke with the regularity of clock-work. Keeping her long blue mantle still wrapped about her, Jeanne lit a candle and made her way, not without trepidation, to the front door. The little vestibule smelled horribly of oilcloth, and the key stuck so that it was necessary for her to put the candle on the floor and use both hands to turn it.

At length it came open with a jerk, and, as might be expected, the candle went out as the wind came in. Here then, was confusion! A tall figure loomed up before her there in the dark—a figure with bright eyes, which peered through the gloom at the frightened girl. Should she speak first? Why did not the man say something? Was it to be another tragedy? Jeanne would not have been surprised. She felt that she was getting used to horrors. Just as she was prepared for the worst, and had concluded that the best thing that could happen to her was to die, any way, a voice said:

"Is this Miss Jeanne?"

Was it Miss Jeanne! It was anything that voice wanted it to be!

"It is Jeanne," said the small person, and then added with ready deception, "who is that speaking? The candle went out."

THE CANADIAN RAILWAYS.

Knocking Uncle Sam's Lines Completely Out—The American Roads Nowhere.

NEW YORK, May 28.—The Herald's Chicago special says: "The Canadian Pacific is making still further inroads into the east-bound business of the central traffic lines to almost every New England point, even as far south as Providence and Worcester. The Canadian Pacific is making rates of 45 cents a hundred on dressed beef, the regular tariff being 48 cents. The business is all taken out of Chicago on the Wabash, thence over the Canadian Pacific, and is delivered to New England ports by Boston and Maine. Since last Friday the new route has done all Swift's and Hammond's dressed beef business, besides liberal shares of the output of other houses. Other central traffic lines are certain that there is a deal between the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk of Canada by which the eastern territory is divided, and another new route, formed by the Wabash, Grand Trunk and Lackawanna, is doing exactly the same in Pennsylvania as the other route is doing in New England. Each route has issued tariffs cutting rates 2 cents to all points."

The Inter-Continental Railway.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—In the Senate to-day Mr. Sherman, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, reported an amendment to be offered to the Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation Bill authorising the President to appoint, with the consent of the Senate, three commissioners to represent the United States in the Inter-Continental Railway Commission, also to detail Army and Navy officers to serve as engineers under such commission in making a survey, appropriating $65,000 as the share of the United States of the expenses of such commission and survey.

For Austin Corbin's Canadian Route.

WATERTOWN, N.Y., May 28.—The citizens of this town have subscribed $1000 to pay half the expense of a preliminary survey for a railroad from Camden, N.Y., to the St. Lawrence River via Watertown. The money was raised in accordance with a proposition made by Austin Corbin, president of the Reading system, who desires to market coal in the Canadian provinces. The proposed line would be an extension of the Elmira, Cortland & Northern, which is being connected with the Reading route. The survey will be made and Mr. Corbin will decide on the building of the road on his return from a European trip, which he is about to take.

THE W. C. T. U.

Third Annual Convention of the Dominion Body at Montreal.

MONTREAL, May 28.—The Dominion Woman's Christian Temperance Union opened its third annual convention here to-day in Erskine Church, by morning, afternoon and evening meetings. Miss Tilley read the annual report of the work done during the year, giving details of several provincial organizations, results of evangelistic work, of flower missions, of band of hope efforts and describing the effect of the sailors' work, visitations to barbers' shops for the purpose of inducing this class to give up the purchasing of obscene literature for their patrons. Miss Willard arrived this evening.

A HORSE WHO CAN TALK!

Everybody has heard of a "horse laugh," but who has ever seen an equine gifted with the power of speech? Such an animal would be pronounced a miracle; but so would the telegraph and the telephone a hundred years ago. Why, even very recently a cure for consumption, which is universally acknowledged to be scrofula affecting the lungs, would have been looked upon as miraculous, but now people are beginning to realize that the disease is not incurable. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure it, if taken in time and given a fair trial. This world-renowned remedy will not make new lungs, but it will restore diseased ones to a healthy state when other means have failed. Thousands gratefully testify to this. It is the most potent tonic, or strength restorer, alterative, or blood-cleanser and nutritive, or flesh-builder, known to medical science. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh in the Head, and all Lingering Coughs, it is an unequaled remedy. In derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels, as Indigestion, or Dyspepsia, Biliousness, or "Liver Complaint," Chronic Diarrhea, and kindred ailments, it is a sovereign remedy.

GUARANTEED. "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine of its class, sold by druggists, under a printed guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will benefit or cure in every case of disease for which it is recommended, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded.

Coughs, Colds, Croup.

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced COUGH CURE. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.

PROF. DORENWEND'S GREETING.

To all Whom it may Concern.

Beautiful women and handsome men are admired and command attention. How many are there who would be beautiful or handsome had they a sufficiency of hair. LADIES, all the dress jewellery and other ornaments are naught if the hair is shaggy or worn out looking. It requires a Fine Hair Goods Style to beautify and tone down the face. This with the plainest possible dress will create a charming and attractive presence. GENTLEMEN, there are thousands of you with bald tops who have probably never thought of artificial coverings, but when the hair refuses to return—why not get a Toupee? Think of this. I want you all to call at my show rooms in the Hotel and see my Goods. Ladies' Bangs in an immense variety of styles, sizes and shades. Crownpieces in long and short hair, Frontpieces, Wigs, Switches, etc., Gents. Wigs, Toupees, etc. Remember that the Prof. will be in Peterborough at PHELAN'S HOTEL on MONDAY, JUNE 2nd. Drop in and see him. 2w21-2d123

DETECTIVES DISAGREE.

THE KIMBER MYSTERY DIVIDES OPINIONS AT MONTREAL.

The City Force Laugh at the Theory of Murder and Will do No Further Work—High Constable Bissonette Scouts the Idea of Suicide.

MONTREAL, May 29.—The finding of Kimber's body in the reservoir and the peculiar circumstances attending his disappearance caused much comment on the street to-day. The hasty inquest and the returning of a hasty verdict are somewhat severely criticised. Opinion is still divided between the theories of murder and suicide with the balance in favor of the former. Dr. Mount makes this statement:

"I performed an autopsy on the deceased and found that there were eight cuts in the throat, but not one of them was sufficient to cause death. Only the skin and the cellular tissue were injured. The windpipe was slightly grazed, but the mucous membrane was intact. The internal organs were in too advanced a state of decomposition to tell whether he met his death from drowning or not. There was no matter in the stomach—nor was there any bloody foam in the trachea or in the bronchial tube as is the case when a person has been drowned. Nevertheless, under the circumstances, I incline to the belief that drowning was the cause of death. I found no indications of a blow having been struck. The brains were a putrid mass."

The doctor believed that Kimber could have walked from the hotel to the reservoir after inflicting the wounds. As to a motive for suicide there was evidently none that his friends knew of and the same may be said of the murder theory. He apparently was a person who gave the impression that he had plenty of money—a "hail-fellow-well-met."

The quantity of blood lost by Kimber in his bedroom appears to create the belief that he could not have walked to the reservoir, put the stones in his own pocket, climbed the high railings, broken the ice—for it is stated there was ice on the reservoir at the time—and jumped in. These are some of the arguments which those favoring the murder theory are advancing. The city police and detectives are at one in putting the case down as one of suicide and laugh at the murder theory. They will not take any further action in the matter.

High Constable Bissonnette said to-day: "The case is one of deliberate murder." Detective Grose has received word from the Government to make a thorough investigation and report. Chief Hughes has sent in a report to Ottawa characterising the case as one of suicide. Kimber's father has been cabled informing him of the finding of his son's body.

THE M'KINLEY TARIFF.

Senators at Work on the Bill—A Number of Reductions Made.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—A full attendance of members of the Senate Finance Committee was present this morning and the tariff bill was up for consideration. Mr. Carlisle took his seat at the foot of the Democratic side of the table and entered into the discussion with earnestness.

Senator Sherman suggested that the committee take up the bill by paragraphs and either pass them for future action or agree to them as they stood in the bill as it passed the House. This was agreed to with the understanding that any paragraph which was agreed to might be recalled for further action.

The first schedule is the chemicals schedule and before entering upon that Mr. Aldrich suggested that it would be well to decide whether or not the committee would agree to recommend free alcohol in the arts, for if it was the opinion of the committee that that should be done it would affect the rates on half the items in the schedule. After discussion it was voted not to recommend free alcohol in the arts. The text of the chemical schedule was then gone over and 58 items checked off. Of these, however, 13 of the most important were passed over without action.

The question of further proceedings by the committee came up and it was decided that a sub-committee on each side be appointed to prepare such schedules as would be advocated by the party on the floor of the Senate, that the Republican sub-committee as fast as it prepared its schedules submit them to the Democratic sub-committee and the latter furnish its schedules to the Republican sub-committee.

The changes made in the chemical schedule to-day were all reductions. They were proposed by Republicans and supported by the solid Democratic vote and the vote of the member making the motion. None of them were of any significance.

The Scotch-Irish Congress.

PITTSBURG, May 29.—The second great Scotch-Irish congress of America opened in Mechanical Hall to-day with probably 1000 delegates and visitors from all parts of the United States and Canada.

Robert Bonner of New York, president of the association, called the congress to order. The vast auditorium was then well filled and the scene presented was inspiring. The hall was tastefully decorated with streamers of bunting and plants, while over the stage was a large painting of the coat-of-arms of the association. Addresses of welcome were delivered by Governor Beaver and Mayor Gourlay. There has been a wonderful growth of the society during the past year.

THE PULSE OF TRADE.

BRADSTREET'S WEEKLY REVIEW OF THE SITUATION.

Crop Reports in the Wheat District Conflicting—What the Bulls Say—Bear Manipulation of Shares—An Unprecedented Number of Strikes.

NEW YORK, May 29.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's point out that owing to the advanced stage of the season there is rather less activity in general trade than a fortnight ago. Groceries and boots and shoes have shown most activity. Country orders south have fallen off during the week. Crop reports throughout the south are favorable, but in the wheat district reports are conflicting. Trade reports from Chicago show some improvement over the preceding week, as do those from points further northwest. The opinion gains ground that we are to carry over nearly 40,000,000 bushels of wheat on July 1 next in excess of the quantity carried over one year ago, as was pointed out in Bradstreet's last week. Believers in higher prices point to reported prospects for a crop of only 412,000,000 bushels of wheat this year, as compared with 490,000,000 bushels in 1889, as an offset with a tendency to favor holders of grain.

The iron trade has not developed any further strength or activity. Heavy buyers feel that with the present extraordinary output of furnaces, factories, bloomeries, forges and mills prices cannot help but continue in their favor, and hence indifference to the suggestions of makers to buy liberally for the future.

The recent heavy advance in raw cotton has further stiffened cotton goods values and advanced some makes of bleached goods, tickings and jeans ¼c. a yard. Print cloths are steady. The current demand is only fair from agents and rather quiet from jobbers. Staple cottons and fall dress goods note chief activity; woolen goods are only moderately active.

The fall season will open early. Light stocks and quiet but steady demand impart continued firmness to the wool market. Holders' and purchasers' views at primary markets are apart. New wool is arriving more freely at the seaboard. Carpet wool is firm with an upward tendency on light stocks and fair demand.

Cotton is ¼c higher on speculative excitement due to short coverings growing out of small supplies available on contract requirements. Old crop movement is heavier, new crop advices cheerful.

Bear manipulation on a large scale keeps share speculation disturbed and depressed. The trusts were successfully attacked and the restoration of western railroad rates does not prevent bearish raids on the railroad share list. Bonds are less active, but values are steady.

An unprecedented number of strikes have been reported during May. The total is 243, involving 67,507 strikers, against 75 strikes and 20,128 strikers in May last year. For five months this year the total number of strikes number 580, involving 136,454 men, against 296 strikes and 75,110 strikers in a like portion of 1889. The next movement for the extension of the 8-hour day will be made by coal miners, who number 280,000. This, we are informed officially, will occur as soon as the carpenters' strike is ended. All but 5000 of the carpenters interested are reported to have gained the shorter day.

Business failures reported to Bradstreet's number 140 in the United States this week against 180 last week and 135 this week last year. Canada had 12 this week against 28 last week. The total number of failures in the United States Jan. 1 to date is 4767, against 5041 in a like portion of 1889.

FROM "DEL'S" TO A CELL.

This Swindler was Having a Royal Good Time With Sir Robert Peel.

NEW YORK, May 29.—John McDermott, an ex-hack-driver, was arrested Tuesday night in front of Delmonico's, where he had been dining and wining with Sir Robert Peel, a descendant of the illustrious statesman, and Clifford Talbot, a wealthy young Englishman. McDermott met the Englishmen on the Aurania, representing himself as Inspector Brynes' chief detective. So much struck with his new friend was Sir Robert that he gave the scoundrel a diamond cravat-pin, worth $600, and entrusted him with four £5 notes to change. Sir Robert and Talbot paid the bills and McDermott gave them the freedom of the city. McDermott is wanted for defrauding Widow Thayer out of $1260.

WAS MURDER INTENDED?

A Pistol Bullet Put Through a Galt Man's Face—A Shot for a Blow.

GALT, May 29.—What would appear to be an attempted murder occurred here last night about 9 o'clock. William Doidge, an employe at Bochmer's lime works near the northwestern suburbs of the town, does night duty and keeps a watch dog in the shanty with him overnight. While talking to the foreman in the shanty his dog ran out and started barking at two men that were near by, who commenced abusing the dog. Doidge came out and remonstrated with them until the altercation became so hot that Doidge struck at one of them, who immediately drew a revolver and fired in Doidge's face. The ball entered near the mouth and came out a little below the ear. The shot was fired at close range, powder marks being visible all over Doidge's cheek. Medical aid was secured and the wound dressed, which is not considered fatal.

Doidge's assailants were discovered this morning some distance out of town. As soon as the constable got within sight they separated and took to their heels in different directions. Chase was made and the one who fired the shot and who turns out to be a tramp about 18 years of age was run down and arrested. The other, also a tramp, disappeared in a swamp and further efforts to get him were abandoned.

Yesterday at noon Williamson's stable was discovered to be on fire and a valuable trotting colt was destroyed, together with the building and contents. Young Prest, an 8-year-old lad, was arrested and lodged in jail and admitted that he had been trying to start a blaze for some time.

APPROACHING A CRISIS.

THREATENING ASPECT OF AFFAIRS IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

The People of the West Coast Refuse to Pay Taxes to the St. Johns Government Unless They Are Protected—An Indignation Meeting.

HALIFAX, May 29.—It would seem from the news brought by the steamer Harlow that matters on the so-called French shore, on the western coast of Newfoundland, are rapidly approaching a crisis. In consequence of the action of the commanding officer of a French ship of war at Bay St. George, requiring the inhabitants to take up their nets, the people have refused to recognize the right of the Government of Newfoundland to collect import duties and a prominent resident, well-known for his thorough grasp of the whole question, on which he has written many trenchant articles in the newspapers of St. John's, was one of the first to take action by declining to pay any duty on some goods from the Harlow in the face of the customs-house officer, the reason being given that unless protection is offered by the Government the right to levy duty cannot be maintained. This action will probably be endorsed and carried out by all the inhabitants along the coast-line in dispute, some 700 miles, with a population of nearly 12,000. A return of duties illegally imposed for the last 30 years is also urgently discussed by the indignant people.

A Bay St. George correspondent writes: The commander of the French warship Indre, now lying in the roadstead of Bay St. George, ordered the inhabitants of the shore to take up their herring nets. The people refused. The French officers then came armed and took up the nets, destroying some of them. The people applied to a local magistrate, established by the St. John's Government on the coast, for protection. He informed them he was powerless to lend them any assistance. There is no English warship in the harbor. The Pelican came and remained a day, but did nothing to protect the British subjects.

The people then met in a large concourse on May 24, and passed, amid great enthusiasm, strong resolutions declaring their determination to refuse to pay any further duties to St. John's until such time as they receive protection in their industry.

The meeting was attended by the principal merchants of the place and clergymen of different denominations, and most determined speeches were made. The resolutions were telegraphed to the Governor at St. Johns and the Emerald has been ordered to proceed to the scene of action.

CONNAUGHT AT TORONTO.

An Enthusiastic Reception—Dined by Sir Alexander Campbell.

TORONTO, May 30.—The Duke and Duchess of Connaught and suite arrived here at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The ducal party was met at Parkdale by Mayor Clarke and the Reception Committee. An immense throng gathered at the Union Station and gave their Royal Highnesses an enthusiastic welcome. A force of 60 policemen under command of Chief Grasett kept the crowd in order. A guard of honor of 60 men from C School under command of Major Vidal accompanied the party to the Queen's, where they rested for a short time.

About 50 members of the Army and Navy Veterans Society, under command of President John Nunn, were drawn up outside the hotel, and the Duke said he would like to have a look and a chat with the old boys. Then His Highness filed out into Front-street and made straight for the veterans' column. He shook hands with every one of the 50 and asked many interesting questions. His Highness was as familiar with every medal, every ribbon, every clasp that adorned the breasts of the wearers as he was with the alphabet, and as he went from one to the other he readily called them off. "How long have you been in Canada and how are you doing?" he invariably asked each veteran. None of them could mention an incident in any of the great campaigns through which they had passed but that His Highness had heard of. His fund of information about every arm of the service and the numbers of the regiment seemed to be inexhaustible. He had a good word for each. Several of them assured His Highness that they remembered him as a mere boy at Woolwich; others had seen him at Aldershot, while others had fought under him.

A dinner was given at Government House at 7½. About 80 invitations had been sent out, but many of the gentlemen invited being actively engaged in the political campaign were unable to attend. There were no public functions yesterday, but the ducal party will be kept busy to-day, the program including a trip to Osgoode Hall, presentation of addresses in the Pavilion, a visit to the R. C. Y. C. House on the Island, etc. The Duke and party go to Niagara Saturday morning.

Barrie's Welcome.

BARRIE, May 29.—It was only definitely known yesterday that the Duke and Duchess of Connaught would pass through Barrie on their way from the Northwest, and at once the authorities resolved to do something in the way of a reception to the Prince and his royal consort. Hearing that the royal train would stop at Allandale and could not do so at Barrie, it was decided that the reception, as far as Barrie was concerned, should take place at Allandale. Notwithstanding the short notice an immense throng from Barrie and the adjoining village turned out in full force to do honor to the royal visitors.

The Duchess was presented with an elegant bouquet of roses and maiden-hair fern by Gladys, the youngest daughter of Judge Ardagh, who was assisted in the presentation by Philip, a young son of Mayor Pepler. The Duchess gracefully accepted the same, after which the mayor hoped that the flowers, which had been hastily collected, would refresh them on their way.

His Royal Highness said he did not expect to be received in such a kind manner by the people of this beautiful part of the Dominion nor did they expect to see such a pretty spot. He expressed his great appreciation of the loyal words contained in the Mayor's address, and wished the Mayor to convey his thanks to the people for their hearty reception.

WHAT SURPLUS.

In former articles we have shown that the Provincial Treasurer's statements acknowledge that the expenditure made by the Mowat Government since it took office has largely exceeded the revenue, and the Public Accounts show an even worse record. This being true—and it is a fact anyone can ascertain for himself by examining the records, which are open for inspection at this office—it follows that the Government could not possibly have added anything to the surplus by savings out of the revenue. What excuse is there, then, for the statement that the Government has a large surplus? It is a very simple matter, though the supporters of the Government make most misleading statements. When the Sandfield Macdonald Government resigned it left a surplus in cash, which was actually the savings out of revenue and therefore a real surplus, of about $4,000,000. That has almost entirely disappeared. But to keep up a show of economy certain trust funds held by the Dominion Government are counted as assets and thus used to make a show of assets over liabilities. These funds existed before the Mowat Government took office, but they were never counted in the surplus statement by Sandfield Macdonald, because they were no part of the savings of the Government. The Mowat Government had nothing to do with placing them where they are—they are not investments made by the Ontario Government, and if the statement was made on the same basis as it formerly was it would at once be seen that instead of a cash surplus of about $6,000,000, there is only $1,310,-000 of a surplus left. And this is not all, for since Sandfield Macdonald resigned a debt has been incurred, and the Mowat Government since 1883 borrowed $1,000,512. A statement of the present amount of the debt—the sum that would be required to pay it off at the present time, is given in the sessional papers of the past session, No. 28, pages 12-14, and it amounts to over $3,100,000. So the hard truth is that the Government has a cash surplus of $1,300,-000 and against that a debt of $3 100,000, and it has also received increased revenue from the Dominion Government and has raided the municipal treasuries and increased the taxes of the people.

DR. CAVEN AND MR. BLAKE.

In Toronto at Mr. Mowat's meeting, Hon. S. H. Blake denounced all who would not stand by the statement of Rev. Dr. Caven. Mr. Blake said:—

"Dr. Caven, a man who stands as the greatest man of the Equal Rights movement, a man who stands so high for integrity that no man dare impeach him throughout the length and breadth of the land * * * I say the honesty and integrity of that man rings out in strange contrast to the dishonesty of those who will not stand by his statement."

Then Mr. Blake proceeded to say, on his own account:—

"Therefore, gentlemen, it was easy for me, who am a Protestant, and known as a Protestant, if I wanted an electioneering cry, to throw up my hat and say, 'Abolish separate schools.' I would be false to the terms on which our French and Roman Catholic fellow-citizens entered into confederation. I would be a breaker of treaties; I would be false to myself, false to my country, and false to my God."

Mr. Blake holds the same ideas as Mr. G. W. Ross and Mr. Stratton. But at the same hour that Mr. Blake was speaking in this strain Dr. Caven was addressing a meeting at Galt and said:—

"These [separate] schools were thrust upon Ontario, and now people dared to say it was a solemn compact which could not be touched. He could not see how we must be bound from one decade, aye, from one generation to another, and for one he was not prepared to admit that we were. True, there must be no trifling, no needless meddling with the constitution, but if the people find fault it is their duty to deal with them, believing that they should be abolished."

It is in order to enquire who are the dishonest men who will not stand by Dr. Caven's statement?

A "CERTIFICATE OF CHARACTER."

The Government press has published, as a document of some importance, a letter from Dr. Emmett, who was nominated by the Equal Rights Association of Monck and after consideration declined the nomination. In the published letter this Dr. Emmett tries to give a certificate of character to Mr. Mowat, which causes it to be prized by the Government supporters. In order to show how valuable a document it is, coming from the source it does, we give a letter which this same Dr. Emmett wrote to the President of the Association. When offered the nomination he took time to consider it and sent the following letter:—

"FONTHILL, May 16, 1890.

"DEAR SIR,—Yours of this morning duly received, and in reply I beg to thank the association, of which you are the head, for the honor conferred. I cannot, however, fully endorse your platform. I will say this much, that while being a zealous supporter of the Hon. O. Mowat, I cannot countenance him or any leader who will cringe to the Roman Catholics, simply to retain their support. I have said I would take the field as an independent, if everything proves as I think it will on investigation. I am busy looking into matters and will give my decision on Monday.

"Thanking you for the encouragement in your letter, I am yours truly,

"J. O. EMMETT

"J. W. Johnson, Esq., President E. R. A., Wellandport."

What influence has caused Dr. Emmett to change his views to such a great extent inside of four days has not yet transpired, but under the circumstances his present support of the Government does not count for much.

Hon. Wm. Macdougall went into Lincoln to help Mr. Rykert. And Mr. Macdougall has appeared on the platform advocating the Mowat Government's cause. Mr. Stratton's attention is respectfully directed to this.

Are there any other Provincial offices that are to be occupied by several persons after the elections besides the License Inspectorship?

The man who interrupted Mr. Weir in the Opera House will hesitate before he ventures on a similar course again. He might get another unpleasant surprise.

Rowan Refused Pardon.

Helena, Mont., May 29.—Governor Toole has advised the Board of Pardons to refuse to pardon John Rowan, a member of a wealthy and influential family of Quebec, Que. In 1886, while attempting to kill another man, Rowan murdered Joseph Ennsiere and was sentenced to the penitentiary for life. Rowan made application to the President and Sir John Macdonald, the Canadian Premier, had the British Minister at Washington interest Secretary Blaine. Mr. Blaine wrote to the board asking as a matter of international courtesy that the pardon be granted. Yesterday the request was refused.

An Original Package Decision.

Augusta, Me., May 29.—The Supreme Court to-day announced a unanimous decision in the Burns' liquor case, reversing the decision of the lower court which convicted Burns under the statutes. Burns several years ago opened an "original package" business here, selling only liquors imported from the provinces of Canada or other countries, claiming that the state had no right under the United States constitution to interfere with his business. The court says the Iowa case just decided by the United States Supreme Court clearly settles the question.

Bank Officials Indicted.

Philadelphia, May 29.—The Grand Jury to-day found two true bills of indictment against President Louis E. Pfeiffer of the Insolvent Bank of America and Receiving Teller S. E. Pancoast, charging them with embezzlement in receiving money on deposit knowing that the bank was insolvent.

Fatal Quarrel Over Money.

Denver, May 29.—John P. Clow, ex-pugilist, and Garrett Hughes quarrelled in a saloon here to-day over money matters. Clow knocked Hughes down and the latter shot Clow in the groin. The wound is thought to be fatal. Hughes is connected with one of the most prominent families of Colorado. He is in jail.

The Flour Market.

Minneapolis, May 29.—The Northwestern Miller says: The flour output last week was 107,340 barrels. The flour market is still extremely dull and there is a growing tendency to curtail the output. Flour sales are reduced to the minimum. Millers are maintaining prices pretty well, asking perhaps 5 to 10 cents less than a week ago. Foreign trade is as light as ever, a few bakers, being the only grade that it is possible to sell at all. The direct export shipments for the week were 37,250 barrels against 29,940 the preceding week.

Savages expect to imbibe bravery by drinking the blood of their brave enemies. A more enlightened method of vitalizing the blood is by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It braces up the nerves and gives strength and fortitude to endure the trials of life.

THE SYNOD COMMISSION

ARRIVE AT A CONCLUSION IN THE ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH CASE.

The Case Fully and Carefully Considered—The Deliverance Acquiesced in by all Parties in the Case—The Elders, Session and Some of the Managers Relieved from Office—Some Questions Answered—The Commission to Return in Six Months.

After long, careful and faithful deliberation the Synod Commission which has been in session here since Tuesday considering the St. Andrew's church appeal case arrived at and announced their conclusion about four o'clock yesterday afternoon. The circumstances of the case are familiar and still fresh in the minds of the public, as the particulars were given fully in the Review at the time they came before the Presbytery. The appeal which brough the matter before the Synod was made by Rev. Alex. Bell and Mr. John Carnegie from the finding of the Presbytery in the appeal which Dr. Bell and others made from the action of the church Session, which action cut them off from membership in the church for habitually absenting themselves from the ordinances.

A THOROUGH INVESTIGATION.

The Synod Commission went into all the records, examined all parties in the case and listened to the addresses of the representatives of the church Session, Presbytery and original appellants. All the evidence had been taken by Wednesday noon, and the Commission went into secret session to deliberate on the evidence and facts and statements that had been laid before them. It proved an intricate and difficult undertaking, but, as the members of the Commission remarked afterwards, they considered the case thoroughly with a desire to arrive at a decision which would be fair and just to all parties and satisfactory to themselves.

As already announced the parties concerned in the case, together with quite a number of interested members of the congregation, went to the church three times expecting to hear the conclusion but each time no decision had been arrived at and a further postponement was made. In fact when they went into session the members of the commission little thought that it was going to take such a length of time to arrive at a conclusion.

Yesterday morning the commission announced to the waiting crowd that their decision would be given at three in the afternoon. At that hour the interested parties were all present, and after waiting until four o'clock word was sent out that the end had been reached, and the commission was prepared to announce the result of their many hours of deliberation. After an opening prayer Rev. Dr. Torrance, Chairman of the Commission, called to the bar the parties interested in the case. Rev. Alex. Bell and Mr. John Carnegie were present for the Session, Rev. Messrs. Bennett and Torrance represented the Presbytery, and Dr. Bell, and Messrs. McFarlane, Stewart and others were present representing the original appellants.

THE COMMISSION'S CONCLUSION.

Rev. Dr. Torrance then read the Commission's conclusion, which was as follows:

The Commission having heard the record as amended read and listened to the parties in the case, after full deliberation agreed to the following resolution, viz:

That the Commission waive the appeal and find

(1) That the conduct of Messrs. R W. Bell, M.D., Alex. Stewart, T. Fitzgerald, A. McFarlane and W. Fowler in absenting themselves habitually from ordinances and avowing their intention to do so while the present pastor remains in charge of the congregation, and at the same time desiring to retain their position and rights as members in full communion in St. Andrew's Church, is clearly irregular and exposes them justly to the discipline of the church. The Commission considered that the reasons which they allege for their conduct do not vindicate the propriety of it, inasmuch as they did not take the regular constitutional course to bring their grievances under the notice of the courts of the church, and they are hereby admonished that their conduct is unbecoming as members of the Christian Church and should be shunned by them in the future.

(2) That the reasons assigned by Messrs. Bell, Stewart et al. for absenting themselves from ordinances being based on the conduct of the pastor and one of the elders were of such a nature as could not with propriety be dealt with by the Session.

The Session erred after ascertaining their nature in not referring the matter to the Presbytery for adjudication, and the Presbytery erred in appointing assessors to sit with the Session instead of dealing themselves directly with the matter.

(3) That a state of feeling has arisen in the congregation and dissensions have sprung up and become so embittered that ordinary remedies are not in the judgment of the Commission sufficient to meet the case. This state of things is due partly to the improper action of the congregation in July, 1889, in resolving to reduce the salary of the pastor without previous consultation with him or reference to the Presbytery, with which matter the Presbytery has already sufficiently dealt, and partly to contradictory statements as to matters of fact, and in measure to the arbitary acts of the pastor and Session in various matters, and especially in postponing the annual meeting of the congregation which action admitted of a sinister construction, and in requiring, without any previous dealings, the original appellants to take their certificates within a week or be dropped from the roll of church members.

That in view of the whole circumstances of the case, the commission agrees to the following:

(a) For prudential reasons to relieve the present elders of the congregation from office for the present year, and the assessors appointed by the Presbytery; and appoint the following assessors in their place:—Messrs. Clelland, Hay and Bennett, ministers; Messrs. Roxborough, Norwood, Jno. Clarke, Campbellford, and Fairbairn, Lakefield.

(b) To relieve Dr. Bell, Messrs. Fitzgerald and McFarlane, till the next annual congregational meeting, and instruct the session to call a meeting of the congregation to elect others in their place.

[A sub-committee was appointed to bring the wording of this clause into accordance with the act of parliament, regulating the property of the congregation.]

(c) To hold a visitation of the congregation not later than 15th December, and if by the time of the visitation reasonable harmony has not been restored, to take the necessary steps for the immediate severence of the pastoral tie.

(d) To exhort all parties to make an earnest and prayerful endeavor to work together in harmony and seek the welfare of the congregation.

AN EFFORT FOR HARMONY.

Rev. Prof. McLaren then addressed the parties in the case on behalf of the Commission. He said that they had deliberated with care and judicial fairness and had sought to bring out a conclusion according to the points of law. In regard to the point as to whether a member could habitually absent himself from the ordinances and still hold his position in the church, he said the member must take steps to bring his grievance before the proper court for review, the Session if it was a sessional matter, and the Presbytery if it was a Presbyterial matter. This course had not been followed. In regard to the practical finding, he said, the Commission felt that it would be better that the brethren mentioned in the conclusion should retire from the committee of management for the present year, that the Session should resign, as most of them already had, and that the elders should be relieved, so that an entirely new set of men should come in for the time being. He urged all parties at variance to seek to bring about a harmonious state of things, and said the Commission would come back before the end of the year and if they did not find a better state of things they would at once take steps to sever the pastoral ties.

Rev. D. J. Macdonnell had also been appointed by the Commission to address the parties. He said he wished to urge every person concerned to make an honest attempt to carry out what the Commission urged. He did not expect them all to be satisfied with the deliverance. The Commission had not said "You are all urged, now shake hands and make up," but had pointed out what they claimed to be wrong and had boldly endeavored to apportion the blame fairly and justly and impartially where it belonged. He went on at considerable length to earnestly urge all parties to co-operate in working for harmony, telling them "what ought to be can be" and therefore there was no reason why harmony should be impossible. He wanted them to go back to their previous state of harmony, and claimed a special right to speak to them as he had left them twenty years ago harmoniously and pleasantly situated. It depended on both minister and people and he hoped all would make an effort to put in practice the last clause of the deliverance.

Rev. Dr. Torrance then read the third chapter of Colossians, remarking he hoped all parties would meditate thereon.

ALL PARTIES ACQUIESCE.

The deliverance was then read again and the Session were asked if they acquiesced to it.

Rev. Mr. Bell made an inquiry in regard to clause "c," which said that the commission would hold a visitation not later than 15th of December next and if by that time harmony did not exist they could take steps to sever the pastoral ties. Mr. Bell wished to know whether this would throw all the burden on the minister. If some parties saw fit they might cause the present state of feelings to continue and the minister might not have anything to do with it or be to blame, but he would have to bear the burden. If no steps were taken until after a fair investigation he would acquiesce to the deliverance.

Rev. Mr. Macdonnell explained that the understanding was that there would be such an investigation.

Rev. Mr. Bell then said he would acquiesce.

Mr. Carnegie also said with that understanding he would cordially acquiesce.

The original appellants in the case were next asked if they acquiesced in the conclusion.

Dr. Bell explained that the managers were elected some for three years and some for four years. He had been elected for three and had only held office for about one year and a half. He wanted to know whether at the end of the present year he and the other managers who were relieved from office by the commission would resume their position for the balance of their term.

It was answered that the managers and elders would both resume office at the end of the year, being only relieved in the meantime.

Dr. Bell also pointed out another thing. The appointment of managers was made, he said, according to an Act of Parliament, and by this if a vacancy occurred on the Board the remaining managers elected the successors.

After a little discussion the clause in brackets was inserted in the deliverance after clause "b."

Dr. Bell said that by thus relieving the managers from office it might be taken as a reflection on their financial management. He asked if such was the case.

The commissioners all replied in a voice "No, No."

Rev. Mr. Macdonnell said the Board of Managers as a body had not been relieved from office, but only certain managers who had absented themselves for the ordinances of the church. Dr. Bell then also acquiesced in the conclusion.

The Presbytery was next asked if the deliverance would pass them without a dissent or appeal.

Rev. Mr. Bennett asked if the Presbytery would have anything more to do with the case, and was answered in the negative, the commission having taken the matter into their own hands. He was also informed that the Session appointed by the Commission would have full power of the regular Session. After a few further questions Mr. Bennett on behalf of the Presbytery also acquiesced in the conclusion.

This concluded the business and the Commission rose, after having finished, for the present at all events, a long, tedious and difficult task.

SMITH SIFTINGS.

The Corner Stone of the New Line Baptist Church Laid.

Correspondence of the Review.

The corner stone of the Line Baptist chuch, Smith, was laid on Monday by Rev. Mr. Gilmour, son of the late Rev. John Gilmour, the founder of the church. The ceremony took place at 3 o'clock, and was opened with a hymn, the choir of the church leading in the singing, after which Rev. J. B. Huff, who presided, led in prayer. Rev. K. B. Roberts, a former pastor, read an interesting historical sketch of the church, in which he called to mind that Rev. Richard Scott, from New Brunswick, was sent by the New England company to Peterborough county, but he did not organise a church. Upon Mr. Scott's death in 1827 Rev. John Gilmour succeeded him, and in the fall of 1828 twelve candidates were baptized and formed a church. These founders of the church were Mr. and Mrs. John Walton, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graham, Mr. James Mann, sr., Mr. and Mrs. Donald McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McKee, Mr. John Taylor, Mr. Wm. Pullan and Mr. Watson Robinson. The first deacons were Messrs. John Walton and Donald McDonald, and the pastors have been Rev. Messrs. Robert McDougal, John Edwards, Peter Wilson, Edward R. Roberts, Thos. Stock, Thos. Dyall, F. Ratcliffe, A. R. de St. Dalmas and J. B. Huff. Three churches—Selwyn, Peterborough and Lakefield Baptist churches, have emenated from the parent church. This interesting historical document, together with a list of the church officers, builders, copies of the Canadian Baptist, Peterborough and Toronto papers and coins, was placed in the sealed jar beneath the stone. The present officers are Rev. J. B. Huff, pastor; Messrs. James Mann, Wm. Graham and G. W. Mann, deacons; James Mann, T. Robinson, Nathan Taylor, T. H. Graham and Jas. H. Mann, trustees; Jas. H. Mann, clerk; Jas. Tindle, Wm. Graham, Nathan Taylor and Jas. H. Mann, building committee. After another hymn, the corner stone was duly laid, and an adjournment was made to the old church, where addresses were delivered by Rev. Mr. Fraser, Fenelon Falls; Rev. D. B. Houck, Bridgenorth; Rev. Mr. Gilmour, Rev. P. Clifton Parker, Peterborough, and Rev. W. Peer, Norwood. Afterwards a knife and fork social was held in the parsonage grove, and the ladies had made ample provision for the occasion. The proceeds amounted to a good sum. The new church will be a handsome brick structure and will cost about $3,500. Mr. G. J. Joplin is the contractor for the whole building and will do the carpenter work; Messrs. H. Sherwood & Sons have the subcontract for the stone work; Mr. T. McFadden for the brickwork; Mr. Cobbledick for the plastering; Messrs. C. J. Burgis & Son for the painting, and Mr. Peter Hamilton supplies the iron work.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Campaign Notes.

Mr. Carnegie addressed a largely attended meeting in the Grange Hall, Smith, last night.

Mr. Carnegie's committee rooms, in the old Council Chamber, Opera House block, are open every night.

At the nominations yesterday Mr. Stratton appointed Mr. G. M. Roger his financial agent and Mr. Carnegie appointed Mr. S. R. Armstrong.

In the Times this morning there is a article strongly advocating Mr. Blezard's cause, but the marks at the end "advt.-1d"—that is, advertisement, one insertion in daily—rather spoils the effect of it. Mr. Blezard must be in a bad way when he has to get a favorable opinion of his candidature inserted as an advertisement.

He Needed a Rest.

Some amusing stories relative to the effect of the recent courts martial and investigations are going about in army circles, and one of them comes from Jefferson Barracks, Mo. When a member of the military band at the barracks came to the post surgeon with a long face and a plaintive story about a sore throat he was treated with a consideration which was so marked as it was gratifying.

"Sore throat, eh?" said the surgeon pleasantly. "Let me see. Oh, that's not so bad. A slight irritation, nothing more. You'll be all right in a day or two. I guess you had better take no chances on renewing the trouble by using your throat, though, so I will recommend that you be excused from active duty for two weeks."

Armed with the surgeon's certificate the bandsman obtained his two weeks' relief from duty. The two weeks had just come to an active end when he met the post surgeon on the parade grounds. The bandsman saluted. The surgeon recognized the face and stopped.

"How's the throat?" he said pleasantly.

"It is quite well, sir," was the reply.

"That's good," said the surgeon. "You can get back to your duty now without fear. By the way, what instrument do you handle in the band?"

"The small drum, sir," said the musician.—[Chicago Herald.

APSLEY AFFAIRS.

The Celebration of the Queen's Birthday—Other News Notes.

Correspondence of the Review.

Personal.—Mr. Ham returned to visit us for the 24th celebration.

A Cheese Factory in View.—Mr. Wm. Wilson having failed in negotiating a purchase of Mr. Daly's property is now busily engaged in preparation to build a house on the corner of Mr. Geo. Wilson's lot. A cheese factory is another scheme Mr. Wilson is working up with good prospects of success.

A Courageous Act.—Mr. John Kirby, the popular overseer for the Rathburn Co., was rescued on Saturday from a watery grave by one of his men gallantly swimming to his aid in the rapids below McColl's slide. Mr. Kirby had disappeared twice before his rescuer reached him.

The 24th.—Two teams from our local Football club—the Red and the Blue—played a second contest for possession of the club flag. The Red's won it last season after a two hour contest. The game opened at 2 o'clock and in twenty minutes the Blues had made two goals from the masterly feet of Mr. Wm. Elmhirst. The ball had been kicked off but a few moments in the third struggle when Mr. Chas. Webster, center forward, collided with an opponent so heavily as to stun him. He was conveyed from the field and in a couple of hours was able again to be about. This accident put an end to the game by consent of the captains. In the evening the basket sociable announced by the Methodists was held in the Temperance Hall. A good programme was prepared. Miss and Messrs. Reynolds, our popular local song-sters, assisted very materially in the musical part. Misses Annie and Mary Elmhirst and Miss Reynolds sang "Annie Laurie" very effectively. Miss Anderson presided at the organ while a number of choirsters gave a couple of college choruses and the audience sang "God Save the Queen." Misses Steen, Clifford, Holes and Young gave recitations and then the prizes were distributed to the lucky ticket holders. Each lady who brought luncheon for two was admitted free, others paid, gentlemen paid 25 cents and were given a slip on which was a number. This number corresponded to one on a bag or basket and when that number was called the gallant came forward, got his lunch and began his search for his helpmate. After these were distributed, baskets containing cake, etc., were passed through the audience. After singing "God be with You Till We Meet Again," and with three right royal, rousing cheers for Her Majesty, the audience dispersed with the comfortable feeling that $12.50 had been added to the parsonage fund.

Rain.—The heaviest rain fall of the season occurred Sunday, 25th.

Congratulations.—We are pleased to see that Mr. H. B. Anderson has successfully passed the examination of the Council of College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Explanation—To the Editor of the Review. Sir,—In your report of "Apsley Affairs" in the Review of 23rd inst., the last paragraph is misleading. It states that "a social entertainment.....is in contemplation. Proceeds in aid of the parsonage fund." Kindly allow me to say that there is not any debt on the parsonage, the whole of the purchase money was paid at the time of purchase. Among the numerous readers of the Review many are acquainted with Apsley and I trust you will allow this correction to appear. The church here has never resorted to any of the methods commonly employed to raise funds.—Yours faithfully, P. Harding. [Note—The reference, as will be clearly seen by the report of the social this week, was to the Methodist church, and we are certain that our correspondent had no intention of doing an injustice or misleading.]

The Daily Review.

FRIDAY, MAY 30, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

"Yes, I see," returned the voice. "Or rather I don't see. Who is it? Well, if you don't know by this time, I may as well go back as I came."

"Oh, it's Mr. Pond!" cried the perjured Jeanne in accents of great surprise. "Come in, quick, out of the rain. How in the world did you get out here?"

"I walked three miles from the station. How do other people not blessed with 'chaises' get out here?" So dark was it going through the vestibule, and the cold little parlor that Jeanne had to guide her caller by the hand, lest he should fall over something and injure his ankles. And so long was the parlor—though Jeanne had never noticed it before—that it took a long, long time to get through it. It was full fifteen minutes, at the least, before the kitchen was reached. There is no accounting for these things. It took the children of Israel forty years to cross a patch of ground that a Yankee would have traversed in a week's comfortable walking. History has never explained this, nor can history explain why it took so long to reach the kitchen. Once inside, and before the embers of the dying fire, Jeanne whispered:

"I never dreamt that you would come."

Considering the state of his clothes, drenched with wet as they were, there was every likelihood that she would catch cold. But she was apparently oblivious to all danger, or perhaps she still thought that the best thing that could happen to her was to die.

"So you never dreamed of it? I have dreamed of nothing else."

"Why didn't you wait for pleasant weather?"

"Why do you not select a dryer knee to sit on?"

"But there is no dryer knee here."

"There was no pleasanter weather here."

As the fire was very low, indeed, it was necessary to put on a few sticks of wood. It was not in reason that Pond could go to bed till his clothes were dried. When he finally sat with his feet in the oven, and watched by the light of the kerosene lamp the busy figure of the little damsel making coffee, cutting bread and hunting doughnuts in a great crock, there was a look of placidity on his face such as his mirror had not seen since he first met Margaret.
